D. R. Tisdale, a popular cattleman of Johnson county, Wyo., had a shipment of cattle at South Omaha on Aug. 15. In this consignment were about five cars of feeders that averaged 1,062 lbs and sold at $5.35, and about four cars of good heifers, averaging 907 lbs, at $4.60.

C. A. Jewell, Bigstone county, Minn.; Skoog & Anderson and P. A. Johnson, Kandiyohi county, Minn.; Farmers Elevator Co., Saint Croix county, Wis.; Fred Schulte, Pierce county, Wis.; W. H. Johnson, Wadena county, Minn., were among our patrons at South St. Paul.

M. H. Tollett of Martin county, Minn., writes our South St. Paul house: "We have intended for some time to send you a personal bouquet concerning those two decks of yearling lambs you bought for us last September. They were mostly blackfaces, with a few we had at home making four loads. They were consigned to Chicago at two different times and made the extreme top without a throwout. They were well bought, well fed, and well sold. Thank you for past favors."

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

E. S. Wildy of Boxbutte county, Neb., marketed hogs through our Denver house last week.

Two cars of cattle and hogs were received by our South St. Paul house from John R. Jones of Richland county, N. D.

Galloway & Talbott of San Miguel county, Colo., had two cars of cows on the Denver market Aug. 15 which our house sold at $4.05, top for the day.

The Yampa Live Stock and Land Co. of Routt county, Colo., marketed through our Denver house Monday of this week two cars of steers which sold at top prices.

I. C. Miller of Carbon county, Wyo., had a load of 91-lb feeding wethers on the South Omaha market Aug. 21 and our house obtained the top price of $4.25 for them.

Hulett Bros. of Rio Blanco county, Colo., the well-known rangemen of Western Colorado, were on the Dever market with fourteen cars of steers which sold at satisfactory prices.

W. W. Latta & Son of Johnson county, Neb., had three cars of cattle from their feed lots on the South Omaha market Aug. 18 that we sold at $7.20, averaging 1,297 lbs. This price was top that day.

The following Wyoming shippers, all good customers of our firm, were on the Denver market with shipments: C. E. Cooper, Carbon county, Wyo., and Hugh McDonald and W. M. Lannon, both of Laramie county, Wyo.

John Whitaker of Laramie county, Wyo., was the owner and our house the sellers of the two cars of 1,156-lb cattle which went on feeding account at $6.00 on the South Omaha market Aug. 23, the highest price of the season for such offerings.

Top for the day and week on "through" cattle brought up from the South and pastured in Kansas during the summer was realized by our Kansas City house Aug. 18 for a shipment sent in by Frank Finney & Son of Wabaunsee county, Kan. The lot averaged 1,081 lbs and made $5.40.

W. J. Hampton, a prominent stockman of Sheridan county, Wyo., was on the South Omaha market Aug. 16 looking after the shipment of two cars of cattle. One load of steers sold to the feeder buyers at $5.65, averaging 1,124 lbs, a price well up to the top for this class of stock, and Mr. Hampton was well pleased.

P. A. Yeast of Grant county, Neb., a veteran in the cattle business, was at South Omaha late last week looking after the shipment of train of cattle. Mr. Yeast had some very good steers in his consignment, sales being made at $5.60, $5.50, $5.40, $5.25 and $4.90, and cows at $4.00. He was well pleased with the sales.

On Aug. 17 our South Omaha house handled 600 yearling wethers for Weare & Collett of Butte county, S. D., and 1,400 yearling wethers for the H. G. Weare Co. of the same place at $5.45 on feeding account. These were the first yearlings to reach the price this season and were 10c higher than other yearlings there that day.

The Diamond Cattle Co., Frank Bosler manager, had a car of good feeders on the South Omaha market Aug. 17 from Albany county, Wyo., that we sold at $5.55, averaging 1,140 lbs. This company runs a good class of stock and their cattle always sells up pretty well in the scale of prices. Mr. Bosler was there in person looking after the shipment.

JOHN BLAKELY OF PREEMPTION, ILL.

He is of the extensive and well-known feeding and shipping firm of Blakely Bros. They are also fanciers of Aberdeen-Angus cattle and have taken some high honors in the fat carload lot show at the International with these cattle. Blakely Bros. are among our most valued friends and patrons.

Following parties favored our South Paul house with shipments Monday: Paul Braun and J. Kelin, of Stark county, N. D.; L. W. Longley, Rosebud county, Mont.; M. J. Garber and J. A. Estes, Ottertail county, Minn.; W. E. Stevens, Douglas county, Minn.; H. E. Feltheim, Mercer county, N. D.; C. O. Riley, Emmons county, N. D.; Jos. Pazandak, Dickey county, N. D.; Sheldon Mercantile Co., Ransom county, N. D.; L. B. Garnaas, Eddy county, N. D.; J. F. Booth and J. Wustner, Ward county, N. D.; F. Goetze, Todd county, Minn.; Geo. Stevens and W. E. Stevens, Douglas county, Minn.

The following prominet feeders or shippers had hogs to our East St. Louis house: G. W. Swallow, Dallas county, Ia.; A. M. Blankenship, Marion county, Ill.; Knight & West, Crawford county, Mo.; J. J. Smith and Presley Robinson, Linn county, Mo.; P. J. Douthirt, Page county, Ia.; Cassingham & Stone, Johnson county, Mo.; H. L. Bufford, Shelby county, Mo.; W. F. Shultz, Saint Charles county, Mo.; Sims & Smith, Cooper county, Mo.; Wm. Laswell, Lewis county, Mo.; F. T. Bennett, Appanoose county, Ia.; H. P. George, Caldwell county, Mo.; J. E. Lindsey, Lewis county, Mo.; Wy Sands, Warren county, Ill.; Newt Brown, White county, Ill.; Vencil Keith, Shelby county, Mo.; E. P. Harned, Cooper county, Mo.

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following prominent dealers in cattle: J. S. Slaughter, Mississippi county, Ark.; C. F. Galbraith, Stark county, Ill.; M. Manring, Gentry county, Mo.; John Hickerson, Montgomery county, Mo.; Draffin Bros., Cooper county, Mo.; P. J. Douthirt and Geo. E. Hensleigh, Page county, Ia.; J. C. Rollins, Pulaski county, Mo.; Stroud & Roff, Pontotoc county, Okla.; Wilcox & Littrell, Randolph county, Mo.; E. Chandlee, Montgomery county, Mo.; R. I. Bilby, Nodaway county, Mo.; Young & Ledford, Adair county, Mo.; J. R. Kelley, Cooper county, Mo.; Hummert & Co., Gasconda county, Mo.; J. A. Sarter, Poinsett county, Ark.

Opening of Forest Reserves.

The Secretary of Agriculture James Wilson announces that he has taken personal charge of the forestry service and that it his intention to open up for settlement all lands now within government forest reserves which are suitable for agriculture and do not run over 4,000 feet of timber to the acre. He says the forest reserve withdrawals were hastily made, and there is much land within their boundaries more valuable for agricultural purposes than for timber.

Several million acres of such lands will be opened for settlement the coming fall by proclamation of President Taft. The lands are located in Colorado, New Mexico, Idaho, Utah, Wyoming, Oregon and Washington.

Send Warning on Indian Cattle.

In a notice sent out by the Department of the Interior cattlemen on the range are warned against the purchase of Indian cattle branded "I. D." from the Indians, since they cannot pass title to steers bearing this brand.

Cattle and Sheep Never Looked Better.

Tedd O'Reilly of Fort Benton, Mont., writes: "The weather still continues dry and hot winds prevail. Yet cattle and sheep never looked better. Cattle shipments are now on. A good many sheep will be marketed during September and October. If the trade is favorable every sheepman is going to cut down pretty close, especially on old ewes, a good many being shipped after weaning. A considerable number of wethers will also have to go. Sheep are fat and in good condition. There is plenty of water yet, but if dry weather continues water will be scarce. Destructive prairie fires have done considerable damage shortening the range south of the Missouri River at Fort Benton."

Thursday of last week the run was 1,500. Demand was the best of the week and prices ruled unevenly higher. Buyers were disappointed over the small showing of good kinds. Best offerings available were 20 head of the 1,137-lb Keeline offerings from Wyoming at $5.75. Choice offerings were conspicuous by their absence and only plain light grades had to go under $5.00. Only a few offering showed up Friday and they sold steady. Quality was common. As compared with the close of the previous week beef steers showed 35@50c advance. Twelve head of 1,415-lb Dana Wyomings topped the week's trade at $7.00. Bulk of good steers went at $5.85@6.40 and there was a big showing of plain to medium and pretty good Dakota, Montana and Wyoming steers at $5.00@5.70, with most offerings going around $4.75 and lower on feeding account. Cows and heifers sold 15@25c higher for the week, with top at $5.50, this price being obtained by us for the Patterson Montana heifers. Bulk of cows and heifers went at $3.50@4.75. Stockers and feeders were in excellent demand and sold mostly 25c higher for the week, with top at $5.65, these really being well worth the money for killer purposes.

At the start of this week total arrivals were 7,000, still further evidence that the Northwest is marketing freely. There was some improvement in the flesh condition of the beef steers, a fact much appreciated by both local dressed beef buyers and eastern shippers. After a trading basis had been established the market was active enough at strong prices for the better grades and steady for others. The top was $7.15, a lot of very choice 1,454-lb Montanas going at this price, and there was quite a showing at $5.35@6.25. Our sales included 24 head of 1,371-lb double wintered Montana Texans for the Empire Cattle Co. at $6.75 and the second cut of 1,291 lbs average at $5.80, with 55 head of 1,248-lb dehorned South Dakota double wintered Texans at $6.75 for W. Holton Dye and the second cut at $5.85, and one choice Wyoming steer for J. B. Kendrick at $7.25. Good demand for she stock at prices steady to strong, most desirable grades going at $4.50@5.25, with top heifers up to $5.50. Stockers and feeders were free sale at firm rates, with sales largely at $4.50@5.40.

Tuesday's run was 3,000. It was an active, strong deal in beef steers, call from all sources being on the urgent order. Quality was not as good as the previous day, best offered going at $6.50, while most trading was at $5.50@5.75. Our sales included 436 head of 1,156-lb South Dakota dehorned Texans for the Matador Cattle Co. at $5.75, with 163 head of 1,169-lb horned offerings for the same company at $5.60; the Continental Cattle Co. drove at $5.50 and the Chiricahua wintered Texans, coarse, at $5.30. She stock free sale at 15c advance. Stockers and feeders stronger sale. Receipts Wednesday 4,000. Active trade at 10c higher prices. Top $7.00, obtained by us. Cows and heifers advanced 10@15c. Stockers and feeders firm sale.

Two years ago	4.50	3.50	4.50	6.25	5.40	6.00

Total run Thursday of last week 15,635. Sheep made a strong price basis and lambs sold steady. The feeder market was as strong as any time during the week. Fat lambs topped at $6.85. Washington lambs went on both feeding and killing account up to $6.85. Montana wethers topped at $4.40 and feeders $4.10. Both feeding and killing wethers from the same state sold at $5.25 and Montana ewes went on feeding account at $3.25. Marketing Friday 10,175. The general market was steady. California lambs topped at $6.80 and feeders at $6.75. Montana wethers brought same prices as the previous day. As compared with the close of the previous week market for fat grades was steady, while feeders were if anything higher.

At the start of this week receipts were 38,000. The market did very well under the big run. Lambs held fully steady and sheep went steady to 10c lower. The feeder trade was active from the outset at fully steady rates. This was quite a surprise to the trade, as fully 50 per cent of the total run was in feeder flesh. Both packers and feeder buyers paid up to $6.85 for lambs. Wethers reached $4.40 and ewes $4.00. Feeders paid up to $5 60 for yearlings and $4.25 for two-year-old wethers. There was a hungry demand for breeding ewes and yearlings landed at $6.00, as high as any time this season.

Total supply Tuesday 22,000. It was a steady to strong deal in both fat and feeder classes, demand being as good as any time of late. Lambs sold up to $6.85 and feeders $6.80. Dakota yearlings reached $5.60 and wethers $4.50, with choice Montana ewes $4.25. Feeding yearlings landed at $5.50 and feeding wethers at $4.35. Receipts Wednesday 25,000. Market was active in both fat and feeding grades and prices were steady to 10c higher, the lambs which went for slaughter developing most strength.

An urgent demand and liberal supplies were the features of the market for feeding sheep and lambs this week. There was no surprise when prices worked to a higher basis, nearly all classes going at the best rates of the season. Lambs went back to the country at a cost of $6.85, yearlings $5.65 and wethers $4.25. Considering the time of the season, the demand is wonderfully broad.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, August 23—There was a liberal run of cattle last week, but trade on all kinds was active, closing 10@15c higher than previous week's finish. Some good steers made $5.65@6.15. Feeder buyers took heavier weight, fleshy, dehorned steers at $5.50 @5.95 and fair kinds at $5.00@5.40. Medium weight feeders sold readily at $4.65@5.00 and fair to good kinds at $4.25@4.65. Light steers generally at $4.00 @4.50 for the good kinds and $3.65@$3.90 for medium. Feeder demand was especially active.

Receipts were heavy Monday and Tuesday of this week, yet the market was active and strong as compared with last week's close. A strong market for stockers and feeders. We sold two cars of the John Whitaker Wyoming offerings, averaging 1,150 lbs, on feeding account at $6.00, top of the season.

Range Sheep.

Receipts last week included quite a number of lambs. While the trade opened up the first of the week 10@15c higher, this advance was lost on Tuesday and prices held steady throughout the balance of the week. Killing sheep and feeders closed strong, winding up 25@40c higher than previous week's finish. Good killing lambs sold at $6.50@6.85, heavy yearlings $5.00@5.40, wethers $4.00@4.40 and ewes $3.75@4.25. Good feeding lambs made $6.00@6.50, yearlings $5.00@5.45, wethers $3.75@4.30 and ewes $3.00@3.60. The feeder inquiry was very strong, there being a larger number of orders than any time so far this season.

Receipts of sheep and lambs first two market days this week 71,000. Best killer lambs sold at $6.50@ 6.65 and bulk fleshy kinds went on feeding account at $6.35@6.40, and light grades at $6.15@6.25. Best wethers made $4.25 and bulk $4.00@4.10. Top ewes $4.00 and most $3.50@3.75, while best yearlings made $5.40 and bulk $5.00@5.15. We sold the I. C. Miller feeding wethers from Wyoming at the top price of $4.25, they averaging 91 lbs.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week.....	$4.85@8.50	$6.00@7.90
Previous week.....	4.75 8.45	5.75 7.80
Year ago.....	4.00 7.85	5.75 7.30
Two years ago.....	4.00 7.80	5.15 6.90

Receipts Thursday of last week 6,305. A light supply and a good demand brought about an advance of 10@15c. Best beeves available were 17 head of 1,420-lb average at $8.25. Marketing Friday 1,778. Trade was active at strong rates. A lot of 35 head of 1,460-lb average topped at $8.25. As compared with the close of the previous week prices showed 25@50c advance, medium to good kinds developing most strength.

Receipts at the start of this week totaled 28,000, of which 9,000 were western rangers. Thus the supply of natives was rather moderate. Anything at all desirable met ready sale at steady prices with the close of last week, but the commoner kinds were generally 10c lower. Both local dressed beef men and eastern shippers were lively bidders for good to choice offerings. No prime offerings were included, but had there been no doubt a new high price for some weeks doubtless would have been noted. The top was $8.50, paid for 36 head of 1,556 lbs average.

Run Tuesday 6,500. Trading was limited, owing to the small supply. Steady rates prevailed. Close to half of the total receipts were westerns, with a good share of the natives being she stock. The top price of $8.05 was paid for 19 head of 1,485-lb beeves. Wednesday supply was 20,000. Opening steady to strong the market weakened after most urgent orders had been filled and closed mostly 10@25c lower. Top was $8.50.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

On Thursday of last week the moderate run was cleared in good season at steady prices. The Friday market held firm and as compared with the close of the previous week the trade was on a steady to strong basis for all offerings but the common and medium grades, which were 10@15c lower. A rather small supply showed up Monday of this week and prices were steady to 10c higher, better grades developing the strength. Demand was very good.

There was an active trade on Tuesday and prices were generally 15c higher. Demand from both local and outside buyers was very good. The Wednesday market was active at generally strong prices.

Marketing Thursday of last week 17,656. Opening steady with the best time Wednesday, the close was dull and 5c lower. Bulk of offerings were straight packers and mixed packing and sold at $8.00@8.25, while most shipping and light weights went at $8.50@8.75. The top was $8.90. Run Friday 15,295. While the market was active, prices were not quotably higher. Bulk of sales showed no perceptible change from the previous day. Receipts Saturday 7,893. It was a brisk deal at prices 10@15c higher. A lot of $8.15@8.60 business was done in packers, packing mixed and good weight offerings. The medium and light end of the crop sold at $8.70@9.00, with a $9.05 top being made. Packing mixed and weighty grades showed 10@20c advance over Saturday of previous week, while other kinds did not show much change. The spread showed a decided disposition to contract at the expense of higher priced lots, which have been enjoying an unusual premium.

There were 26,000 hogs at the start of the week. Demand was strong from both shippers and local slaughterers and result was an active market at generally 15c advance. Top was $9.15 for fancy light and best heavy sold up to $8.75. Bulk of trading in medium and light weights was at $8.80@9.05 and in mixed packing and heavy packing $8.20@8.45.

The Tuesday supply was 15,000. Market was 10@15c higher. Quality was poorest of season and bulk of offerings were straight packers and fair mixed, which sold largely at $8.35@8.60. However, there was a top of $9.27½, paid for fancy light, and 128-lb pigs sold up to $9.50. Wednesday receipts 18,000. Opening 5@10c higher on shipping grades, the market closed with part of the advance lost. Packing grades were no more than steady throughout the whole session. Top early was $9.35, paid for fancy light. There was very little business done under $8.50 and not very much over $9.10, the spread between heavy and light weights being the narrowest in some time.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of hogs:

Good to choice assorted light shipping	$9 10 @	9 35
Fair to choice butchers	8 90	9 20
Fair to choice heavy shipping	8 65	8 80
Poor to good light mixed	8 70	8 85

Native Sheep and Lambs.

On Thursday of last week prices were not quotably changed for either sheep or lambs. Top for lambs was $6.75 and for ewes $4.35. The Friday market was 10@15c higher for lambs and steady for sheep. However, top for lambs was same as previous day, which was also true of sheep. As compared with the close of the previous week prices were generally steady.

While lambs sold steady at the start of this week, all price changes for sheep tended toward a lower basis. Best lambs available sold at $6.65, a small lot of 107-lb wethers reached $4.50 and best ewes $4.25.

Tuesday market was active at prices steady to strong, good quality lambs developing the strength. A fancy lot of lambs reached $6.80 and bulk of sales were at $6.00@6.50. Most sheep were ewes and went at $4.00@4.25. There was a brisk market Wednesday and prices ruled strong to 10c higher.

Opportunity

John J. Ingalls once wrote: "Opportunity knocks at every man's door, but knocks but once and returns no more, etc." As a general proposition, perhaps that's true. But is it so with you? We have been knocking at your door regularly for some time, inviting you to knock at ours. We have frequently offered you opportunity to make your business more profitable and more satisfactory. We expect to keep knocking, for your interests are identical with ours. If you fail to grasp your opportunity, that's your fault. You cannot but think of Clay, Robinson & Co. when you want feeder cattle, sheep or lambs. Send your next order to Good Care of the Little Shipper.

Joshua Guffey of Vail, S. D., writes: "My first shipment of stock to Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha was on Monday's market. I was more than pleased with the way my cattle were handled and the price received. I know now that Clay, Robinson & Co. take good care of the little shipper as well as the big one."

BUYERS OF STOCKER AND FEEDING CATTLE, AND FEEDING SHEEP AND LAMBS

"Are O. K."

There are good, sound reasons for our claim, and we cite a few to clinch the argument:

FIRST—We have houses at all of the leading markets. Thus we are in close touch with chief sources of supply, and fill your order on the market where prices are lowest.

SECOND—Our buyers are specialists in their line. They have received special training. Their sole duty is to buy on orders. Thus they are in position every day to pick up bargains that would escape the eye of the less experienced party.

THIRD—Filling orders by mail is one of our specialties. It is not necessary for you to come to market. Your order is guaranteed to be filled as carefully as if you were on the market in person. Thus you save railroad fare, hotel bills and valuable time.

FOURTH—"Well bought is half sold" is our stamp on every load of stock purchased by us. We well know that to please one customer is to hold his trade and gain other patrons through his good will.

FIFTH—We keep you in intimate touch with the market situation through our personal letters, weekly market letter and our LIVE STOCK REPORT.

SIXTH—If we find that we cannot fill your order in accordance with your wishes, we do not fill it at all. Also we tell you so.

There are many other reasons—lack of space barring us from mentioning same—why you should send your orders to us. Let us impress upon you that Wools of Western Range Flockmasters.

"In 1909 the 4,878,125 sheep of Wyoming produced 40,000,624 lbs of wool, which returned to the flockmasters the gross sum of $8,576,133. The fleeces averaged 8.2 lbs, the shrinkage was 67, and the scoured produce aggregated 12,800,199 lbs. Range conditions were ideal that year, and owners received top prices for wool, sheep and lambs," writes Geo. S. Walker to the American Sheep Breeder.

"A big change has taken place in less than eight months, and instead of ideal range conditions, favorable weather, high prices for wool and mutton, just the reverse has been and is now being experienced, and unless all signs fail many flockmasters will be forced to retire from the business, and those who remain will be years in recuperating from the effects of the disastrous storms of last December, January and February, the unfavorable lambing weather and the lowest percentage of increase in years, the poorest spring and summer range conditions in the history of the business in this state, and the low price of wool and mutton. It would seem that everybody and everything has conspired to bring about the most unfavorable conditions possible with success.

"Owners were able to stand the heavy financial drain occasioned by buying hay and grain to feed the flocks during the unparalleled weather last winter, but when spring lambing losses came, followed by unsatisfactory prices for wool, poor range conditions, and in some sections no grass at all, it was too much for some of the sheepmen, who, forced to ship their holding or see them starve to death, met the only ordinary prices at the markets."

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

IT'S BETTER TO SHIP TO

Clay, Robinson & Co.

THAN TO WISH YOU HAD.

In the selection of your commission firm be sure of at least two things: First, that you consign to a firm whose financial standing and responsibility is beyond any question. Second, that your stock is consigned to the firm that will get you most money for it.

These requirements are united in Clay, Robinson & Co.

Our firm, organized in 1886, has weathered all the storm and stress, droughts, depressions and panics of nearly a quarter-century. Failure, change, or reorganization are unknown in the history of Clay, Robinson & Co., who today stand as the largest, strongest and most efficient organization in the live stock commission business in the world.

If you are a shipper or prospective shipper you owe it to yourself to consider these unassailable facts, and to act upon them. Ask your banker about our financial responsibility, and ask any customer about our ability to realize top market value for all stock consigned to us.

Consider, also, our selling record for twenty-five years, our staff of over fifty of the best salesmen in the trade, at ten markets, our annual cash turn-over of upward of $75,000,000.00, and the thousands of unsolicited testimonials from pleased customers which you yourself have seen printed in these pages from week to week.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol 20 | Chicago, Friday, September 2, 1910 | No. 35

Top Rangers of Season.

On Monday of this week we received a one-car consignment from Rostand & Becker, Big Timber, Mont., which contained ten steers, balance being cows. Out of this carload we sold eight head of steers, averaging 1,435 lbs, at $7.40, not only top price of the week but highest of the season with the exception of single animals. This is a very fair illustration of the way we look after the interests of the small consignors. Here was a single-car shipment, containing two classes of cattle. The ten steers were not lumped off, but sorted just as carefully as though the consignment had contained ten carloads, taking out two steers and selling them separately in order to realize every cent possible for the consignment as a whole. The fact that Clay, Robinson & Co. are a big firm doing an immense business does not mean that they do not cater to small shippers. As someone has well said "Big things are only a lot of little things put together," and it is only by giving the most careful attention to each and every consignment, no matter how small, that the business of Clay, Robinson & Co. has been built up to its present proportions.

British Agricultural Educator Here.

We were favored with a call on Thursday from Mr. John Porter, B. Sc., holder of British national diplomas in agriculture and dairying, who is prominently identified with educational work in these lines on the other side of the water. Mr. Porter is at present located at Shirehall, Hereford, England, being in charge of agricultural educational, experimental and extension work in that county, under the direction of the county council, and indirectly under the auspices of the national government, which fosters this work. A comprehensive plan is followed, embracing lecture work, corresponding to our agricultural short courses, experiments in cropping, fertilization, etc., as well as instruction and demonstration in dairying and cheese-making. This is Mr. Porter's first visit to this country and he is very favorably impressed with our live stock and with agricultural conditions in general. Landing at Montreal he visited McDonald College at that city, as well as the Guelph institution at Toronto, and has also been at the Michigan and Wisconsin State Colleges. He contemplated visiting other of our agricultural colleges before sailing for home Sept. 3.

BREVOORT INDIANA YEARLING STEERS THAT BROUGHT $7.80.

W. H. Brevoort, the senior member of the famous Indiana feeding firm of Brevoort & Son, with headquarters at Vincennes, was on the Chicago market August 24 with 40 head of yearling steers which averaged 936 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.80. No other yearling cattle sold so high by 10c per cwt that week. This made the second time in two weeks that we topped the market with the Brevoort yearlings. On Wednesday of preceding week we had sold a lot at $7.75, the top that week and up to then the highest by 25c per cwt for six weeks. They were mostly grade Herefords.

Death of E. W. Ormsby.

News of the death of the above gentleman, which occurred at his home at Central City, Neb., on Wednesday, Aug. 24, reached us too late for publication in last week's issue. Mr. Ormsby was seventy-seven years of age. In his own neighborhood and state he will be sadly missed, and in the wider circles of the live stock industry a leading light has gone out. He was one of the grand old men of Nebraska, a good citizen, and highly esteemed by hosts of friends and business acquaintances. He is survived by his widow and three children, L. L. Ormsby of Boise, Idaho, Mrs. J. C. Dressler of the same city and Miss Louise Ormsby, the latter a singer of note.

Hogs and Poor Farms.

Does the raising of hogs mean poor and run-down farms? In many cases it has been so, but it is not the blame of the hogs, but of the plan or way the growing of the hogs was followed. To raise a good acreage of corn each year and feed it all to hogs kept in a small pen or lot, and follow this for years retaining the same small lot to feed in, will of course mean reducing the fertility of the soil, and this has been the method followed on many farms. The manure has all been dropped on the small lot and never made any use of, and often this feed lot is on rolling ground in order to have a dry place, and, of course, the fertility of the farm is washing down the creek.

There is a different plan which should be followed with better success all around. The small feed lot used year after year will not do for this age and should be considered out of date. The plan of today is to have several lots and practice frequent rotation often changing several times during a single season. On each lot should be found something growing, and the hogs changed about, thus affording fresh forage all the time, and as fast as they have eaten one lot down it should be plowed and another crop started. In this way all the manure is mixed with the soil at once, and ready to help on the succeeding crop.

This is the only way to raise hogs in this age on the average farm.

Corn is a great help in the growing of hogs and we must have it but if we take repeated crops of corn off the land and do not put anything back, the soil loses.

Whatever system of farming we follow, by all means it should be a method that will keep up the fertility of the soil of the farm.

E. J. WATERSTRIPE.

A Half-Dollar More Than He Expected.

Writing our Kansas City office under date of Aug. 22, W. E. Huntsinger of Greenwood county, Kan., says: "Your message covering sale of my cattle just received and am well pleased as you sold them 50c per cwt higher than I expected. I only expected $5.50 and you got $6.00 for them. I always think you do the best you can and you sure did it this time."

St. Joe Preparing For Big Show.

It is now only four weeks until the fifth Annual Inter-State Live Stock and Horse Show will open its gates to the public. Entries in the breeding classes close Wednesday, Aug. 31, and already there are enough cattle, hogs and sheep entered in the breeding and individual classes to assure the largest show yet given by the Inter-State association. Entries for the carlot classes do not close until Tuesday, September 27, but here as in the breeding classes, the entries are the largest in the history of the association. There have been arrangements made for the best line of entertainment for the evenings that have ever been given on the Inter-State grounds and there need be no fear of a splendid week for visitors to St. Joseph during the week of Sept. 26 to Oct. 1. The city of St. Joseph is taking a bigger part in providing entertainment for visitors during show week than ever before and there will be parades and decorations galore for the entire week.

Satisfactory Feeder Purchases.

Miss Fannie M. Shaw, Oneida, Illinois, who recently purchased feeding sheep and cattle through our South Omaha house, writes:

"The double deck load of yearling wethers came through in good condition. Think we have been very fortunate in getting two such good loads of yearlings as you have sent us. They are very even and a thrifty looking sort, and they ought to make good gains.

"The two loads of steers also arrived in good order and though I have not seen them yet, the man who is to feed them seems well pleased. One of the neighbors saw them and asked if we bought them without seeing them. He wondered how we dared to buy that way—but the buying end of the business is not worrying us as long as you send us as good stuff as you always have.

"This will make all the stock we can handle for this year but we hope to do so well with them that we will be in the market for feeders again next year. Thank you for the good work you have done for us."

The Auto and Western Farmer.

In view of loose talk of farmers' "extravagance" taking the up-to-date form of buying automobiles on credit and mortgaging their lands or homes, several eastern and middle western manufacturers have addressed explicit letters of inquiry on the matter to the bankers of Kansas and Nebraska. The answers are coming in, and they completely dispose of the alarmist charges of extravagance and recklessness.

Decidedly the farmers of the middle West are prosperous, and many of them are buying automobiles. There are now about 10,000 motor cars in Kansas, according to assessment figures. In Nebraska, also, farmers are purchasing motor cars, but without impairing their credit, mortgaging their homes or causing the bankers to indulge in head-shaking. There are bankers in the states named who have never heard even of a chattel mortgage on a farmer's auto. The majority of the bankers say without hesitation that their farmer customers pay cash for cars—and for everything else besides.

Thus are cock-and-bull stories of "wild extravagance" assigned to their proper limbo, and the actual facts made to emphasize the remarkable but simple truth as to the wealth and soundness of the West.

If the laborer is worthy of his hire, remarks the Chicago Record-Herald editorially, the farmer is entitled to his auto. Incidentally he promotes a great industry, pays wages of thousands of mechanics, and increases the purchasing power of urban communities.

When Cattle Were Really Cheap.

Among the veteran shippers who had cattle on the South Omaha market on Aug. 22 was Kirk Dyer with four loads from Belle Fourche, S. D., belonging to the Dyer-Shafto company. The noteworthy feature of this shipment was the fact that this is the twenty-third consecutive season that Mr. Dyer has had cattle on this market, and during all that period, without a single break, his consignments have been sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. This is a record of continued service of which any firm might well be proud.

Speaking to a representative of the South Omaha Journal-Stockman of his initial shipment to the market in the fall of 1888, Mr. Dyer made some interesting comparisons of conditions then and now. That year the few cattle pens constructed and used by the yard company were located where the north section of the west division hog pens now stand. The pens were neither floored nor paved and in rainy weather it was no uncommon occurence to have cattle standing in the muck up to their briskets. The present modern cattle yards, affording excellent facilities for yarding, feeding and handling cattle to good advantage were then unthought of, except perhaps in the iridescent dream of some Magic City real estate boomer.

"Other conditions," said Mr. Dyer, "afford an even greater contrast. That year 'Dory' Sanders, of the old G. H. Hammond Co., bought my steers, averaging better than 1,400 lbs, at $2.75 per hundred. Yesterday our steers sold at $5.35 per hundred, and our old canner cows, shipped in to get them off the range, sold at $2.90, or 15c per hundred more than my prime steers brought in 1888."

Mr. Dyer has noted with increasing interest the rapid advancement in the South Omaha market, and is firmly convinced the upbuilding of this great market has helped very materially the prosperity of the western cattle grower.

We sold Tuesday at East St. Louis for Douglas & Farmer, Gibson county, Ind., one deck of good 70-lb lambs at $6.80. We were bid the top on this load but with the heavier sort. Also one deck of mixed sheep and lambs for J. W. Neville of Ralls county, Mo., the lambs selling at $6.75 and the sheep topping the market at $4.35.

Economic Beef Production in the Northwest.

By Geo. C. Morris.

The determination of methods by which beef production can be made more profitable is one of the important problems now under investigation. During recent years the attractive prices offered for corn by the markets of the world have led many stockmen of this part of the country to discontinue their cattle feeding operations and to sell the crop direct to elevator companies for shipment Others have turned their attention to pork and mutton production. That beef values have not kept pace with those of corn in the upward trend of recent years is not denied. Nor can it be said that the market quotations for corn-fed beef have been as attractive as the prices offered for finished pork and mutton during the past few years Nevertheless, cattle feeding has its place, and the industry will be regarded with increasing favor as we learn to more fully appreciate the importance of cattle in their relation to the economic management of our land.

On practically every farm where grain crops have been grown and sold direct to the elevator for a succession of years the soil is much below the productive capacity of adjoining farms where crop rotation and stock feeding have been practiced Pork production, good so far as it goes in turning back to the land fertilizing material taken from the soil and profitable as it has been during these years of high prices, should not be carried on to the entire exclusion of all other forms of meat production. The occasional destruction of an entire herd of swine by the ravages of cholera is a matter to be considered, but as an argument for a greater diversity of live stock on the farm it does not carry the weight of the one great argument, namely, the economical conversion of a larger part of the vast quantity of roughage grown on every farm as by-products of grain into some marketable commodity. Cattle and sheep feeding not only make possible the utilization of such material, but these ruminants, requiring much bulk as they do, also encourage the growth of more clover and alfalfa in the crop rotation, thus preserving the fertility of the land. Cattle are not only able to consume bulky material in quantity, but they are also able to make it in its crude form, less costly, therefore, than if labor is expended in its preparation.

During the years of low-priced corn, cattle feeding was profitable under almost any system of feeding, but conditions have changed, methods must be varied to meet the new situation. Beef has always been a luxury, and we can hardly expect its rise in value to be commensurate with that of corn and other cereals used in the human dietary. When it becomes excessively high in price the consumers use less meat and more other foods which, though less palatable, are much cheaper and can serve as substitutes. In beef production, as in other forms of industry, competition forces us to adopt more economical methods, and it is left for the farmer to make beef more cheaply rather than to discontinue the feeding of cattle because of higher-priced grain.

If cattle feeding, aside from its beneficial effect in maintaining or restoring soil fertility, is still a profitable industry in states further east, as it is when properly conducted, the farmers of the Northwest are situated to make it doubly so by virtue of the natural conditions which favor the industry here, viz., lower priced corn, the possibility of alfalfa and clover culture, notably the former, favorable markets and shipping facilities, and a climate of relatively low humidity in winter which permits out-door feeding. It would be unreasonable to expect cattle to return every year without fail prices for corn above what might have been received at the elevator. The instability of the average stock market would hardly permit it. But followed year after year with careful buying and the exercise of skill in management of cattle, particularly with reference to the selection and use of foods, fair profits are to be depended upon.

In the economical production of beef, the character of the roughness fed in connection with corn is a factor of greater importance than we have given it in the past. Heretofore, the inclination among cattle feeders has been to depend almost entirely upon corn for producing beef, supplying almost any sort of roughness that would satisfy the craving of the animal for something bulky. Some, in fact, have operated upon the theory that in producing beef for market it is desirable to feed corn as heavily as possible, discouraging the consumption of rough feed by supplying an inferior quality of hay and not infrequently nothing more than a straw stack.

Under present market conditions, which a foreign and home demand for corn such as to make this grain continue high in price, and with beef selling at a figure hardly in keeping with modern corn values, we are forced to depend less upon grain and more upon the cheaper bulky foods. In other words, we are compelled to recognize the fact that the steer is an animal adapted for the conversion of roughage as well as grain into beef and that this part of the ration should be given as much consideration.

Practical and experienced feeders who breed or purchase steers for fattening observe striking differences in the aptitude of animals of varying types and make-up to lay on flesh readily and in such form and quality as to command the highest price on the market. It requires a well trained eye to detect in all cases the possible variation of results in the store, or stock, steers; but there are some distinctions that are easily detected. There are certain types of cattle, for instance, that never feed profitably under any conditions, and it is quite as important to discriminate against these in the feed lot as to be able to recognize the excellence in other types.

The characteristics that make the profitable feeder are naturally more difficult to detect in animals in stock condition than when fattened, but notwithstanding this there are a number of indications that are fairly reliable. Though the young steers may be comparatively thin in flesh and temporarily lacking the thick, even covering of the back and ribs so essential in the finished carcass, he must nevertheless present that blocky frame and stoutness of build, accompanied by short, straight legs, wide back and loins, well sprung ribs, fullness back of shoulders and in flanks, prominent brisket, full neck vein, wide chest, and well rounded barrel, together with a good, soft, mellow handling skin and fine, silky hair, giving what is termed the thick, mossy coat, without coarseness, and with it all a good, strong, vigorous head, clear, full eye, and quiet temperament. The importance of an even covering of flesh and good handling quality can hardly be overestimated. The bone should be moderately fine and clean. Coarseness either in the bone or about the head and horns is particularly objectionable, as it indicates coarseness of texture throughout and a greater percentage of offal and cheap meat as well as a tendency to sluggish circulation.

Notwithstanding the importance of those things which go to make up a finished carcass of beef of the highest value, and while the block is the ultimate end of all beef cattle, it should be kept in mind that undeveloped stock can not at all times be expected to measure up to this standard. While heavy flesh is necessarily a factor of great importance, yet to go into a breeding herd and absolutely find every animal as if it were to go at once to the block may lead to erroneous results. Fitting should not be under-valued. Other things being equal, the best fitted should always win.

Another consideration having a practical bearing on the meat producing industry is the economy of production as influenced by the age of the animal. It is but a few years since the prevailing practice among cattle raisers and feeders was to allow the steer the first three years of its existence in which to attain the standard of growth, and supplement this by six months on a heavy grain ration for the fattening process. The two periods were regarded as essentially distinct, and it was firmly believed that they must always remain so. Under these conditions it was also observed that as the fattening process advanced the gains invariably diminished. The last hundred pounds produced on a bullock not infrequently cost per pound three times the live-weight value per pound of the animal on the market.

The production of cattle which will return a profit both to the producer and the feeder, is a problem which deserves careful attention. It is easily possible to buy cattle which have been produced at a loss and fatten them at a profit, but the aim of the most thoughtful and intelligent men engaged in the beef cattle business is to encourage the production of a grade of cattle which will return a profit when sold as feeders without diminishing the profits in finishing them. In producing such cattle the particular system to be followed should be determined by the size, location and adaptability of the farm. One farm may be especially adapted for the production of feeders, another for the production of yearling beef and still another only for finishing cattle.

Carload Fat Cattle.

In accordance with the announced policy of the Western National Stock Show to encourage the production of cattle best suited for commercial use rather than for strictly show purposes there have been no classes provided for what is known as "full fed cattle" in the carload classes at the forthcoming exhibition to be held at the Denver yards January 16 to 21. Exhibits will be limited to what is known as commercial fat cattle, or cattle that have been on grain feed not longer than four months prior to the show. This year the Commercial Fat Cattle classes will be unincumbered with any further regulations other than the limit of time that the cattle shall have been on full feed. Exhibitors will be required to sign an affidavit to the effect that the cattle have not been fed grain to exceed four months immediately preceding the show, the cattle therefore must not be placed in the feed lots before September 15. The cattle intended for feeding need not be weighed as was required at former exhibitions when placed in the feed lots.

Special prizes for carloads of fat cattle are offered by the different breed associations and the American Hereford Cattle Breeders' Association offers $500 to the winning load if won by Herefords.

Short fed cattle, the kind that this competition provides for, are always in demand by the big packers and there is every reason to believe that profitable prices will be received for everything shown, while in addition is afforded the opportunity of winning a large amount of money. Already a great many feeders have signified their intention of entering cattle in the fat carload classes and this competition promises to be better this year than ever before.

Raise Something.

It is good business for the man who can finish livestock to let the other fellows raise it just as long as they can do it cheaper than he can. But this policy has been carried entirely too far in a large part of our country. Too many people have got used to depending on the West for stock to feed, and among them are many on grazing lands which are better adapted to raising stock than to finishing it. These farmers should get back into the stock business without delay. They can raise cattle and sheep cheaper than the grain farmer can, and they can raise them at a profit if they have to sell to him for feeding purposes. The day of cheap feeding stock has passed. Well-bred animals will pay for their hay and grass if sold at feeder prices, and the prospects are that they will continue to do so.

From a Veteran Cow-Man.

James Tucker, Fairpoint, S. D., in renewing his subscription to the LIVE STOCK REPORT under date of Aug. 26 writes: "Most of the small cow outfits, the only kind now left, are preparing to ship everything. I closed out my stock of cattle in September, 1909, at a good figure and am glad I am out of the race this fall. I spent twenty-four years on the cattle range and must say I regret to see the old mess wagon put out of business. This part of the country is still very dry and crops of all kinds will be almost total failure. Hay will be a short crop and poor quality."

The Children's Kingdom.

Many of our readers have in the past enjoyed the sketches of Scottish, Australian and American pastoral life from the pen of Will H. Ogilvie, who for some years was a regular contributor to our columns. We take pleasure in reproducing the following vivid and sympathetic word-painting appearing over Mr. Ogilvie's signature in a recent issue of the Scotsman, of Edinburgh.)

This is the kingdom of the children; half a mile of sunny sand, bordered on one side by the blue-green vastness of the ocean, and on the other by the steep wall of the promenade and the rows of grey-roofed houses.

Here lies a land of pails and spades, of shrimping nets and white-sailed painted boats, of life and laughter and freedom. Over it the sea wind passes, whispering songs of enchantment and wonder; the little foam-tipped waves creep along the edge of it, full of mystery and hidden strength made gentle for the children. There is not an infant among them so small but feels something of the weird glamour and mysterious charm of the ever-moving waters. Busy enough they seem at their play, the little people, but every ear is alert to the boom and roar of the big breakers turning over, and every eye is aware of the wheeling and darting of the great white gulls above them. The children, like their elders, are devout, if unconscious, worshippers at the great blue altar of the sea. Yet you would not think so as you watch them, intent only upon the business of the moment, rearing walls of wet sand, digging moats for the rising tide to fill, gathering seaweed, and shells and sailing boats in the sheltered harbours of the pools among the rocks. For the most part their backs are to the sea, but the mystery of its coming and the magic of its power are strong within their waking hearts.

In the kingdom of the children is no sorrow more than that suggested by a castle wall that has crumbled in the wash of a wave, or a piece of bright seaweed snatched back from a pink hand in the very moment of triumph. In the kingdom of the children is the joy of many victories; of rich shells stolen from the ocean floor; of ramparts defiant of the big ninth wave; of long hours filled with happiness and mornings reft from routine.

All along the brown beach in the sunshine you may hear the shouts of victory and the laughing clamour of content. In the children's kingdom there is no place for the old in heart. They may thread their way unchallenged among the battlements of the sand castles; they may stride majestic among the moats; they may try, if they will, to barter shells for understanding and seaweed for popularity, but they must stand forever outside the inner wall of the children's kingdom. Sometimes, very seldom, there comes one, tall in stature, it may be, and old in useless knowledge of the world, who has kept his child's heart. He alone may enter the inner sanctuary and lay his gift upon the altar with the children, freeman of the laughter and the sunshine and the sand.

Even the stoutest hearts will weary of toil, even the strongest arms must rest, and even in the busy realm of babyhood come moments of welcome idleness when spade and pail are flung aside, and the shadow of the sea wall and the upturned boat are Eden gardens for a child's delight. There, at times, you may see the tired-out spademen lying the architects, the collectors, the captains, and the kings; long lashes lying low on sunburnt cheeks, and chubby hands laid slackly on the sand; brave toilers taking their reward of rest. But always there is a legion left to guard the walls, a company to dance among the foam-sprites a watch to sail the clipper in the pool.

In the army of the children you may see the army of the world. Here is the strong that thrusts the weak aside, and here the strong that makes the weak his care; here is the naturalist bent double above his spoil, the hunter eager with his net, the Viking fronting the thunder and vehemence of the ocean, and defying them with doughty dimpled hand. Here the toiler toils, and here, perhaps—and yet it must be seldom—the dreamer dreams.

At last the warrior sun rides westward in his crimson chariot of fire. The tide comes in and steals away the golden sands; the highest tower upon the castle is captured and flung down, and over all sounds the triumphant tide-song of the sea. One by one the little groups disperse, sunburnt, hungry and tired, to sleep as only children can, and to dream of the stronger castles they shall build tomorrow.

The circling gulls fly homeward; the dark-winged shadows take their places along the white line of the foam, stooping and wheeling above the deserted kingdom of the children.

Overcoming Waste.

Many years ago Victor Hugo called attention to the vast stores of fertility the people of France poured into the Seine through the sewers. This waste continues throughout the civilized world today. The fertility of all our food and most of our garbage is lost in the streams or in the furnaces. Europe has kept up its soil fertility by three methods in spite of this enormous waste. The first method is by purchase of foreign products. Europe buys annually millions of tons of food grains and keeps the by-products of its mills for feed and fertility. The same is true of grains used in distilling and brewing. Linseed meal, cottonseed meal, brewers' and distillers' grains and millfeed are all imported in large quantities and the manure carefully saved. The second method is the use of legumes and careful tillage. The third is the purchase of mineral fertilizers of all kinds. The fertility is kept in the fields of Europe by purchase to a large extent. What will become of those nations which continue to sell and destroy it and fail to use the means of restoring it? They must awake to the importance of growing legumes, of buying mineral fertilizers and of practicing better tillage or they will in time cast all their resources of fertility into the streams and the furnaces or ship them to foreign lands.

Fortunately the process of depletion is slow and nature is bountiful. Legumes are within the reach of all. Mineral fertilizers are available. Good tillage can be taught. Outside supplies of fertility should not be neglected. The vast riches of it in Canadian grains should be brought this way by milling them here instead of allowing them all to go to Europe. The soils of America can be kept up if the farmers of America study them. And there is every reason to believe that with the warning of exhausted land before them and the financial inducements to maintain fertility they have resolved to do it. The leaven of better farming has not yet worked through the whole lump, but it is slowly getting there. Humanity's greatest lessons are always learned slowly and not without tribulation, but they are learned at last. And so it will be with the vital lesson of soil fertility which has come or must come before every nation.

A Good Table for Every Feeder.

In every ton of the following named feeds there is the pounds of protein opposite the feed.

Corn cob meal	88 lbs
Wheat bran	240 lbs
Cotton seed meal	744 lbs
Oats	184 lbs
Oil cake meal	580 lbs
Clover hay	140 lbs
Alfalfa hay	220 lbs
Timothy hay	60 lbs

This is a splendid table to remember in buying feeds. That which is the richest in protein, usually is the cheapest. Figure that you are buying the protein and that the payment is for the number of pounds of protein in the ton of whatever feed you are buying.

An Early Advertisement.

The New York Times gives this as being an authentic copy of one of the first advertisements that ever appeared in Ireland. It was published in a Dublin paper.

RAN AWAY FROM PATRICK MCDALLAGH.—Whereas my wife, Mrs. Bridget McDallagh, has gone aw with herself and left me with her four small chil and her poor blind mother, and nobody else to look after home and house, and I hear has taken up with Tim Gugan, the lame fiddler, the same that was put in the stocks last Easter for stealing Bardy Doody's game-cock, this is to give notice that I will not pay for bite or sup on her account to man or mortal and that she had better never show the mark of her ten toes near my home again.—PATRICK MCDALLAGH.

N. B.—Tim had better keep out of my sight.

Appreciation.

Madison, Wis., Aug. 28.

Mr. John Clay,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

As a member of Hoard Press Club of the Agricultural College, University of Wisconsin, and a contestant for one of the prizes offered by you for articles written on agricultural subjects by members of the club, I wish to extend to you my most heartfelt thanks for the encouragement and inspiration you have given me as well as others at the college for your generosity. Speaking for myself, I will say the inspiration which I received by entering the contest has been more to me than the knowledge that I was one of the successful contestants.

Yours very truly,

GEO. C. MORRIS.

HARVEST IN OLD MEXICO.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Otto Jurgens, Scotts Bluff county, Neb.: "Range is all right here but hay crop light."

The Howard L. S. Co of Davis county, Utah, had seven cars of ewes and lambs at South Omaha Aug. 22.

Jas. Brooks was on the South Omaha market Aug. 22 with a shipment of four cars of steers from Custer county, Mont.

E. A. Frazee of Rush county, Ind., writes our East St. Louis house: "I am well pleased with them. They are a nice lot."

On Aug. 22 J. O'Connor was on the South Omaha market with three cars of yearlings, wethers and ewes that sold satisfactorily.

On Tuesday our South St. Paul house had the pleasure of handling a mixed car of stock from E. L. Hawes of Cass county, Minn.

W. E. Roberts of Jo Daviess county, Ill., writes: "We are having some rain now. Pastures are picking up. Corn is improving fast."

Merricks Bros., prominent shippers in Watonwan county, Minn., favored our South St. Paul house with a mixed shipment on Thursday.

Top for hogs at Kansas City Aug. 24 was obtained by our house for a shipment sent in by Taylor & Davis of Wabaunsee county, Kan.

F. W. Henkel, Towner county, N. D., writes our South St. Paul house: "Returns received on car of hogs with which I am much pleased."

On Aug. 24 our South Omaha house handled a shipment of four cars of Nebraska cattle for T. B. Augustine, at very satisfactory prices.

C. A. Dahlstrom, an extensive Nebraska stock buyer, was in South Omaha Aug. 24 looking after the shipment of a couple of cars of hogs.

Wm. Charles of Custer county, S. D., for several years a regular patron of our house at South Omaha, was there Aug. 22 with two cars of cattle.

Mary A. Taylor, Natrona county, Wyo., had a car of cattle to our South Omaha house on Aug. 23, including 18 head of 1,115-lb steers at $5.30.

Wyoming shipments to the South Omaha market last week included cattle from J. Jones and Frank Virden, old time cattlemen of that section.

Our South St. Paul house was favored with a car of cattle from our friend and valued patron, H. L. Marple of Grant county, Minn., on Tuesday.

I. C. Miller, an extensive Wyoming sheep raiser, had a shipment of thirteen cars of wethers and yearlings on the South Omaha market Aug. 23 and 24.

Dick Carrow of Clay county, Tex., writes our Fort Worth office: "Was well pleased with the last sale of steers. They outweighed and outsold what I thought they would do."

Long Bros. had a shipment of Wyoming wethers and yearlings to our South Omaha house on the 25th, wethers averaged 82 lbs. at $4.05; yearlings 68 lbs, at $5.15, going to feeder buyers.

John McRae, extensive Idaho sheepman, had a shipment of lambs in South Omaha Aug. 25, the fat end selling at $6.50, averaging 63 lbs, while the feeders brought $6.25, averaging 56 lbs.

C. W. McAninch of Pettis county, Mo., writes: "Have shipped you several bunches of cattle in the past and you have given better satisfactien than any other firm we have shipped to at Chicago."

Our Sioux City house topped the cattle market Aug. 22 with 38 steers averaging 1,393 lbs at $7.65. Next highest sale was $6.85. These steers were fed and shipped by H. W. Lohse of Woodbury county, Ia.

R. J. Goreth of Henry county, Ill., writes our South St. Paul house: "The two loads of cattle arrived Thursday in good shape and I am well pleased with them. Thank you for your good work."

A. Corcoran, Pierce county, Wis., J. N. Josephson, Washington county, Minn., Thompson & Sons, Todd county, Minn., and J. Hayes, Martin county, Minn., were among our South St. Paul patrons on Aug. 26.

E. F. Barrett of Guthrie county, Ia., writes: "Corn is good in this locality. Oats made from 49 to 60 bushels per acre. Wheat 25 to 30 bushels. Enclosed find 50c for a year's subscription to the REPORT."

The following were represented with shipments to our South St. Paul house on Aug 24: W. H. Johnson, Wadena county, Minn., Farmers Elevator Co., Saint Croix county, Wis., and Miller Bros, Todd county, Minn.

Fowler Farm Co. of Cass county, N. D., write our South St. Paul house: "I received your letter, also the account sale and check. I think that you got a very good price for the stock. It was as good as I could expect."

Writing our Kansas City house under date of Aug. 23, A. C. Johnson, Henry county, Ind., says: "Car of cattle you bought for me arrived in excellent condition. Am more than pleased with them. Thank you for the way in which you filled the order."

The above photo shows a group of cattlemen and their wives and visiting live stock commission men from South Omaha on the Spear Bros.' ranch near Clearmont, Wyo., last April. The occasion was a trip the commission men were taking to attend the spring cattle meetings and stopping off at above point they were royally entertained by the Spear Bros. and their friends, who provided a barbecue and impromptu entertainment. The barbecue was served from a mess wagon in a large tent near the house and the above photo was taken at that spot. There were present about sixty-five ladies and gentlemen, some of the visitors having ridden twenty miles to enjoy the occasion. This photograph was kindly sent us by A. F. Stryker, Secretary of the South Omaha Live Stock Exchange, who accompanied the delegation.

A. P. Grout of Scott county, Ill.: "Lambs arrived in good condition and I am much pleased with them. They are much better than I expected to see. They are a strong healthy uniform lot and I hope to top the market with them when I return them later on."

L. M. Claytor of Natrona county, Wyo., for years a valued patron of our South Omaha house, was there Aug. 23 looking after a shipment of some very good steers. Two cars of these cattle sold at $5.55, averaging 1,215 lbs. Mr. Claytor was well pleased.

Our East St. Louis house sold on Aug. 24 for the Iuka Live Stock Co., Marion county, Ill., one deck of lambs at $6.00; one deck for Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo., average 70 lbs, at $6.25; one deck of southwestern lambs for S. O. Shields, Wright county, Mo., average 67 lbs at $5.75; two cars of light lambs belonging to Monsess & Bente, Pettis county, Mo., one car at $6.00 with 25 out at $4.00, and one car at $5.50 straight; also a small bunch for Spiva & Co., Stoddard county, Mo., at $6.35.

Our South St. Joseph house topped both the hog and sheep market on Aug. 25, for Owens Bros. of Nodaway county, Mo., selling their hogs, averaging 179 lbs, at $9.35, their 75-lb lambs at $6.90, and ewes weighing 107 lbs at $4.40, all being extreme tops that day.

E. T. Graham, the big Nebraska feeder, was on the South Omaha market Aug. 23 looking after the shipment of two cars of cattle that sold at $8.00, averaging 1,518 lbs. They had been fed since about the first of January, and price is top since early in July.

M. Manring of Gentry county, Mo., writes our East St. Louis house: "I received the money two or three months ago from the Wabash agent at McFall for which accept my very best wishes. I shipped you a load of cattle last Monday and am well pleased with the sale."

Don Cochran of White county, Ill., writes our East St. Louis house: "Cattle arrived in good shape and am well pleased. As I have more old corn than I thought, I want you to send me another load. Do as you have always done: viz., wait until a load comes that suits."

E. T. Graham, Platte county, Neb., had three cars of his good steers to our South Omaha house Aug. 22, which as usual topped the trade, selling at $7.90 and averaging 1,533 lbs. The following day we again topped the market with another string of his steers, averaging 1,518 lbs, at $8.00.

John Whitaker had a couple of cars of his good Wyoming steers on the South Omaha market Aug. 23 that sold at $6.00, averaging 1,156 lbs. These cattle were very nice and sold to the feeder buyers, the price being the top of the season for anything of that sort. Mr. Whitaker's cows sold at $4.00.

One of the most notable sales of the season at South Omaha was that made by us for John Whitaker of Laramie county, Wyo., on Aug. 23, two cars of choice 1,156-lb steers selling to the feeder buyers at $6.00, extreme high price for anything of this sort during the season. A car of cows made $4.00, averaging 997 lbs. Mr. Whitaker is one of Wyoming's foremost cattle raisers, and his stock usually commands a high figure.

S. B. Pristley, Henry county, Mo., writes our East St. Louis house under date Aug. 28: "Account sales received and will say I was well pleased with sales as they net me over $100 profit. Had some more that I put in with another man and he sent them to a different firm and I don't think they made a very good sale. I will authorize you to accept railroad offer of settlement on car of hogs as satisfactory to me so you can send me draft for $15.55. I received your letter this morning containing the draft for $24.40 which is very satisfactory to me. I want to thank you for your fair treatment and will say I appreciate your business relations with me."

Our East St. Louis house has been favored with consignments from the following well-known feeders and shippers during the past week: C. D. Brownfield, Mo.: Nodaway Valley Cattle Co, Mo.: H. H. Kimball, Kan.; E. M. Nuckens, Mo.; T. B. Kerley, Ill.: T. B. Murril, Ill.; M. C. Allen, Mo.: R. W. Belt, Mo.; W. C. Rainy, Ill.; J. A. Walkinshaw, Ia.; S. P. Pristley, Mo.: Frank Marmion, Ia.; R. W. Belt, Mo.; C. A. Chittenden, Ill.; E. P. Harned, Mo.: Vencil Keith, Mo.: Wilford & Page, Ky.; Frank Oswald, Mo.; W. L. Morgan, Ill.: Harry Rowland, Ill.: Iuka L. S. Co., Ill.; Geo. D. Taylor, Ill.; Siler & Covington, Ark.; J. N. Bradley, Ill.; Geo. Whiteside, Mo.: S. N. Ransdill, Mo.; H. E. Schmidt, Ill.; Henry Sands, Ill.; Irvine & Duncan, Mo.; R. H. Garrett, Mo.; Monsees & Bente, Mo.; S. O. Shields, Mo.; C. T. Word, Kan.; W. Lucas, Okla.; Wigginton Bros., Okla.; D. Brownfield, Mo.; A. W. Nelson, Mo.; J. B. Brockhouse, Ill., and J. W. Powell, Ill.

Extreme top of the hog market at Kansas City Aug. 22 was $9.05, obtained by our house for a shipment owned by M. W. Kline of Pawnee county, Okla.

Joseph E. Wing of Champaign county, Ohio: "The two carloads of lambs you bought for me arrived in very good shape. Am well pleased with the quality of them."

On Aug. 25 our South Omaha house sold two cars of 65-lb fat Idaho lambs at $6.60 for Rogers & McLeod, while the feeding end averaged 61 lbs and brought $6.25.

Sanger Bros. of Dallas county, Tex., write our Fort Worth office: "We were well pleased with the sale of car of hogs covered by your statement of Aug. 18 and hope to be able to make you quite a number of shipments this season."

Some very good cattle were received by our South Omaha house on Aug. 23, from Engleking Bros., prominent ranchers near Converse county, Wyo. This shipment included 30 head of 1,010-lb steers that sold to the feeder buyers at $5.40.

Irvin J. Mackey, Pike county, Mo., writes our South St. Joseph house in regard to the feeding sheep they purchased for him: "Sheep arrived this morning, and they look good to me. Were all in good shape. Think they are cheap enough."

L. M. Claytor, an old time cattleman of the Casper territory and a very good friend of our firm, was on the South Omaha market Aug. 23 with a couple of cars of good steers that averaged 1,215 lbs, and sold at the satisfactory price of $5.55. Mr. Claytor handles a good class of cattle, and they invariably bring good figures.

A. L. Durham of Routh county, Colo., one of the firm's valued customers, was on the Denver market Thursday of last week with two cars of cows.

On Wednesday of last week our Denver house put a new season's top on the market for grass cattle, selling one car of 1,218-lb. steers at $5.55. These were shipped by Alfred Butters, executor for the Wilson estate, from Mesa county, Colo. Mr. Butters also had 13 cars of other cattle in the shipment, which were handled to his entire satisfaction.

Our East St. Louis house reports selling on Aug. 29 for L. Bean of Jersey county, Ill., one deck of sheep and lambs. The latter topped the market at $6.85, the muttons leading the sheep list at $4.35, while the breeding ewes of this list also topped the market at $4.90. These sheep sales were 10@15c higher than any others that day.

Our South St. Joseph house sold at satisfactory prices an eight-car shipment of feeding lambs on Aug. 22 for Manuel Azevedo and Joseph Gondere, prominent sheepmen of Canyon county, Idaho. These men report that the range has been very dry in their section this summer and stock is coming to market much lighter than in former years.

Charles Ross of Perkins county, S. D., writes: "I receive the REPORT and think it a valuable paper. There are but few cattle here as settlers have gotten this country. It has been very hot and dry here. No crops to speak of. Hay is very scarce. Had a heavy rain last week and what few new settlers can stay are plowing and getting ready for another year."

L. E. Landon, Jackson county, Mich.: "The double deck of lambs you bought for me came last night. They were in good condition and I am very much pleased. They are as nice a car of western lambs as were ever shipped in here, and I cannot make it strong enough that I am more than pleased, and my future business will all be done with your firm."

The Yampa Live Stock and Land Company, h engaged in the live stock business in Routt county, Colo., were on the Denver market Monday of this week with four cars of cows and bulls, mixed, which our house at that point satisfactorily disposed of.

Wm. Dawson, Manager Swan Land & Cattle Co., Laramie county, Wyo., writes our South Omaha house under date August 25 as follows: "Your letter of the 18th inst. to hand enclosing sales account; the prices obtained are very satisfastory. I had your telegram last night regarding the sales of the cattle shipped from Torrington and prices obtained for this stuff are first rate."

J. S. McCumsey of Malheur county, Oregon, writes: "We have had a very dry summer but stock is doing well at present. We will put up more hay in this part of Malheur county than ever before. There will be plenty of hay this coming winter for all stock in this county, although in some places the crop is short. Not much stock will be shipped from this section of the country this fall as almost everyone is prosperous and prices are a little off. Almost all the wool has been shipped, sold or consigned."

John Bright, Hancock county, Ohio, was at our office Monday and evidenced his appreciation of the LIVE STOCK REPORT by paying for two years in advance. Mr. Bright is one of the most substantial and extensive stockmen and farmers in the above county, usually feeding both cattle and sheep. Like many other localities, it has been pretty dry there and he states that corn will hardly make more than half an average crop, although he himself has some fields that will run as high as sixty bushels, but that is away above the average. Oats made a good yield and are of good quality, as is also the hay srop. Pastures are very short. When Mr. Bright ships stock East it is consigned to our house at East Buffalo.

Clay, Robinson & Company,

Chicago, Ills.

Gentlemen:-

We take pleasure in enclosing herewith our Chicago draft for $765.88, in payment of one double deck of weathers containing 194.

We beg to say that sheep came through in extra fine shape and that we consider them the best that has been shipped into this station of their kind in many a day. Your buying for us both at your Chicago and Omaha offices has been of the very best and we will recommend you to any who may enquire. We do not need any more just at present, but rest assured that when we do you will get a call. We are trying these on pasture to see just how they will do. Later we expect to use several loads of lambs, if the market is not too high. With thanks for your favors.

Please acknowledge receipt of draft.

Yours truly,

Nichols Bros

RANGE CATTLE AND SHEEP AT CHICAGO AND SOUTH OMAHA

Current Comment and Chicago Quotations to Wednesday Noon.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

Receipts of western range cattle at Chicago first three days of this week and for year to date, with comparison, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

First three days this week	12,500
First three days last week	15,500
Year ago	14,000
Receipts for season of 1910 to date	90,000
Corresponding period of 1909	51,700
Corresponding period of 1908	106,400

Included in last Wednesday's receipts of 19,000 cattle there were only about 2,500 rangers. Activity characterized the trade, and while native beeves below choice were lower the westerns were bought up eagerly at 10@15c advance. Our sales included 29 head of the Judith Mercantile Co.'s 1,340-lb Montanas at $7.00, with a second cut averaging 1,153 lbs at $5.60, and a 1,680-lb steer from the same shipment belonging to R. S. Hamilton of Lewistown, Mont., at $7.75 per 100 lbs. We also sold for the Milner Cattle Co. two cars of horned steers, averaging 1,252 lbs, at $6.70, with the second cut, averaging 1,199 lbs, at $5.75. With 1,500 rangers here Thursday of last week, the market was steady. Our sales for the day included seven cars of the Brown & Weare double-wintered Wyoming-Texans, averaging 1,135 lbs, at $5.65, two loads averaging 1,160 lbs, at $5.35 and two loads averaging 1,089 lbs, at $5.25. Friday there were not enough rangers here to make a market. Prices for the week closed 15@25c higher. The week's supply was 18,500 (making 72,000 for the season) as against 13,500 the week before and 13,000 the corresponding week of 1909. Closing values were 15@25c above those of a week earlier on both steers and butcher stock.

This week opened with a run of 26,000 cattle, 7,000 of which were rangers, market ruling steady to strong and closing in good shape. Among our sales were eight dehorned steers shipped by Rostand & Becker, Big Timber, Mont., averaging 1,435 lbs, at $7.40, WHICH IS TOP PRICE OF THE SEASON EXCEPT FOR AN OCCASIONAL SINGLE ANIMAL. It is worthy of note that this sale was made for a one-car shipper, the carload containing ten steers, the balance being cows. Had there been a full carload of these steers, they would have readily brought more money. We also mention our sale for William Reinig, Fulton, Mont., 23 head of dehorned steers, averaging 1,391 lbs, at $7.05, with the second cut, all horned, averaging 1,313 lbs, at $6.50 and third cut at $6.00, with one light load, $5.75. For the Matador L. & C. Co. we sold ten loads of dehorned grade Hereford double-wintered Texans, averaging 1,157 lbs, at $5.80, with three cars of horned steers, averaging 1,181 lbs, at $5.25; two loads of dehorned Chiricahua steers, 1,208 lbs, $5.45, and for the same company, six cars of dehorned steers, 1,163 lbs, $5.35; for the Continental Land & Cattle Co., 28 head of double-wintered Dakota-Texans, 1,247 lbs, $5.55; for L. Benoist, 35 horned Dakotas, rather plain quality, 1,377 lbs, $6.20, with seven tailings, averaging 1,221 lbs, at $5.00, 11 cows, 1,130 lbs, $4.65 and 23 canner cows, 1,026 lbs, $3.50; for F. Benoist, 31 horned Dakotas, 1,132 lbs, $5.90, with eight tailings, 1,150 lbs, $4.80; for L. Le Beau, 13 Dakotas, 1,150 lbs, $5.80. Receipts of range cattle Tuesday 1,500, market strong. The River markets were liberally supplied, Kansas City alone having 19,000, and the strong market here in the face of this only goes to show the splendid demand prevailing for westerns. With a big corn crop and naturally strong demand for feeders the western cattle man should close his accounts this season rather better than he perhaps dared to think would be the case some few weeks ago. Receipts of cattle Wednesday 19,000 of which 3,500 were westerns. Demand was indifferent and market slow to open: while medium grades of steers sold steady, all other grades of steers ruled 15c lower. Butcher stock strong. Our sales included a car of Montanas for the Judith Mercantile Co. at $7.00.

Indications point to a good trade for range steers, cows and heifers all season, and we advise shipping right along as fast as ready.

Range Sheep.

With 18,651 sheep and lambs on sale Thursday of last week, the market was generally steady. Receipts Friday were 12,657 and the market ruled strong. Some choice Utah wethers reached $4.55 and light yearlings up to $5.65. The Klinck Montana wethers made $4.30 for slaughter and a good class of feeders sold up to $4.20. In the yearling trade choice light Utahs reached $5.65.

Current week opened with 31,347 on sale Monday. Market active, especially on lambs, some Idahos going straight at $7.00. Sheep were also in ready demand with a strong tendency. Aged Wyoming wethers made $4.40; two-year-old Idahos reached $4.60 and choice light yearlings went as high as $5.75. Receipts Tuesday were 32,782, which proved too much for the demand, and while the market opened steady, the close was off 10@15c from best price of the preceding day. Late in the session $6.85 bought choice range lambs, although earlier the tops from three different shipments of Idaho lambs, totaling about 2,200 head, sold up to $7.00. Feeding demand

AVOID THIS PITFALL.

One of the biggest mistakes that either shippers or feeders of cattle, hogs and sheep can make is to "split" shipments; that is, divide the consignment between two or more commission firms on the same day. This works great harm to the sale of the entire lot, and has brought losses of thousands of dollars to owners. Buyers watch "split" shipments closely, keeping men at the chutes for that purpose, and use one firm against the other in the effort to pound prices down on such. The buyers' point is well taken as they are afraid to bid on divided shipments, each fearing that the other buyer may get his stock cheapest, in which case the buyer who paid the most would be open to criticism from his house. This causes them to hold off and the owner suffers a loss. On the other hand if one firm has an entire shipment they have all the buyers competing with each other for the same and this enables the salesman to raise the price. If shippers wish to divide their shipments they will save money by doing so on different days. : : : : :

was quite slack. With 2,500 on sale Wednesday, market ruled 10c lower on western killing lambs, while everything else held steady. The feeder demand was active and desirable offerings found ready sale. Top for fat western lambs was $6 90, while feeding grades sold mostly from $6.50@6.75.

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

For the most part a good demand for feeding sheep and lambs has prevailed all week and prices show very little change from a week ago. There is a remarkably broad inquiry for all classes of feeding sheep, lambs and breeding ewes, and same is true at the Missouri River markets as well as at Chicago. Indications point to a continuance of existing conditions. We do not anticipate any particular change in prices in the near future. Choice feeding lambs at the present time are costing right around $6.75, choice yearlings $5.60 and choice wethers $4.75.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

There was a very fair run of range cattle last week, about 28,000 head. Conditions were very satisfactory from start to finish, and killing steers and cow stuff finished fully 15@25c better than a week previous. Top beef steers brought $6.50, paid for three loads of choice Montanas weighing around 1,500 lbs, as against $6.75 preceding week. Stockers and feeders also showed same advance for the week, until the extreme windup when there was a little weakness noticeable. Choice Montanas weighing 1,250 lbs, went to the feeder buyers at $6.20. We sold two cars of strictly choice feeders for John Whitaker, Cheyenne, Wyo., at $6.00, weighing 1,156 lbs.

The trade was in excellent condition on beef steers, heavy weight feeders and cows and heifers. Stockers and feeders weighing from 800@900 lbs, did not show so much strength, however, as undoubtedly the scarcity of hay and roughness has to a large extent kept down an urgent demand for these kinds.

Receipts of westerns Monday were the heaviest of the season. As a result of the heavy rains Sunday night, trains were delayed and part of the arrivals came in late. This naturally delayed business. Inquiry for good beef steers was vigorous and prices ruled steady to strong for such. This was also true for good stockers and feeders, but the intermediate grades were a little slow, although prices were generally in about the same notches as late last week. Tuesday conditions were partly a repetition of the preceding day, trains again being late. Prices held generally steady, with good active demand for the better grades and a slightly easier feeling on other kinds.

Range Sheep.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were extremely heavy last week, 112,000 as compared with 54,000 preceding week. Supplies were well divided as to classes, although a large percentage were on the feeder order, generally of pretty good quality. While a little weakness was noticeable on Tuesday (Aug. 23), any decline was made up before the close of the week. Considering the supply the trade showed good undertone, largely on account of the liberal buying on feeding account.

On account of the storm trains were late getting in Monday and there were only about a dozen cars in sight when the market opened. Total day's supply, however, footed up 31,300 head, and notwithstanding the late arrival of the bulk of the offerings and wet and unattractive appearance of same, demand was so good that practically all the supply was cleared at steady prices. Tuesday there was another liberal run, trains again being late. Demand was active, especially for good fat lambs, with a little stronger tendency on the best grades. There was a particularly active feeding demand, commission men holding numerous buying orders from clients. All desirable offerings changed hands quickly at fully steady prices.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Last week closed with offerings generally 15@25c lower than the close of the precedlng week and on plain grades the decline was even more. On the other hand, prime heavy beeves sustained scarcely 10@15c decline.

Current week opened with 25,679 on sale Monday, prices ruling about steady with last week's close, although there was not much life to the trade. Receipts Tuesday were 4,570. Market quiet and not much change in prices. With 20,000 on sale Wednesday, about 4,000 of which were westerns, the very best grades of beef steers held barely steady, while others were 5@15c lower. Extreme top was $8.25, with very few selling above $8.00. While total marketing of cattle for the week to date is 5,000 less than last week, the decrease has been mostly in westerns, and in the native department supply has been fully equal to the demand. We sold today for Albert Smith, Cumberland county, Ill., 25 head of dehorned grade Hereford yearling steers, lacking finish, averaging 965 lbs, at $7.50, top for the day.

Much Depends on First Cost.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s staff of expert feeder cattle and sheep buyers at all of the leading markets are every day trading with various salesmen at these points. It stands to reason that they are in better position to purchase such cheaper and with better sorts than the prospective buyer himself, for they know all the ins and outs of the trade. Many sellers would price their offerings considerably higher and ask the intending buyer to purchase stock that they would not price or offer to a regular buyer who trades with them daily. Experts buyers frequently save many times the amount of the commission for the prospective purchaser. There is a great deal of labor attending the purchase of feeder stock, and it requires an expert knowledge, which our buyers have, to get the best results both as to price and quality. These are two requisites that the prospective feeder must have at the outset if he is to get started right. : : : :

Hogs.

Current week opened with 24,204 hogs on sale Monday and prices advanced 10@15c. Receipts Tuesday were very light, only 13,937. The early market was the best, heavy packing hogs closing a dime lower and hard to sell at that. Light and medium stuff found shipping outlet at 5@10c advance. With 18,000 fresh receipts Wednesday, light weight and also choice hogs of all weights, ruled 5@10c higher, although after the shippers had filled their orders, market weakened and advance was lost. On packing hogs trade was slow throughout. A few early sales were made at about steady prices, with bulk of the heavy packers 10c lower, and a good many of this class remained unsold in first hands, although light weights and choice hogs were well cleared. Packers are not willing to pay the high prices ruling and we would not be surprised to see a considerably wider margin between packing grades and other classes. Extreme top Wednesday was $9.65, paid for some choice light hogs. Light weight butchers ranged from $9.40@9.55 and choice heavy and heavy butchers from $9.25@9.45.

Good to choice assorted light shipping	$9 50 @	9 65
Fair to choice butchers	9 40	9 60
Fair to choice heavy shipping	9 25	9 40

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Last week's trade finished at the week's high point, fat lambs showing 15@25c gain over the preceding week, while sheep were about steady. Nearly 56,000 head of feeding sheep and lambs were shipped from Chicago during the week. This explains the satisfactory condition of the trade under the liberal marketing.

With 31,347 sheep on sale Monday, lambs were generally 10@15c higher, best natives selling up to $7.10. Beceipts Tuesday were 32,782. Opening lamb trade was steady, but natives closed 15@20c lower. Sheep held about steady, although trading was dull. Wednesday run 25,000, native lambs showing 10@15c gain over the preceding day's close. The supply of muttons was light and market about steady.

Do You Want Breeding Ewes?

We know of a shipment of ten cars of choice Blackface western yearling ewes that will be on the market about September 10. Persons wanting stock of this description write us.

W. P. Ricketts, prominent cattleman of Gillette, Wyo., writes under date of Aug. 27: "No rain; water and grass about gone, and pretty hard for a cattle owner to look pleasant."

Joseph Brandmeyer, New London, Iowa: "Enclosed find 50c to renew my subscription. A farmer without the LIVE STOCK REPORT is like a blind man without a guide."

Stocker and feeder steers 15@20c lower; top Monday and today $5.25, bulk Monday $4.25@4.65; today $4.00@$4.50. Cows 10c lower; top Monday and today $3.75, bulk Monday $2.85@3.25; today $2.75@3.15. Top on calves Monday $6.75; bulk Monday, lights, $6.25@6.75; today $5.75@6.25; heavies Monday $4.00@4.50; today $3.75@4.25. Bulls steady, top Monday $2.75.

Hog receipts 1,425, quality not very good: market steady; top $9.40, bulk $9.10@9.30; light and mixed $8.60@9.00. Pigs $7.50, strong with last week's close.

Denver Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

Denver, Colo., Aug. 30—With moderate supply of cattle toward the close of last week market showed an advance of 25@50c per cwt. on desirable grades of killers. The top on beef steers was $5.55, which price we obtained for a load of 1,218-lb steers shipped from DeBeque. This was the highest sale of the week by 20c per cwt. Best cows sold up to $4.55, several bunches selling at from $4.10@4.35. The demand for feeders has strengthened considerably; although the supply has been light we look for more liberal runs of this class after the middle of next month.

Receipts of cattle first two days this week 3,200; market Monday strong to 10c higher than last week's close; Tuesday 10@15c lower on both both cows and and steers. Top steers Tuesday $5.40. Top for week $5.65 for part of load; top cows $4.45, which we secured Monday for three cars from Yampa Live Stock and Land Co., Hayden, Colo. Feeders steady and active.

Receipts of hogs first two days of week 1,500; market strong to 5c higher; top $9.35; bulk $9.15@9.25.

Sheep receipts first two days of week 7,000; market steady. Top lambs $6.50; ewes $3.75; wethers $4.10; yearlings $5.00,

MR. ALBERT NOE

"FOR THE TWENTY-THIRD CONSECUTIVE YEAR I HAVE CONSIGNED MY CATTLE TO CLAY, ROBINSON & CO. AT SOUTH OMAHA. FOR TWENTY-THREE SEASONS IN SUCCESSION YOUR MR. ALBERT NOE HAS SOLD MY CATTLE."

Thus did Mr. Kirk Dyer of the Dyer-Shafto Co. of Sykes, Montana, state the record of his intimacy with the house of Clay, Robinson & Co. in our South Omaha offices on August 22. Mr. Dyer was pleased to make the statement, and we were proud to have him do so. Twenty-three years without a break is a long time to hold the patronage of an individual client in any line of business. Such a record of patronage by a man of Mr. Dyer's experience, acumen and busines sagacity, speaks more effectively for the high standard of service rendered than would volumes of matter carefully prepared by the most expert "ad" writer.

Mr. Dyer was pleased to make some interesting price comparisons. Said he, "In 1888 Mr. Noe sold my first shipment of steers, averaging better than 1,400 lbs, to "Dory" Sanders for the old G. H. Hammond Company at $2.75 per cwt. Today he sold our company steers at $5.35, while our own canner cows made $2.90, or 15c per cwt more than did my prime steers in 1888."

Farm Shop Equipment.

Many hundreds of hours of valuable time are now lost by the farmers who are compelled to drive to town for the purpose of having minor repairs made upon the farm machinery. By the timely expenditure of a few dollars this trouble might have been eliminated. The lack of a farm shop often marks the dividing line between success and failure on ranches which lie a great ways from the blacksmith shop.

It is not necessary to expend a great deal of money in order to have a very fine farm shop. After the building is chosen, the next thing of importance is the forge. Do not buy a cheap, unreliable forge, for when the forge is out of order a large part of the shop is disabled.

The small anvil is also desirable, although some heavy casting or a piece of railroad iron may be made to do the work. Cast-iron anvils with steel faces are now being made which are very suitable for farm work.

The next thing in line is the set of stock and dies. Always be sure to select stock and dies which cut threads of the same pitch that are found on commercial bolts. Too many farmers buy cheap dies that cut a special thread not suitable for farm work

Every shop should have a strong vise. A combination pipe and machinist's vise, which may be detachable from the bench, makes an excellent article for the farm shop. It may be taken from the bench and used on any machine which cannot be taken into the shop.

Some form of light drill press should also be found in the shop and if this is light and detachable it is more valuable, as holes may be drilled into different parts of the farm machine without the removal of the parts.

A strong monkey wrench, preferably a combination of wrench and pipe wrench, should also be found in the shop. Numerous punches and chisels are also essential. These should be bought with a view to getting the best and not the cheapest.

Several pairs of tongs should be provided, as the average amateur blacksmith needs special tongs for handling iron which an experienced blacksmith could handle with almost any pair of tongs in his shop.

One or two good blacksmith hammers are a necessity in the farm shop. Don't try to blacksmith with a hatchet or claw hammer.

In order to facilitate the work, some blacksmith stock must be kept on hand. The first thing to be considered is the coal. It is good economy to buy blacksmith's coal. rather than try to use soft coal, which oftentimes causes the amateur blacksmith to "fall down" on his work.

Where no welds are necessary mild steel will probably be the better stock; while Norway iron should be used where it is necessary to make welds.

In the purchase of bolts, it is well to provide the shop with long bolts, as these may be cut off and rethreaded to the proper length on short notice.

It is not advisable for the average farmer to establish a shop and leave the field whenever one of his neighbors desires a little work done. The neighbor should have his own shop.—H. B. Bonebright, Colorado Agricultural College, Fort Collins.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

More Profit on Hogs.

It does interest every farmer to know how he can make $2 a hog extra, clear velvet, by a hygienic system of feeding that costs no more feed nor work. This money-making knowledge is valued by every practical farmer.

Prof. Dietrich says: "90 per cent of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of hlm at the least cost." You unknowingly waste one-fourth the feed given your bogs, which is that n uch lost. Correcting this is one feature of onr work. It is not what the pig eats, but what he digests and assimilates that makes yonr profit. Expert feeding means success. Feed is 93 per ceni of the cost of producing pork. The more you know the more you make. How to cheapen the high-priced feed and get most growth and gain out of it is profit making knowledge.

By using the "Progressive, Scientific Feeding Formula," you increase the gain, while feeding fattening hogs a half-pound a day per hog over the customary way of feeding from the same feed given. This is creating a sensation among feeders. It is banding out a contract for $100 payable in sixty days if you fatten 50 hogs and annually thereafter.

The hygienic secret made the discoverer a fortune fattening hogs. It is as easy feeding as the old way, though progressive and scientific. It is of such real valne no sensible man can ignore it without a personal loss to himself.

For $1 we will send you the American Swineherd, the aggressive and progressive acknowledged leader, devoted to the swine indnstry, for four years and give you as a preminm the above formula, which is so thoroughly proven that we agree to make good or give your money back making you absolutely safe.

No matter how many papers you take you need the money-making information we give onr subscribers for your protection in keeping up with the leaders. It is a great school on feeding: our efforts being concentrated, naturally attain the highest success, which you share. Don't be satisfied with what you now know; seek to improve. The man who quits improving is dead, whether buried or not.

We also give yon copy of the "Pig Feeders' Mannal," which the largest farmer in Iowa says is worth a dollar itself to every hog-raiser. This paper stops at the time paid to. Our big offer good for ten days.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, September 9, 1910 | No. 36

Notes by the Way.

During the last ten days I have travelled over Illinois, Iowa, Nebraska, Colorado, Kansas and have found conditions very good. Pastures everywhere are fine. When I was last at Kansas City the drought of July was making inroads on the corn crop. Everybody was nervous, and cattle were a draggy sale. Now it is different. There is animation and activity. It looks as if we would raise the largest crop of corn ever produced in the States, and that the corn country will absorb the surplus of cattle that will come from the West. Wyoming, Idaho and Montana are very short of feed, with less than half a crop of hay. Conditions there are a bit improved, but still far behind an average. The dry farmer in these states has drawn a blank this season. Even the well'water projects have been short of water. Northern Colorado is short of hay, but late rains have greatly improved the potato and beet crops. Small grains are an average and threshing returns are good J. C.

Corn Crop Needs Ideal Weather.

Recent reports have indicated that the corn crop has not improved as much as thought since Aug. 1 and it is expected the Government report will show a slightly lower condition than a month ago. Practically ideal weather conditions are needed consequently to insure a big crop.

The August Government figures suggested the largest crop ever raised in this country, but if there has been the deterioration claimed in some quarters the crop will fall short of the August figures. B. W. Snow estimates a crop of about 2,-800,000,000 bushels.

New Service for Stock Shippers.

The M. K. & T. Railroad have put on a new service to make the early markets of Tuesday and Thursday of each week at East St. Louis, which will leave Parsons, Kan., Monday and Wednesday at 4 a. m.; leave Nevada, Mo., 7:50 a. m.; leave New Franklin, Mo., 5:45 p. m., and arrive at National Stock Yards 7:35 a. m. This service will be kept into effect as long as the tonnage warrants and we believe it will be of great benefit to shippers from the Southwest district as well as those north of Parsons.

Record Cattle Receipts at South Omaha.

Dealers at South Omaha were generally more or less surprised at the heavy run of cattle there Monday as it was generally thought that this week's supplies would be lighter than last and that next week's supply would be the banner run of the season. Dealers said the western cattlemen could not get the cars back in time to load this week, but in this they were evidently mistaken.

The run totaled 15,663 head. This is nearly 2,162 in excess of the previous largest run, Oct. 19, 1908, when the official receipts showed 13,501 head. One good feature of the run Monday was that the big bulk of the stock arrived in good season Sunday or Monday morning and was in shape to be shown and sold before noon.

THE S. C. SAILOR ILLINOIS HOGS AT EAST BUFFALO.

On Aug. 24 Clay, Robinson & Co. at East Buffalo sold for S. C. Sailor of Oakwood, Ill., the above car of hogs, averaging 317 lbs, at $9.65 to J. L. McCabe, manager of the hog department of the Jacob Dold Packing Co. This price was the extreme top of the market for mixed grades of hogs and they were the first heavy hogs to sell as high as mixed hogs of 200 to 225 lbs average. The Jacob Dold Packing Co. are always eager buyers of good quality hogs of all weights. They have just completed the addition of several hog chill rooms and a storage house, giving them a weekly capacity of 21,000 hogs in addition to cattle, sheep, etc. With such buyers in the market, in addition to other packers and order buyers, the shipper is always insured a good market for his stock at East Buffalo. Reading from right to left the men in the above picture: J. L. McCabe; Fred Blofus, assistant manager of the hog department of the Jacob Dold Packing Co.; B. R. Lewis; H. Leigh, superintendent of the New York Central Stock Yards, and Mortin Golden, second assistant manager of the hog department of the Jacob Dold Packing Co.

Fighting Forest Fires.

Officials of the United States Department of Agriculture are of the opinion that 1910 will hold the record among many years for the severity of the losses from forest fires. The summer fires followed a spring season believed to have been the worst, certainly in the Lake states, known for a long time. Nor is it wise to assume that the danger is over when the fierce conflagrations which have called forth in the Mountain states the efforts of three Federal Departments have been conquered. The forests will not be safe until the fall rains and snows have once more made a wet blanket of the dry forest floor. That the total losses of the year will run up to many millions of dollars is considered certain.

how such losses may be prevented is a matter of general public concern. To the national forest timber burned must be added great amounts on state and private holdings, besides the immense damage done to town, farm and other property. Railroads have suffered from the interruption of traffic as well as from direct losses. A bulletin by Forester Henry S. Graves discusses forest fires and the proper methods of preventing and fighting them as follows:

"In some sections of the country forest fires have always been of such common occurrence that there is a popular notion that they cannot be prevented. The risk from fires can never be entirely eliminated, for in the forest there is always inflammable material which is very easily ignited. They may, however, be largely prevented, and under efficient organization their damage may be kept down to a very small amount. The problem is like that in cities, where fires can never be entirely eliminated, but where the risk of loss to property may be reduced almost to insignificance.'

The importance of systematic provision for the early discovery of fires and for getting a properly equipped force of fire fighters quickly to the scene of an outbreak is insisted upon by Forester Graves. "A careful supervision or patrol during the dry season," he says, "is one of the most important measures in organized forest protection. One of the fundamental principles in fire protection is to detect and attack fires in their incipiency." After pointing out the value of lookouts, telephone or signal communication and various methods of patrol, the Forester tells how to fight fires, as follows:

"The principles of fighting forest fires are essentially the same as those recognized in fighting fires in cities. The following are of first importance: First, quick arrival at the fire; second, an adequate force; third, proper equipment; fourth, a thorough organization of the fighting crew; fifth, skill in attacking and fighting fires. Quick access to fires is accomplished through the work of supervision and patrol in discovering fires before they have gained much headway, and by a well-developed system of communication through the forest by roads and trails.

"A small fire may be put out by one man, but in extensive forests several hours may pass before the fire can be reached. It is important to secure an adequate force of men and to get them to the fire quickly. In a well organized system of patrol the guard who discovers a fire communicates quickly to other guards and to headquarters by telephone, signal, or other means, and indicates the number of men he needs.

"The efficiency of the fire-fighting crews depends very largely on their skill and experience, and particularly on the skill and experience of the man directing the work. It is not only a question of knowledge of how to assign each man where his work will be most effective, but there must be judgment exercised in determining the general method of attack. The character of the fire, the character of the forest, the condition of the atmosphere, the strength and direction of the wind, the rapidity with which the fire is running, and many other points have to be taken into consideration.'

After describing how surface fires may be put out by beating, by throwing sand or loose earth, and by other methods, the account goes on:

"Sometimes the front of the fire is so fierce that it is impossible to meet it directly. One method under such circumstances is to direct the course of the fire. The attack is made on the sides near the front, separating the forward portion of the fire from the main wings. A part of the crew attacks the forward part and others run down and extinguish the wings. The front of the fire, attacked from the sides, is forced gradually and constantly into a narrower path. Usually the front can be directed toward some cleared space, road, pond, stream, swamp, or fire line, when it will be checked enough to admit of a direct front attack. Sometimes by this plan the front may be rapidly narrowed by working from the sides, until it is at last entirely extinguished. The plan of giving direction to the course of the fire has often been successfully carried out when the fighting crew is too small for a direct attack.

"When fires gain such headway that it is impossible to stop them by direct attack, no matter how numerous and efficient the crew or complete the equipment for fighting, back firing becomes the only means of stopping the fire. It should, however, be used only when it is absolutely necessary. One of the commonest mistakes in fighting fires is to overestimate the rapidity of the fire and the difficulty of putting it out. A forest fire is always a frightening spectacle, particularly if it is sweeping in the direction of one's own property. Men often become excited and start back fires when it is entirely unnecessary. Back firing necessarily involves deliberately burning over property. When this belongs to another person and one's own forest seems in danger, there is a great temptation to sacrifice it.

"If it is found that a back fire is necessary, a favorable point is selected directly in front of the fire, from which to set the new fire. This must be a point where it is safe to start a back fire, such as a road, fire line, stream, or swamp. The leaves are ignited at points five feet to a rod apart for a distance not greater than the estimated width of the head of the fire. These small fires gradually meet and form a continuous line, eating back against the wind. A part of the crew is stationed across the road or other break from which the back fire is started and put out at once the small fires which may result from the sparks blown over from the back fire.

"The meeting of the two fires stops at once the head of the main fire. It is usually possible then to attack the wings with the ordinary methods of fighting. It is necessary to attack the wings at once, particularly if there is a strong wind, for otherwise each wing of the old fire would soon form an independent fire with a well-developed head. It is necessary, also, that a number of men be stationed where the original fire and the back fire meet in order to extinguish smoldering fires in tops, logs, and other debris."

"A fire is never out," the bulletin concludes, "until the last spark is extinguished. Often a log or snag will smolder unnoticed after the flames have apparently been conquered, only to break out afresh with a rising wind. After the fire-fighting crew has left the ground it is always well to assign at least one man to patrol the edges of the burned area until it is certain that the fire is entirely out. This may not be for several days."

Good Corn in Minnesota.

John McBeth, the Mankato, Minn., packer, was at Chicago Tuesday with a train of South Dakota cattle to Clay, Robinson & Co. He says Southern Minnesota never had a more promising corn crop and that there is no scarcity of young hogs.

News From Dewitt County, Ill.

Ellis Pollock of Clinton, Ill., writes: Crops in DeWitt county were good this year. The oats will average 50 bushels per acre and some 65 bushels. The wheat crop was very good, average about 28 to 30 bushels, and fine quality. The hay crop was fine, timothy average 1½ to 2½ tons per acre, and some clover as high as 3 tons. There will not be much of a crop of clover seed this year. Some of the farmers are experimenting with alfalfa and crops and the hay was of fine quality. The corn is reops and the hay was of fine quality. The corn is looking fine and we have a better stand than last year, with more ears to the stalk, so if we have a good fall and the frost holds off, DeWitt county will have a heavy crop. The farmers here are interested in dairying. We have a creamery at Clinton, shipping from 10,000 to 12,000 pounds of butter per week, and every farmer owning dairy cows should have a bunch of hogs to feed all the time and turn skim-milk into pork. Every farmer in DeWitt county might just as well be feeding two or three carloads of sheep, cattle or hogs this winter and help get rid of that bumper corn crop and fill their pocket book with greenbacks as to be sitting around the grocery store telling stories or chewing the rag about the high price of meat and the tariff. Now try it this winter and see if you will not feel better next spring.

"Clay, Robinson & Co. will furnish you with feeders at prices that you cannot get any other place, and you will get better feeders at better prices with better treatment than you will if you try to buy them yourself, so begin right away to fill that old pocketbook of yours by sending Clay Robinson & Co. your order for all the feeders you can take care of, and then next spring sit on the fence and have the laugh on the fellow that did not look far enough ahead to see that the best way to sell that bumper corn crop was through the feed lot corn grinder. Try it, for it means dollars to you. A word to the wise, etc."

AVOID THIS PITFALL.

One of the biggest mistakes that either shippers or feeders of cattle, hogs and sheep can make is to "split" shipments; that is, divide the consignment between two or more commission firms on the same day. This works great harm to the sale of the entire lot, and has brought losses of thousands of dollars to owners. Buyers watch "split" shipments closely, keeping men at the chutes for that purpose, and use one firm against the other in the effort to pound prices down on such. The buyers' point is well taken as they are afraid to bid on divided shipments, each fearing that the other buyer may get his stock cheapest, in which case the buyer who paid the most would be open to criticism from his house. This causes them to hold off and the owner suffers a loss. On the other hand if one firm has an entire shipment they have all the buyers competing with each other for the same and this enables the salesman to raise the price. If shippers wish to divide their shipments they will save money by doing so on different days. : : : : :

Charles Stuebe Brings in Many Cattle.

Charles Stuebe, one of Minnesota's substantial citizens and a member of the large and successful shipping and ranching firm of Stuebe Bros., with headquarters at New Ulm, Minn., was in Chicago this week with a big shipment of cattle to Clay, Robinson & Co., shipped by the Minnesota and Dakota Cattle Co. from South Dakota, of which company he is treasurer and one of the directors. This firm has had between 5,000 and 6,000 cattle on their ranches in the Cheyenne and Standing Rock reservations, but because of the opening of portions of these reservations for settlement are shaping their affairs preparatoy to winding up next season. Thus far this season this company has had five trains of cattle on the Chicago market, the great bulk of which have been handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. In speaking of the shipments and of range conditions in that section, Mr. Stuebe said:

"The western cattleman certainly has no room to complain of the cattle market this year. While the movement of range cattle has been close to record proportions for so early in the season, and far in excess of the corresponding period last year, the market is considerably higher than it was at that time. From a consumer's standpoint, it is too high and from the standpoint of the producer it is high enough to make the cattle business very profitable, so the cattleman, at least, has no kick coming.

"The South Dakota range country is in excellent shape, grass has been good throughout the summer and has cured fine. Cattle came through the winter in poor condition but picked up during the balmy March and, though set back somewhat by a cold April, have since been coming along in great shape, and during the last three months have made wonderful gains."

Mr. Stuebe is one of those substantial and industrious German-American citizens who have been so very successful in agricultural pursuits in this country. He came here from the fatherland 35 years ago and landed in the city of New Ulm, Minn., with that determination to succeed, energy and ability not only to make but conserve that have made this sturdy German stock one of the most desirable classes of American citizenship. He has been a live stock shipper and farmer for the last 32 of his 35 years' residence in this country, and has been in the ranching business for the last 19 years. He was associated with Scotty Phillips in the cattle business during the earliest days of that widely known cattleman's career. In addition to his present large interests in the Minnesota and Dakota Cattle Co., Mr. Stuebe owns three fine Minnesota farms, has for years been one of the most extensive shippers of live stock to the South St. Paul market and a iberal patron of Clay, Robinson & Co. there, and is financially interested in the Citizens' State Bank in his home town, New Ulm.

The Minnesota and Dakota Cattle Company's ranch was originally stocked with Texas cattle, and for 19 years Mr. Stuebe made trips into that country to buy the stock, invariably accompanying the shipments to the Dakota ranch. He reports but one serious loss of cattle in these shipments, that being four years ago when about 450 head were drowned in Kansas by flood waters from the Kaw river. On account of the scarcity and high price of Texas cattle and the encroachment of the settlers and uncertainty as to the future of the cattle business as a ranching proposition in the Northwest, his company has received no Texas cattle within the last two years. Mr. Stuebe tells of having bought in the earlier days the cream of the Texas yearling crop as low as $8@9 per head, prices that now look ridiculously low.

Death of Thomas Rae.

Too late for last week's issue came the news of the death of the above gentleman, which occurred at his home in Denver on August 31, of tuberculosis, from which he had suffered a number of years. Mr. Rae came to the Denver market eighteen or twenty years ago and was for many years an active operator there, although for the past four or five years ill health has prevented him from doing much in that line. However, he continued to frequently visit the yards and took a great interest in the trade. A few months ago he returned to Denver from a year or two spent in Arizona with the hope of regaining his health, which unhappily proved futile. Mr. Rae is survived by a widow and two children, one boy and one girl. His brother, Alex. Rae, is a well known trader at the Denver yards; one nephew, Robert W. Rae, is a cattle salesman there, and George Rae, another nephew, was for years in the employ of Clay, Robinson & Co. at Denver, East Buffalo and other points, and is now cashier of the Stock Growers' State Bank at Worland, Wyo.

Snow in Rosebud County, Montana.

J. L. Davis of Rosebud county, Mont., writes: "I am more than satisfied with the sales you made for me. Grass and hay are both scarce. We had about three inches of snow on Aug. 24 and about two inches of ice that night. It was the worst I ever saw for the time of year. All of the corn is killed."

Topped the Chicago Cattle Market.

I. N. Atkinson of Fowler, Ind., marketed at Chi-Chicago on Wednesday 27 head of beef steers, averaging 1,628 lbs, and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at the top price of $8.45. These cattle were big fat beeves, but not choice sellers, being of a shrinky class.

J. Ara Annis of Branch county, Mich., writes: "I miss the coming of the Report in my mail. Enclosed find remittance to renew my subscription."

CATTLE WHICH SOLD AS HIGH AS ANY TIME SINCE JULY.

They were at Chicago on Tuesday, Sept. 6 and Clay, Robinson & Co. landed them at $8.50, the next highest price that day being $7.65. There were 15 head of 1,476 lbs average in the lot and were grade Shorthorns, Herefords and Angus. The feeder and shipper of these cattle was Chas. L. Kolb of Holstein, Ia. He is one of the most famous feeders of the Middle West, and Clay, Robinson & Co. have frequently topped the Chicago market with his cattle.

The International's Foreign Judge.

Breeder's Gazette: Some weeks ago it was announced in these colums that T. H. Hutchinson of Yorkshire, England, had been engaged to come to Chicago Dec. 1 and judge the grade and cross-bred bullocks and award the bullock championship at this year's International Live Stock Exposition. It subsequently developed that Mr. Hutchinson's health had been impaired to an extent which rendered it necessary for him to recall his acceptance of the invitation. In his stead, therefore, Richard G. Carden, a prominent Irish breeder and feeder, has been engaged for this important work.

Mr. Carden is described a most capable all-around judge and a "typical Irish gentleman." He is the owner of a herd of Shorthorns, and annually fattens a large number of bullocks of various types. He has acted as a judge of Shorthorns at more shows than any other man in Ireland. He has judged Aberdeen-Angus cattle at Perth, and Hackney horses and hunters in England. He is chairman of the Agricultural Committee of the Royal Dublin Society, and is now honorary secretary of that influential organization. He is president of the Hunters' Improvement Society of England and member of the Council of the Royal Agricultural Society of England, as well as of the Shorthorn Association of Great Britain. He is also Deputy-Lieutenant for the county of Tipperary. Richard O'Malley, also a member of the council of the Royal Dublin Society and one of the best known authorities on farming and Clydesdale horse-breeding in Ireland, will accompany Mr. Carden on his Chicago visit.

Robert Bruce, superintendent of the Royal Dublin Show, and himself one of the best all-around judges of live stock on either side the water, congratulates the International Association upon Mr. Carden's acceptance in this case, and assures the management that in his judgment these men will be found equal to any demands that may be made upon them in connection with the assignment of prizes at our greatest American show.

Entries Larger at Inter-State.

If there has ever been any doubt as to the magnitude of the forthcoming Inter-State Live Stock show that doubt should now take wings. The entry books for the breeding and individual classes have been closed and the figures of live stock entered for the show tell the story. Two and a half times as many cattle, hogs, sheep and horses will be seen in the show of the last week in September as have ever been here before. The entries are as follows:

Horses	116	151
Cattle	269	651
Hogs	217	526
Sheep	133	374
Total	749	1742

"Finisterre" A Tribute.

Eastern Point is the extremity of Cape Ann. It is a narrow neck of land, sea-swept perennially, and has become the summer home of a number of families from various big cities. These have beautified it until it is now one of the most favored of spots—lovely homes, wide sweeps of green sward and a profusion of shrubs and flowers. When you leave the old, old fishing town of Gloucester with its many-masted harbor and its salt and cod impregnated atmosphere and emerge from its winding streets upon the sea road you skirt the Atlantic for a mile, then are lifted upon a bluff from whose summit you obtain a magnificent view of town, harbor and sea, and thence via the sea-skirting road, redolent with clithero, to Finisterre, the easternmost home of all. By the stone gate stands the lodge where live all the year Mrs. Landry and her son, William, in whose keeping are the house and grounds during all that period of the year when the house is unoccupied—practically eight months. She is a quaint character, one of her specialties being to extract from the sea with surprising ease and rapidity members of the finny tribe when others seem to fail to be able to get even a nibble. William knows the sea as only those Gloucester men do—its every current, every beacon, every rock; and its moods as well. Instead of relying upon the barometer at Finisterre they rely on William. He lives always within sight of the sea—knows no other nor wishes no other life or environment but that of existence on Cape Ann.

Beyond the gate there is a perfect bower. The drive is lined with flowers of many kinds. They seem to spring from the very rocks. There is a riot of color and an intoxication of odor. Roses of endless variety; great clumps of clithero and hydrangea; here a bed of portulaca and mignonette; along the wall that terminates the lawn tall hollyhocks rear their slender stems, while to the left and shutting out some objectionable undergrowth on adjoining property are great masses of golden glow. There is a most happy combination of the natural and the artificial. Many rocks have been blown out, but many remain, their gray bodies making a fine background for the flowers that grow around and upon them. Despite the light, rocky soil, flowers seem to thrive, in fact luxuriate in that region, and their profusion and fragrance are a never ending source of wonderment and delight. And moving about among her much loved blossoms, personally superintending the trimming of borders, the widening of paths and roads, is the gentle mistress of it all whose beautiful personality dominates all, whose voice is sweet and whose smile is charming, a frail almost fragile flower among other blooms. At once you are made to feel at home. You become a part of the household and the grass, the trees, the flowers, the sea are yours while you are there. The days drift along in a happy sequence of tranquility and rest and pleasant entertainment.

Standing upon the broad piazza your vision sweeps the Atlantic. To the right there is the rocky coast line. The bell on Norman's Woe—where foundered the Hesperus and perished its skipper and little daughter—tolls constantly with the rolling water and its sound comes faintly to your ears. The weird moan of a whistling buoy warning of sunken rocks comes mournfully over the intervening depths, while the lights on Thatchers Island, the Graves' and Baker's shine ever in the night their unceasing warning of the menaces they indicate. Nearer us, in fact at our very door, is the great revolving light of Eastern Point, set upon a bed of cruel, forbidding rocks. Here in wonderful profile is the great rock known as Mother Ann, upon whose bosom has broken many an angry sea, yet who seems to sleep comfortably and calmly while the waters sport about her or getting angry, beat relentlessly upon her unprotected face and form.

You never tire of the sea, perhaps because it is always changing, though never changed. Tirelessly you watch the great roll of its mighty bulk, the breakers beating their lives out on the rocks, and driving back the waters for renewed attack; the surf as it creeps toward the beach and hurries back to gather fresh impetus; the ebbing and flowing of that mysterious, inevitable, unharnessed tide within which lies a mastery as yet unconquered, but which undoubtedly will some day yield to man something of its power and force. See it as it creeps silently in, covering the unlovely flotsam and jetsam of innumerable visits; see how it fills each cove and buries many nasty rocks, its ebb and flow timed to the minute and estimatable long days ahead. Then watch the recession. Submerged rocks again lift up their unlovely heads and the refuse again becomes visible. The cove and inlets empty themselves in the great outgoing body and the tide goes, whence? Yonder the sun is setting and there is a trail of gleaming silver across the water. It fades as the orb disappears; the shadows fall, the blue becomes black and the thousand shore and sea lights glitter and gleam. Then the moon lifts itself over all and again there falls on the water a long trail of silvery light. It is a superb picture and a restful one. But again there come clouds and the northwest wind brings great banks of fog that envelop the sea and shut it from view. Then sound the great warning bells, tolling, tolling until the vapors lift and the course is clear before the pilot.

"FINISTERRE"

Eastern Point, Gloucester, Mass.

Claude Bowen of Newton county, Mo., was on the East St. Louis market Sept. 5 with a deck each of lambs and ewes and our house sold the former offerings at $6.40 and the latter at $4.35, the top for the respective classes. On the same day they sold for W. W. Kastor of Schuyler county, Mo., lambs at $6.40 and mixed ewes and wethers at $4.50 straight.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Ed. Whitfield of Kendall county, Ill., writes: "Shipment of lambs and ewes reached me in good shape and I am very well pleased with the quality of the stock."

R. A. Bailey of Williamson county, Tenn., writes our East St. Louis house: "Car of sheep came. While the price was a little higher than I expected, still the quality is very good, which makes it all right."

A. G. Duteil, secretary of the Southern Ohio Portland Cement Co., Rempel, Ohio: "Enclosed find 50c for which please send your paper to Hiram Stephenson, Jackson, Ohio. I have been taking the LIVE STOCK REPORT for some time and think it the best and most reliable stock report published."

On Aug. 30 our South St. Joseph house handled a four-car shipment of yearlings and lambs from the Thornley-Stewart Ranch Co. of Morgan county, Utah, selling 585 yearlings, averaging 88 lbs, at $5.50; 254 head of 85-lb feeders at $5.00 and 51-lb feeding lambs at $6.30, all top prices for the day.

H. H. Cookson of Henry county, Ohio, writes: "Had forgotten I had not written you in regard to the load of lambs you sent me. They came in good shape and are a good bunch for the price and am very well pleased with them. They are doing fine. Have recommended you to some of my neighbors for a good deal."

Our South Omaha house reports the handling of four cars of cattle for the Buffalo Creek Sheep Co. of Natrona county, Wyo., on Sept. 1. In this shipment were two steers, 1,570 lbs, that brought $6.75, nine head, 1,266 lbs, $6.00, a 730-lb yearling $5.50, two cars of good feeders, 1,153 lbs, $5.15 and a load of good cows, 1,036 lbs, $4.65.

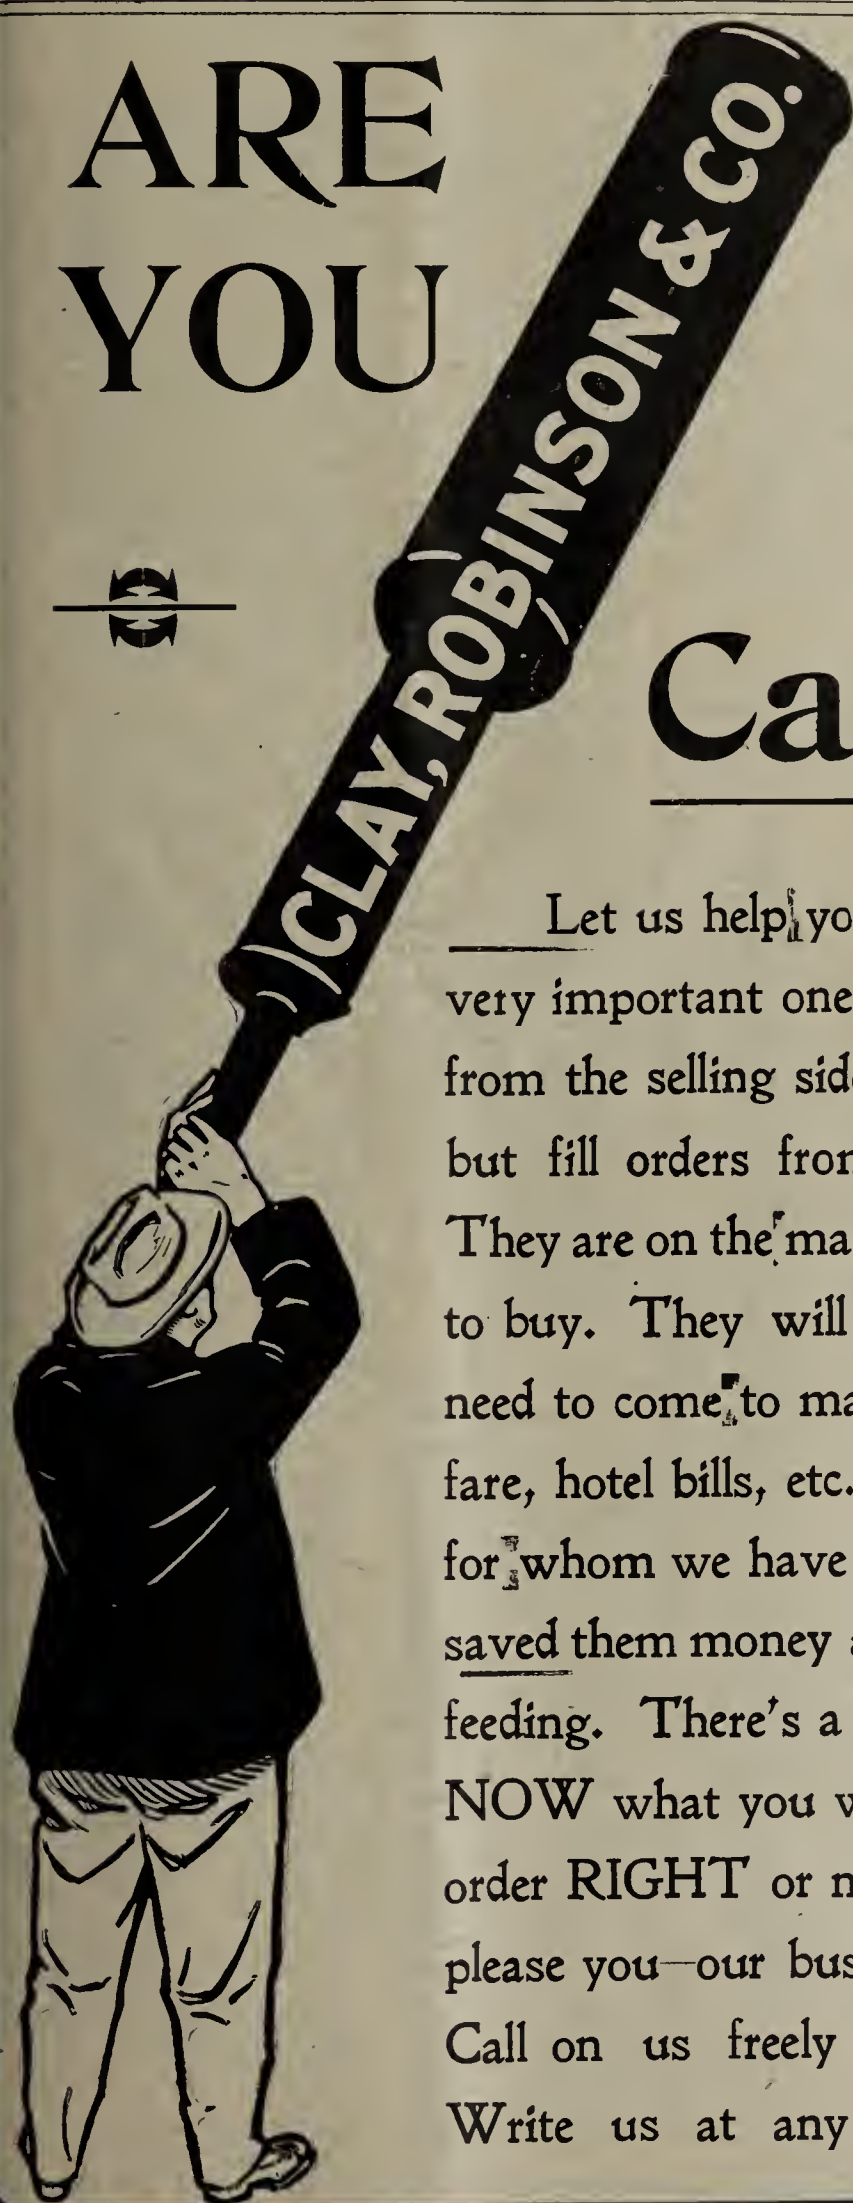
Alex. Minty of Ionia county, Mich., writes our Kansas City House: "I have neglected to write you in acknowledgment of the nice bunch of cattle you bought for us some short time ago. They arrived here in good condition and we are more than satisfied that they will make us some money. The other load you bought for us last September is doing splendidly. You have bought those cattle cheap. Thank you cordially for the interest you took in handling our orders."

F. C. Hazard of Columbia county, Wis., writes our South St. Paul house: "I have to advise that the feeding cattle you bought for me arrived at Rio the next morning, were unloaded in good condition and I got them out onto my farm in good shape and without accident of any kind. They seem to be a quite thrifty bunch, good color and fairly even for size. I am well pleased and I do not think I could have made nearly as good a selection myself had I been there on the ground. Please accept my thanks for your good work and business courtesy."

Our South St. Paul house handled consignments of live stock for the following shippers the first two days of last week: J. A. Estes, Minn.; E. J. Parr, Minn.; G. H. Hagen, Minn.; D. Leahy, S. Dak.; C. R. Carmann, S. Dak.; J. Dowe, N. Dak.; G. L. Carson, S. Dak.; L. E. Heaton, N. Dak.; Fowler Farm Co., N. D.; Beeh Bros., N. Dak.; C. E. Beeh, N. Dak.; D. D. Hanson, N. Dak.; W. E. Stevens, Minn.; R. Silgard, Mont.; M. Connolly, Mont.; M. Morrow, Mont.; J. A. Miller, Minn.; J. Nollet, Minn.; Marion Edwards, N. Dak.; A. T. Thorne, Minn., and A. J. Gustafson, Minn.

Our East St. Louis house sold Sept. 1 for J. K. Sample, Green county, Ill., one deck of western ewes at $2.85 straight, including broken mouths and all; one deck of lambs for W. J. Reynolds, Obion county, Tenn., fair to good quality, at $6.25; one deck of lambs and sheep, mixed, belonging to W. C. Allard, Johnson county, Ill., the lambs selling at $6.40 and averaging 80 lbs, mostly bucks, the sheep selling at the top price, $4.25; one deck of mixed lambs and sheep to the account of Homer Goodwin, Pike county, Ill., the lambs selling at $6.65, which was extreme top of the lamb market, and the sheep also made top at $4.25.

ARE YOU LOOKING FOR FEEDING Cattle or Sheep?



Let us help you find what you want. That's one side, and a very important one, of our business. It is handled entirely distinct from the selling side. We have expert buyers who do nothing else but fill orders from our customers for feeding cattle and sheep. They are on the market every day, and know what, when, and where to buy. They will get you better stock for less money. You don't need to come to market yourself, thus you save expense of railroad fare, hotel bills, etc., as well as loss of time. Ask your neighbors for whom we have filled orders. They will tell you that we have saved them money and selected the right kind of stock for profitable feeding. There's a lot in that. Write us NOW what you want. We will fill your order RIGHT or not at all. We MUST please you—our business depends upon it. Call on us freely for any information. Write us at any of our ten houses.

RANGE CATTLE AND SHEEP AT CHICAGO AND SOUTH OMAHA

Current Comment and Chicago Quotations to Wednesday Noon.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

Receipts of western range cattle at Chicago this week and for year to date, with comparison, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

This week	15,500
Last week	14,700
Year ago	26,000
Receipts for season of 1910 to date	101,200
Corresponding period of 1909	76,700
Corresponding period of 1908	122,700

Last Wednesday's cattle run of 19,000 included about 4,000 rangers. Such range steers as sold at or below $5.40 held about steady, but the better grades were 10@15c lower, in fact, in many cases 15@25c under Monday. Cow stuff was again fully steady. Our sale of the Judith Mercantile Co.'s 1,360-lb steers at $7.00 and cows at $5.40 was the top.

Thursday's supply of 6,800 included only 2,000 westerns. The steer trade ruled weak to 10c lower, while cows held fully steady to strong.

The only rangers on sale Friday were a few loads of cows and heifers, but the market was quotably 10@15c lower.

The week's supply aggregated 14,700 as against 18,000 the preceding week and 14,000 the same week of 1909. This made the season's run about 86,000, compared with only 51,000 the same time last year, but 106,000 in 1908.

Monday's supply was 31,000. They included 7,000 westerns. The quality of the general offerings was extremely disappointing, being decidedly common, with an unusually large proportion of cattle in only feeder or stocker condition. Western markets were all liberally supplied and while cow stuff was steady, steers showed 10c decline. Our sales included 20 loads of the Matador's 1,115-lb dehorned steers at $5.60 and 11 loads of the Minnesota & Dakota C. Co.'s 1,134-lb steers at $5.50—all from the Cheyenne Reservation. Supplies were quite well cleared.

Tuesday's run was 6,000, of which about half were westerns. Again the River markets were liberally supplied and while steers ruled weak to a shade lower, cow stuff was fully 10@15c lower.

Run Wednesday 3,000. Beef steers sold strong. Top was $7.35, OBTAINED BY US for 17 head of the 1,444-lb Wallis Huidekoper offerings from Montana, being the highest price of the season for a load. She stock was steady sale, as were stockers and feeders.

While, as noted above, there has been some decline in values the past few days, still the prospect looks all right and our advice is to let the westerns come along as fast as their condition warrant, as present quotations certainly reflect a satisfactory market. Our sales of natives Tuesday, included 15 head of 1,476-lb partly branded, corn-fed steers at $8.50, highest price for several weeks and indicating that good cattle are wanted. With every prospect of only moderate supplies of fat corn-fed steers the next sixty days, we firmly believe the better and heavier westerns are going to be in strong request, as buyers will have to depend upon them to a large extent, and there should be throughout the season very satisfactory returns realized for all such cattle.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of western range cattle:

Choice to prime steers	$6 75 @	7 35
Medium to good steers	5 35	6 60
Plain to fair steers	4 90	5 25
Canning steers	4 00	4 50
Good to choice heifers	5 00	5 75
Medium to good heifers	4 25	4 60
Plain to fair heifers	3 85	4 15
Good to choice cows	4 90	5 50
Fair to medium cows	4 00	4 40
Medium to good cutters	3 40	3 75
Common to good canners	3 00	3 25
Medium to good bulls	3 60	3 85
Common to fair bulls	3 00	3 50
Good to choice feeders	5 40	5 75
Fair to medium feeders	4 75	5 25
Poor to common feeders	4 00	4 65
Stock heifers	3 40	4 00

HIGHEST RANGERS OF SEASON AT CHICAGO.

The 17 head of 1,444-lb western range grass cattle which sold at Chicago on Wednesday, Sept. 7, at $7.35, were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. and marketed by Wallis Huidekoper of Two Dot, Mont. The price was the highest of the season for a load of rangers. These cattle were dehorned grade Shorthorns.

Range Sheep.

Thursday of last week receipts totaled 22,072. Lambs went strong to 10c higher, sort considered, with a $6.95 top. The sheep end of the trade was active at prices firm to 10c higher. Best western wethers sold at $4.40, although a part of a load went on export account at $4.50. Feeding lambs were slow but about steady, while feeding sheep held firm. Lambs reached $6.65, wethers $4.25 and yearling breeding ewes $6.00. Marketing Friday 17,731. Market for killing stock was steady. Lambs made $6.80@7.00. Two-year-old wethers sold up to $4.50, with best aged lots at $4.40. Barring lambs, which were dull sale, feeders held steady. Best lambs went at $6.60, with 78-lb yearlings at $5.35 and wethers at $4.25. As compared with the close of last week the general market was steady to strong, although feeding lambs showed 10c decline.

At the start of this week the run was only 9,061. The market was active at mostly strong prices, although there were instances where sheep sold 10@15c higher. Only five doubles of sheep arrived, the wethers going for slaughter at $4.45 and on feeder account at $4.25. Supply Tuesday 36,180. Most trading was steady, although lambs had a weaker close. Lambs reached $7.00 and wethers $4.50 in carload lots, although $4.65@4.75 was paid for some small choice lots. Ewes landed at $4.35. There was an insistent demand for feeding stock and prices ruled 10@15c higher for lambs and strong for other offerings. Lambs sold up to $6.75, yearlings $5.50 and wethers $4.35. Supply Wednesday 35,000. Sheep held steady, but lambs showed 10@15 decline.

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

At the close of last week feeding lambs were 10@15c lower than the previous week's close, while sheep and yearlings showed a steady range. For the week bulk of lambs went out a cost of $6.50@6.75, tops up to $6.90; most yearlings at $5.30@5.50, and wethers largely at $4.10@4.25. Choice range yearling breeding ewes sold at $6.00 and a similar class of young natives around $5.00.

There were no lambs available at the start of this week, and the few sheep here sold steady at $4.25 for wethers. Tuesday trade was 10@15c higher, with demand insistent. Lambs reached $6.75, wethers $4.35 and yearlings $5.50. Prices were not quotably changed Wednesday.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Sept. 6.—There was a liberal run of cattle here the past week, 40,000 as compared with 28,000 the previous week. The first two days of the week showed little change. With 12,000 cattle Wednesday, however, everything but the very best, which sold steady, showed a decline of 10@15c, and the trade is closing in this condition with the possible exception of common and medium feeders, which are probably 15@25c lower. The demand, however, was good throughout the week, and the market has been in generally good shape. Best loads of range beef was sold at $6.40. We had two head from the Buffalo Creek Sheep Co. of Bucknum, Wyo., that sold at $6.75. Best cows made $4.65, this price being received by us for 20 head, averaging 1,036 lbs, from them also. The trade has been in exceptionally good shape, and all classes are selling at strong figures and considerably better than a year ago.

Receipts Monday and Tuesday were extremely heavy. While best killer stock held about steady with last week's close, other kinds declined 10@15c. Best stockers and feeders steady sale and others 15@25c lower.

TOP RANGE CATTLE SALES AT DENVER.

On Tuesday, Sept. 6, our Denver house sold for Donald McDonald of Diamond, Wyo., 30 steers, averaging 1,348 lbs, at $6.00, topping the week's trade by 30c and scoring the highest price ever paid on the Denver market for strictly range beeves.

Our Denver people also topped the cow trade the same day, selling for J. L. Jordan of Iron Mountain and Donald McDonald of Diamond, 110 head of 980-lb Wyoming cows at $4.80, being 15c above any other sale that day.

On the preceding day, Monday, Sept. 5, the extreme top was also obtained by our Denver house for a string of cows shipped by James Bros. of Axial, Colo., at $4.35. They also sold for J. J. Underwood & Son of Underwood, Wyo., two loads of feeders, averaging 1,063 lbs at $5.50, the extreme top.

Range Sheep.

Sheep receipts last week, 97,000, against 112,000 the previous week. Conditions were favorable, large numbers of outside orders being in a large measure responsible for this. With the possible exception of heavy yearlings, there was little difference at the close from same period the previous week. Top lambs brought $6.75; bulk $6.50@6.75; heavy killing yearlings $4.75@5.00, and handy weights $5.15@5.40. Packers and feeders continued to take the aged wethers at practically the same figures, top killers $4.40 and bulk $4.10@4.30, with top light weight two-year-olds $4.35, and bulk $4.00@4.25. Best ewes made $4.30 and bulk $4.00@4.20. Top feeding lambs $6.40 and feeding ewes $3.00@3.75. With a continuation of liberal outside orders it looks as though heavy receipts could be readily taken care of.

As compared with last week's close sheep and lambs went steady to 10c lower. We sold two cars of the J. Walsh Wyoming lambs at $6.70 Tuesday, top by 20c per cwt. Bulk of sales were at $6.40@6.50, with feeders at $5.75@6.30. Wethers made $4.00@4.30. We sold three cars of the J. Walsh Wyoming ewes at the top price of $4.15. Bulk of trading was at $3.75@4.00. Feeding ewes declined 15@25c, going at $2.50@3.50.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Marketing Thursday of last week 6,816. Trade was slow at prices steady to weak. Twenty head of 1,270 lbs average brought $7.85, best price of day. Friday run 2,853. An indifferent demand and all price changes tended downward. Best offered were 53 head, averaging 1,232 lbs, at $7.35. Barring yearlings, which held steady, the market was 10@15c lower than the close of the previous week. Top for the week was $8.30 and bulk sales at $6.10@7.85, with the extreme low sales down to $4.90.

This week started out with a suyply of 31,242. Choice to prime grades were steady to strong sale, these being scarce. Good kinds were steady, but others went 10@15c lower, common and medium lots being in excessive numbers. As Labor Day was observed at the packing plants by a suspension of killing operations, local buyers did not compete strongly for the offerings. Summit was $8.35, paid for 18 head of prime 1,603 lbs average. Tuesday supply 8,905. Proportion of beef steers was very small. While the best went higher, plainer kinds met an indifferent demand at barely steady rates. WE OBTAINED the top price of $8.50, as high as paid since July, for 15 head of 1,476-lb partly branded beeves, fed and marketed by C. L. Kolb of Holstein, Ia. Marketing Wednesday 18,000. The better grades were strong to 10c higher and other kinds steady. Top was $8.45, which price we obtained for 27 head of 1,628-lb I. N. Atkinson offerings from Indiana.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of native beef steers:

Butcher Stock.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

On Thursday of last week it was a draggy deal, with instances where 10c declines were noted. The supply was moderate, but demand from all sources quite limited. There was a continuation of the mean market Friday. As compared with the close of the previous week good to choice kinds sold steady, but others went 10c lower.

At the start of this week prices broke 10@15c. It was a dull market from start to finish. Receipts were liberal and demand greatly reduced. Tuesday trade was generally steady, although there were instances of prices going a little lower. Buyers showed preference for the westerns. Prices Wednesday were mostly 10@15c lower.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of cows, heifers, bulls and calves:

Stockers and Feeders.

Thursday of last week buyers endeavored to break the market still more, but their efforts failed. Prices held steady Friday and a pretty good clearance was effected. As compared with the close of last week rates were generally 10@25c lower.

The largest supply in many weeks brought about a decline of 10@15c Monday. Desirable offerings, especially feeders, were scarce. There were a good many outside buyers on the market Tuesday, but they were very bearish in their views and sellers were unable to get better than steady prices for their offerings. The Wednesday market was steady.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for stocker and feeding cattle:

Good to choice feeders	$5 00 @	5 60
Fair to good feeders	4 25	4 90
Poor to plain feeders	3 50	4 00
Good to choice stockers	4 20	4 75

Hogs.

Thursday of last week the run totaled 15,558. Opening steady, market closed 5@10c lower on all grades, barring heavy packers, which showed 10@15c loss. Top $9.70. Light and medium weights went largely at $9.40@9.60, with heavy butchers and choice heavy at $9.20@9.35. Most mixed and straight packing stuff at $8.75@9.00. Heavy packers mostly at $8.70@8.85. Friday supply 9,983. A steady to strong market, with prices not quotably changed from the previous day. Receipts Saturday 5,284. Most good grades went 10@15c higher and heavy packing about 5c. Prime light reached $9.85 and choice heavy $9.60, these prices being 50@60c higher than Saturday of previous week. Most mixed packing sold at $8.90@9.10.

Marketing at the start of this week 24,703. Light and mixed sold 10@20c higher. Offerings that had to go to local buyers showed only 5@10c advance. However, the gains were about all wiped out before the close. Fancy light reached $10.05. However, a lot of mixed stuff and heavy butchers had to go at $9.15@9.75 and for the heavy packing end it was mainly a $9.00@9.10 market. Tuesday run 13,932. Light and medium weights suitable for shipping, went steady to strong, while heavy and packing stuff went largely at prices 10@15c under the high level early the previous day. Several loads of fancy light reached $10.05. The heavy and mixed packing end sold mostly at $8.90@9.05. Receipts Wednesday 22,000. Opening 10c lower, market closed 15@30c lower. Top was $9.90, although most of the packing grades sold under the $9.00 mark to $8.65.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of hogs:

South Omaha Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Neb., Sept. 6—Receipts of cattle were extremely heavy the first two market days this week. While best killler stock held steady, other kinds went 10@15c lower. Barring good feeders, these offerings declined 15@25c. We topped the beef steer trade with two cars of the E. T. Graham offerings from Nebraska at $7.75, averaging 1,482 lbs.

Hogs 5@10c higher than last week's close, with bulk at $9.00@9.40 and top $9.60, which price we obtained for one car of 200-lbs average, belonging to J. H. Taylor of Creighton, Neb.

David Gordon of Laramie county, Wyo., marketed a car of cattle at Denver last week.

S. L. Turner of Waukesha county, Wis., writes: "Lambs reached me in good condition and am satisfied with them."

F. M. Somsen of Blaine county, Ida., writes: "Received account sales. Was well pleased with sale and wish to thank you for same."

J. A. Larson of Brown county, Kan., writes our South St. Joseph house: "The 501 lambs got here all right and I am well pleased with them."

A. McGlochlin of Eagle county, Colo., marketed through our Denver house Friday of last week two cars of cows, which sold at satisfactory prices.

On Aug. 31 our South Omaha house handled two cars of good feeders for the Mitchell Cattle Co., a prominent raising firm of Laramie county, Wyo.

It was Aug 31 that our South Omaha house handled a train of cattle for L. S. Howes, C. H. Thex and C. S. Bull, all of Custer county, Mont.

A. W. Standard of Todd county, Ky., writes our Kansas City house: "Two cars of lambs arrived in good condition and we were well pleased with them."

The E. T. Graham cattle from Platte county, Neb., toppep the South Omaha market again Aug. 31, our house selling the 37 head, averaging 1,474 lbs, at $7.70

Hanson & Ferguson, a large sheep outfit of Carbon county, Wyo., had ten cars of ewes and wethers on the South Omaha market the last day of August and the first of September.

The sale by our South St. Joseph house on Sept. 2 for Cheyney Bros. of Mills county, Ia., of three carloads of hogs, averaging 286 lbs, at $9.40 was 10c per cwt above any other sale of hogs of their weight.

Geo. W. Young of Fairfield county, Ohio, writes our East Buffalo house: "Have shipped you one car of sheep and lambs. Thank you for the last sale you made. It was a good one, considering those old sheep."

W. Roy McDonnold of Pike county, Mo., writes our St. Joseph house: "Sheep received and am very well pleased with them. Think you did a good job in selecting and will recommend you to the next fellow,

Last week our Denver house sold hogs for the following well-known feeders and shippers: J. H. Butterworth, Boulder county, Colo.; T. D. Pomeroy, Logan county, Colo.; J. R. Porter & Sons, Dundy county, Neb.

G. W. Young of Fairfield county, Ohio, was represented on the East Buffalo market with a shipment of lambs and our house sold 64 head of 73 lbs average at the extreme top price of $7.50.

It was Thursday of last week that our Denver house handled for the Swan Land and Cattle Co. of Laramie county, Wyo., a ten-car shipment of cows. Out of this shipment they sold a car and a half of cows and heifers mixed at $4.55, which was the extreme top for the week.

J. T. Price of Unita county, Wyo., had a four-car shipment of mixed ewes and lambs to our South St. Joseph house on Aug. 30 and they sold his fat ewes at $4.30, highest sale on rangers for several weeks. They also secured $6.65 for 58-lb lambs and $6.25 for 52-lb feeding lambs.

Butte county, S. D., furnished cattle for our South Omaha house Aug. 31 as follows: A. E. Stumbaugh seven cars, R. E. Hall three cars, J. G. King one car and Townsend Bros. eleven cars. This shipment included some very good cattle and all these gentlemen received very satisfactory prices.

Our South Omaha house Aug. 31 handled 16 cars of cattle for the Tolland Co., a large cattle concern of Converse county, Wyo. In this shipment were a few good feeders that sold at $5.55, averaging 1,126 lbs, 303 feeders, averaging 930 lbs, at $5.15 and part of a load of heifers, averaging 970 lbs, at $4.20.

The Freeland Sheep Co. of Natrona county, Wyo., on Aug. 31 had seven cars of lambs and ewes on the South Omaha market. We sold the fat lambs at $6.60, averaging 63 lbs, the feeders of 57 lbs average at $6.35, extreme top for the day's trade, and two cars of ewes and wethers, averaging 104 lbs, at $4.25. Mr. Pierce, manager, was in charge.

L. S. Hetland of Minnehaha county, S. Dak., writes our South St. Paul house: "I wish to thank you for your promptness in picking up car of ewes which I ordered from you. I am very well satisfied with the bunch and appreciate you efforts in looking after my interests. I assure you that your many favors extended me will be remembered and I will try and reciprocate at every opportunity."

"Kaw! Kaw! KANSAS CITY on the Kaw!"

The above is not to "crow"—although there might be good "caws" for such action—but to direct your attention to the relative position of CLAY, ROBINSON & CO. and nine other leading firms at Kansas City in number of cars of stock handled for first eight months of this year.

We print the official figures showing number of cars handled by each firm—but of course do not publish the name of any firm but our own.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

More Profit on Hogs.

It does interest every farmer to know how he can make $2 a hog extra, clear velvet, by a hygienic system of feeding that costs no more feed nor work. This money-making knowledge is valued by every practical farmer.

Prof. Dietrich says: "90 per cent of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most ont of him at the least cost." You unknowingly waste one-fourth the feed given your hogs, which is that much lost. Correcting this is one feature of onr work. It is not what the pig eats, but what he digests and assimilates that makes your profit. Expert feeding means success. Feed is 93 per ceni of the cost of producing pork. The more you know the more you make. How to cheapen the high-priced feed and get most growth and gain ont of it is profit-making knowledge.

By using the "Progressive, Scientific Feeding Formula," you increase the gain, while feeding fattening hogs a half-pound a day per hog. over the customary way of feeding from the same feed given. This is creating a sensation among feeders. It is handing out a contract for $100 payable in sixty days if yon fatten 50 hogs and annually thereafter.

The hygienic secret made the discoverer a fortune fattening hogs. It is as easy feeding as the old way, though progressive and scientific. It is of snch real value no sensible man can ignore it without a persoual loss to himself.

For $1 we will send you the American Swineherd, the aggressive and progressive acknowledged leader, devoted to the swine industry, for four years and give yon as a preminm the above formula, which is so thoroughly proven that we agree to make good or give your money back, making you absolutely safe.

No matter how many papers you take you need the money-making information we give onr subscribers for yonr protection in keeping up with the leaders. It is a great school on feeding; our efforts being concentrated, naturally attain the highest success, which you share. Don't be satisfied with what you now know; seek to improve. The man who quits improving is dead, whether buried or not.

We also give you copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," which the largest farmer in Iowa says is worth a dollar itself to every hog-raiser. This paper stops at the time paid to. Our big offer good for ten days.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, September 16, 1910 | No. 37

New Record Sheep Receipts at Omaha.

Breaking receipts records is getting to be a habit at South Omaha this fall and another record was smashed Tuesday, Sept. 6, when a total of 193 loads, 51,249 head, of sheep arrived. The previous high mark was made Sept. 23, 1907, when receipts were 166 cars, 44,277 head. Dry ranges and a short hay crop in the West are responsible for these record-breaking receipts.

This made three receipts records broken there recently. On Aug. 31 a total of 770 cars of stock of all kinds arrived, or 83 more than had ever been received there in any previous twenty-four hours.

Monday's (Sept. 5), run of cattle, 592 cars, 15,663 head, was a record breaker, being fully 2,000 heavier than the heaviest previous supply. Owing to the unfavorable range conditions in the West and the exceptionally favorable conditions in the East, with the broad outlet for all kinds of cattle, none would be very much surprised to see still heavier receipts a little later in the season.

Secretary Wilson Sees Prosperity for West.

"The business and agricultural conditions throughout the West and Northwest are notably prosperous. The crops this year scarcely will be bumper crops, in the ordinary sense of that term, but they will be large," said Secretary Wilson of the Department of Agriculture, who returned to Washington from an extensive trip, consuming practically two months, throughout the country west of the Mississippi River.

"The corn crop will be made now within a couple of weeks," continued Mr. Wilson. "Recently the weather conditions have been very favorable, and if frost should hold off two weeks longer the crop will be a good average, although, as I said, not a bumper.

"People throughout the sections which I visited are well satisfied with conditions. They are making money and are contented with general business conditions."

Season's Highest Sale of She Stock.

Both the range heifer and cow market at Chicago was topped for the season by Clay, Robinson & Co. this week. J. H. Shaw of Plaza, N. D., marketed 57 head of 1,163-lb heifers Sept. 12 which we landed at $5.75 and on the same day another Dakota party sold through us 15 cows of 1,232 lbs average at $5.35, these prices being at the summit for the respective classes of rangers this season.

John McBeth on the Hog Market.

"I am not prepared to say what break hogs will get when the new crop is ready," said John McBeth, the Mankato, Minn., packer and also ranchman, who accompanied a big shipment of cattle to Clay, Robinson & Co. last week. "But the killer could stand a $2.00 decline without wincing. Nobody has made a dollar cutting up hogs during the past six months and most packers are seriously out of pocket by keeping their plants running. We would have been $20,000 ahead by shutting down in April. We hear about the market being maintained at an abnormally high level by manipulation, but I do not take that view. Competition among packers, large and small, for enough hogs to keep their plants going is what has made the summer market, the result being that packers are loaded up with a lot of costly hog product while the grower has the money. The only hope of the small packer is more and cheaper hogs. Without them he must suspend operations."

Number of Stock Hogs Disappointing.

In its report on the number of stock hogs in the United States, the Department of Agriculture at Washington gives the number on the farm Sept. 1 is 100.3 per cent as compared with the same number last year. The figures as given out by the agricultural department have proven a big disappointment to the trade, as it was generally supposed that the number was considerably larger. The condition of the stock hogs is not given. Last year it was 98 per cent on Sept. 1 and 97 per cent on Sept. 1, 1908.

RECLAMATION STATE BANK, NEWELL, S. D.

The above thriving young bank ended its second month's business Aug. 20, 1910, with deposits of $45,165.26, which is not at all bad for a two-months-old youngster. It speaks very well for the confidence in which the bank and its officers are held, and for the financial condition of the people of that section.

Finest Range Sheep of Season.

Jacob Mitchell of Sixteen Mile, Mont., was at Chicago on Monday with 1,475 wether sheep which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $4.40, the top of the market by a big margin, considering the number. They would have made a higher price had they not been so heavy. One lot averaged 145 lbs and the other 123 lbs. They were three and four years old and were the finest string of aged range sheep seen here this season. They were from Merino ewes and by Shropshire and Hampshire crossed rams. Their dressed weight was 78 and 80 lbs. Mr. Mitchell is of the old Scottish school in raising sheep, and his flock is a great credit to himself and to Montana. This was his first time to sell on the open market and said he was glad he made the experiment and that for satisfactory returns he knows to whom to consign them—Clay, Robinson & Co.

Prices for Produce Too High?

W. L. Gregson of Chicago, well known in packing and provision circles, returning from abroad, says: "With the exception of perhaps wheat, it seems to me that prices on all kinds of produce in America are too high and they seem especially so on pork and all kinds of provisions. As far as I could learn the markets of England are flooded with cheaper food from all over the world and the prices here can only be maintained by the application of the 'strong arm.' In my trip I met the merchants from nearly all over the world and not one talked scarcity of anything. Crops everywhere I went looked normal and the growers seemed very well satisfied."

Remarkable Trade in Sheep.

Remarkable is the trade in sheep and lambs. Receipts are among the heaviest on record, the demand is of record proportions and prices encouragingly high. As compared with one year ago stock is going for slaughter at prices only 30@40c lower, while yearlings and lambs are going back to the country at about the same cost as then, although sheep are costing 30@40c more. The sustaining factor in the market is the broad and insistent demand for feeding stock. This has been true of the trade thus far this season and promises to be a price factor in coming weeks. Had it not been for the wide outlet through feeding channels rates would likely have fallen to a relatively low level, as an unusually large proportion of the arrivals from the western range have been of the feeder variety all season.

No Shadows on Business Outlook.

With a larger movement of live stock and grain to central markets than a year ago; a better corn prospect than at this time last year, and the crop no longer in any danger except from an abnormally early frost; a bigger cotton crop than in 1909; the whole country abundantly supplied with moisture, making good pastures and putting the soil in fine condition for the fall plowing and sowing of grain, and a greater aggregate agricultural product than in 1909, there is nothing in the agricultural situation to cast any shadows on the business outlook. Railroads continue to report larger gross earnings than a year ago, and the number of idle freight cars is steadily diminishing, being 73,600 on the date of the last report, compared with 151,000 on the corresponding date last year. These comparisons indicate a healthy state of the general commerce of the country, and should bring good cheer to the feeder of cattle, hogs, sheep or lambs.

Shortening Grass Beef Supply.

"It will not do to take these heavy receipts of cattle as an indication of a big supply of range cattle in the West; in fact, the reverse is the case and the large runs are being forced in," remarked H. A. Dawson, president of the Western South Dakota Stock Growers' Association and one of the veteran cattlemen of the West. "Many of these cattle are being shipped in on account of a lack of feed and a good many more are being shipped in on account of the opening up of the big Indian reservations that have heretofore furnished excellent grazing for thousands of cattle. Where are the beef cattle to come from after the big pastures are closed up? The open range is a thing of the past and the litle fellows find it slow work getting herds started. Some of these days the country is going to wake up to the fact that there are not cattle available for the eastern feed yards. I know this is pessimistic talk, but every well posted western catleman is of the same opinion."

The Graham Cattle Top Market Very Often.

There is probably no feeder in the country whose cattle top the market as often as do those of E. T. Graham of Creston, Neb. Hardly a week passes that Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha do not secure the extreme top of the trade for his beef steers. Last week he had 38 beeves of 1,442 lbs average on that market for which our house obtained the top price of $7.85. This week Mr. Graham had on the South Omaha market 45 head of 1,398 lbs average which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $7.60, the highest price obtained there this week.

Quality of Cattle Plainer Than Usual.

One of the wonders in the cattle trade is the heavy proportion of common and medium and short-fed steers included in receipts at Chicago and also at all of the leading outside markets. There must be a big number of these kinds in the country and owners must like the prevailing prices for them. The quality of the heavy runs at Chicago, Kansas City, South Omaha and East St. Louis during the past two weeks has been plainer than usual for this time of the year. At the same time the number of choice to prime beeves has been exceptionally small. There is no question but that the latter grades are in scant numbers. With the sharp break in prices, the soaking rains giving a new lease of life to the fall pastures, old corn fairly plentiful and on the eve of a record-breaking new crop, it is surprising that the feeders show such haste to liquidate.

Nebraska Beeves Top Kansas City Market.

R. A. Tynan of Stella, Neb., was represented on the Kansas City cattle market Sept. 6 with 34 beeves of 1,448 lbs average. He consigned them to Clay, Robinson & Co., who sold them at $8.00, being 30c per cwt higher than the next best sale that day. Mr. Tynan is a young but successful feeder, and he is making an enviable reputation for producing market topping cattle.

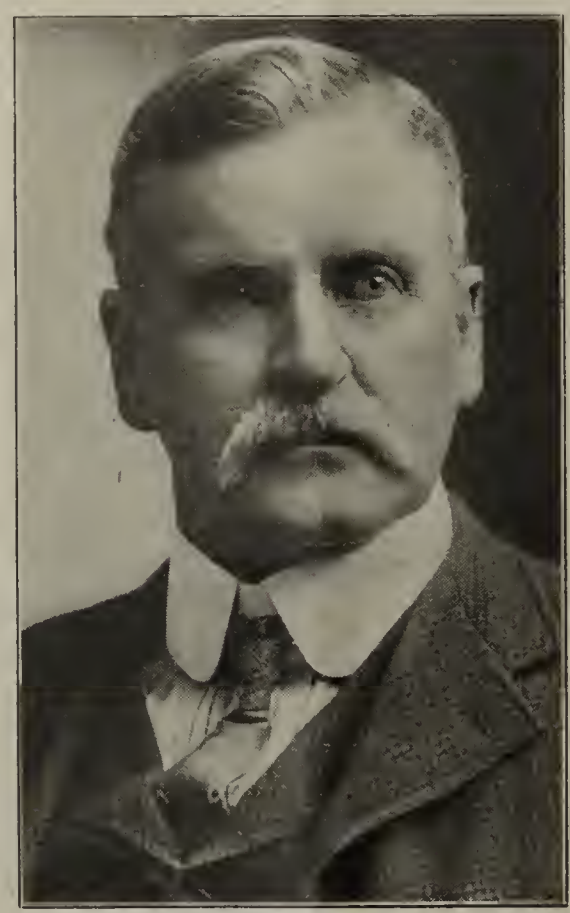
Good steers were offered on the South Omaha market last week by E. A. Richards, Crook county, Wyo., we selling two cars at $5.55, averaging 1,169 lbs.

Phil Most Cattle Top Sioux City Market.

Phil Most of Laurel, Neb., one of the most prominent and successful farmers and feeders of that state, was on the Sioux City market Sept. 13 with 19 head of 1,105-lb beef steers which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at the top price of $7.40. These cattle were of his own raising and feeding and he said that he was highly pleased with the price. Mr. Most has marketed through Clay, Robinson & Co. at Sioux City this year twelve loads of cattle at a range of from $6.80@7.85, several loads of which made the summit of the market on the days they were sold.

Meeting of Military Tract Association.

The Military Tract Association held its fourth annual meeting and banquet at Maple City, Ill. The opening address was made by Secretary J. W. Lutz. The attendance was the largest ever known. At the business meeting the chief topic was in regard to the assessment of the members. After much discussion it was decided that each member pay into the treasury $1.00 a year to keep up the association. It was also agreed that if any litigation of any kind came up that would require more money than was in the treasury a special assessment would be called for. S. H. Lawhead of Alexis, Ill., said that he was well aware of the good that the association had done for him, and further remarked that $1.00 a year was a small thing in comparison with the benefit derived if only one carload of cattle was sent to the Chicago Stock Yards a year. John H. Hanley of



A. L. DUNCAN OF SEATON, ILL.

Monmouth, Ill., gave a hearty welcome to all those at the meeting and extended to them the hospitality of the city. A. C. Ogden thanked him for his courtesy and kindness in welcoming them. The meeting was brought to a close with a splendid feast in the banquet room of the Wallace Hall. Almost 400 people were present and enjoyed the splendid banquet that was prepared by the college under the supervision of Mrs. Eliza Smith. William Firovid of Monmouth was the first speaker called upon. A. L. Duncan of Seaton, Ill., and Mr. Jenks were then called upon for short talks. Mr. Duncan proved to be one of the most interesting speakers and close attention was given him. He is one of the oldest shippers in that part of the country, having sent stock to Chicago practically every week for the last forty-one years and for the past several years has been a liberal patron of Clay, Robinson & Co. Superintendent Kruse of the Illinois Central Railroad told of the efforts of the road to better the accommodations for the shippers. Mr. Harris of the Chicago & Alton Railroad promised that that road would extend the best of service to the shippers of that district. There were many other addresses made, all of which proved instructive and interesting.

Very Puzzling Trade in Hogs.

It is a very puzzling trade in hogs. There are sensational declines and sensational advances, according to receipts and demand for products. On Tuesday of this week buyers rapped the price range at the close to the tune of around 50c per cwt from best time the previous day. Under light runs and a good eastern shipping demand the break could likely be soon repaired. It is generally admitted that prices are too high for a healthy, vigorous trade. The fresh meat trade is on the hand-to-mouth order and packers are very much averse to putting product in their cellars at the prevailing prices. Hogs are selling at right around record prices for September during modern packing times. The 7c hog has never been conspicuous on the September market, being in evidence only in two previous years for the past quarter of a century. Only once previously has the 8c hog made its appearance at this time of the year. With so many weighty hogs coming to market and more stock hogs in the country than a year ago, it is no time for bullishness. However, we believe it advisable to hold shotes and pigs off the market. But send in all fat hogs of around 225 lbs average and heavier as fast as convenient.

Peter Jansen is Honored.

We are pleased to note that Mr. Peter Jansen of Beatrice, Neb., has been nominated for the office of state senator. Mr. Jansen is one of the big men of the West. It is to be hoped that he will be elected. This paper does not take side politically, but it is always glad to see a man of Mr. Jansen's stamp serve his country. As a practical live stock man he has no superior in the West. Mr. Jansen was a strong personal friend of the late President McKinley.

Experiences of Brown and Smith.

A shipper told us the other day that a representative of another firm had said to him something like this: "Clay, Robinson & Co. are all right, but they have so much business they cannot give your consignments the time and attention that a smaller firm like mine can."

That reminds us:

A man named Brown once got tangled up in a lawsuit. He had about decided to place his case in the hands of Judge Blank, a lawyer of great ability and with the reputation of winning ninety per cent of his cases. Naturally he had a large practice. A friend of the litigant had a nephew who had recently hung out his shingle as an attorney and was waiting for clients. Meeting Mr. Brown on the street one day this friend said to him: "I understand that you are thinking of having Judge Blank handle your suit. Don't you know that he has such a large practice, and is so busy winning cases for other people, that he can't give your matter proper attention? Better give your case to my nephew Bill, who has lots of time." Willing to please his friend, Mr. Brown retained Nephew Bill to look after his interests. That's all the story. (Except that Brown lost his suit.)

Another man, named Smith, suffered from a dangerous malady. Knowing that the leading physician of his city was very successful in treating such cases he decided to go to him, feeling sure from the doctor's reputation and high standing in his profession he could not possibly do better. Some friend, however, told him that while Dr. Blank was undoubtedly a very able and successful practicioner, he unfortunately had a large practice, which kept him pretty busy. Upon learning this he changed his mind, hunted up a doctor who had only a small practice and was not at all busy, and placed himself in his hands. (P. S.—Soon afterward there was a funeral at Smith's former home.)

Moral of these stories? Maybe there isn't any. Then again, maybe if Brown had followed his own judgment he would have won his suit, and if Smith had done likewise he might still be paying premiums on his life insurance.

We are occasionally reminded of the words of Daniel Webster, who in his day and generation was generally conceded to be pretty level-headed: "Deal with the man who is always busy; you will usually find there is a reason for it."

South Omaha Fills Many Feeder Orders.

We know of no more eloquent testimonial to the wonderfully satisfactory results accruing to feeder buyers from using our buying service than the almost phenomenal increase in this branch of our business. It is self-evident that this would not be the case unless we were really "making good" and getting our customers "better stock for less money," besides saving them a lot of bother and loss of time.

By way of illustration we quote below part of a letter recently received from our South Omaha house:

"During the month of August we purchased 89 cars of cattle and 128 double-decks and 32 single-decks of sheep, a total purchase of 249 cars. In August, 1909, we purchased 48 cars of cattle and 74 double-decks and five single-decks of sheep, a total of 127 cars. You will note that our sheep buying business has been more than doubled what it was a year ago and that our cattle purchases were nearly twice as large as last year.

"For your information we wish to say that of these purchases 42 cars of cattle were shipped to Iowa points, 20 to Illinois, 16 to Nebraska, eight to Missouri, two to Indiana and one to Wisconsin. Of the double-decks of sheep 47 cars were billed to Iowa points, 27 to Nebraska, 25 to Illinois, 16 to Missouri, four to Michigan, three each to South Dakota, Minnesota and Kansas. Of the single-decks 16 cars went to Iowa, eight to Illinois, three to Nebraska, two to Missouri, two to Kansas and one to South Dakota."

Soaking Rains Fall in Texas.

"It is hard to forecast the results of the reported rains until we know just how much and where rain has fallen."

Such is the answer given by James Stewart, Clay, Robinson & Co.'s cattle salesman at that market, in reply to a question as to the effects of the rain.

"The country has been very dry, and it will take several inches of rain to do much good," he continued, "as the rain so far has been slow and has soaked into the ground as it fell. We do not only want water in the ground, but we need a little left on top. Stock water is as necessary and as much needed as grass right now.

"There is one good of this rain, though, that may be counted upon. That is, the feeders around Fort Worth will be helped in their efforts to place good fat cattle on this market. There are a good many feeders within a radius of 100 miles of this market who are constantly at work trying to produce the best of market cattle. As it has not been so very dry in most points around Fort Worth, this rain will be of much service to the country.

"Now as for the benefit of this rain to West Texas. Of course it will help a great deal, but it will not entirely relieve the dry situation in that section. The recent rains came too late to give grass much growth, but it will be revived to a certain extent, and of course that will help. The rains will have the effect of making good winter grass. So even if the results are not felt very much just at present, they will be this winter."

The Income from Agriculture.

In the decade 1896-1905 the average income from an acre of corn in this country was $9.35. Last year it was $15.20, an increase of 62.5 per cent. Increases shown by other agricultural products are probably higher than those shown by products of any other large industry. The average values per acre of six staples produced compare as follows

	1909.	1896-1905	Inc.	Inc. %
Corn	$15 20	$ 9.35	$ 5.85	62.5
Wheat	15.62	9.37	6.25	66.7
Oats	12.29	8.32	3.97	47.7
Barley	13.40	10.34	3.06	29.5
Potatoes	58.59	42.12	16.47	39.1
Hay	15.07	11.62	3.45	29.6

The 1909 figures, compiled from statements regarding 7,000,000 American farms, are approximately the same this year.

M. K. Parsons, one of the best known figures in the western range cattle country, had on the Denver market Sept 7 a load of 1,213-lb beef steers from Pueblo county, Colo., which our house landed at the top price of $5.90.

The Pick of Feeding Cattle.

The past week or so has almost entirely changed the attitude of a large number of farmers towards the feeding problem. Corn, which during the hot spell looked doomed, has come out well, and the promise now is for a big crop. Conditions point to a better feeding outlook, and a consequent good demand for the kind of cattle that will put on fat economically. This situation developes with particular timeliness in view of the preparations for the feeder show of the American Royal Live Stock Show, to be held at Kansas City on Oct. 10 to 15. Never before has the Royal, which has always made a specialty of feeders, nor any other exhibition, so thoughtfully and liberally provided for a show of feeding cattle. The prize money possible for an exhibitor to win on a carload runs close to a thousand dollars—big money to the breeder of a carload of cattle destined for the packer. All the four beef breeds are contesting closely for the sweepstakes in the feeder division, and in each department breeders contest for the honors of their breed. There will be a wonderful array of high class feeding cattle at the show—cattle that have had no grain, and are just in the position to be put into the feed lot for fattening.

This year the feeding cattle that contest for prizes are to be sold at auction. The opportunity for the eastern farmer to get the choice animals for his feeding operations is therefore unusual—the chance of the year to get picked carloads, in tip top shape, even and robust; animals that have been cared for that they may show their quality against all comers—but which have had only hay or grass. The plan of selling at auction will give all visitors the chance to look the carlots over, decide what is wanted, and waste no time in the buying when the auction begins.

Further information will cheerfully be furnished by Clay, Robinson & Co., Stock Yards, Kansas City, Mo.

Official estimates as of Sept. 1, compiled by the Department of Agriculture at Washington, show that in the three leading grain crops of the country there is 100,000,000 bushels more this year than last. If the effect of the generous rains that have fallen over the corn belt since the official report was made up are taken into consideration, the total crop probably will be far in excess of the figures given out. Dry weather losses in corn, figured at about 42,000,000 bushels, took that cereal out of first place and put it 29,000,000 bushels behind the largest crop ever raised, that of 1906. Recent rains probably have more than recovered these losses and the final official report may land the 1910 crop in first place again.

More complete returns on oats based on thrashers' and harvesters' reports increase the lead that this crop had for first place.

Wheat, corn and oats together now show a promise of more than 4,618,000,000 bushels, of which 2,898,000 bushels are of corn, 1,045,000,000 bushels are oats and 675,000,000 bushels are wheat.

As compared with the prospect of a month ago, corn has lost 42,000,000 bushels, while oats have gained 23,000,000 bushels, and spring wheat estimates have been revised upward by about 6,000,000 bushels.

Based on the official showing of Sept. 1, the crop showing is a trifle behind that of a month before, while a compilation of similar statistics today would undoubtedly place the agricultural situation ahead of Aug. 1.

Losses to the hay crop, while material, are by no means as large as were figured on a month ago, when the midsummer drought was on and the extreme losses in parts of the Northwest were being exploited by speculators. The hay crop, as officially measured up, is 60,116,000 tons, which compares with 64,938,000 tons a year ago. Recent rainfall has so restored fall pasturage and general forage as to rob this shortage of much of its significance.

CORN CONDITION BY STATES.

The report showed corn conditions on Sept. 1, 78.2, as compared with 79.3 last month, 74.6 on Sept. 1, 1909, 79.4 on Sept. 1, 1908, and 79.5 the ten-year average on Sept. 1. Comparisons for important corn states follow:

SPRING WHEAT CONDITION.

The average condition of spring wheat harvested was 63.1, as compared with 61 last month, 88.6 when harvested in 1909, 77.6 in 1908, and a ten-year average when harvested of 78. Comparisons for important spring wheat states follow:

HAY CROP SHOWS DECREASE.

The preliminary estimate of the yield per acre of hay is 1.34 tons, as compared with 1.42 as finally estimated in 1909, 1.52 tons in 1908 and a ten-year average of 1.44 tons.

In view of the rains of the last two weeks or so the shortage in the hay crop does not have the deep significance that it had previous to that time. Fall pastures and general forage have recently been vastly improved.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

E. A. Woods, Lagrange county, Ind., writes: "Lambs arrived O. K. I am well pleased."

G. T. Stevens, Walworth county, S. D., writes: "The cattle sale was all right and you did well on them."

Our Denver house was favored with a four-car shipment of cows and steers from James Bros., Routt county, Colo.

J. B. Kendrick, very extensive cattleman of Sheridan county, Wyo., had a train of cattle at South Omaha last week.

Frank Jordan, Douglas county, Ill., writes: "Lambs came through all right and were much better than I expected to get."

Our South Omaha house handled sheep for A. J. Johnson, the Hub Sheep Co. and John Colton, Fremont county, Wyo.

S. T. Huron, Hendricks county, Ind., writes: "Sheep came through in good shape and I am well pleased with them."

Last week our South Omaha house handled a train of cattle for I. C. Miller, an extensive stockman of Carbon county, Wyo.

J. Earl Rummell, Whitely county, Ind., writes: "Load of breeding ewes received in good condition and I am well satisfied with them."

James Hogan, Lenawee county, Mich., writes our South St. Joseph house: "Lambs arrived all right. They are good ones and are all right."

P. T. Baldwin, Dawson county, Mont., writes: "We have had some rain in this section lately and grass is starting up. Not much stock to ship now."

R. T. Angus, Kossuth county, Ia.: "Lambs came through in fine shape and I think they are a fine bunch and ought to bring me good profit when fed out."

C. T. Crofton, Carroll county, Ill.: "Enclosed find 50c to renew my subscription. The REPORT is as essential to a progressive stockman as is water to a fish."

It was Aug. 29 that our Kansas City house obtained top of the cow market at Kansas City by landing at $4.75 a shipment from Poole Bros., Riley county, Kan.

Extreme top at Kansas City for heifers on Aug. 30 was $6.75, secured by our house for a shipment sent in by W. R. Russell & Son, Livingston county, Mo.

J. C. Shaw, Benton county, Ia.: "Two loads of lambs arrived in good form. Did not think you would buy them at that money. Am well pleased and will place another order with you soon."

Louie W. Wade, Posey county, Ind., writes our East St. Louis house: "We received the 127 ewes in good shape and are well pleased with them. When in need of more will give you a call."

E. L. Eberhard, Whitley county, Ind., writes: "I am pleased to say that the deck of yearling ewes is at hand. Please accept many thanks for the good buy. They are a nice bunch of sheep."

Joe Wustner, Ward county, N. D., writes our South St. Paul house: "I arrived home with the sheep and everything is O. K. I am well pleased with them and thank you for your favors."

The top for native lambs at South St. Joseph on Aug. 31 was $6.80, which price our house obtained for D. A. Price, Atchison county, Mo., numbering 52 and averaging 76 lbs.

Andy Hutchinson, Kent county, Tex., writes our Fort Worth house: "I am very well satisfied with the price received for the cattle and hope to have some more to ship later on. I hope I will be able to come down with the next shipment and make your acquaintance."

Top for Kansas pastured Texas cows at Kansas City up to Sept. 3 was $4.10, obtained by our house for T. M. Pyle, Donley county, Tex., on Sept. 1. The same day our house sold 26 calves for Mr. Pyle at $8.50, summit for above period.

On Aug. 30, $8.35 was the price our Kansas City house obtained for 206-lb calves, shipped by J. W. Lewis, Donley county, Tex. This was not only top for the day, but the weight of these calves was the heaviest of the season to bring the price.

Frank Fritz, Jackson county, Minn., writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for which send me the REPORT two years. I have been getting your paper about a year and think it is O. K. The man who reads the REPORT is posted and can keep his eyes open."

James B. Nicholson, Plymouth county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Two loads of feeding steers received. They are a good lot of cattle and I think will feed out well. Thank you for the trouble you have taken."

Among the regular shippers who had sheep to our South St. Joseph house last week were A. J. Williamson, Harrison county, Mo.; J. F. Coulter, Page county, Ia.; C. C. Wilson, DeKalb county, Mo.; W. J. Elliott, Andrew county, Mo.

N. R. Greenfield, Carbon county, Wyo., writes our South Omaha house: "We are exceedingly well pleased with the returns of sheep and assure you of further shipments later in the season."

Marion county, Ill., was represented on the East St. Louis sheep market Sept. 7 with a deck of lambs and ewes. Our house handled the consignment and sold the lambs at $6.75, averaging 70 lbs, and the ewes on breeding account at $5.00, both prices being the top for the respective classes.

J. Napier Dyer, Knox county, Ind., writes: "We are mighty well pleased with your purchase and more so because the price is 15c per cwt under our set limit. The lambs are a thrifty little band and took to the blue grass with a keen relish."

The Wabash Baking Powder Co., Wabash county, Ind., writes our Kansas City house: "Car of cows was entirely satisfactory. You may expect more business from us and trust that you can do as well or better the next time."

J. W. Rhea, Wabaunsee county, Kan., one of the heaviest shippers from that country, writes our South St. Joseph house in reference to his sale of seven cars of cattle: "Just got telegram of sales. Well pleased with your weights and price."

Odmund Josendal, a popular sheepman of Natrona county, Wyo., was at South Omaha looking after the shipment of a train of lambs and ewes that our house sold at satisfactory figures.

R. Brooks, Humboldt county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Two loads of cattle arrived in fine shape. They are a nice bunch of cattle and are doing fine every day. I expect to continue to do business with Clay, Robinson & Co."

W. E. Lotspeich, Sheridan county, Neb., had a shipment of steers on the South Omaha market Sept. 8 that our house sold at $5.85, well up to the top of the feeder trade. They numbered 58 head and averaged 1,127 lbs.

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following prominent dealers in cattle: Wilcox & Littrell, Reniek, Mo.; A. B. Wilson, Stewartsville, Mo.; J. H. Ballard, Roodhouse, Ill.; H. L. Holiman, Winona, Miss.; Young & Ledford, Stahl, Mo.; Bilby & Striekler, Dunean, Okla.; L. M. Boyd, Poplar Creek, Miss.; Burden & Cullom, Seullin, Okla.; J. S. Hills, Centralia, Mo.; Freeman & Patterson, Carie, Mo.; J. A. Wagner, Weleetka, Okla.; S. J. Pharoah, Weleetka, Okla.; R. I. Bilby, Quitman, Mo.; T. E. Palmer, Powe, Mo.; Turner & Hieks, Morovia, Ia.; Bee McKinney, Jaeksonville, Mo.; Wm. Perry, Albia, Ia.; W. T. Ross, Loraine, Ill.; Joe Feise, O'Fallon, Mo.; M. L. Givens, Bueatunna, Miss.; Thornton & Gourley, Buneombs, Ill.; W. N. Fayout, Dustin, Okla.

Sheridan county, Wyo., furnished cattle Sept. 5 for our South Omaha house, Ed. Burnett, F. G. S. Hesse and Pfeiffer & Copps being the shippers. Mr. Burnett also had in a train of sheep on the 6th.

On Sept. 5 our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle for Gov. B. B. Brooks of Wyoming. In this consignment were two cars of good feeders that averaged 1,109 lbs and brought $5.50, while two cars of his 952-lb heifers landed at $4.75.

It was Sept. 5 that our South Omaha house sold 13 steers of 1,232 lbs average at $6.00 for S. G. Tomlinson, Butte county, S. D. He accompanied the shipment and was well pleased with the price.

S. Poulton, C. G. Elison and E. Hunter were on the South Omaha market last week with a train of sheep and lambs from Twin Falls, Ida., that our house sold at very satisfactory prices.

Shipments from Natrona county, Wyo., to South Omaha last week included consignments of sheep from Gov. B. B. Brooks, the Capital Sheep Co., Donovan Sheep Co., and a train of cattle from H. D. Schoonmaker.

C. A. Call, Portage county, Ohio: "Car of heifers arrived all in good shape. I consider them a fine bunch and well worth the money. Please accept my thanks for your good service."

Some of the best feeder cattle on the South Omaha market last week included 82 head of 1,284 lbs average at $6.00. They were handled by our house and marketed by A. T. Davis, Grant county, Neb.

Belt & Hamilton, Carroll county, Mo., write: "We want to thank you for the good attention and splendid sale of our cattle. We are well pleased with the sale and the weights. This proves to us what good people will do for their friends and patrons, even if they are not along to look after their stock themselves."

F. Beck, Coleman county, Tex., writes our Fort Worth house under date of Sept. 7: "Sales of cattle you made for me last week were very satisfactory and more than I expected. We had good rains Monday night and also some last night. It came in time to save the country. I never saw a time when it was so badly needed in the thirty years that I have been here as now."

The 93 native lambs of 76 lbs average which brought the top price of $7.00 at Chicago on Sept. 12 were handled by us and sent in by J. A. Miller, Union county, Ia.

The limit for feeding lambs at Chicago on Sept. 12 was $4.25 and our sales at that price were for J. J. Cullen, Carbon county, Wyo., 1,485 head of 97 lbs average and for J. Packer, Custer county, Mont., 480 head, averaging 101 lbs.

J. R. Wallaee of Bloomfield, Iowa, was on the Chieago market Monday with four loads of eattle and three loads of hogs. The stoek was handled by us, being his initial shipment to our firm. Mr. Wallaee stated that he was delighted with the priee his hogs brought, we landing them on the high spot of the day, and while his eattle did not sell up to home expeetations, the sale was satisfaetory, eonsidering the big slump in the market. When asked why he had eonsigned to Clay, Robinson & Co., he said one of the strong points for so doing was the prompt returns after a shipment had been made. He notieed this faet while in the banking business at Bloomfield.

The following prominent feeders or shippers had hogs to our East St. Louis house: Wallaee & Grounds, Greenfield, Ia.; John Maekin, St. Anthony, Ia.; Henry Sands, Swan Creek, Ill.; H. E. Sehmidt, Grinnell, Ill.; Nat Ranson, Boomer, Mo.; Frank Marmon, Farmington, Ia.; Reid, Cobb & Mitehell, Elsberry, Mo.; R. M. Woodruff, Blackwater, Mo.; S. P. Priestly, Windsor, Mo.; Turner & Hieks, Morovia, Ia.; Robt. Riehardson, Williamsville, Ill.; Sims & Smith, Blaekwater, Mo.; C. D. Moody, Filmore, Ill.; Bee MeKinney, Jaeksonville, Mo.; J. E. Lindsey, Maywood, Mo.; A. S. Hines, Reniek, Mo.; C. J. Worth, Virden, Ill.; Presley Robinson, Milan, Mo.; Wallaee & Grounds, Greenfield, Ia.; Browning & Miller, Verona, Mo.; Ditch & Woodward, Roseville, Ill.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

J. R. Noble, Macoupin county, Ill., writes: "Sheep arrived in good shape and am well pleased with them."

J. F. Cleek, Madison county, Ky., writes "Load of ewes came all in good condition and I am well pleased with them."

Allen Brosins, Oakland county, Mich., writes· "Received lambs in good condition and am well pleased with both quality and price."

W. J. Sims, Delaware County, Ind., writes: "Lambs you bought for me are doing fine. Will feed some time yet if conditions stay favorable."

J. R. Parkinson of Wabash county, Ill., writes our East St. Louis house: "Cattle came and am well pleased with them. Will want some more cattle later."

Chas. S. Magee, Tippecanoe conuty, Ind., writes: "Wethers I ordered of you for Magee & Myers came through O. K. and are a fine bunch and well worth the money."

John Casteel, Clark county, Ill., writes "I cannot get along without the REPORT. I enclose my subscription for another year and also subscription for a neighbor."

Phil Most, a representative farmer and feeder of Cedar county, Neb., was on the Sioux City market Sept. 13 with 19 head of 1,105-lb beef steers, which our house landed at the top price of $7.40.

Among the prominent dealers in sheep who had shipments to our East St. Louis house: John Taylor, Delhi, Ill.; W. L. Kaster, Queen City, Mo.; Clark Bowen, Neosho, Mo.; A. M. Blankenship, Kell, Ill.; H. C. Newmeyer, Atlanta, Mo.; C. L. Bruce, Sedalia, Mo.; C. Davis, Pearl, Ill.

A. D. Long, Shelby county, Mo., one of the leading stock dealers and feeders in that part of the state, writes: "Fat cattle and hogs are very scarce in this section of the country. I believe there will be lots of stock fed here this fall and winter, as we have fine crops of corn. Stock hogs are scarce and very high and hard to buy at all. There is plenty of grass and oats and the corn crop is the best in years."

Top Getting Service at Chicago.

The top of the lamb market at Chicago on Sept. 13 was $7.00, which Clay, Robinson & Co. obtained for three different lots. The sales follow: For Nelson Buhl, Washington county, Idaho, 260 head of 66 lbs average; Golliday & Grave, Montgomery county, Ind., 174 head, averaging 83 lbs, and H. W. Woodruff, Beadle county, S. D., 48 head of 58 lbs average. We also topped the sheep market on the same day with Mr. Woodruff's 55 wethers and ewes mixed, they averaging 144 lbs and bringing $4.85.

Ohio-Texas Yearling Steers at $7.75.

H. Gerlaugh of Osborn, Ohio, who is one of the most famous feeders in the East, was on the Chicago cattle market Sept. 14 with 44 yearlings of 885 lbs average which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at the top of the market by 10c per cwt. They were from the S M S Hereford herd in Texas. This makes the third shipment of yearling steers Mr. Gerlaugh has disposed of at Chicago thus far this season, all of which were landed at the extreme top of trade by us.

Our East St. Louis Branch.

One of the marvels of our competitors has been the rapid strides made by our house at above market and its steadily increasing trade since established less than twenty months ago. The secret, however, is easy to understand when you consider that our East St. Louis branch is a part of the Clay, Robinson & Co. organization, which exists solely for the purpose of furnishing the best service in the selling of live stock that can possibly be provided. We wish we might impress upon every shipper to above market the fact that the facilities provided by our house there for converting your consignments into the largest possible amount of cash and getting the proceeds to you without loss of an hour's time cannot be excelled. With full confidence that you will join with hundreds of other well-pleased patrons in expression of satisfaction we invite consignors to the National Stock Yards to put their business through Clay, Robinson & Co.

A Rising Young Sheepman.

Felix A. Plastino of Market Lake, Idaho, recently renewed his subscription to the REPORT, and wrote:

"I am a boy sixteen years of age and started my little flock with a few lambs which I bought from schoolmates who did not like to feed them with the bottle. Afterward a sheepman gave me a little ewe lamb who had lost its mother and was so small he did not like to take it around in his wagon.

"After the first year I used my wool money from six head of ewes to buy some more when I had a chance and so on until this year, after six years, I sheared 100 ewes myself this spring. I sheared them every year and so learned to do better as my flock increased.

"I am going to start to high school next week and hope after I am through to take a course in an agricultural college to fit me for my life work."

It is a safe prophecy that a boy who evidences such thrift, industry and ambition will before many years have passed make his mark in the world.

He Loved His Work.

The secretary of agriculture, in an address at Washington, said of farming:

"The successful farmer loves his work. Every detail of it interests him. Thus Squire Plowlands proved himself a poor theologian but a grand farmer, when he met, one Sunday morning, his tenant, Hodge.

"'Where have you been, Hodge?' said the squire.

"'I've been to church, sir,' Hodge replied.

"'What was the sermon about, Hodge?'

"'It was something about Joseph going down to Egypt to buy corn, squire.'

"The squire brightened.

"'Did the parson say what corn is worth down there?' he asked."

Pointers for Buyers of Feeding Sheep, Lambs, or Breeding Ewes.

"Where and how shall I buy my feeding sheep, lambs, or breeding ewes?" is the question that many feeders are asking themselves at this time. Upon how you answer it largely depend your profits. In the first place, remember that you must sell your fat sheep by weight at some one of the central markets, and there is where you should get your feeders. There you get the benefit of the heavy shrink resulting from the long journey most of this stock has taken enroute to market. They are well shrunk out, and you pay for nothing but frame and flesh. Whatever you buy is weighed by disinterested persons, over scales that are tested every month by government inspectors, and you are sure of getting just the weight you pay for.

WARNING TO PROSPECTIVE BUYERS.

Often feeders not only waste valuable time, but pay a big price for inferior stock, by attempting to buy their own feeding or breeding stock on the market. Don't do it—unless you are dead sure that you know sheep, dealers, and market conditions better than the men who have spent perhaps half their lives in the Yards and are buying six days a week the year around. Give your order to a commission firm that can handle it right. Remember that there are houses posing as "sheep firms" that do not even have a sheep salesman of their own, to say nothing of a buyer to fill their orders. The man who has to both sell fat sheep and buy feeders is badly handicapped, as he must first sell what stock is consigned to his firm, and as that may take the biggest part of a day, there is but little left in the feeding line, and that probably undesirable, when he gets ready to buy. Clay, Robinson & Co. make a speciality of filling orders for feeding sheep, lambs and breeding ewes. We have our own special buyers who give their entire time and attention to this branch of our business. Doesn't it look reasonable that we can serve your interests far better than firms that are less well equipped in this particular?

Nine times out of ten our buyers will save you much more than the commission. They will get you better stock for less money, look after the details of dipping, loading, etc., relieving you of all worry and anxiety. Thousands of the most successful feeders in the country avail themselves of our facilities. It is not even necessary for you to come to market in person; in fact, the bulk of our orders come through the mail. Thus you save the expense and loss of time incident to trip to market.

WHERE THE STOCK COMES FROM.

Bulk of the western feeding sheep and lambs handled on the Chicago market come from Idaho, Montana and Wyoming, although some originate in Washington, Oregon, Utah, Nevada and the Dakotas. These westerns are usually well-bred, healthy and thrifty. Most rangemen are using on their ewes pure-bred rams of one of the approved mutton breeds and the product is very desirable for corn-belt feedlots.

SELECTION OF BREEDING EWES.

There are many important points in the selection of breeding ewes which only expert buyers, long trained in the business, are able to discern. It is, therefore, easily seen to be advisable for you to place your order in the hands of competent buyers. In this way many shortcomings and objectionable features are avoided. For instance, care must be used not to get thin and emaciated ewes, as it stands to reason that a ewe which is very thin in flesh, after passing through the fed season, must have something radically wrong with her. You must also look to the wool and see that it is good and bright and that the ewe is not too light a shearer. Each ewe must be carefully marked by the buyer, making sure that he selects no aged or broken-mouth ewes; that their teeth shall be good, for it is this that we depend upon as to the age. It is well not to buy a ewe too fat. Better to select one in fair to medium flesh. The buyer should give the preference to the ewe with a good frame, and with black face and legs. There are many other points which our expert buyers watch when filling your orders.

COMMISSION CHARGES.

The commission charge at Chicago is as follows: For feeding sheep and lambs, and western breeding ewes; $6.00 for single-deck carloads, and $10.00 for double-deck carloads. For native breeding ewes the commission is $10.00 per single-deck and $20.00 per double deck. The larger commission for buying native ewes is explained by the fact that these are purchased in small lots, necessitating much extra time and labor, while the westerns usually reach the market in straight carload lots. Charges very slightly at the different markets. For detailed information address our house at whichever market you propose buying.

INSTRUCTIONS TO PROSPECTIVE PURCHASERS.

In sending in your orders for one or more carloads of feeding sheep, lambs or breeding ewes, be sure to specify whether you want single-deck or double-deck carloads. Also give shipping instructions, stating what railroad you wish the stock routed over and destination station. The latter is necessary as often a customer's unloading station is not the same as his postoffice. Customers should also give us the name of the bank through which they wish us to make draft for payment of the stock.

Current Comment and Chicago Quotations to Wednesday Noon.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

Receipts of western range cattle at Chicago this week and for year to date, with comparison, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

This week	22,000
Last week	14,500
Year ago	28,000
Receipts for season of 1910 to date	122,200
Corresponding period of 1909	106,700
Corresponding period of 1908	145,700

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Steers Range.		Steers Bulk.		Cows and Heifers Bulk.
This week	$4.75@6.85		$5.25@6.25		$3.85@4.85
Last week	5.00	*7.35	5.50	6.50	4.00	5.00
Year ago	4.25	7.00	4.60	5.75	3.75	4.75
Two years ago	3.50	6.00	4.40	5.25	3.25	4.25

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Around 1,000 arrived Thursday last week. Call limited and trade slow at 10@15c decline for both steers and she stock. Most offerings were Dakota steers, which sold largely at $5.25@5.60. Friday run of 500 was mostly feeder and she stock for which weaker prices prevailed.

Receipts for the week totaled 14,500, against 14,700 the previous week and 26,000 corresponding week last year. At the close prices for beef steers showed 10@15c loss from the finish of the previous week, and she stock a similar decline, although stockers and feeders held steady. Both the steer and cow market was topped at $7.35 and $5.25 respectively BY US with the Huidekoper offerings from Montana.

This week opened with a run of 36,000 cattle, about 11,000 of which were westerns, the largest day's run of the season. The market was slow to open and it was quite late in the morning before many sales had been made. The market ruled 10@25c lower, greatest decline being on the better grade cattle, in sympathy with the drop on natives. Among our sales were 12 loads of the Matador dehorned double-wintered Texans from the Cheyenne Reservation at $5.55, and eight loads of horned at $5.35, all averaging 1,152 lbs. One of the most notable sales of the day was that which WE MADE of 57 head of 1,163-lb heifers at $5.75 for J. H. Shaw of Plaza, N. D. These were an excellent lot of cattle and the price stands the highest of the season on she stock. The sale is all the more pronounced for the number of head included. The market on butcher stock was also 15c lower. The day's supplies were fairly well bought up, but not nearly all of the run could be weighed.

Marketing Tuesday 3,000. The heavy supply at the outside western markets and anticipation of a liberal run here Wednesday rendered buyers very bearish. Result was a slow and a little lower market, with prices 20@30c lower than last week's close, the better grades bearing the brunt of the break. She stock sold 10c lower than yesterday, or 25c under the finish of last week. There was a good demand for stockers and feeders at steady prices.

Marketing Wednesday 6,000. Beef steers met with a very dull demand and prices were generally 10c lower. There was a brisk call for cows and heifers at prices strong to 10c higher. Stockers and feeders continued in good demand and prices held fully steady. Our beef steer sales included two loads of the Spear Bros. Montanas at $6.25, one load of the Griffin Montanas at $6.15, a string of the J. B. Kendrick Wyoming-Texans at $5.80, and the L. A. Brown Wyoming-Texans at $5.25.

Range Sheep.

Following shows top prices for and bulk sales of western range sheep and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Sheep Top.	Sheep Bulk.		Lambs Top.	Lambs Bulk.
This week	$4.65	$4.25@4.40		$7.00	$6.85@7.00
Last week	4.75	4.10	4.50	7.00	6.75	6.90
Year ago	5.25	4.40	5.15	7.55	7.15	7.50
Two years ago	4.25	3.50	4.00	5.70	4.60	5.65

Marketing Thursday of last week 30,294. There was no quotable change in prices for either fat or feeding classes. The general demand was good and a clearance was made in due season. The best lambs reached $6.90 and feeders up to $6.75. Yearlings went for slaughter at $5.40@5.50 and light weight feeders up to $5.50. Two-year-old wethers brought $4.50@4.65 and aged offerings $4.45, while the feeders made $4.10@4.25. Receipts Friday 8,172. The general market was on a steady to strong basis. Most lambs available went for slaughter at $6.85, with top yearlings at $5.60 and wethers $4.65. As compared with the close of the previous week fat lambs sold 10c lower and feeders steady, while both fat and feeding classes of sheep and yearlings advanced 10c.

This week opened with a supply of 36,067. In spite of the big total prices were generally steady for both fat and feeder classes. The demand from all sources was surprisingly good. WE TOPPED the sheep market with Montana whethers at $4.40 and the feeder trade at $4.25. Top lambs reached $7.00 and best feeders $6.85. The Tuesday run was 31,750 and the market active for most offerings at prices steady to strong. In lambs it was a $6.90 @7.00 deal for fat lots and $6.65@6.85 for feeders. Bulk sheep were wethers, best landed at $4.65 for two year olds and $4.15@4.25 for feeders. Montana yearling breeder ewes reached $6.00. A heavy run of 38,000 Wednesday failed to give buyers any leverage, as the trade was fairly active and prices generally steady. The 7c lamb continued in circulation and top feeders at $6.85. Feeding yearlings cost up to $5.50. Best wethers brought $4.50 and most feeders $4.10@4.25.

Two years ago	2.90	3.85	4.10	4.25	4.60	5.10

There was a continuation of liberal receipts of feeder sheep and lambs and an insatiable demand this week. Thus there was no surprise that prices for best grades on Wednesday showed 10@15c advance over corresponding day last week. Even the plainer kinds met good call at steady rates. Tops this week were $6.85 for lambs, $5.50 yearlings, $4.40 two-year-old wethers, and $4.35 aged lots. Good demand for breeding ewes, range yearlings costing up to $6.00 and best natives $5.25.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

SOUTH OMAHA, Sept. 13.—There was a heavy run of cattle here last week, Monday's offering of nearly 16,000 being a record run. There was a good inquiry all week, however, and best kinds of all sorts are fully steady with the previous week's close. Common and medium steers and butcher stock, however went 10@15c lower, while the ordinary grades of stockers and feeders sold 15@25c lower. Best beef steers brought $6.80. which price we secured for D. R. Whitaker of Cheyenne, Wyo., and is the highest price ever paid here. These cattle averaged 1295 lbs and were grade Durhams and Herefords. Top feeders sold at $6.25 and a good many sales at $5.50@5.85. The A. T. Davis feeders from Hyannis, Neb., made $6.20 on Tuesday, averaging 1284 lbs. Choice grass heifers brought $5, which was as high as for several weeks. The trade was very satisfactory all week and supplies pretty well cleaned up from day to day.

As compared with last week's close, the Tuesday market was steady. We topped the corn-fed market with Nebraska offerings at $7.60.

Range Sheep.

About 140,000 sheep were offered last week and, with the exception of old ewes, there has not been much weakness. Feeding lambs wound up a little stronger than Monday. Top killing lambs touched $6.75 and bulk $6.40@6.60. Heavy yearlings went at $4.65@5, and lights mostly to feeder buyers at $5.15@5.40. Old ewes to killers landed at $3.75@4.15. Good feeding lambs made $6@6.40, fair to good light weights $5.50@6, wethers $3.75@4.30 and ewes $2.50@3.50.

At the start of this week prices were strong to 10c higher. Top lambs made $6.85 and best wethers $4.25@4.40, with summit on ewes $4.10 and bulk $3.75@3.90. There was a strong demand for feeders and best lambs went out at a cost of $6.45 and bulk $6.25@6.35. Top yearlings at $5.45 and bulk $5.15@5.35, with wethers around $4.25. The Tuesday trade opened steady and closed weak. We sold for W. F. Hamilton of Douglas, Wyo., 659 wethers at $4.35, the top.

Notice to Prospective Breeders

Ten double-decks of Oregon yearling breeding ewes will be on the Chicago market the fore part of next week. They will be handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. These ewes are fancy blackfaces of around 85 lbs average. Prospective buyers should send their orders in now, as few such ewes will be marketed from now on because of the lateness of the season. : : : : :

MONTANA CATTLE WHICH TOPPED CHICAGO RANGE MARKET FOR THE SEASON.

These 17 head of 1,444-lb grass cattle were sold Wednesday, Sept. 7, at $7.35 by Clay, Robinson & Co. This price was the top of the season by 10c per cwt for a load of rangers. They were dehorned grade Shorthorns and were marketed by Wallis Huidekoper of Two Dot, Mont. Mr. Huidekoper is a well-known and successful western range cattleman and this was by no means the first time that we have topped the market with his cattle.

THESE RANGE BEEVES BROKE ALL PRICE RECORDS AT DENVER.

On Tuesday, Sept. 6, Clay, Robinson & Co. sold on the Denver market 30 head of 1,346-lb range grass cattle at $6.00, up to then highest price ever paid for strictly range steers on that market. They were owned and marketed by Donald McDonald of Diamond, Wyo., a well-known and popular western range cattleman. On the same day we sold for Mr. McDonald a string of his cows at $4.80, being the top that day by 15c per cwt for that class of stock.

However, Clay, Robinson & Co. established another price record for range cattle at Denver on Tuesday, Sept. 13, selling for Mrs. Robert Allen of Iron Mountain, Wyo., 54 head of 1,250-lb range grass beef steers at $6.25.

WYOMING RANGE BEEVES WHICH MADE RECORD PRICE AT SOUTH OMAHA.

This four-load lot of 1,295-lb beeves was sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. on the South Omaha market Wednesday, Sept. 7, at $6.80, the highest price ever obtained on that market for range grass cattle. They were marketed by D. R. Whitaker of Cheyenne, Wyo., and the price was $1.00 per cwt higher than his first shipment brought last year, even though the cattle weighed a little lighter than then. These cattle were three and four year olds and choicely bred Durhams and Herefords. They were certainly a credit to Mr. Whitaker as well as to the state of Wyoming. In addition to the steers they sold for Mr. Whitaker on the same day four loads of cows and heifers at the top price of $5.00. He has not only a choice string of cattle, but a fine range for them to run on, a combination that insures top prices practically every season. Mr. Whitaker accompanied the stock to market and expressed his delight with the prices secured.

WYOMING LAMBS WHICH TOPPED SOUTH OMAHA MARKET 10c PER CWT.

J. Walsh of Parkman, Wyo., was the owner and Clay, Robinson & Co. the sellers of these two cars of lambs which averaged 70 lbs and made $6.70 at South Omaha on Sept. 7. This price was 10c per cwt higher than any other sale in the face of the fact that the receipts were 51,249, a record day's run on that market. They also sold two cars of Mr. Walsh's 112-lb ewes at $4.15, also top of that day's trade for that class of offerings.

Receipts Thursday of last week, 5,660. It was a very dull deal at prices 10@20c lower. The demand was at very low ebb. Eastern buyers were practically out of the market and local buyers claimed that they were heavily loaded with offerings. Thirty-four head of 1,507-lb offerings topped at $8.05. Marketing Friday 2,332. Trade was dull and demand very indifferent. All price changes tended toward a weaker basis. The best offered were 10 head of 1,319 lbs average at $7.65 The week's trade closed with prices on a very uneven level. Prime grades, which were scarce, showed 10@15c advance over the finish of the previous week. good to choice grades were steady and other kinds 15@25c lower.

A supply af 36,109 put the market in bad shape at the start of this week. The decline was anywhere from 25@50c, plain and medium lots showing most loss. Not many sales had been made by the noon hour, due partly to indifference of buyers and partly to belated arrival of trains. The general market was one of the worst experienced this season. At the close thousands of cattle were unsold, many not receiving a bid. One load of fancy 1,591-lb Illinois Shorthorn beeves, the best seen here in many months, topped the market at $8.35. Bulk of trading was at $6.00@7.75. The Tuesday run was 5,866. Trading was very draggy at prices weak to 10c lower. Best offered comprised 35 head, averaging 1,468 lbs, at $7.65. Marketing Wednesday 19,000. While the trade did not have brisk tone, prices were generally steady and a clearance was effected in due time. Top beeves sold at $8.15 for 20 head of 1,497 lbs average. WE TOPPED the yearling market 10c per cwt by landing the H. Gerlaugh Ohio-Texas offerings at $7.75. They numbered 44 head and averaged 885 lbs. Bulk of the day's trading was at $6.00@7.50.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

The expected happened last week. The trade closed 25@35c lower than the previous week's finish. Receipts were heavier than for some time, and the demand failed to make a like expansion. Top heifers for the week made $7.00, paid for fancy yearlings, but there were few sales above $6.00. Prime heavy cows in odd lots reached $6.00, but transactions were rarely above $5.00.

A heavy run was available at the start of this week and prices were lowered 10@15c, chief outlet being through local slaughtering channels. Plain and medium grassy lots were in heavy proportion and proved very mean sale. The Tuesday market was slow and prices weak to 10c lower. Wednesday's market was active and most sales showed a strong range. Both local and outside buyers took hold quite freely.

Barring choicest grades, last week closed with prices 15@25c lower than the finish of the previous week. Receipts continued heavy, especially of the commoner and lighter weights, but there was a good demand at prevailing rates. In most cases packers again outbid the feeders for the fleshy grades.

Conditions were decidedly against the selling interests at the start of this week. The supply was liberal and buyers bearish, resulting in a decline of mostly 10@15c from last week's close and 35@50c from high time two weeks ago. On Tuesday the break of the previous day was repaired, supply falling under trade requirements. Wednesday trade was active at steady prices. Demand from all sources was very urgent, especially for the better grades of stockers and heavy fleshy feeders. Better prospects for the corn crop, along with fall pastures being given a new lease on life by recent soaking rains, has greatly filled the ranks of prospective buyers in both the East and Middle West states.

Run Thursday of last week 30,294. Most droves cost 20c less than the previous day. A $9.75 top was made, but $8.50@9.00 took a large share of the arrivals. Receipts Friday 9,867. It was demonstrated that the market was able to "come back." Generally speaking, it was a 10@25c higher deal. Packing stuff sold to the least advantage and late in the session big weight sows were no more than steady with the previous day's best time. The summit was $9.95. Above the 9½c mark it was a trade in choice light and light butchers and under the $8.75 notch a market for coarse packers. Supply Saturday 4,254. Opening 10@15c higher, the close was 10c lower. Most good hogs sold at the early advance, but packing lots did not get it. Top was $10, with $8.80@9.70 taking the bulk. Prices stood 10@25c higher than Saturday of the previous week. The top at $10.10 Tuesday was the highest ever known in September during modern packing times.

This week started out with a run of 23,213. Trade was very uneven. However, most early sales were 10c higher, but the market weakened soon after and at the close prices showed 15@25c decline from the start. Top was $10.10. Bulk of the day's business was at $9.35@9.85 for shipping grades of all weights and $8.65@9.00 for packing grades. Run Tuesday 17,978. The market was demoralized. It was anywhere from 25@60c lower, with the close a flat 50c lower. Thousands of weighty hogs were left in the pens at the finish without bids. Summit was $9.95, but there was very little trading over $9.65. Most packing grades sold around $8.75 down to $8.45. Supply Wednesday 23,000. Opening 15@25c lower, the market closed with part of the break repaired. Top $9.60, most shipping grades at $9.20@9.45 and packers $8.20@8.60.

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Thursday of last week it was generally a steady market, although the tendency was toward weakness for the less desirable lambs. Top for lambs was $7.15, paid for a small lot, and next best price was $7.00. The limit for ewes was $4.50, realized for fancy 148 lbs average. The Friday trade was steady to strong for lambs and firm for sheep. All the packers showed a lively interest. Most sheep were ewes and sold at $4.25@4.35 and bulk of lambs at $6.50@6.85, with summit at $7.00. As compared with the close of the previous week lambs declined 10@15c and sheep held about steady.

This week started out with the market shy brisk tone, yet prices were generally steady. Top lambs brought $7.00, WE SELLING A LOT OF IOWAS AT THE PRICE, and best sheep at $4.75 for wethers and ewes mixed. Tuesday trade was active and strong. Top lambs landed at $7.00 and sheep $4.85 for wethers and ewes mixed, WE OBTAINING BOTH PRICES. The price range Wednesday did not vary materially from the previous day. Top lambs brought $7.00 and bulk $6.50@6.85. Ewes sold mostly at $4.25@4.40.

East St. Louis Markets.

National Stock Yards, Ill., Sept. 13—Though receipts in the native division were very large Tuesday, beef steers were only fairly represented. The market was generally steady. Choice beeves sold as high as $7.85, with medium grades around $6.50. Those under $6.50 were slow down to the feeder grades and the country demand held these fully steady. A straight load of heifers reached $7.00 and the market on the good kinds was firm. Best grass heifers went around $4.50. Cows generally steady. Calves and yearlings advanced 25c over Monday's prices, with top vealers at $8.75. Demand was in excess of supply. Quarantine cattle movement was slow, but supply was cleaned up in fair time at steady prices. She stuff comprised mostly canners and fair killing kinds, and prices were fully steady.

While hogs were in heavy supply, buyers succeeded in taking off a few dimes. Market opened 10c lower Tuesday and closed 30c lower. Top was $9.90, with bulk $9.35@9.75.

There was a fairly good supply of sheep, with bulk receipts lambs. Good fat grades were scarce. Best lambs brought $6.75, with other good killers $6.25@6.65. Prices generally steady with the close of last week.

Class of Cattle to Feed 75 to 100 Days

Of late we have received a great many inquiries regarding the above. At the outset we advise buying

Good Weight Cattle Carrying Good Flesh, Say 1,100 to 1,200 lbs

The heavier they are the better. Cattle of above mentioned weights will, when finished and put on the market, out-sell steers of 950 to 1,000 lbs average by 30 to 40c per cwt. And the cost of preparing them for market will not be any greater.

Our Houses at all Leading Markets Are The Sources of Supply

Our buyers are experts—the best that money can secure. They are filling orders from day to day, being in constant touch with market conditions, and thus are best posted.

We Can Save You Money in the Purchasing of Feeding Cattle

All you need to do is to write or wire us. State what class of cattle you want. We will do the rest—and to your satisfaction. There will be no need of you coming to market. The bulk of the orders received by us are by mail. Thus the prospective buyer is saved loss of time, railroad fare, hotel bills, etc.

Clay, Robinson & Co.

CHICAGO KANSAS CITY SOUTH OMAHA SOUTH ST. JOSEPH EAST BUFFALO
DENVER SIOUX CITY SOUTH ST. PAUL EAST ST. LOUIS FORT WORTH

Their Work is Well Done.

At this time South Omaha is receiving a big supply of feeding sheep and lambs. However, there is a remarkably broad outlet. Clay, Robinson & Co's expert buyers on that market are filling many orders, many of which were sent to them by letter or telegram. That their work is satisfactory is readily seen by a perusal of a few of the many unsolicited letters from pleased patrons:

Wm. Meyer, Cooper county, Mo.: "Sheep arrived O. K. Am well pleased with them."

W. H. Stuart, Cedar county, Ia.: "The 250 lambs got here all right. Am well pleased with them. Thank you for doing so well for me."

John Hubers, Sioux county, Ia.: "Received double deck of lambs in fine shape. They are the best bunch of feeding lambs I ever owned."

Geo. S. Wolfersberger, Bureau county, Ill.: "Lambs arrived O. K. Have them in the corn field and are filling up fine. They fill the bill to the letter."

N. T. Thomas, Dixon county, Neb.: "Sheep arrived O. K. and unloaded in good shape. They are certainly good yearlings and am much pleased with the order."

Robert Campbell, Randolph county, Mo.: "Sheep arrived in good shape. I am well pleased with them and just as well satisfied as if I had been there. Thank you for past favors."

Chas. D. Green, Benton county, Ia.: "Lambs arrived in fine shape and I am well pleased with them. If we get rain soon will want more later on. Your method of exchange is all right."

C. Schroeder, Knox county, Neb.: "Lambs came in good shape. They are certainly fine. I am well pleased. Plenty of green feed, good prospects for corn. Thank you for your promptness in filling the order."

H. G. Windsor, Cooper county, Mo.: "Four double decks of wethers came in good shape. They are the best westerns I ever saw. I wish to thank your buyer for his good judgment, and will give an order for three more double decks."

Ben. F. Merchant, Hillsdale county, Mich.: "Lambs came through in good shape and made a good run. Am very well pleased with them and think they are the right kind for good feeders, as they are even in size, appearing healthy and strong as they go to their feed."

Brown Bros., Minnehaha county, S. D.: "Two doubles of yearlings arrived safely in due time. We think them an exceptionally choice bunch of feeders and are well pleased with the price at which you bought them. We have ample pasture here and they are doing fine."

J. R. Mitchell & Son, Knox county, Ill.: "Load of sheep arrived in first-class shape. They are a good, all around, broad-backed bunch of yearlings. We think they will be good feeders and money makers. Thank you for your interest in our behalf and will come again when in need of more sheep."

A. J. Holt, Nodaway county, Mo.: "Car of wethers reached me in good shape. Could not tell by looking at them how I liked them: don't know anything about sheep, but as they were bought by Clay, Robinson & Co. they have to be all right. Now you may get me another double deck of the same when you can get them right."

To Eastern Shippers.

Very likely East Buffalo is your market. If so, don't overlook the fact that Clay, Robinson & Co., while "Best in the West" are also strong in the East. Our East Buffalo branch is in position to give you splendid service in the handling of your cattle, hogs or sheep, having exceptionally able salesmen in all branches. Correspond with them, call upon them when at East Buffalo, and, most important of all, consign to them if you want the best service that market affords.

Grass and Silage.

Professor Curtiss of the Iowa Agricultual College sounds a note of warning to farmers on live stock growing:

"The trouble with many of the Iowa farmers today is that because the price of land has gone to such high figures they are turning their pastures and grass lands into grain fields and are thereby lessening the ultimate output of their farms," he said. "The high prices of manufactured foodstuffs for cattle will soon force the cattle breeders to return to the grass fields and raise their cattle on them. Grass supplemented by corn or other grain is the best possible food for cattle, as is shown by the remarkable success of farmers in the older countries who have stuck to that idea."

Mr. Curtiss urges the farmers and stock raisers to adopt the silo and thereby economize in the byproducts of the farms. He declared that in order to keep up with the permanent raise in prices the farmers must use every saving process to keep down the cost of raising cattle.

The high price of land in the corn belt will cause the cattle raising business to go to the South and West unless the stock raisers of this section advertise their breeds and better their quality.

Stockmen Should Cull Down.

When there are indications ahead of a shortage in feed supply the prudent farmer and live stock owner will early commence to plan for cutting down in numbers of stock to be wintered. The culls should be put in marketable flesh and condition, if possible, before offered for sale, advises the Twentieth Century Farmer. A poor or thin-fleshed, out-of-fix animal never sells for what it is worth. Lack of flesh is always taken advantage of, discriminated against by the stock dealer.

At the close of the grazing season, when the general round-up on farm and ranch takes place, when the culls are usually cut out and disposed of by being forced onto the market, there is more of this class of stuff than the demand can handle and very low prices are usually the result. It is poor management to fall in line with unsystematic slaughter in prices. An early disposition of this class of animals, particularly if put in fair flesh, will usually command double what they will bring as tailends and refuse. Move the culling period forward two or three months and try a little extra care in lifting them out of this class.

John S. Cooper, Horse Commission Salesman.

The above name is a very familiar one to patrons of the Chicago market and more particularly of course to horse shippers and dealers. The business was established in 1862 and Mr. Cooper has been a prominent factor in the Chicago horse market for many years. He also maintains a branch at the South Omaha Stock Yards. We take pleasure in calling the attention of our readers to his advertisement appearing on another page. Anyone having horses or mules to consign will do well to get in touch with this long-established and reliable house. Mr. Cooper, as well as ourselves, will appreciate it if when writing for information or making consignments to him our readers will kindly mention the LIVE STOCK REPORT.

The attention of our western readers is especially called to the range horse auction sales to be held at the South Omaha Stock Yards on the various September, October and November dates given in Mr. Cooper's advertisement.

The Man Behind The Plow.

They sing about the glories of the man behind the gun,
And the books are full of stories of the wonders he has done:
There's something sort o' thrillin' in the flag that's wavin' high,
And it makes you want to holler when the boys go marchin' by;
But when the shoutin's over and the fightin's done, somehow
We find we're still dependin' on the man behind the plow.

In all the pomp and splendor of an army on parade,
And through all the awful darkness that the smoke of battles made;
In the halls where jewels glitter and where shoutin' men debate;
In the palaces where rulers deal out honors to the great,
There is not a single person who'd be doin' bizness now
Or have medals if it wasn't for the man behind the plow.

We're a-buildin' mighty cities and we're gainin' lofty heights;
We're awinnin' lots of glory and we're settin' things to rights;
We're a-showin' all creation how the world's affairs should run;
Future men'll gaze in wonder at the things that we have done,
And they'll overlook the feller, just the same as we do now,
Who's the whole concern's foundation—that's the man behind the plow.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

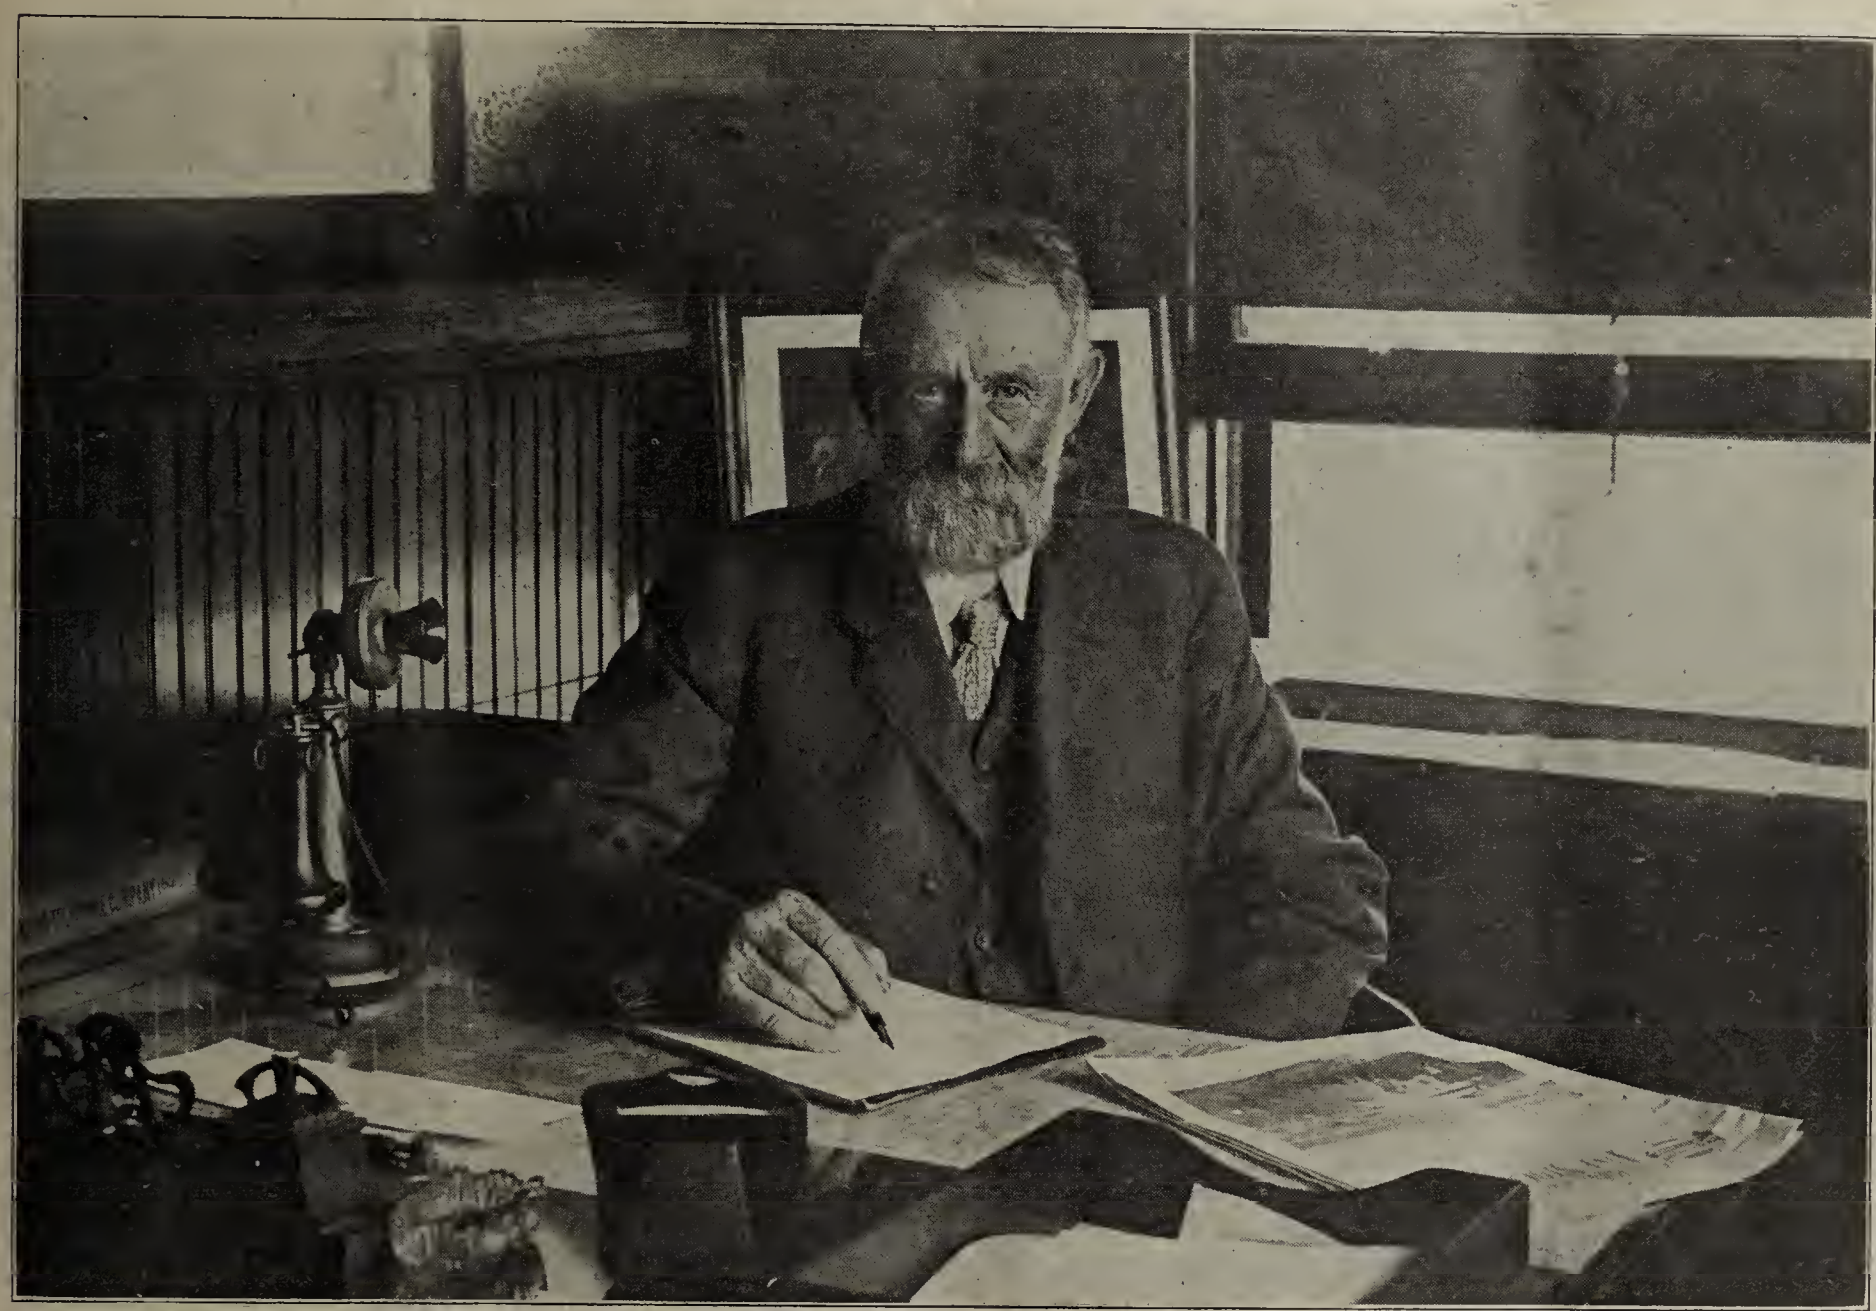
Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, September 23, 1910 | No. 38



Mr. Frank G. Bloom, President The Bloom Cattle Co., Trinidad, Colo.

Mr. Bloom, for many years one of the most extensive and best known cattlemen in the entire West, has consigned continuously to Clay, Robinson & Co. since the firm's organization in 1886. For at least twelve years prior to that time he consigned to the present firm's predecessors, J. M. Robinson & Co., of which our Mr. Chas. O. Robinson's father was senior member. Therefore, in effect, Mr. Bloom has done business with our firm for thirty-six years without interruption of mutually pleasant and satisfactory relations. This is a rather remarkable showing, and ought to be a sufficient index for any man in selecting his commission firm. By profiting from the experience of keen and successful men like Mr. Bloon you may save making costly mistakes. Your commission firm, like your lawyer, banker or business partner, should be chosen with extreme care. If we can render satisfactory service for a period of thirty-six years to men of Mr. Bloom's calibre, can you doubt for a moment that your interests will be absolutely safe in our hands? Form your own judgment in this matter, and then allow no one to swerve you from it.

The Sheep Herder's Grave.

IN my early days the name of Joseph Arthur was familiar to my ears. He was a farmer in the north of England, his home lying under the shadow of the Cheviot Hills; an old-fashioned house with a pleasant old-time garden by its side covered the head of himself and family. Eastward was a sylvan scene among whose woods ran a tortuous stream, full of trout and grayling. Southwards was a grassy hill, with a hazel wood on its side creeping a third of the way up, and then grass and rocks and a rounded top as if some giant of ancient days had pared it off and made a perfect cone. It was a fair scene, the pleasant valley, the rippling stream, the green hills, with gentle sheep dotting with spots of white the sloping sward and then in front of the house a rich meadow land with the cows browsing or sleeping dreamily beneath summer suns.

The farm was kindly, but the farmer had no luck. He was scarcely ever at home. He had the sporting fever, expert with rod and gun, keen with horse and hound, a late sitter after market, hail fellow well met with his neighbors—and so a day came when a local auctioneer sold his stock and effects to pay his creditors. Then he drifted with his family into a small town and commenced to sell feed stuffs and fertilizers on commission. His old friends patronized him for a year or two, but the continual nipping in public houses soon got in its work, and one day, when I was growing up to manhood, Arthur went abroad to find a new home for his folks and seek fickle fortune under other skies. He had been drifting all his life, a slow downward pull, a road easy to travel. The Canadian backwoods were no kinder to him than his fertile vale, and when his family realized the truth, they had to go out and do their best. They scattered, and where they went I know not.

Many years afterwards I was ranching in the Sweetwater valley in Wyoming. At first it was a successful business. The great sage brush flats gave winter feed and up the valleys and mountain sides there was grass galore. The winter of 1886-87 almost cleared the country of cattle, and from this blow the ranchmen never recovered, although we hung on to a broken reed for a few years. Sheep began to come in and one day down the valley below the Three Crossings, under the shadow of Old Split Rock, mighty landmark of the valley, I met "English Joe," an old weather-beaten man. There he stood on a knoll, unshaven and unshorn, a greasy hat on his head, his clothes worn and ragged, watching a flock of sheep as they kept slowly trailing from a bench of rich grass land towards the river where a sheep wagon stood. The first words spoken told the land of his birth. A few days afterwards he told me the story of his life. The "English Joe" of Sweetwater was the Joseph Arthur of the Northumberland vale. What a strange, weird, pathetic tale it was! A tear stood in his eye as he talked of his wife and family, gone so far as he was concerned, another shipwreck on life's ocean. And then some of the old spirit came back again for he had seen "King Death" win the Waterloo and "Hermit" the Derby. A flash of fire came across his face and away in that lonely valley we heard the deep guttural notes of the otter hounds ring their changes in the valley of the Bowmont, though the echo lay quarter of a century behind us.

A WYOMING SHEEP SCENE.

A year or two slipped by, faded away all too rapidly. In summer days Joe camped on Sage Hen, a little creek that empties into the Sweetwater from the north just above Split Rock. There by a bubbling spring, ice cold, his wagon stood and 'round about were all the untidy evidences of a sheep herder's camp—old shoes, rejected clothes, tin cans thrown carelessly away, the heads and wings of a grouse or prairie chicken, potato peelings and all the loose paraphernalia that gathers round a summer camp. Here, returning from the round-ups just as evening was falling o'er the scene, we would stop and have a chin with Joe. He was a kindly old chap with a vein of the ascetic in his nature. He seemed to love the mountains, the great granite peaks; perchance he worshipped the vivid lightning that lit up their bald heads in the warm summer nights. With the bonds of fellowship almost gone, at least only a memory lying in a tangled skein of remorse and wasted opportunity, his only solace was Nature, that mother which appeals to all of us. Even your silent dead are oft forgotten amid imposing scenes. What Joe's innermost thoughts were I could never tell. The long days in the sage brush or on the benches of the foothills with his sheep and dog as his only company had deadened the finer instincts of his soul; if he had any religion I never found it out, and like many of his class, that innumerable army whose brand is failure, he lived much in the past; for that reason he loved to gossip and pass away a half hour with me. It was like a tonic to his system and if he had stopped there it would have been all right. But the old fault still lived within him. The smell of the whisky bottle drove him crazy. Whenever he had enough of money coming he hied away to Rongis, some 15 or 20 miles up the river. In those days Johnnie Signor ran a gin mill there and Joe was one of his best customers. Joe worked for a thrifty Scot sheepman, Mackenzie by name. Today he still flourishes, but has moved away to another part of Wyoming, where, it matters not to the reader. Our story is about Joe. When the fit came on Joe, and it always happened when he had some cash ahead, Mackenzie had to herd the sheep while Joe was enjoying the hospitality of the Signor ranch. He would invariably take dinner at the "71 Quarter Circle" ranch. He would smoke his pipe and gossip with Flood, the cook, and very often would induce Pete Heckle to ride up the river a bit. Pete loved the company, so that they were at Rongis before they knew it. We will draw a veil over what took place. In a day or two a haggard, wasted man rode past the ranch, his bleary eyes sunk into his head, the neck of a bottle showing in his hip pocket. If the bottle was empty and he was fairly sober when he reached his band of sheep, Mackenzie mounted the cow-pony and left Joe to his solitary job.

One day in February we left Rawlins at noon and made Bohack's ranch at Lost Soldier shortly after dark. There we slept, and bright and early next morning we were on the move. It is a long, steady pull to the Divide. After it is reached you trot merrily down the hill, passing through Crook's gap, and as you progress the valley of the Sweetwater opens gradually to your view. It was a glorious day, clear and bright. The valley was bathed in sunshine. Westward the Big Horns rose in majestic splendor, the gray foothills, the dark sides of the lower mountains, pine clad, all under a crest of everlasting snow. Down the valley, amid a forest of sage brush, ran the sinuous Sweetwater, a streak of silver; high up were granite crags and rock-ribbed hills, the silent peaks turned by the sun's flashing rays into jewelled pillars; far, far away an island of white floated on a sea of deepest blue. Not even Turner's ecstatic touch could have depicted the beauty of that scene. You come to a fork in the road; northward. it leads to Rongis, while the other turns eastward and at the Three Crossings you strike the Sweetwater. Long before you reach the ranch you see a blue wreath of smoke rising skyward. By it you know that Flood, the cook, has refreshed his fire and is getting the dinner ready. And what meals we got in that rough, rude log cabin! When the gong, which consisted of a string of old horse shoes, was touched by the stove poker there was a hurried movement from the bunk-house to the kitchen, which served as dining room also. The air has sharpened your appetite and you go to work without much ceremony. Even Flood's gossip delays you little. You soon find out that Tom Sun's wife presented him with a third edition to the family; that Denny Sheehan, who has been up at Lander as a witness on a stealing case, is to be in tonight; that English Joe passed homewards two days ago from Rongis, somewhat the worse of the wear. You get all the country clash and Pete Heckle, who gets this as a part of his daily ration, utters a low growl, half language, half bark, and asks Flood for some more cornbeef hash. Notwithstanding, the garrulous old man prattles on and gives you his ideas of affairs very freely. The afternoon is spent around the ranch. We have a light supper, gossip an hour or two and then turn in.

Next morning it is a howling storm, an old-fashioned blizzard. The glory of yesterday was but a weather gaw. You can scarcely see the horse barn some seventy-five paces away. How the wind drives and drifts the snow. It curls up on the roofs, stays a while, and as the wind shifts a point it is whisked away and commences its journey towards the great sage-brush flats betwixt the ranch and Green Mountain. There it lodges in great drifts. Pity the poor traveler in such a gale, and what of the sheep herder behind his flock that drifts before the storm? Far away up the mountain side Jesse Johnson is a prisoner in his cabin just as much as Bonnivard was in the cellar at Chillon; and so it blows and rages and comes down the valleys with sullen roar. You pick up a novel or study a Montgomery Ward catalogue for amusement, but ever and anon the fury of the storm attracts your attention. It fascinates you, wraps you in its power as the snake paralyzes and coils itself round its victim. At bedtime there was a lull, the roar had changed to a low moan, and next morning we looked over a whitened valley, the sun trying to pierce a dull, gray atmosphere. At breakfast Flood was quiet, something was on his mind, and at last he ejaculated in his quaint western way: "English Joe must have had a hell of a time yesterday." The sequel will tell the story. When we had finished we walked over to the barn to look at the few head of horses that were kept up in winter for the little ranch work that went on from day to day. Just as we came out a boy galloped up to the door, came to a sudden halt, almost throwing his horse on his haunches. It was Mackenzie's son, and without saying good morning he addressed us generally: "Say, men, dad wants you to come down and help find English Joe. We found the sheep, but the herder's gone."

In the West you get accustomed to quick action. Our first movement was to the bunkhouse, get our coats, gloves and overshoes, saddles were thrown quickly on the horses, and in less than fifteen minutes we were on our way. The snow was light and dry, the cow ponies with their fox-trot scattered it like dust. Where the road had been cleared by the wind we broke into a lope, and were soon opposite Split Rock. Under its shadow Joe had bedded his sheep the night previous to the storm. When they had begun to drift no one could tell. They had crossed the ice on the river and kept on southward, so we turned on their trail, guided by the boy. The sky had cleared and the sun was shining brilliantly. In the valley the gray sage-brush hid the snow, its branches covered with frozen frills that sparkled in the sun. Up on the foothills before you got to the timber it was a sea of white. Far away we could see Mackenzie and his man gathering the sheep. So we hurried on and rode up a draw at the head of which we would be right close to the sheep. We rode in Indian file. Charles Rynearson, who knew every foot of the ground, led, Denny Sheehan next, Pete Heckle after him, then the writer, and lastily the Mackenzie boy. Suddenly Rynearson turned up a little gully, got off his horse, and before we realized it, Joe's dog ran up to him. A little farther there was Joe himself, sitting, half-leaning against the bank. His feet and legs were covered with snow. Pete Heckle gave a cowboy yell, but Joe answered not. Then Rynearson gently shook him, but the lithe old man was stiff; his spirit had fled hours before. Exhausted he had sat down, and that sleep which knows no ending so far as man can tell had evidently come over him easily, for there were no signs of trouble on his face. It was calm and gentle looking, no signs of a struggle, just a fading away from earthly scenes to the unknown bourne. As he lay down, worn out, the frost benumbing his limbs, bringing on that drowsiness that alleviates the pains of death, perchance his thoughts went back to English vales, to the nutwood on the hill, to the noisy rookery beyond his garden, to the little river by whose banks his children played, to the dancing fire where in winter nights of long ago his wife and he had spent many a genial hour. Then, oh God! blot out the balance, for the anchor is dropped and one more human ship is at rest.

We stood there for a while, death on one side, desolate surrounding on the other, the valley of the Sweetwater below us, beyond the river great piles of ragged rocks—a weird, uncanny scene. Pete Heckle gave a great sob and then cried like a child; there were tears in every eye; the old collie with pensive look could not take in the situation. He would first smell his master, poke his nose into his side as in days of yore, and getting no response, would turn round facing the Mackenzie boy, wanting to know the reason of this strange meeting, his master voiceless, the whole world upset so far as he was concerned. Rynearson mounted his horse, we all followed suit, and shortly after met Mackenzie and told him the sad tale of finding Joe.

By noon Joe's body had been brought in a wagon to the Mackenzie ranch. A rough blanket sheltered it from the sun. It was a solemn meeting round the table as we tried to eat a bite and drink some coffee. Gus Lankin, the old trapper who lived in a little canyon north of Split Rock, had joined us. With that second sight, which seemed to dwell in a hermit's breast, he had a premonition of evil, that same feeling expressed by the seer in "Lochiel" of "coming events cast their shadows before." In this world opposites often love one another, and thus Gus and Joe, distant as the poles in their nature, were fast friends. Gus was a powerful Swede, somewhat morose, a hunter by nature, his home hid away amid aspens and willows by the side of a bubbling stream. No monk's cell could have been further away from the world than his abode. Joe was the reverse—small, wiry, nervous, loving the sunshine and very loquacious, especially when he had imbibed a little. The mystery of friendship is so profound that no man can fathom it.

In the circumstances we all bent to Gus' opinions as to the burial, and in his strong, guttural notes and foreign accent, he said: "We will lay him among the rocks. There is a sepulcher not made by human hands in Wild Horse canyon. There he will be alone, no person to disturb his long rest." This settled the question. A dim trail led from the ranch to the canyon. The horsemen went ahead and the wagon, driven by Mackenzie, followed on. We passed Gus' ranch, went through his patch of a meadow, then turned sharply up a deep ravine, dark, weird, fantastic—fit place for a ghost's abode or a brownie's bed. We all dismounted, threw the reins over our ponies' heads and followed Gus' lead. Above the great granite rocks lay in confused masses, but our leader knew his way. Up the bed of a channel where the water came down from winter snows melted by summer suns we reached a big bench of rock. Without a word Gus pointed to a niche in the rocks, a ready-made grave, possibly the one he had selected for himself. Unconsciously, without a word, we began to collect stones and laid them near the spot. Boulders big and little were in abundance, but it took time and work to get flat stones to bridge over the narrow place where Joe was to lie. Our work was nearly over when we heard Mackenzie's "coo-ey, coo-ey" below. He had just cleared the pasture and could get no further. When we joined him the problem was how to get the body up. Gus pulled the gate from the fence, a rough, home-made one of ash limbs and barbed wire. A blanket was laid on it, then came Joe's body, and another blanket to cover it. The silence was over-powering. Some poet has described it as audible. Was there a similar scene near Nebo's top when Moses was laid away in the valley of Moab near to Bethpeor?

Slowly, not very surely, we carried the gate with its inanimate burden up the dry watercourse and finally reached the selected place. Then we wrapped English Joe in the blankets and laid him reverently in his narrow bed. Gus Lankin selected the flat stones and laid them across the little niche. Joe's body lay clear, not a stone touched his person, and when Gus had done his special work, we piled the stones all over and around him, and today if you go there you will see a cairn of boulders heaped some three feet high. In my imagination I have stood by the bedside of little Nell, and have heard Colonel Newcome say Adsum, but this was reality, for below those stones lay a British heart and all that was left of a life that had not been crowned with success.

We filed slowly back to our horses. We had left Joe alone except for the old dog. I looked back. There he was on his haunches, his head drooped as if in silent prayer, last and best friend Joe probably ever had. A few days afterwards he came down to the trapper's cabin; food he refused and soon after died. Then, as if there was something tragic in the air, less than a year afterwards Gus Lankin died by his own hand, and his friends found him a resting place near to English Joe.

The foregoing sketch by Mr. John Clay was originally issued in pamphlet form, and has been quite generally distributed, especially among sheepmen, during the past few weeks. In response to many expressions of appreciation and suggestions that it should be given a wider audience Mr. Clay has consented to its publication in these columns.

We still have a few copies of the story in attractive pamphlet form, and shall be pleased to mail one upon request to such of our readers as may wish to preserve it.

Fine Prospects for Corn in Iowa.

"In the seven years that I have been making annual visits to Miller Bros.' farms near Olds, Ia., never were prospects better for the corn crop there than now," remarked Mr. James Frazier, who recently returned from a trip out there. "Miller Bros. showed me a field of corn on one of their several farms that last year averaged 90 bushels per acre and said that the crop this year is fully as good or better. And this is only a sample of the corn in that country. Two weeks ago one-third of the corn had brown shucks on the ears, being insured against damage from frost. Long-fed cattle are all marketed from that part of the state. A good many cattle are being put in for a short feed and a goodly number will be fed for the winter market.

"Farm land values are rising rapidly there. Seven years ago, when I made my first visit to Miller Bros., $100 an acre was the highest land had ever brought in that section. The same land is now worth $200@250 per acre. Last winter Miller Bros. bought a farm at $160 an acre and recently refused an offer of $200 per acre for it. During the past thirty days they bought another farm at $250 an acre."

To Eastern Shippers.

Very likely East Buffalo is your market. If so, don't overlook the fact that Clay, Robinson & Co., while "Best in the West" are also strong in the East. Our East Buffalo branch is in position to give you splendid service in the handling of your cattle, hogs or sheep, having exceptionally able salesmen in all branches. Correspond with them, call upon them when at East Buffalo, and, most important of all, consign to them if you want the best service that market affords.

Exports of Beef Keep Dwindling.

For August the exports of canned beef, cured beef and oleomargarine were slightly in excess of a year ago. There was three million pounds less beef sent out, three and a half million pounds less tallow and a million pounds less each of oleo oil, hams and bacon. The total value of exports for the month was $10,554,381, compared to $9,959,163 in August a year ago. Exports of meat animals for the month was only a little over half a million dollars in value.

For the eight months of the year to date the deficiency in export values of meat products as compared to 1909 is shown by these figures to be over 21 million dollars. Totals are given as $72,906,678, compared to $94,223,134 for the similar period of last year. This is the lowest total for this period since our meat export trade assumed any magnitude. Losses for the eight months as compared to a year ago were in lard, 100 million pounds; bacon, 70 million pounds; hams and shoulders, 50 million pounds; oleo oil, 41 million pounds; tallow, 31 million pounds; fresh beef, 25 million pounds; pork, 8 million pounds; cured beef, 7 million pounds.

Exports of meat animals for the eight months were but half what they were a year ago and total values were $5,177,307, compared to $10,252,241 a year ago.

Corn Crop Rapidly Coming to Safety.

The big corn crop is rapidly coming to safety, each day of good weather of the last week bringing many millions of bushels over the line. Killing frost would still impair the quality of a great deal of corn in the big surplus producing states, but it would not greatly reduce the bulk of the crop. The latter now seems safely the largest that this country ever raised unless the government is seriously at fault in its estimates of the acreage. The area planted is officially given as virtually 5 per cent more than last year, which will go far toward making up for any shortcomings in the way of poor stand, barren stalks and faulty filling of the ears. Another week of good weather, not necessarily bright or warm, but without killing frosts, would reduce the percentage of unmerchantable corn in this country to around the ordinary and a few more days of warm and dry weather would probably finish out one of the finest as well as one of the largest crops ever ripened.

British Beef Markets are Different.

Methods employed in the raising and marketing of live stock in England afford an interesting contrast when measured by the wholesale standards in vogue in this country.

G. de S. Hamilton, one of Wyoming's largest stock growers, was born on English soil and still claims residence under the crown, spending his winters in the British kingdom and his summers under the mellow sun that gilds Wyoming's foothills. Mr. Hamilton was a market visitor at South Omaha and indulged in a short descriptive sketch, according to the Journal-Stockman.

"English markets are distinctly local in their scope," said he. "Each community produces its own meat and supplies its own wants, the national market having more nuclei than a nation-wide banking system. Production is by no means as great as the production in this country of course, and whole ship loads of beef and mutton are imported to feed the hungry millions. Some of it arrives in the carcass and some of it on the hoof, but inspection rules are stringent, forbiding the finishing of live importations. Stock received at the port of entry must be turned into consumptive channels."

Mr. Hamilton also observed that English markets are more properly auction affairs. The highest bidder is the one that buys, resulting in a trade subject to wide fluctuations.

High Sale for Chas. H. Hacke.

Chas. H. Hacke of Carlinsville, Ill., was on the East St. Louis market Sept. 20 with 42 head of 787-lb yearling steers and heifers mixed which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $7.35, topping the market by 35c per cwt for such offerings. They were grade Shorthorns and Galloways and of fair to good quality. Mr. Hacke had had them on a full feed of corn for about six months. The good condition of the stock was indicative of his ability to prepare baby beef cattle for the shambles. Mr. Hacke is a young man and this was his first experience with such cattle, although he has been topping the market with weightier cattle for the past three years. He is now feeding a load of Herefords of very fine quality and expects to have them ready for the Christmas trade at East St. Louis, of which market he speaks very highly.

The Late John A. Craig.

In a tribute by Prof. Curtiss to the memory of the late Prof. John A. Craig, published in a recent issue of the Breeder's Gazette, occurs the following:

"He was fond of literature, and did a great deal of his best work as a writer from his home in San Antonio, while endeavoring to regain his health. He was a careful reader of the best writings and his mind was stored with the thoughts of leading authors. Not long before his death he sent to some of his friends a beautiful sentiment which seems significant now. It follows:

" 'Lord, make me respect my material so much that I dare not slight my work. Help me to deal very honestly with words and with people, because they are both alive. Show me that as in a river, so in a writing, clearness is the best quality, and a little that is pure is worth more than much that is mixed. Teach me to see the local color without being blind to the inner light. Give me an ideal that will stand the strain of weaving into human stuff on the loom of the real. Keep me from caring more for books than for folks, for art than for life. Steady me to do my full stint of work as well as I can; and when that is done, stop me, pay what wages thou wilt, and help me to say, from a quiet heart, a grateful Amen." '

WYOMING CATTLE THAT BROUGHT A RECORD PRICE AT DENVER.

Another new high price was obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co. for range grass cattle on the Denver market Tuesday, Sept. 13, when they sold 54 head of 1,251-lb Hereford beeves at $6.25. The previous best price there for rangers was $6.00, Clay, Robinson & Co. also making this sale. The price was considered a very strong one, as the market that day was quoted 15@25c lower. Besides choice grades had to sell at $5.70 the previous week. The cattle were raised and marketed by Mrs. Robert Allen of Iron Mountain, Wyo., and were bought by John Wallwork for the Colorado Packing Co. They were even in size and of excellent quality, and elicited much favorable comment from all who saw them. Mrs. Allen, who has shown beyond doubt that a woman can successfully raise cattle, is to be congratulated on marketing such a grand lot of stock. The Allen herd is one of the best in the West.

The Farthing Rangers Top Chicago Market.

H. Farthing, one of the most prominent ranchmen in Wyoming, with headquarters at Cheyenne, had a big string of cattle on the Chicago market Sept. 19, Clay, Robinson & Co. handling the same. Included were 19 dehorned grade Herefords which averaged 1,377 lbs and brought $6.75, the top of the day's market for a load by 25c per cwt. On the same day we sold for J. A. Thornhill of Malta, Mont., a 1,720-lb steer at $7.25.

Good Rains Visit Montana.

D. W. Raymond, secretary of the State of Montana Board of Stock Commissioners, with headquarters at Helena, Mont., writes under date of Sept. 9: "Conditions in Montana have improved greatly in the last three weeks. We have had good rains all over the state. According to our books, cattle shipments from Montana are practically the same as last year, this year being a little ahead, but shipments began nearly two weeks earlier than in 1909."

Great Cruse Ranch is Sold.

Details are being closed up at Lewistown, Mont., for the sale of the Corry-Minger Land Co. of the Great N-bar ranch on Flatwillow, which has been owned by Colonel Cruse of Helena, Mont., for nearly a quarter of a century. The Flatwillow ranch embraces about 17,000 acres of the best farming land in the country and this deal also includes the Cruse holding in Dawson county used for grazing, together with 20,000 head of sheep, 6,500 head of cattle and all the ranch equipment. The consideration is about $400,000, making this deal the largest land transaction of the year in Montana. The purchasers will cut up the big Flatwillow ranch into farms and market them.

Detailed Information on Stock Hogs.

The Crop Reporter for September, published by authority of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson, gives detailed information concerning the number of stock hogs and their condition on the farms of the United States on Sept 1.

This report shows that farmers in the North Central states east of the Mississippi River devoted more attention to hog culture than farmers in any other portion of the Union, the number of stock hogs on farms in those states being 4.9 per cent. larger than on the corresponding date in 1909. Of the five states in this division Ohio makes the best showing, with 10 per cent. more hogs and a condition of 97, against 95 a year ago.

Figures of Five States.

Comparisons for the five states follow:

State—	No. of hogs compared with 1909	Condition 1910	Condition 1909
Ohio	110	97	95
Indiana	106	96	95
Illinois	100	98	96
Michigan	104	97	96
Wisconsin	105	98	98
N. C. E. Miss. R.	104.5	97.2	95.8

The state of Mississippi makes a better showing as an individual state than any other in the Union, with the number of hogs 120 per cent, compared to 100 per cent a year ago, and the condition 95, against a condition of 90 last year. Hogs in Louisiana showed an increase of 15 per cent and an improvement of 2 points in quality. Oklahoma made the poorest showing of all the South Central States, comparisons for which follow:

State—	No. of hogs compared with 1909	Conditions 1910	Conditions 1909
Kentucky	95	97	98
Tennessee	95	95	98
Alabama	105	95	91

Largest Receipts of Westerns Been Seen.

"The largest runs of western range cattle of the season have been seen," remarked Mr. Murdo Mackenzie of Trinidad, Colo., who marketed a big string of cattle from South Dakota through Clay, Robinson & Co. at Chicago last week. "Heavy liquidation is over. Recent soaking rains in the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming have filled the water holes, given the range a new lease on life and inspired the rangeman with more confidence and hope. While the terrible drought was at its worst there was a mad rush to unload, everything from an aged steer down to a yearling, as well as young she stock and high-grade breeding bulls, being cashed in. This was necessary, as the range was burned to a crisp and water was scarce. Then it was also imperative that the holdings be reduced owing to a short hay crop for the coming winter. Happily the worst is over.

"Western range cattle affairs are in an evolution. The day of the big cattle outfits is near to a close. The onward march of the settler and the shortening of the range spell doom to them. Within the next few years they will be only a matter of history. It will be for the best. The future supplies will come from the one to three-load shipper. The small farmer will eventually produce more and better cattle. This will mean more pounds of beef to the animal and help to offset the growing demand from an increasing population."

MURDO MACKENZIE OF TRINIDAD, COLO.

Mr. Mackenzie is one of the best-known and successful men in western range cattle affairs, having been prominently identified with the business for years in both the Southwest and Northwest. He was president of the Texas Cattle Growers' Association, held a similar office in the National Live Stock Association, and was one of the managers of the Prairie Cattle Co. At present he is manager of the Matador Cattle Co., one of the largest ranching firms in this country, having extensive cattle interests in both Texas, South Dakota and the Canadian Northwest.

Mr. Mackenzie remarked that the market has withstood the heavy runs wonderfully well this season. "It is indeed fortunate that there is such broad outlet for both fat and feeder cattle. If there was not prices would fall to a very low level and bring ruin to hundreds of rangemen. Running cattle on the range is an expensive proposition now. On the whole it costs from 33 to 35 per cent more now to produce the beef than it did a few years ago."

An Opinion of a Banker.

W. J. Mulholland, cashier of the Maize State Bank, Maize, Kan., writes: "Enclosed find 50c to cover a year's subscription to the REPORT. All our people here like to see it, and say they can get more information from it than from any of the stock journals."

Two Smashing Top Cattle Sales

On Wednesday, Sept. 21, Clay, Robinson & Co. sold two classes of cattle at the extreme top of the market for the week by 5c and 20c per cwt.

R. Hodgkins of Waveland, Ind., had in 17 prime short two-year-old grade Hereford beeves of 1,272 lbs average which we landed at $8.30, being 5c per cwt higher than any other sale of cattle that day as well as for the week.

H. Gerlaugh of Osborne, Ohio, marketed 54 grade Hereford yearlings of the S M S Texas brand, averaging 837 lbs, which we sold at $7.70, being 20c per cwt higher than any other yearlings made that day as well as for the week. These were the tailends and made the fourth consecutive time that we topped the trade with his yearlings this season.

Huidekoper Purchases an Old-time Ranch.

Wallis Huidekoper, proprietor of the American Ranch, Sweetgrass county, Mont., has purchased the old home ranch of George Wilson ("Two-dot" Wilson) on the Musselshell River at Twodot, and will make it a winter feeding and shipping ranch to run in connection with his American ranch. The Wilson property is one of the old-time outfits of the Musselshell Valley, rich in soil and feed, and will make a valuable adjunct to Mr. Huidekoper's extensive cattle interests.

Regarding our sale of his cattle at Chicago on Sept. 7 at $7.35, topping the season's trade, for a load of rangers, by 10c per cwt, Mr. Huidekoper writes:

"I thank you for your wire regarding the sale of my train of cattle, and also for the extra good attention you must have given my interests to obtain such good prices. I understand the tops brought highest price of the year for a carload lot. They sold better than I had hoped, as, indeed, did the entire train."

Good Crop of Pigs in Nebraska.

Otto Ferguson, Dixon county, Neb., writes: "I shipped to your firm for the past fifteen years at Chicago and South Omaha. My last shipment to South Omaha I consider I got a good price for my cattle and a good fill. Your Mr. Albert Noe, South Omaha, takes the lead as a salesman. We have had good rains in this part of Nebraska. Fall pastures good. Hardly any hogs left in the country. Fat cattle all shipped out. Corn not so good on account of the dry summer. Don't think there will be as much feeding this year as last. Good crop of healthy pigs."

J. W. Higginbotham, Pike county, Mo., writes our South St. Joseph house: "Car of yearling wethers you sent R. J. Hayes arrived. I saw them and looked them over as he brought them in. They are certainly a fine lot. He bought by me telling him what he would get, the service and the kind of folks your firm and people are, etc. I am very much pleased, and Mr. Hays told me to write you and say that he was delighted."

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

J. H. Roup. Routt county, Colo., was on the Denver market with two cars of cows.

W. E. Walker, Branch county, Mich., writes: "Car of lambs arrived and fill the bill to a hair."

Chas. Colburn, Logan county, Ill., writes: "I received car of ewes and am more than pleased with them."

W. H. McFarlen, Genesee county, Mich., writes: "Received car of lambs and was well pleased with them."

E. H. Fletcher & Co., Genesee county, Mich., write: "Sheep arrived and were all O.K. No fault to find."

S. M. Bowman, Howard county, Mo., writes our Kansas City house: "Received the sheep and am pleased."

Ted Stewart and W. A. Hovey were at South Omaha with a consignment of cattle from Scotts Bluff county, Neb.

Eugene McCarthy, prominent flockmaster of Natrona county, Wyo., was at South Omaha with a train of lambs.

Sept. 13 our South Omaha house sold at $5.80 a car of good 1,153-lb feeder cattle for Harry Farthing, Laramie county, Wyo.

Walter K. Starbird, Weed county, Colo., a regular shipper to our firm, was on the Denver market with a car of cows and calves.

J. A. Hopkins, Marion county, Kan., writes our Kansas City house: "Lambs arrived O. K. and I think they are a good lot."

E. F. Brownlee, Warren county, Ill.: "Sheep arrived and are doing fine. All who have seen them think they are a good bunch."

H. G. Hawarth, Jo Daviess county, Ill., writes our South St. Paul house: "Sheep arrived O.K. and was well pleased with them."

John Cail, Garfield county, Neb., for several years a regular customer of our South Omaha house, was there last week with two cars of cattle.

Ray C. Denham, Lorain county, Ohio, writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for two years' subscription to the REPORT. I can't get along without it."

O. F Williams, McLean county, Ill.: "Shipment of lambs arrived in good shape and are filling up nicely. They fill the bill. Thank you."

W. B. Austin, Rock county, Wis., writes: "Sheep arrived in good shape and seem to be doing very nicely. I am well pleased with your selection."

It was the pleasure of our Denver house to handle for J. M. Nuckolls, the well-known shipper from Mesa county, Colo., a train of cattle at top prices.

Crook county, Wyo., shipments of cattle to the South Omaha market included consignments from J. G. Bunney, E. C. Mortenson and N. M. Nelson.

The W. F. Hamilton 106-lb wethers from Converse county, Wyo., were on the South Omaha market Sept. 12 and sold at $4.35, top of the market for a load.

H. L. Buford, Shelby county, Mo., was the owner and our house the sellers of the lot of 68-lb lambs which topped the East St. Louis market Sept. 16 at $7.00.

Wm. T. Brubaker, Page county, Va., writes: "Load of cattle received and I am well pleased with them. When I need more I will be glad to order from you."

Our South Omaha house reports handling cattle last week from Butte county, S. D., for A. Harmon, Chas. Milberg, H. Reikke, W. Youngberg, Otto Anderson and H. C. Wilson.

H. L. Brennin was on the South Omaha market looking after the shipment of three cars of cattle and thirteen cars of sheep for the Table Mountain Sheep Co., Converse county, Wyo.

Sept. 12 our Denver house handled for the Yampa Live Stock & Loan Co., Routt county, Colo., a nine-car shipment of steers, selling 63 head, averaging 1,168 lbs, at $5.05, top for the day.

Johnson & Sims, St. Francois county, Mo., had a deck of lambs and sheep on the East St. Louis market Sept. 19. Our house sold the sheep at $4.35, the top, and the lambs at $6.75 straight.

Our good friend T. S. Steed, Natrona county, Wyo., was at South Omaha with a consignment of cattle. Other cattle shipments from there included a car from P. C. Nicolaysen and J. Greenlaw.

Our Denver house handled hogs for the following well-known shippers: E. S. Wildy, Boxbutte county, Neb.; Arriba Trading Co., Lincoln county, Colo., and Kilpatrick Bros., Chase county, Neb.

Ross Amspoker, a progressive young cattleman of Keyapaha county, Neb., was at South Omaha on Sept. 12 with five cars of cattle. Included was a car of feeders, averaging 1,078 lbs, that brought $5.35.

MILLER BROS. OF OLDS, IOWA.

These gentlemen are among the most noted and popular feeders and shippers of live stock, as well as farmers, in the corn belt. They deal in cattle, hogs and sheep by the thousands annually and are very familiar figures on the Chicago market. They have been liberal and consistent clients of Clay, Robinson & Co. for around twenty years. It is needless to say that Miller Bros. would not have continued their patronage unless we had rendered them first-class service in every respect. They buy cattle and hogs at seven stations in Iowa and their big land holdings are in one of the best farming sections of that state. As in previous years, Miller Bros.' cattle have been in the blue ribbon fat class at most of the International Expositions, and this year they will have more fine exhibits. They are feeding a load each of the three noted beef breeds, namely, Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus, all being of the heavy class. Also they will have two loads of lighter weight, as well as other excellent cattle for market purposes.

On Sept 15 our South Omaha house report handling a single deck of sheep for F. M. Woods, Wayne county, Neb. Included were 60 native lambs that averaged 86 lbs and sold at $7.10, highest figure for several weeks.

Washington county, Idaho, was represented on the Chicago lamb market Sept. 15 with 1,402 feeders of of 56 lbs average. They were sold by us at $6.85, top for feeders for that week, and were marketed by L. Seawell.

Our South St. Paul house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following shippers: O. Malmen, Becker county, Minn.; Fred Schulte, Pierce county, Wis.: Thompson & Sons, and E. D. Paquin, Todd county, Minn.

Among those represented with shipments at the South St. Paul market were the Diamond A Cattle Co., Los Animas county, Colo.; L. Morgan, Hennipin county, Minn.; W. H. Michiner, Robert county, S.D.; J. R. Clemens, Ransom county, N. D.

Shipments of cattle to our South Omaha house included a consignment from L. S. Howes, Custer county, Mont; H. G. Weare, Butte county, S. D.; J. T. Hawley, Grant county, Neb., and twenty six cars from J. A. Yaryan, Grant county, Neb.

Henry M. Halff, Midland county, Tex., writes under date of Sept. 10: "We are in the midst of the worst drouth this country has ever known, and we will be glad if we can keep our cattle alive. All crops in this country this year are a total failure."

James McGraw of Rosebud county, Mont., marketed a big string of sheep through our Chicago house Sept. 15. Among the sales were 350 feeding wethers at $4.30 and 146 feeding ewes at $3.50, prices that were at the summit for the respective classes last week.

William Steele represented Gasconade county, Mo., on the East St. Louis market Sept. 14 with a deck of mixed southwestern sheep and lambs. Our house handled the shipment and sold the lambs, averaging 78 lbs, at $6.50, and the sheep at $4.35, top for the respective classes.

C. A. Barnes, president of the State Bank of Tabor, Ia., writes: "We like the sale you made for us. I think that was the first sale you have made for me in Chicago for twenty years. You sold for me in Kansas City a lot a few years ago and bought 450 steers for me in Colorado."

At Chicago last week the limit for aged sheep was $4.40 for wethers and $4.25 for ewes. We obtained both prices Sept. 15 for the H. Witt offerings from Yellowstone county, Mont. The wethers numbered 887 head and averaged 102 lbs and the ewes, 322 head, tipped the beam at 95 lbs.

H. E. Schmidt, Massac county, Ill., was the owner and our house the sellers of the sheep which topped the market at East St. Louis on Sept. 15 at $4.50. They also landed his breeding ewes at the top price of $5.25 on the same day, as well as those belonging to Edgar L. Wiley, Buchannan county, Mo.

Our house topped the South St. Joseph hog market 5c per cwt Sept. 15, selling for B. D. Lemert, Doniphan county, Kan., a load, averaging 167 lbs, at $9.55. The next highest price was $9.50, at which they also sold two loads, one for George Masters, Nodaway county, Mo., averaging 195 lbs, and one of 194 lbs average for T. J. Hickman, Andrew county, Mo.

The Freeland Livestock Co., Carbon county, Wyo., write our South Omaha house: "We received your favor with account of sales for sheep and are very much pleased with same. We expect to have more lambs on the market in a month or so, and trust that we may be equally pleased with their returns. Thank you for the attention you gave our shipment."

Extreme high price for lambs at Chicago on Sept. 16, as well as for that week, was $7.25. We obtained this figure for three different lots of natives, sales following: For H. Smith, Minnehaha county, S. D., 68 of 77 lbs average; O. W. Schmitter, Washington county, Ia., 53 averaging 70 lbs; C. J. Booth, St. Croix county, Wis., 69 of 73 lbs average. We also landed Mr. Smith's 32 sheep of 125 lbs average at the top price of $4.50 for that day.

Following parties had stock to our South St. Paul house: T. W. Longley, Rosebud county, Mont., seven cars of cattle; Peter Braun, Stark county, N. D., nine cars of sheep; M. T. Newman, six cars of of sheep; A. M. Lyke and F. E. Ullyott, Clark county, S. D.; C. R. Carman, Walworth county, S. D.; Fowler Farm Co., Cass county, N, D.; Beeh Bros., Stutsman county, N. D.; Thorpe Bros., Norman county, Minn.; A. Asleson, Nelson county, N. D.; D. Leahy, Corson county, S. D.; Bert Griffis, Billings county, N. D.; F. Fryer, Cottonwood county, Minn.

RANGE CATTLE AND SHEEP AT CHICAGO AND SOUTH OMAHA

Current Comment and Chicago Quotations to Wednesday Noon.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

Receipts of western range cattle at Chicago this week and for year to date, with comparison, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

This week	28,000
Last week	24,000
Year ago	31,000
Receipts for season of 1910 to date	152,200
Corresponding period of 1909	138,700
Corresponding period of 1908	167,200

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Steers				Cows and Heifers
	Range.		Bulk.		Bulk.
This week	$4.75@	7.00	$5.00@	5.85	$3.75@	4.75
Last week	4.85	7.00	5.15	6.00	3.75	4.75
Year ago	4.25	7.00	4.65	5.65	3.50	4.50
Two years ago	3.50	6.25	4.25	5.00	3.25	4.00

One of the worst markets of the season was had Thursday last week. Supplies were only 3,000, but the demannd was not equal to half this number. Trade dragged and prices broke mostly 15@20c. Few sales had been made before the noon hour and at the close no small number of offerings were still unsold, due to lack of bids. Few sales were above $5.50. She stock and feeders were weaker sale.

A very mean trade again Friday. Receipts were 1,500. Beef steers were no lower, but it was hard work to effect a clearance. There was no quotable change in the market for either she stuff or feeders.

Receipts for the week totaled 24,000, the largest run of the season, and compared with 14,500 the previous week and 28,000 corresponding week of last year. Buyers made the most of the big supply and hammered the price range hard, as attested by a decline of 30@50c for beef steers, 15@25c for cows and heifers, and around 25c for stockers and feeders not grading good to choice, these holding about steady.

This week started out with a run of 8,000. The only satisfactory thing about the market was that prices held steady. Trading was dull throughout the session. Quality of offerings was very plain and considerable sorting had to be done before they could be put an sale. However, a good clearance was made. WE OBTAINED THE TOP PRICE OF $6.75 for 19 head of the 1,377-lb H. Farthing dehorned Hereford offerings from Wyoming, and sold one Montana steer of 1,720-lb weight at $7.25. But there were few offerings of value above $5.75. She stock went steady, as did also stockers and feeders.

In spite of the liberal total of 8,000 on Tuesday, prices were held steady for beef steers. Buyers gave fairly good support to the market and a clearance was effected in due time. An extra choice load of Montanas reached $7.00, best price of the day. Our sales included two loads of the M. W. Wright beeves from Hinsdale, Mont., at $6.25 and the J. S. Peck offerings from the same place at a like price, and also a load of Mr. Peck's steers at $6.00. She stock strong sale, and stockers and feeders steady.

Marketing Wednesday totaled 6,000. Trade was dull throughout the long-drawn out session, due to sellers stoutly resisting the bearish attacks of buyers. It was later than usual before a trading basis had been established. Finally the better grades were landed at steady prices, while others showed 10c loss. Quality was only fair and few sales were above $5.75. Beef grades of cows and heifers steady, but canners and cutters sold strong to 10c higher. Stockers and feeders went 10@15c lower.

Our advise is to keep the good fat cattle coming as fast as possible, as well as other grades that are intended for the market this season. We anticipate a good demand for the well-fatted steers and she stock right along, and also a broad outlet for feeding stock.

Range Sheep.

Following shows top prices for and bulk sales of western range sheep and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Sheep			Lambs
	Top.	Bulk.		Top.	Bulk.
This week	$4.50	$4.00@	4.40	$7.30	$6.85@	7.15
Last week	4.65	4.25	4.40	7.20	6.85	7.00
Year ago	5.15	4.40	5.10	7.25	6.85	7.10
Two years ago	4.25	3.50	4.00	5.75	4.50	5.60

Receipts Thursday of last week 21,585. It was a brisk and 10@20c higher deal in lambs, a very choice string of Nevadas making $7.20, highest since July. Sheep and yearlings mostly steady to strong, with exceptions 10c higher. Wethers and ewes of a good fat class landed at $4.15 and $4.40 respectively. Active market for feeder stock at generally steady prices. Lambs reached $6.85, light yearlings $5.60, and WE LANDED several big strings of Montana wethers at $4.30 and ewes at $3.35. Run Friday 9,700. Prices were stronger for lambs and steady for yearlings and sheep. Choice lambs were missing, best offered going at $7.00. WE TOPPED the sheep market with Montana ewes and wethers mixed at $4.30. Steady prices prevailed for the few feeders at hand. As compared with the close of the previous week lambs for slaughter showed around 25c advance and feeders 10c. There was no material change in the market for either fat or feeder yearlings and sheep.

Supplies at the start of this week 45,577. Buyers were lively bidders for both fat and feeder offerings of desirable quality, and these sold in due season at steady to strong prices. The trend of rates for the plainer kinds was towards a lower basis. A string of fancy 84-lb Washington lambs sold up to $7.30, and most feeders at $6.75@6.85. Best yearlings at $5.50, and top wethers at $4.50, while bulk of feeders made $4.25, which price WE OBTAINED FOR SEVERAL DIFFERENT STRINGS. Tuesday's marketing 48,318. Offerings for slaughter sold readily at prices steady to strong, but there was urgency to the demand for feeders and where there was any quotable change it was towards a lower basis. Fancy Idaho lambs topped at $7.30 and best feeders $6.85, WE SECURING this price for 1,313 Oregons. WE ALSO LANDED 1,065 feeding yearlings from Wyoming at the top price of $5.50, Wyoming wethers at $4.25 and yearling breeding ewes from Oregon at $6.00. The best mutton sheep brought $4.40 for wethers. Receipts Wednesday 45,000. After the best lambs were sold at a steady range, the market weakened and closed unevenly lower for the less desirable grades. Top was again $7.30 for fancy Idahos. Best sheep steady and others lower sale. Top wethers made $4.40. Desirable feeders went fully steady, but others lower.

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

Below will be found bulk sales of feeder sheep, yearlings and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk Sheep.		Bulk Yearlings.		Bulk Lambs.
This week	$3.25@4.25		$5.25@5.50		$6.75@6.85
Last week	4.10	4.25	5.25	5.50	6.60	6.85

Two years ago	2.50	3.85	3.75	4.00	4.50	4.90

There was a continuation of liberal receipts of feeding sheep and lambs and a hungry demand the past week. Buyers tried hard to lower the price range, but their efforts availed them nothing, fully steady prices prevailing for the best kinds. Top lambs went out at a cost of $6.85, yearlings $5.50, wethers $4.25 and ewes $3.35. Range yearling breeding ewes cost up to $6.00.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of feeder sheep and lambs.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Neb., Sept. 20—There was a liberal run of cattle here last week, bulk of which comprised common and medium grades. The few good steers, as well as she stock, found fairly ready outlet at prices not quotably changed from previous week's close, but others went 15@25c lower, which also applied to stockers and feeders. Top beeves brought $6.75, against our sale of $6.80 previous week. Feeders continue to take the fleshy steers at strong prices. Good to choice cows and heifers made $4.25@$5.00, fair to good $3.50@4.00, with veal calves at $4.50@7.00.

Tuesday's trade in the best beef grades was steady with last week's close, but other kinds, as well as stockers and feeders, declined 10@15c. Quality of offerings was very ordinary.

Range Sheep.

Sheep and lambs last week were in heaviest supply of the season. Barring old wethers and ewes, both killers and feeders, which showed a little loss, there was no change from previous week's finish. Good lambs sold at $6.50@6.85, heavy yearlings $4.50@5.00, wethers $4.00@4.35 and ewes $3.75@4.10. Good feeding lambs brought $5.75@6.45, good light lambs $5.25@5.75, light yearlings $5.00@5.45, wethers $3.75@4.10 and ewes $2.25@3.25.

On the first two market days of this week fat lambs were scarce and Tuesday's market was fully steady with last week's close, best going at $7.00. Sheep sold 10@15c lower, with wethers around $4.00 and ewes at $3.40@3.85. Good feeders were merely a shade easier, but there were a good many common and medium kinds which were hard to move.

Marketing Thursday of last week 6,018. It was one of the most unsatisfactory deals in weeks. Demand was very indifferent from all buyers and the trade dragged throughout the session, with most sales at 10@15c decline, extending to all grades. Top was $7.95, paid for 32 head of 1,536 lbs average, but there were not many sales above $7.25. Friday supply 2,880. Quality of offerings was common and demand poor. Prices were no more than steady. Best offered were 20 head of 1,372 lbs average at $7.40. As compared with the close of last week offerings of value above $8.00 showed 20@35c loss, the $6.75@8.00 grades 35@60c and the $6.00@6.75 kinds 15@25c, such as went under $6.00 being steady sale, due to competition from feeder buyers. WE TOPPED the week's yearling market 10c per cwt by selling Ohio-Texans from the Gerlaugh feed lot at $7.75. There were 44 in the lot and they averaged 885 lbs.

At the start of this week supplies totaled 28,577. While a very uneven affair, the market was more satisfactory to the selling interests. Offerings of value above $7.25 were 10c higher, those between $6.50@7.25, which were of good quality and flesh, advanced 15@25c, while those going under $6.50 were merely steady. Plain and medium grades comprised a heavy proportion of the total run, thus a good share of the arrivals were obtained by buyers at steady rates. Twenty-seven head of prime 1,620 lbs average topped the trade at $8.25. However, there were few sales higher than $7.50, bulk being at that price down to $6.00. Tuesday receipts 10,455. A quiet but about steady market. Bulk offerings were plain to medium grades, best offered going at $7.50 for 20 head of 1,350 lbs average. Wednesday's total of 17,000 proved too many and the price range was lowered 10@15c. Good to choice kinds were in larger quota than of late weeks. WE TOPPED the market 5c per cwt with the Hodgkins-Indiana short two-year-old grade Herefords at $8.30, they numbering 17 head and averaging 1,272 lbs, and also the yearling market 20c per cwt with 54 of the Gerlaugh 837-lb Ohio-Texas grade Herefords at $7.70.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

A more active trade Thursday of last week for cows and heifers. Demand was fairly good from all sources at steady prices. Bulls went 10c higher, due to good outside orders. A strong to higher market for calves, prime vealers making $9.75. On Friday the small run of cows and heifers met dull but about steady sale, though showing mostly 25c decline from one week ago, barring canners and cutters, which were 10@15c lower. Bulls steady, but 15@20c up from Friday of last week. A steady deal in calves, but 25c higher than one week ago.

Sellers tried hard to boost prices for cows and heifers at the start of this week, but their efforts availed them nothing. Buyers steadfastly refused to make concessions, and thus steady rates were the rule. A load of extra choice yearling heifers and steers mixed brought $7.00. An active trade in bulls at prices strong to 10c higher. Calves sold steady for the best kinds and 25c lower for others. Tuesday's trade in cows and heifers was fairly active at strong prices. Bulls went strong to 10c higher. Calves sold 25c higher than last week's close. Wednesday's trade in beef grades of cows and heifers was a slow but steady deal, while canners and cutters made a firm price range.

The light run Thursday of last week was absorbed in due time at generally steady prices, both local and outside buyers showing good interest. Friday trade was weaker, although as compared with the close of the previous week the better grades showed a stronger range and common and medium grades were 10@15c lower.

A strong to 10c higher market for stockers and feeders at the start of this week. The demand from all sources was brisk, especially from the East. With fall pastures in good shape and practical assurance of a big crop of corn the country is stocking up at a fast rate. On Tuesday there was a light supply and a big attendance of buyers and and prices ruled strong to 10c higher. The Wednesday trade had duller tone and prices ruled weak to 10c lower.

Thursday of last week the market opened 15@25c higher on speculative and shipping account. The packers did not follow up the advance, and trading ceased for a while. Later they bought a limited number at prices 10@15c higher. Fresh supply was 10,813 and stale stock 11,507, largest hold-over total since April 18. Top was $9.65, same as previous day. Most shipping grades of all weights at $9.00@9.45 and bulk packers $8.45@8.65. Receipts Friday 5,338. Light and medium weights advanced 10@15c. but heavy weights were no better. The close was mean. A top of $9.80 was made for fancy 190 lbs average and prime barrows of 391 lbs average had to sell at $9.00. The wide spread of $8.60@9.60 took the bulk. Run Saturday 5,745. Market was slow, but prices not quotably changed from the previous day. Packing grades mostly at $8.50@8.75. As compared with the close of the previous week it was a 15@25c lower deal.

This week started out with 20,861. With the exception of a few early sales at steady prices, the market was 10@25c lower from start to finish. The close was on the bottom. A slack shipping demand caused the good kinds to suffer most. An early top at $9.80, but later on $9.50 bought the best light weights that ever walked. Heavy packing and mixed packing went mostly at $8.50@8.75, with shipping grades largely at $8.90@9.45. Tuesday run 13,074. Most trading was at 10@25c decline, the good kinds showing most loss, due to a slack shipping demand. The limit was $9.50 and $8.45@9.00 took a big slice of the crop. Receipts Wednesday 17,000. Prices anywhere from 10@15c lower, good grades as usual bearing the brunt of the decline. Most shipping grades went at $8.75@9.15 and bulk packers $8.20@8.50. Top $9.30.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of hogs:

Good to choice assorted light shipping	$9 15 @	9 35
Fair to choice butchers	8 80	9 00
Fair to choice heavy shipping	8 75	8 90
Poor to good light mixed	8 80	9 10

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Thursday of last week the lid was finally pried off the lamb market and prices were boosted mostly 10@15c. One lot of fancy 74 lbs average reached $7.25, best price since July, and bulk sales were at $6.75@7.00. Sheep were slower and merely steady sale, with bulk desirable ewes going around $4.25 On Friday lambs sold on a stronger basis and sheep steady. WE TOPPED the market at $7.25 with three different lots, as well as the sheep trade at $4.50. As compared with the close of last week

Choice Feeding Lambs Coming.

A shipment of the Keeline lambs is expected on the Chicago market for the week beginning Monday, Oct. 3. These lambs, as is generally known, have a great reputation as choice feeders.

lambs were mostly 25c higher and sheep were not materially changed. Top lambs for the week at $7.25 and sheep at $4.85 were HANDLED BY US.

At the start of this week lambs sold steady to 10c lower and sheep steady. Buyers tried hard to hammer the market all along the line, but the moderate proportion of good fat grades precluded a bear campaign. Best lambs offered brought $7.15 and sales were mostly at $6.50@7.00. Ewes sold largely around $4.25, with a top at $4.50. Tuesday's market was steady to strong. A fancy lot of lambs reached $7.35, but big packers stopped at $7.25. Best heavy ewes reached $4.50. The Wednesday lamb market opened steady, but closed 15@25c lower. A prime class reached $7.25 early, but just as good had to go at $7.00 later on. Sheep generally steady, best ewes offered going at $4.40.

East St. Louis Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

National Stock Yards, Ill., Sept. 20—There has been a liberal supply of cattle here thus far this week, with strictly good kinds scarce. Best heavy weight steers reached $7.90. Tuesday's market ruled about steady. Quality of steers showed a better average than Monday. Choice to prime steers were quotable at $7.60@8.10. good to choice $6.75@7.60 and medium to good $5.75@6.75. Choice to prime yearlings were quotable at $7.00@7.85 and good to choice $6.25@7.00. Butchers stock trade was active for best heifers and mixed lots, although good cows were slow sale. Stockers and feeders show active movement. Good supply of Southern cattle and trading very irregular. Business generally steady to strong.

Receipts of hogs were moderate, but prices fell 25@35c under last Saturday. Tuesday market draggy. Top hogs $9.60, with bulk $9.10@9.50. Light weights to the packers were a plain grade and brought $9.25@9.50, butchers $9.05@9.40 and plain heavy $8.75@9.00.

Moderate receipts of sheep and lambs first two days of this week. Best lambs $7.00@7.25, medium to good $6.25@6.85, fair $5.50@6.10, with best throwouts $4.50@5.00. Good mutton sheep mostly $4.25@4.35, breeding ewes $4.50@5.00 and stockers $2.50@4.00.

South Omaha, East St. Louis and South St. Joseph count calves as cattle.

Here's Food for Thought.

One of the leading dealers in stocker and feeder cattle was heard to remark:

"If it were not for the outside buyers—those who have the false idea they can save a commission charge by purchasing direct from us—there would not be a living in the business. Expert buyers from the commission firms are too well posted on the classifying of cattle, trade conditions and true market prices to permit us turning even a fair profit."

This dealer stated a fact well known by those who are in close touch with the situation at the leading markets. We are sorry to say it is not as well known as it should be by all feeder buyers.

Do not delude yourself with the thought you can buy cattle yourself at any market to the best advantage. Only those who have their fingers on the pulse of the market daily can do this.

All we ask is that you give us a trial. We have expert buyers on all of the leading feeder markets whose sole aim is to purchase the best cattle at the cheapest cost. They can save you money.

Serum May Solve Big Problem.

The successful experiments with serum at South Omaha recently bid fair to solve the stock pig problem. Stock pigs were wanted and wanted badly. Letters are received by Clay, Robinson & Co. very frequently from farmers and stockmen throughout the corn belt, asking if it is possible to purchase stock pigs at the central markets or elsewhere. One man declares that he has been offering $10 per cwt for animals that have been weaned, but that this offer seems to be a dead one as far as actual business is concerned. No one cares to sell. Stock cattle are selling at good strong figures and feeding old corn to pigs is like putting money in the bank. If serum as a disease preventative is given a practical work-out, it will not be very long before the farmer may fill his pig lots with animals purchased at the central market. As long as prices for hogs continue attractive, however, it is doubtless if the market supply of pigs proves adequate.

Some Steer Feeding Data.

J. H. Skinner and W. A. Cochel have issued data concerning steer feeding tests at the Indiana Station to determine the influence of age on the economy and profit from feeding calves, yearlings and two-year-olds. Results as summarized follow:

1. The initial cost per cwt of calves is greater than that of older cattle.
2. The length of time necessary for finishing steers decreases with the increased age of cattle.
3. The rate of gain and the cost of gain increase with the increased age of the cattle.
4. The proportion of roughage to concentrates consumed increases with the increased age of the cattle.
5. The amount of gain necessary in finishing cattle of equal condition decreases as their age increases.
6. The difference in total quantity of feed necessary for finishing cattle of different ages and fed to the same marketable finish is negligible.
7. The average margin required between buying and selling prices to prevent loss was $1.60 per cwt on calves, $1.71 on yearlings and $1.55 on two year olds. The margins secured on a stationary market were $2.02 on calves, $2.22 on yearlings and $2.09 on two year olds. The result was a profit of 42c per cwt on calves, 51c on yearlings and 54c on two year olds.
8. The increase in live weight necessary to make calves prime was 103 per cent, yearlings 54 per cent and two year olds 43.6 per cent of their initial weights at the beginning of the feeding period.
9. At an uniform price for feeds the difference in cost of gains between calves and yearlings was $1.35 and between yearlings and two year olds 28c per cwt.
10. The experienced farmer who feeds cattle should handle older cattle in preference to calves, while the farmer who produces and finishes his own cattle may find calves more profitable.

Prospect is Good for Raisers and Feeders.

"Make two pounds of meat grow where one grew before."

At no time in the history of the live stock industry has the prospect been brighter, and appreciation of opportunities keener, for the breeders and raisers of cattle, swine and sheep than now. From all parts of the nation comes the cry of "back to the farm," which means that people are waking to the fact that to maintain the food supply for the increasing population more food must be produced. And the first result of this movement will doubtless be a marked enhancement of value for those qualities of live stock that will breed the most economical meat producers.

It is generally admitted by both old and new breeders that the price of pure-bred live stock is now much lower in proportion to the value of fat stock sold for slaughter than it logically should be. Indeed, pure-bred stuff has in the past few years sometimes been sold for less than it would bring at the butcher's. Breeders know this situation cannot last, and they see the day fast approaching when pure-bred stock for breeding purposes, that will produce the stock of highest value to build herds and get feeders from, will be more truly appreciated. This condition is seen in cattle, swine and sheep.

Regarding Receipts of Cattle.

A Fall River county (S. D.) man, in a letter to the American Hereford Journal, depicts conditions in a large section of the west river country this fall, says the Dakota Farmer. The shortage of forage is forcing the sacrifice of thousands of cattle. The Dakota Farmer knows that this must be done to a great extent, but it sincerely urges its readers to make every effort to save at least the best of the breeding stock and plan in the future for just such unfortunate contingencies. There is no need to be panic-stricken; the future holds much promise for the west river stockman if he but adapts himself to his surroundings and learns the lessons that the present season has so thoroughly brought before him. As the Fall River county man says "the decline in prices is but the foreboding of future material advances." His letter follows:

"In view of the fact (notwithstanding all that has been written in the columns of the Hereford Journal about high and higher priced beef), that for the past few weeks) and for the next sixty days, for that matter), there have been increased receipts at the markets, and a declining market. One not well posted on supply in general and the cause of these increasing receipts might well get somewhat skeptical, and all the good things that have been promised of higher priced meats in the future might be discredited.

"Conceded that large receipts make low markets, but how long can these receipts keep up, and why these increasing receipts so early in the season? I know that these shipments and these prices are but temporary, and from my point of view the end is in sight. Mark you well the next few paragraphs—supported by actual facts.

"Less than three years ago this county was the center of an almost unbroken range. Today 80 per cent of the county is under fence, and the new farmer is in evidence everywhere. The large ranches are all broken up and gone. The smaller ones are closing out their holdings this summer, forced to do so by the long continued drouth which has cut the hay crop to almost nothing. The range is so badly fired that winter grazing this coming winter is out of the question. Hence, everything, irrespective of size or condition, is being hustled in to market, and within sixty days the range (what is left of it) will be denuded of cattle.

"Last week one of the ranchers threw every hoof he had on the market. They averaged him $18 each. Draw upon your imagination for the make-up of this consignment. This is only one case in dozens in this county, and what I say of this section holds good over the range section of North and South Dakota, Montana, Wyoming, and, in fact, all the semi-arid states. In view of what has been said, is it to be wondered at that the receipts at market centers are so heavy?"

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, September 30, 1910 | No. 39

Train of Feeding Cattle Bought for Customers by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Above photo shows fourteen cars of cattle bought by our house at South Omaha on Sept. 15 for well-known Iowa feeders. Six cars were for W. D. Runge of Osage, Iowa, three cars for H. W. Lock of Orchard, Iowa, and five cars for R. L. Clark, shipped to the same point. The three and five-load lots were of the noted "Spade" brand of the Nebraska Land and Feeding Co. (Richards & Comstock), Ellsworth, Neb., while the six-car lot comprised 1,100-lb feeders of exceptionally good breeding. The fourteen cars made up a special Illinois Central train.

Incidentally it might be added that our South Omaha house that week filled orders for 54 cars of feeding cattle, 32 double and 11 single-deck loads of feeding sheep. It was a record week in number of cars of feeding cattle purchased. All of which goes to show that feeders are coming more and more to understand that it pays to secure their feeding stock through Clay, Robinson & Co. This is true at our other houses, as well as at South Omaha. Everywhere it is the same story, a big order-buying business and the sort of stock that makes the feeder happy when he sees them and figures up the cost.

Way Patrick Cudahy Sees It.

Patrick Cudahy, the well-known packer, in an interview, gives a rather bearish talk on the hog situation. There is much logic in his statements, but we cannot see where prices will be lowered to a level where converting corn in pork will fail to be profitable. Mr. Cudahy says.

"I think there are several reasons why pork products should sell lower. The principal reason is that meat eating people of the world, since prices have been so high, have learned how to economize to the extent of 25 to 30 per cent compared to when values were normal. We all know that the country is full of corn and pigs, and these pigs will soon be fat hogs. January product is selling on the basis of 7c hogs, while corn, which we make hogs with, is selling on the basis of a 5c hog. To add to this, high prices have lost us a large portion of our English trade. They are now getting quite a lot of stuff from China, Servia, and other countries. I also understand there is a good deal of labor trouble in England in the shipbuilding and mining industries which will curtail their requirements. Then again our own political mixup is not tending to help general business conditions. It has paid farmers immensely to feed hogs at the high prices of a year and a half, and it is reasonable to assume farmers will have plenty of hogs just as soon as they have time to breed them. The lard trade is only fair and generally the demand for product is poor. Instead of buyers running after us we are running after the buyers."

Too Few Cattle in Kansas.

"Kansas cattlemen certainly are in clover this year. They are all making good money. Feed is plentiful and of extra fine quality. The outlook for the cattle industry certainly is rosy." This is the way Live Stock Commissioner Mercer sizes up the cattle situation in that state. "We haven't enough cattle in the state to eat up all the feed," said Mr. Mercer. "The corn in the corn belt is abundant, rough feed is ricked up everywhere, or soon will be, and the grass was never better. We can take care of a lot of outside cattle this winter at good profit."

Colorado Will Feed Fewer Lambs.

As the season advances the question as to how many lambs the Northern Colorado district is going to feed this year is being discussed freely and the concensus of opinion among those in touch with the situation is that the number will be greatly contracted the coming season, says the Denver Record-Stockman. The drouth and grasshoppers cut the yield of alfalfa down to about one-third the average crop and feeders are therefore unable to get the hay to carry on their operations without shipping it in. This makes the operations so expensive that few care to risk it and the most of the feeders who will put in stuff this year will carry on their feeding at some other place more favored in the matter of hay supply. It is estimated that not over 100,000 sheep and lambs will be fed in Northern Colorado this winter and some place the number even less than this. Last year close to 350,000 head were finished in the district. The Arkansas Valley country, where the conditions have been very good and the hay crop is reported much better than in other sections of the state, will probably show a considerable increase in the number of sheep and lambs fed this year as well as in the number of cattle finished for the market.

Will Import Many Cattle From Mexico.

"The chances are that more Mexican cattle will be imported next year by western beef growers than in several years past," observed Willis Spear of Sheridan, Wyo., to a representative of the South Omaha Journal-Stockman. Mr. Spear is one of the active members of the Spear Bros. Cattle Co., whose operations cover both Wyoming and Montana territory and who are among Clay, Robinson & Co.'s most valued and liberal patrons.

"Stock cattle will be scarce all over the Northwest owing to close shipments this fall," he explained. "Buying cattle on the other side of the Rio Grande has never been a very popular policy owing to the cost of admittance and generally common quality of the animals, but it is possible to purchase really good Mexican cattle, and with no other source of supply, greaser stock will have to be bought to give rangemen a fresh start.

"Several years ago our own company imported several thousand head of Mexicans, paying duties ranging from $2.00 to $3.75 per head, but of late years we have been able to fill out our herds with Arizona and southern stock. The South is pretty well cleaned up this year, I understand, and when it is recalled that whole trainloads of Mexican bulls and stags went to Kansas pastures last year the outlook is not very promising."

A Sensible Merchant.

A Pittsburg merchant has an illuminated sign which advertises "Oleomargarine—Better and Cheaper than Butter." He is on the right track, and as long as he sells oleomargarine as such there can be no possible objection to his business. It is cheaper than butter, and he is entitled to his opinion as to the merits of the two products. If all sellers of oleomargarine had as much sense as this man they would have established a broad legitimate market for it long ago, comments the National Stockman and Farmer. Instead of that they have a restricted market, a prejudice against their product and strict laws against its sale as butter.

Royal Range-bred Feeders.

Range-bred cattle have again this year at the American Royal their own classes, apart from the classes for native feeders provided for in each division of the cattle department. The Kansas City Stock Yards Co. gives the main prizes for range cattle, although special prizes of $30 are given by a company. This division includes a kind of cattle that are increasing in popularity with the corn belt farmer, as they are improving in quality. They are range bred and raised, and must be held in the state where raised until within 30 days of the opening of the Royal, Oct. 10. They are to be shown in carlots of 20 head, each carload all steers or all heifers, not mixed.

These range cattle are shown by districts, that each part of the range country may get all the glory there is in it. The Northwest district consits of Colorado, Wyoming, Utah and Idaho; the Southwest district of Texas, Arizona and New Mexico. For each district are two classes, one for steers or heifers between two and three years old and one for animals under two years old. The prizes for each of the four classes are $60, $25 and $15. Then there is a grand championship prize of $100 for the best car of range bred feeders in the whole range show, including both districts.

These range-bred cattle make fine feeders, and are in strong demand. They will be sold at auction this year after the prizes have been awarded.

If you have cattle to exhibit in the above districts, or if you want to buy cattle of this description at the Royal, write to Clay, Robinson & Co., Stock Yards, Kansas City, Mo., for further information.

THESE CATTLE TOPPED CHICAGO MARKET LAST WEEK FIVE CENTS PER CWT.

There were 17 head of 1,272 lbs average in the shipment and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at $8.30 on Wednesday, Sept. 21. They were short two-year-old grade Herefords and in prime condition for slaughter. R. H. Hodgkin of Waveland, Ind., was the feeder and shipper. This is not the first time that we have topped the market with his cattle. He is well and favorably known in Indiana feeding and farming circles. On the same day we also sold for Mr. Hodgkin 16 heifers and steers mixed, averaging 1,018 lbs, at $7.35, being 10c per cwt higher than any other sale of such offerings. Mr. Hodgkin said that the cattle at $8.30 were fed ten months. They were given a ration of crushed corn, oats and clover hay until May 1, when they were put on grass and fed broken corn. They made an average gain of 572 lbs. Reading from the right, the parties in the above photo are T. L. Hanna, R. H. Hodgkin, C. H. Deere and Earl Hodgkin, son of R. H. Hodgkin. Messrs. Hana and Deere are prominent farmers and feeders, and had cattle to us, the same selling to their entire satisfaction.

General Business Bound to Benefit.

George M. Reynolds, the well-known Chicago banker, who returned from New York, reported a much improved sentiment among the bankers of the East.

"I found the bankers in New York decidedly more cheerful than they were earlier in the year," said Mr. Reynolds. "Of course business is dull in the stock market, which is the life of the activity of New York, and a dull fall is expected. But there is no longer any apprehension over financial troubles, and in that respect the situation is decidedly improved.

"Some time ago New York bankers, or many of them, believed that the country was closee to if not on the verge of a panic. That belief no longer exists. They have come to the conclusion in New York that we will have no money troubles this fall.

"The trouble with general business of course is politics. That is plain to see. But the country is harvesting and marketing a big crop and general business is bound to benefit from it sooner or later."

Record Sheep Supplies at Leading Markets.

Western range sheep are swarming marketward by hundreds of thousands. Previous records are being smashed at leading points. Last week at Chicago arrivals were 181,284, comparing with the former banner run of 179,490 for the week ending Oct. 6, 1906. On Monday of this week a new record for one day's receipts was made at 60,323, against the previous largest total of 59,362 on Sept. 29, 1902. While the month's banner run of 690,956 in October, 1905, will not be equalled, this month's total bids fair to reach around 675,000, about 65,000 greater than ever recorded for any previous September. At the start of this week South Omaha received 63,215, the banner one day's run there as well as at any other market. Last week Kansas City had a total of 78,871, largest ever recorded there for one week.

Causes for this rush of ovine stock to market are not hard to find. One of the worst droughts in years throughout the western range states was experienced the past summer. Result was a range burned to a crisp and a great scarcity of water. There was no alternative but to ship. Of course, this record movement is at the expense of the future, which will be reflected in a big reduction in the range flocks for the next few years.

Fortunately the corn-belt and eastern feeders came to the rescue of the range flockmaster. Otherwise he would have had to accept ruinously low prices for his stock, as 60 to 75 per cent of his offerings have been of the feeder variety the past two months. The movement back to the country from the principal markets is of record-breaking proportions. Considering the receipts, prices for feeders were remarkably high. During August and September the great bulk of the lambs went out at a cost of $6.50@6.85, yearlings $5.25@5.50, wethers $4.00@4.25 and ewes $3.00@3.25. Truely, the western flockmaster has cause for thankfulness.

Cattle Market is Acting Badly.

Just now the cattle market is in a rather slumpy condition. It needs the rest cure badly. Liquidation has been at a fast rate the past few weeks from the West and corn belt, and prices have slipped back sharply. The chief trouble lies in the fact that consumptive channels are badly clogged with beef everywhere, and especially in the East. Consumers are cutting down their meat bills. It will require either a reduction in supplies or a broader outlet for beef for the market to right itself. Good fall pastures and relatively cheap corn should bring about the first requirement and cooler weather the latter. However, we do not believe it best to take any chances. In our opinion the good fat cattle, as well as those of plainer quality and flesh that are intended for market within the next several weeks, should be sent forward as fast as convenient. But cattle of good quality and shy of desirable flesh condition can be held back advantageously.

Europe is Short of Pork.

The United States is not the only country where the hog shortage is felt, but in Europe they are so scarce that the London market has to draw on many countries for its supply. In fact, hog scarcity is affecting the entire world.

So difficult is it to secure hogs enough to supply the London demand that one English provision house reports that in one month it handled hams and bacon from ten different countries, including the United States, Canada, England, Denmark, Ireland, Holland, France, Russia, Siberia and Roumania. It is also known that a cargo of frozen hog carcasses from China was landed in Liverpool during the same month. No country has more than a small stock of hog products to offer.

Lard is reported to be especially scarce in Europe and oleo oil, cocoanut fat, cotton seed oil and various compound vegetable oils are being used as partial or complete substitutes for hog fat.

Thomas Johnstone Will Visit Scotland.

Thomas Johnstone, Sr., of Alzada, Mont., was on the Chicago market Wednesday of last week, looking after the sale of seven cars of his cattle, sales of which are quoted in detail in another column. Mr. Johnstone also had eight cars on the South Omaha market the same day. From here he went to Reynoldsville, Pa., where he will be joined by his wife, and they will sail immediately thereafter for his old home in Scotland, Dunfernline, Fifeshire, the birthplace of Andrew Carnegie. Mr. Johnstone emigrated from Scotland some forty years ago, returning for a brief visit two years thereafter, so it has been thirty-eight years since his foot has pressed his native heath, while Mrs. Johnstone, also of Scottish birth, has never been back. Naturally they look forward to the visit with keen anticipation. We wish for them a favorable voyage, a pleasant visit and a safe return.

Added Purses at International.

B. H. Heide, Secretary of the International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, announces that there will be an increase in the cash prize list this year, several of the breeding Associations having offered added purses to some of the classes. The prize list will aggregate $75,000.

The individual classes this year will bring out stock of excellent quality if the entries at the various state fairs, which afterwards are shown at the International, may be taken as a criterion. The entries for these classes will close on Nov. 1 and for the car lots on Nov. 19.

He Reads it All.

Geo. F. Feather of Grand Rapids, Ohio, writes: "Your last week's issue did not reach me. Please send it, as I read every copy and all the advertising."

Rock Island to Run "Hog Special."

Beginning Oct. 3 the Chicago, Rock Island & Pacific Railroad will wage a campaign of education among the farmers along its lines in the money-making process of greater hog production. A special train carrying several lecturers from the Iowa State College will be run up and down the lines of the Rock Island in Iowa, Missouri, Kansas, Nebraska and Minnesota, and these lecturers will talk hog lore at every station. The campaign in Iowa will last two weeks and a total of 120 towns will be reached. The special train will consist of several cars and will carry exhibits of hogs, hog houses, feeding plants, etc., and there will also be attached a car for domestic science lecturers and demonstrations. Packing-house products of the hogs will also be shown.

The plan, which is explained by H. M. Cottrell, agricultural commissioner of the Rock Island lines, will be to reach if possible every farmer in Rock Island territory and tell him of the benefits of greater hog production and the increased profit to be had. The road will have active co-operation of banks and commercial concerns in all of the states through which the special train will run.

"We believe," said Mr. Cottrell, "that more hogs should be raised. The market statistics show that production is falling behind consumptive requirements, and it will be the object of the lecturers on the Rock Island special to point out to the farmers the need for greater hog raising."

Ohio-Fed and Texas-Bred Yearling Cattle which made a wonderful record at Chicago through the expert feeding ability of Howard Gerlaugh of Osborn, Ohio, and the superior salesmanship of Clay, Robinson & Co.

To command the top price on a big market like Chicago, where the offerings have to compete with thousands of others, requires superiority in quality, feeding and selling. These favorable conditions surrounded the handling by Mr. Gerlaugh of 141 grade Hereford yearling steers from the famous S M S herd in Texas. They were all marketed at Chicago through Clay, Robinson & Co. at prices 10@20c per cwt higher than any other yearlings made the days they were sold. The above photo was of the tailends which were here Wednesday of last week and sold at $7.70, top of week for yearlings by 20c per cwt. The sales of the yearlings by Clay, Robinson & Co. follow:

June 22	21 head	1,035 lbs	@ $8.10, top by 35c per cwt.
July 13	22 head	1,228 lbs	7.90, top by 15c per cwt.
Sept. 14	44 head	885 lbs	7.75, top by 10c per cwt.
Sept. 21	54 head	837 lbs	7.70, top by 20c per cwt.

Rains Check Texas Cattle Shipments.

Good rains in West Texas will check the movement of cattle from there until spring. Cattlemen need not look to the Oklahoma Osage country for grazing land for some time now, in the opinion of C. B. Vanskike, general live stock agent of the Santa Fe Railroad, with headquarters at Fort Worth, Texas.

"Drouthy conditions in West Texas during July and August drove the ranchman to Oklahoma for grass," remarked Mr. Vanskike, "and up to the time of the first good rain recently the movement of cattle out of the country was rather heavy. This rain partially checked the movement, but a later rain, coupled with heavy precipitation recently in most West Texas places south of the Texas and Pacific Railroads, put a formal taboo on shipping activities. Out of the Santa Fe cattle-raising territory in West Texas, and the Orient section south of Sweetwater, something like 350 cars of cattle had already moved. These shipments have not been equaled for some years at this time of the year."

Highest Yearling Cattle in Several Weeks.

Brown & Haner marketed at Chicago on Sept. 26 from Taylorville, Ill., 15 head of yearling steers, averaging 1,115 lbs. and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at $7.75, the highest price in several weeks for yearling cattle. They were grade Shorthorns, horned and dehorned, and were in prime condition for slaughter. There are no more extensive or better cattle feeders in Illinois than Phil Haner of Taylorville and Charles Brown of Flora, and it afforded us a great deal of satisfaction and pride to handle their shipment. Mr. Haner is a member of the State Board Live Stock Commission of Illinois.

Western North Dakota in Good Shape.

H. C. Christiansen, Henderson Bros., Richards & Wilcox, B. F. Manning, John Foreman and R. O. Signalness marketed a train of 26 cars of cattle at Chicago on Sept. 26 through Clay, Robinson & Co., the shipment being made from Plaza, N. D. Each one of these gentlemen said that they were delighted with the price their cattle brought, especially so in view of the fact that the market was dull and lower. In reference to conditions in that part of the state, Mr. Robert Wilcox said:

"Ranchmen in Western North Dakota have no complaint to register. There is plenty of grass and water and cattle will go into the winter in fine shape. Most of the cattle marketed have been in good condition and shipped better than in years, grass being less washy and consequently cattle less shrinky. None of the rangemen are shipping as close as usual, and this month will end the movement marketward. Practically all rangemen have the biggest crop of hay they ever had. The only people to suffer in our country were the dry farmers, who are fortunate if they get their seed back, the drought hitting them a hard blow. Barring the Berthall Reservation, the range cattle business is about a thing of the past, farmers having taken possession of the greater part of the land. Land values are advancing rapidly, prices being up to $15 per acre for land lying forty miles away from a railroad."

Writes Regarding Forest Fires.

The Live Stock Report:

I notice that you give space to the "Directions for Subduing Forest Fires" which have been issued in bulletin form by the fire fighters of Harvard College and Pennsylvania Avenue. I am in doubt as to whether you consider this as a piece of serious literature or if you are instituting a "Funny Page." It would be funny, were it not tragical, for Prof. Graves or Prof. Pinchot, who presumably never saw a forest fire or made so much physical exertion as is necessary to sharpen an axe or fell a tree, to be telling frontiersmen how to fight a fire, and that "the great mistake is made in overestimating the danger and the speed with which such a fire travels." There are 263 corpses in the National forests today that bear testimony to the speed with which such fires travel and the great danger to those who endeavor to check them.

When a fierce forest fire is under full headway and a strong Montana or Wyoming wind is behind it the only sane advice to men is to get out of its way. Even when four or five miles in the lead of such a fire the atmosphere is so charged with heat and smoke as to be quite different to that of the Washington offices of the Forestry Bureau from which the instructions emanate.

The way to fight forest fires is to try to prevent them. This is where the Forestry Bureau is at fault and where they are open to the charge of being responsible for the unheard of death list and loss of property marking the past two months.

As a consequence of the exclusion of sheep and cattle from the reserves there has this summer been a growth of about a foot and a half of dried grass among the trees, which in past years would have been reduced by pasturage to about six inches. It is impossible to prevent fires with this amount of light, inflammable material on the ground, aided and abetted by all the undergrowth that live stock would control. The forest ranger wears a feather in his hat and carries a package of cigarette papers in one pocket and a box of matches in the other. The more rangers and the more grass the more fires we will have. You cannot conserve grass and trees on the same ground. You might do it in a garden or a small park. Those who are interested in live stock should stop to consider what it would have meant to the drouth-stricken stockmen of the mountain states this summer if they could have been allowed to have pastured their animals on this grass that has now been burned. Yet the smoke from this untouched pasture, from the millions of trees and from the charred corpses of 263 men is as incense in the nostrils of the conservationists.

They would rather see all the grass on the public domain burned by a Federal official than to think that one stockman had grazed his sheep on it for one day without paying for it. The record-breaking shipments of livestock to the markets this fall would be unnecessary could we have availed ourselves of the grass which Uncle Sam prefers to see rot on the ground or serve to start forest fires and funeral pyres.

The sacrifice of good breeding stock from the western ranges will be felt for many a year. It is no temporary loss. The whole world of meat eaters will feel it for years to come. It will not be necessary to appoint expensive commissions to inquire into the high costs of meat. The arid wastes of the mountain states are where the cheap meats of the nation are grown. When the range stockman goes out of business the laboring classes in America will quit eating meat. Only the rich can afford to eat meat that is grown on land worth $150 per acre. Mr. Pinchot says these terrible fires prove the need of more men and more money, which is the old cry of bureaucrats in all countries from Russia to America. If they will admit cattle and sheep to graze in the forests and permit settlers to haul out the fallen timber for fuel it will not be necessary for Congress to appropriate a million per year to the Forestry Bureau.

Here is a tabulation of this year's costs to the country of Pinchotism:

Timber burned	$ 5,000,000
Ranch property, etc., destroyed	1,000,000
Cattle sacrificed on market by exclusion from reserves	2,000,000
Sheep sacrificed on market by exclusion from mountain pastures	3,000,000
Appropriation by Congress to maintain the Forestry Bureau	1,000,000
Total	$12,000,000

Add to this 263 human lives sacrificed and you have the cost for one year of eastern strangulation of western development; of Pinchot's arrogance and thirst for power; of a denial to the younger members of the family of states all those rights which their elders have enjoyed.

Gordon Graham.

Casper, Wyo., Sept. 20, 1910.

A. B. AZCUENAGA OF BOISE, IDAHO.

When Mr. Azcuenaga was at Chicago last week our staff photographer snapped the above picture. We sold for him a shipment of sheep and lambs and he expressed entire satisfaction with the handling and selling. "I have found out one thing," commented Mr. Azcuenaga, "it does not pay to flit from one firm to another. I am going to ship to Clay, Robinson & Co. steadily from now on, being thoroughly convinced that they give the best all-around service." Mr. Azcuenago emigrated to Idaho twenty years ago from Spain poor in purse but rich in health and determination to forge ahead. His brother, Antonio Azcuenaga, preceded him two years, and both are now well-to-do and influential flockmasters and landowners. There are several thousand former Spanish subjects engaged in the raising of sheep in Idaho, and all are making a name for themselves that stands high in Idaho business and banking circles. Remarking upon sheep conditions in Idaho, Mr. Azcuenaga said: "It is pretty much of a lamb proposition with us now. There was a time when it was profitable to hold the lamb crop until they got into the aged wether class. But that day is past. Contraction of the range and a growing demand for the young and tender cuts of lamb, and consequently a limited outlet for heavy mutton, have caused this evolution in handling sheep in the West, especially in Idaho. I have advices from the West that good, soaking rains have fallen out there. This will be of inestimable value to the range interests. Curtailed shipments may be looked for after this month. The falling off will be most noticeable in feeder stock. Before the rains bankers were telling their customers they would have to ship and take up some of their paper. The heavy rains will change all this. Good fall feed is assured, hay should drop $1.50@2.00 per ton in price and bankers will be willing to give substantial support. The heavy liquidation this season will have a telling effect on the production of sheep and wool the next few years in the West. A heavy reduction cannot be avoided."

Heifers and Steers Mixed at $7.50.

Dale Bros., the well-known and successful feeders, Tampico, Ill., were represented on the Chicago market Sept. 28 with 20 yearling heifers and steers mixed, averaging 907 lbs. Clay, Robinson & Co. landed them at the top price of $7.50. Included in the lot were 15 heifers. The cattle were grade Shorthorns, very choice and a credit to any feeder.

Fattening Sheep in Corn Fields.

One of the very best methods of fattening lambs and range sheep is to turn them at this season of the year into the cornfields, where they can have access to water. A carload of lambs that have never learned to eat corn will fatten in a forty-acre cornfield by using very little of the corn. They will begin on the weeds and the grass along the fence corners. They will strip the lower leaves, will gradually learn to eat the down ears and the ears that lean over. They will convert that corn into mutton, giving a better price for it than the farmer is likely to get for it from the buyer on the farm or the grain buyer at the station.

Sheep are very dainty animals, abhorring dirt in every shape and form. They commence at the point of the ear and nibble it off, getting it in its most nutritious shape. There is no animal that wastes less corn in feeding than the sheep. Old sheep, and especially those that have learned to eat corn, will very likely break down corn and do some damage. Range sheep do less, for the reason that they have not yet learned to eat it, and by the time they have learned are not likely to waste it.

Furthermore, sheep should not be turned into the cornfield except when full; and where it is convenient to have a second crop clover pasture adjoining the cornfield, there will not only be less danger of loss, but they will have a better balanced ration than the corn and weeds furnish in themselves.—Wallaces' Farmer.

Corn Out of Danger of Frost.

H. B. Holaday, prominent feeder and breeder of Angus cattle, Massena, Ia., was on the Chicago market last week with beef steers which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $6.75@7.15. The cattle were on a full feed of ear corn on pasture for four months and he says that he was gratified with the gain they made and the prices he obtained. Mr. Holaday remarked that early corn is entirely out of danger of frost in his part of the state and that a few more days of warm weather will also put the late planted corn out of reach of Jack Frost. He said that a good many were filling their feed lots up with cattle and that farmers have a big crop of healthy pigs.

Sheep Dogs and Corral Plans Wanted.

Eveleth Bros. of Beattyville, Ky., write: "Where can we get a pair of dogs that understand handling sheep? Also give us any ideas or plans as to best and most convenient kind of a corral for holding both cattle and sheep, including branding chute."

We invite expressions from our readers on above points.

Death of John Sporkman.

The many friends at the Chicago Stock Yards of John Sporkman of Pilot Grove, Ia,, were surprised and shocked to learn of his death at his home on Sunday. Mr. Sporkman had been a very liberal and consistent patron of this market for a number of years, his shipments coming forward regularly the year round. He was one of Clay, Robinson & Co.'s valued friends.

"Best in Whole Yards"—George Richardson.

George Richardson, one of the most prominent stockmen of the Southwest, with headquarters at San Angelo, Tex., writes to the following effect: "I marketed through your Ft. Worth house, some bulls, cows and calves. I am highly pleased with the way your whole force at Fort Worth treated me, and, after closely observing things for two days, I saw plainly that you have the best 'gang' in the whole yards. I was pleased to meet my old friend, James Stewart, again and whom I have known since '83, when he stayed all night with me in my little shepherd's tent out on the range and we feasted on beans and bacon."

"A Necessary Adjunct."

W. J. Turner of Huntly, Va., writes: "Enclosed find postage stamps for subscription to the REPORT, which I regard as a necessary adjunct to the profitable handling and raising of live stock. No stock dealer, feeder or raiser can do without your paper without loss."

John T. Hackett, Champaign county, Ohio, writes: "Received sheep and I think they are a good lot."

B. D. Lemert, Doniphan county, Kan., writes our St. Joseph house: "It makes me feel a little proud to be the patron of a firm that lands stuff at the top notch."

A. Austin, one of Utah's leading flockmasters, with headquarters in Summit county, was on the Kansas City market last week with several shipments of sheep and lambs to our house. On Thursday they sold a string of his feeding lambs at $6.50, and on the following day six double decks of fat lambs at $7.00 and some 118-lb ewes at $4.35, all top figures.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

G. C. Meyers, Las Animas county, Colo., was on the Denver market with four cars of cattle.

E. E. Culver, Johnson county, Wyo., marketed two cars of cattle through our Denver house.

G. R. Howard, Juab county, Utah, was represented on the Denver market with two cars of cattle.

Mrs. Robert Allen, Laramie county, Wyo., had seven cars of cattle on the Denver market recently.

Our South Omaha house reports handling two cars of good cattle for J. J. Underwood, Laramie county, Wyo.

Donald McDonald, Laramie county, Wyo., was represented on the Denver feeder cattle market Sept. 20 with a load of around 1,200 lbs average which our house landed at $5.30, top price for the week.

Limit for lambs at Kansas City on Sept 14 was $7.00, which our house obtained for 1,716 head, shipped by A. Smith, Wasatch county, Utah.

Last week's lamb market at Chicago was topped 5c per cwt on Sept. 22 when we sold 71 head of 82-lb natives at $7.40 for F. Pemble, Greene county, Ia.

Top for Arizona lambs at Kansas City Sept. 13 was $6.85, obtained by our house for 800 head, shipped by C. C. Hutchinson, Coconino county, Ariz.

J. A. Dowlin, an extensive sheep raiser of Johnson county, Wyo., had a consignment of wethers at South Omaha which he had been grazing at Eustis, Neb.

A. J. Williamson of Harrison county, Mo., marketed a load of 167-lb hogs at South St. Joseph on Sept. 20 and our house sold them at the top price of $9.55.

Converse county, Wyo., was represented on the South Omaha market with cattle shipments from J. Jones, W. C. Sullivan, D. W. Lemon, G. H. Cross and E. Olin.

FOR MAN AND BEAST.

As an example of humane consideration of the needs of brutes as well as men the above illustration is interesting. It shows a sectional cement tank (made by the Chas. B. Hurst Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago) recently installed by Swift & Co. near their General Offices at the Chicago Stock Yards. The sanitary "bubble-cup" affords drinking facilities for human passers-by, the tank proper is highly appreciated by teamsters and their horses, while thirsty dogs are provided for by the hollowed protuberance appearing in front, which is kept constantly full of water.

Our Denver house handled for Franklin B. Hotchkiss, Morgan county, Colo., a car of hogs at top prices.

Frank Bender, an extensive cattleman and banker of Custer county, S. D., was at South Omaha with two cars of cattle.

Monday of last week our South Omaha house sold ten cars of feeding ewes for the Fiddleback Co., Converse county, Wyo.

John Proud, Furnas county, Neb., an extensive farmer and breeder of Shorthorn cattle, was at South Omaha with two cars of feeders.

Belle Fourche shipments to South Omaha included cattle from Geo. L. Arbuckle, John Walker and W. S. Bertine, all prominent ranchmen.

John G. Williams, Converse county, Wyo., marketed a big string of sheep at Chicago on Sept. 20. Included were 1,065 yearlings of 71 lbs average and 661 head of 95-lb wethers which we landed on feeding account at $5.50 and $4.25 respectively, top that week for these offerings.

On Sept. 19 our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle for F. O. Reed, Bighorn county, Wyo., at very satisfactory prices. In this consignment were 15 cows and heifers that averaged 1,146 lbs and sold at $4.75, extreme top for that week.

Azcuenaga Bros., one of the best-known sheep firms in Idaho, with headquarters in Ada county, had a shipment of feeders to us Sept. 22 and included were 660 yearlings of 68 lbs average which brought $5.50, top of week for such offerings.

The Ogallala Sheep Co., Converse county, Wyo., on Sept. 21 marketed through our Chicago house 1,220 wethers, averaging 109 lbs, at $4.40 and 225 feeding wethers of 98 lbs average at $4.25, both sales being at the top of the trade for the respective classes.

Files & Johnson represented Pettis county, Mo., on the East St. Louis lamb market Sept. 22 with a deck of 75 lbs average which our house sold at $7.00, top by 10c per cwt. On the same day our firm also topped the sheep market at $4.50 with offerings sent in by C. A. Sartor, Callaway county, Mo.

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Steers Range.		Steers Bulk.		Cows and Heifers Bulk.

Last week	4.65	7.00	5.00	6.00	3.75	4.75

Receipts Thursday of last week were 3,000. Buyers seemed to want the beef steers and readily paid steady prices. Choice offerings were conspicuous by their absence, best offered being 27 head of 1,341 lbs average at $6.25. She stock sold steady to 10c lower, low-costing kinds going to best advantage. Feeders went at unchanged rates. Only two loads arrived Friday and these were steers which made $4.75.

The week's supply totaled 25,000, the largest of the season, and compared with 24,000 the previous week and 31,500 corresponding week last year, the latter being the largest week's run during 1909. Run for the season ending last week was 149,200, against 164,200 and 186,200 for corresponding periods of 1909 and 1908 respectively. While the best beef steers were held steady with the close of the previous week, other kinds showed 10@15c loss. Top for the week was $7.00, but most sales were at $6.00 down to $5.00. Beef grades of she stock declined 10@15c, while canners and cutters showed that much advance. There was a loss of 10@15c for stockers and feeders.

At the start of this week beef steer buyers had things pretty much their own way. A total supply of 10,000 proved greater than trade requirements and the result was a dull market at prices 10@15c lower. Not many sales had been made before the noon hour and at the close a clearance had not been effected, due to buyers' indifference. WE SOLD 89 head averaging 1,227 to 1,320 lbs, AT THE GOOD PRICE OF $6.50, A. C. Christiansen, Henderson Bros. and Richards & Wilcox, all of Plaza, N. D., being the owners. However, transactions higher than $5.75 were scant, owing to lack of quality. She stock was in good demand at steady prices. Stockers and feeders met more restricted outlet and rates broke 10@15c.

Supplies Tuesday were 3,000. There was better undertone to the trade and buyers cleared the pens of beef steers in good order at fully steady rates. They did not give the higher-costing kinds as good favor as usual, claiming that natives of similar cost are giving better returns in the beef. WE SOLD 21 head of 1,307-lb beeves at $6.00 for Olmstad & H. of Fairdale, N. D., BEING THE HIGHEST SALE REPORTED FOR THE DAY. She stock steady sale, as also was feeder stock.

Supply Wednesday 6,000. Beef steer trade was dull. Offerings that went above $5.00 showed 10c loss and those under that figure sold steady. A very choice lot had to go at $6.60. She stock strong to 10c higher, WE TOPPING BOTH THE HEIFER AND COW TRADE at $5.60 and $5.25 respectively. Stockers and feeders lost 10c.

Marketing Thursday of last week 23,245. Prices were steady to weak for the better grades of fat and feeder offerings and other kinds were dull sale at prices 10@15c lower. Top lambs brought $7.25 and feeders $6.85. WE SOLD THE TOP YEARLINGS at $5.50. Best sheep made $4.40. Most feeding wethers brought $4.00@4.10 and ewes $2.80@3.00. As compared with last week's close good to choice fat sheep and lambs showed a steady price basis, while other kinds were 10@25c lower. There was a decline of 10@25c for feeder grades, the plain and medium kinds showing most loss. Total receipts for the week at 181,284 broke all previous records, comparing with 179,490 for the week ending Oct. 6, 1906.

This week opened with a total run of 60,323, being the largest day's arrivals on record, and comparing with the previous largest receipts of 59,362 on Sept. 29, 1902. It was a remarkable trade. There was no surplus of good to choice sheep or lambs for slaughter and these kinds held fully steady, but the plain and medium grades went 10c@15c lower. Around 75 per cent of the run comprised feeders. Market opened steady on the best grades, but closed 10@15c lower on all kinds. WE SOLD the top lambs at $7.00 and feeders at $6.75, as well as the yearlings at $5.50. Best wethers at $4.25.

Receipts Tuesday, 50,065. Barring feeding lambs, which went 10@15c lower, market was steady. WE AGAIN TOPPED THE LAMB MARKET with two strings at $7.00. Good feeeders had to go at $6 25@6.50, and pee-wees at $4.00@4.75, these showing around $1.00 loss from recent best time. Very choice heavy wethers went at $4.25 and feeders at $3.75@4.10. Handy weight yearlings were purchased at $5.40. Light breeding ewes were mean sale at 50c loss from two weeks ago. Wednesday run 38,000. Trade was generally unchanged, although lambs weighing around 40 lbs and under were practically unsalable.

The market for feeding sheep and lambs has at last broken under the weight of offerings. This week the trade has fairly been swamped with supplies. The trend of prices has been downward. As compared with the high time of two weeks ago there was a decline of 25@35c for good to choice grades of lambs, yearlings and wethers, around 50c for the plain and medium lots, while the pee-wee lambs showed 75c@$1.00 loss. Feeding ewes were already relatively low and prices neld steady. Breeding ewes suffered a decline of 25@50c, the light weight yearlings displaying most break.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Neb., Sept. 27—Receipts of cattle were heavy last week. There was a very moderate supply of good killing grades and an over-supply of stockers and feeders of plain quality. Beef cattle found ready outlet and at the close showed a little advance, but concessions of fully 35@50c had to be made for stocker and feeder grades. Best beeves for the week sold at $6.65, and a few lots of heavy steers, which feeder buyers took went around the $6.00 mark. Good cows and heifers topped at $4.75, but the supply was quite moderate.

Receipts of cattle were liberal first two market days this week. Beef steers were slow and barely steady sale with last week's close. Cows and heifers steady, with stockers and feeders strong to higher sale.

Range Sheep.

Another record-breaking sheep run showed up last week, 140,000 being offered. Best lambs sold fully as well as previous week's close, with top $7.00, but common and medium sheep and lambs, both killers and feeders, worked lower. There was an especially large supply of light lambs and old ewes and these showed the most decline. Good 50 to 55-lb lambs went mostly around $5.75@6.40, top $6.60, and 40 to 45 lbs average at $5.00@5.50, those under 40 lbs anywhere from $4.00@5.00. Good light yearlings reached $5.50, and handy weight two-year-old wethers $4.30. Best killing ewes $3.75, with pretty good kind at $3.00@3.40 and feeders at $2.75@3.25. A lot of old canning grades went to the packers at $1.25@1.75.

Receipts of sheep and lambs were extremely heavy. The good kinds held steady. Bulk of arrivals were light and medium weight lambs and old ewes. The market on these offerings was very dull and prices unevenly lower.

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

*Sold by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Receipts Thursday of last week 6,500. Prices were generally steady, although there were instances where rates were on a weaker basis. Bulk of arrivals were grassers and short-fed offerings. Top was $7.75 for 32 head of 1,639 lbs average. Supply Friday 1,259. Market was nominally steady, most offerings being of plain quality and lacking desirable weight. The week closed with prices generally steady as compared with the finish of the previous week. WE TOPPED the week's market by 5c per cwt with 17 head of short two-year-old grade Hereford beeves of 1,272 lbs average at $8.30 and the yearling market 20c per cwt by selling 54 grade Hereford yearlings, averaging 837 lbs, at $7.70.

This week started out with total marketing of 33,796. The run was several thousand more than expected and considerably larger than demand called for. Thus the trade was thrown into a bad state and market dull and draggy from start to finish. When a trading basis was finally established prices were generally 10@15c lower. The good to choice heavy grades were meanest sale. To make bad matters worse, drizzling rains all day helped to make the cattle look their worst. By the noon hour most of the arrivals were still in first hands. Choice yearlings were the only really good sellers. Top was $8.20, realized for 48 prime 1,654 to 1,700-lb offerings. WE OBTAINED THE TOP PRICE of $7.75 for yearlings by selling 15 grade Shorthorns of 1,115 lbs average at this figure.

Supply Tuesday 7,506. Included were few beef steers. This was fortunate, as buyers had few orders and sellers had difficulty in obtaining steady prices. Best offered were 19 long yearlings, averaging 1,087 lbs, at $6.65. Wednesday run 20,000. The market was in the worst shape in some time. Demand from all sources was quite limited and prices broke 10@20c, heavy offerings selling to least advantage. As compared with last week's close the heavy beeves showed 30@40c decline and the other kinds 25@30c. The top was $7.90, paid for 17 prime head of 1,626 lbs average. WE TOPPED THE YEARLING MARKET by landing 20 head of 907-lb heifers and steers mixed at $7.50. The lot included 15 heifers.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

On Thursday of last week the small supply of cows and heifers soon changed hands at generally steady prices. Bulls made a steady range and there was no quotable change for calves. Friday trade for she stock held steady with the previous day and generally 10@15c higher than the previous week's close. Steady to strong rates prevailed for bulls with Thursday and 10@15c higher than previous week's close. Calves were firm sale and showed 25@35c advance over corresponding day of previous week.

While there was a very uneven market for cows and heifers at the start of this week, prices were generally steady. One load of prime Angus heifers of 813 lbs average reached $7.10. Bulls went 10@15c lower under a big run. All price changes for calves tended toward a lower basis.

Strong prices prevailed for cows and heifers Tuesday, buyers taking hold very readily of the modest supply. A liberal run of bulls met mean sale, with all price changes tending downward. The highest prices of the season ruled for calves, fancy assorted lots going at $10@10.15. There was an active trade in cows and heifers Wednesday at prices strong to 10c higher.

Stockers and Feeders.

Top price and bulk sales of stockers and feeders this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Top Feeders.	Bulk Feeders.		Bulk Stockers.

Thursday of last week the demand was of small proportions and the market ruled slow at weaker rates. Trade continued in a depressed condition Friday, prices being generally 10@15c lower than close of the previous week.

Under pressure of big receipts and a poorer demand, stockers and feeders suffered a decline of 10@15c. General competition from killer buyers for the fleshy offerings enabled feeder buyers to have things pretty much their own way.

While the Tuesday market was more active, there was a liberal supply here and prices were merely steady. As compared with the recent high time the market was 25@50c lower, plain and medium kinds showing most loss. The Wednesday market was dull and prices generally 10c lower.

Thursday of last week receipts were 9,640. As compared with the close of the previous day prices were 10c higher. Top was $9.40 and bulk at $9.25 down to $8.50. Supply Friday 9,342. A 10@15c higher market. Summit $9.55 and $8.60@9.40 took a large share of the offerings. Saturday run 4,059. Prices ruled 10@15c higher. Top $9.65 and bulk $8.70@9.50. Generally speaking, the market was 10@15c lower than the previous week's close, although 35@50c higher than low time of the week, which was Wednesday.

Receipts at the start of this week 21,098. On the whole prices did not show much change. However, the market closed slumpy, with sales generally 5@10c lower. There were more choice heavy hogs available than any time in years for this period. Although the run was light for Monday, buyers' requirements were modest, owing to the prevailing high prices. Top $9.65. Bulk of good butcher weights and choice light weights at $9.20@9.55, most heavy shipping $9.15@9.40 and many packing grades at $8.60@8.90.

Tuesday run was 14,864. Market was a bad affair. Barring packing grades, bulk of which went 10c lower at $8.60@8.75, prices were 15@25c lower. Most butchers at $8.90@9.20 and choice light weights largely $9.25@9.40, with a top at $9.50. Wednesday's run 18,000. Packers had the market at their mercy and prices broke 10@25c, packing grades showing least loss. Top $9.35 and $8.40@8.90 gathered in a big portion of the arrivals.

Native Sheep and Lambs.

On Thursday of last week there was not much change in the general market. WE LANDED prime native lambs at $7.40, top by 15c per cwt and bulk went at $6.75@7.00. Most ewes brought $4.00@4.25. While best sheep sold steady Friday, other kinds, as well as lambs, lost 10@15c. Practicable top for lambs was $7.10 and fancy heavy ewes reached $4.50. As compared with the close of the previous week best grades showed a steady range, while other kinds lost 10@15c.

This week started out with prices steady for good to choice kinds and 10@15c lower for less desirable offerings. Best lambs went at $7.15 and bulk at $6.70@7.00, with ewes largely at $4.00@4.25.

A steady to strong market was had Tuesday, desirable lambs developing the strength. Buyers seemed anxious for the good fat grades. Top lambs made $7.25 and a large number $6.75@7.00. Best ewes at $4.35, with a good many around $4.25. Generally a steady market Wednesday, although plainer grades were difficult sale. Fancy lambs made $7.25.

East St. Louis Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

National Stock Yards, Ill., Sept. 27—Cattle supply liberal, with market on steers gone to pieces. This class is selling from 25@50c lower than close of last week. Butcher trade was only fair, with cow stuff selling about steady. Canners are bringing good prices and selling strong. Good grade heifers selling steady to shade lower, with other kinds about steady. Stock steers steady and feeders lower. The supply of Southern cattle has been heavy, market showing a decline in sympathy with the native sales mostly 15@25c lower. Fair supply of cows and mixed lots sold steady.

Supply of hogs moderate. Prices today 15@20c lower, top $9.50 and bulk $9.00@9.40. Butchers mostly $9.10@9.30, extreme heavy weights and plain kinds $8.25@8.75 and best kinds $8.90@9.25.

Sheep supply was limited, best lambs selling at $7.00 and other good kinds $6.25@6.85. Fair grades, on southwest order, $5.50@6.15. Culls mostly $4.25@4.75 for the best. Best mutton sheep $4.25. Demand for breeding ewes and stock sheep quiet. Stock sheep largely at $2.25@3.75. Bucks around $3.00.

South Omaha Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Neb., Sept. 27—Beef steers slow and barely steady sale with last week's close. She stock unchanged. Stockers and feeders strong to a shade higher.

Market for hogs opened about steady and closed 10c lower. Heavy grades $8.35@8.50, medium $8.50@8.60 and lights around $9.10.

Good grades of sheep and lambs steady with last week's close, but light and medium lambs, as well as old ewes, went unevenly lower.

75 to 100 Days

Of late we have received a great many inquiries regarding the above. At the outset we advise buying

Good Weight Cattle Carrying Good

Flesh, Say 1,100 to 1,200 lbs

The heavier they are the better. Cattle of above mentioned weights will, when finished and put on the market, out-sell steers of 950 to 1,000 lbs average by 30 to 40c per cwt. And the cost of preparing them for market will not be any greater.

Our Houses at all Leading Markets

Are The Sources of Supply

Our buyers are experts—the best that money can secure. They are filling orders from day to day, being in constant touch with market conditions, and thus are best posted.

We Can Save You Money in the Purchasing of Feeding Cattle

All you need to do is to write or wire us. State what class of cattle you want. We will do the rest—and to your satisfaction. There will be no need of you coming to market. The bulk of the orders received by us are by mail. Thus the prospective buyer is saved loss of time, railroad fare, hotel bills, etc.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

I. C. Miller, Carbon county, Wyo., marketed a load of of 1,186-lb beef steers at Denver early this week which our house landed at the top price of $5.60.

Charles Love, ElPaso county, Colo., obtained on the Denver market through our house early this week the top price of $4 50 for two loads of 937-lb heifers.

E. A. Moun, Franklin county, Penn., writes: "The Hereford feeders turned up in fine shape. They certainly are a nice even lot. We are very much pleased with your services."

Manchester, S. D., was represented on the Chicago yearling sheep market Sept. 26 with 157 head of 79 lbs average. They were sold by us at the top price of $5.50 and marketed by A. Mears.

John S. Baker, Grant county, Wis., writes our South St. Paul house: "Just a line to let you know that the cattle arrived O.K. Am well pleased. A person doesn't need to come to St. Paul when he is dealing with your firm."

Recently our Denver house handled shipments for the following well-known Wyoming cattlemen: Will McDonald and Charles Smith, Laramie county; R. H. Holmer and W. W. Cook, Albany county; J. W. Schneider, Converse county.

A. R. Laier, a prominent raiser of Hereford cattle, Sheridan county, Wyo., was on the South Omaha market Sept 19 with two cars of good feeders that our house sold at $5.60, averaging 1,226 lbs.

Extreme top price for range lambs at Chicago on Sept. 27 was $7.00. We obtained this for two different strings. The sales follow: For W. H. Thorpe, Elmore county, Idaho, 1,032 head of 66 lbs average, and for Austin Bros., Bannock county, Idaho, 1,756 head, averaging 65 lbs.

AVOID THIS PITFALL.

One of the biggest mistakes that either shippers or feeders of cattle, hogs and sheep can make is to "split" shipments; that is, divide the consignment between two or more commission firms on the same day. This works great harm to the sale of the entire lot, and has brought losses of thousands of dollars to owners. Buyers watch "split" shipments closely, keeping men at the chutes for that purpose, and use one firm against the other in the effort to pound prices down on such. The buyers' point is well taken as they are afraid to bid on divided shipments, each fearing that the other buyer may get his stock cheapest, in which case the buyer who paid the most would be open to criticism from his house. This causes them to hold off and the owner suffers a loss. On the other hand if one firm has an entire shipment they have all the buyers competing with each other for the same and this enables the salesman to raise the price. If shippers wish to divide their shipments they will save money by doing so on different days. : : : : :

Notice to Feeders Between Denver and Missouri River Points

A good many feeding lambs are being received at Denver, Colo. Those who want this class of stock to feed between Denver and Missouri River points can obtain same on the Denver market with feed-in-transit privileges.

Oct. 1 Clay, Robinson & Co. expect to have about 7,500 head of choice Nevada lambs, averaging around 58 lbs, on the market, and also have several other strings in sight for the month of October.

Denver is the only market that affords the feed-in-transit privileges. This is a big saving to the feeder of either cattle, sheep or lambs between there and the Missouri River points.

If you intend to feed in above mentioned territory and want either feeding lambs or cattle, send your order to

Owing to unforseen increase in business, we are finding it hard at times at this dangerous season of the year, to fill orders promptly. Some localities are flooding us with orders and some shipments have had to be made in dry-goods boxes to save delay. This rush will increase as the season advances, but we hope, with increased facilities, soon to enable every up-to-date hog feeder to provide his "dope" for his hogs, when the order is received. In the meantime we ask customers to be patient as we are trying our best to treat every customer as fairly and squarely as our capacity will permit. Anti-Cholera Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago.

Frank S. Hastings of Stamford, Tex., manager of the S M S cattle, writes that they will not sell any she stuff this season: also that they have sold all of their yearling steers, and their regular fall offering is therefore confined to steer calves. He adds, however, that these will be as good as any they have ever shipped: that water and grass conditions on the S M S ranches have been of a character to guarantee the usual high-class offering. S M S cattle are advertised in this issue of the REPORT.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

Give Cattle Market Breathing Spell.

There are few feeders who have good fat cattle that are not in position to hold these offerings back for a week or so. Fall pastures are good and corn is considerably cheaper. Besides, the recent deep gashes in the price range should be an added inducement for doing this. Also, there is promise of the great bulk of the finished cattle having been well marketed by the middle of this month and that they will be better appreciated after then. Thus it is penny wise and pound foolish to crowd the market when it is imperative that lighter receipts be landed at the central markets if further slashing of rates is to be avoided. The market will react under lighter runs. All that is needed to pave the way for higher prices is a clearing of the badly clogged beef channels. There may be cases where owners have six or more loads and are unable to hold all of them. If so, they should market two or three loads at a time. Thus the supply would be better distributed and buyers' strong hold on the market loosened.

Western Range Cattle Liquidation Continues.

The western ranges continue to market cattle liberally. It cannot be checked. Holdings have to be cut down to a minimum to offset the feed shortage. Big runs have been had at South Omaha. Receipts at Chicago for the season thus far are around 192,000, being 7,000 more than the same period of last year and only 15,000 shy of the total of two years ago.

End of the liquidation is not in sight. It is true that most of the largest ranchmen have sent their all for this season. But there are hundreds of small owners to be heard from. They are in the Dakotas, Montana and Wyoming. Their shipments will be liberal this month and a good number will show in November. In fact, good runs will continue until the first snow storm scatters the cattle to the four winds.

There is promise of the western ranchmen going into winter with fewer cattle than usual. Both she and steer stock is being sacrificed as never in years. Thousands upon thousands of young, thrifty steers and cows and heifers that, under normal conditions are carried over into another season, are being marketed. Shipments this season are at the expense of the future.

Looks Like a Depleted Hog Supply.

A question which is agitating the minds of stock men in the Middle West and East, as well as the slaughtering interests, is that of the probable supply of hogs. As compared with the short crop of last year, there is an increase, but quite a decrease when fitted against supplies of normal hog producing years.

In the solution of the hog crop problem it is found that both government and private statistics are against the theory of a normal supply. On Jan. 1, 1910, the number of hogs in the country was estimated by the Department of Agriculture at 47,782,000 head. This total was 6,365,000 below that of the previous Jan. 1, 1909, and 8,302,000 less than in 1908. The government on Sept. 1 figured the supply of stock hogs at 100.3 per cent, which means .3 more than a year ago—not an appreciable gain. Records of packing at the principal centers (17 large cities and towns being specified) from March 1 to Sept. 14 showed a deficiency of 1,620,000 hogs, the aggregate slaughter being 10,890,000, against 12,510,000 in the corresponding 6½ months of the preceding year.

In view of all the facts, it is hard to escape the conclusion of a depleted hog crop, which is not attributable entirely to the present season, but which goes further back. Such shortages can not be overcome in a single year. It may be two or three years before a full restoration of the supply will be accomplished. In the meantime the hog will continue to do mortgage lifting act, whenever it is necessary.

George Pratt's Opinion on Hog Trade.

"I do not expect to see hogs on a much permanently lower basis for about thirty days," remarked George Pratt, who has charge of Armour & Co.'s hog buying force. "We will not get the runs to permit a serious drop in the price range. After the next month or so the new crop should show up in liberal numbers and the market should work much lower. However, I do not look for cheap swine during the winter. In my opinion, the crop of hogs has been over-estimated. My guess is for 15 to 20 per cent more than last year, while many are looking for an increase of 25 to 35 per cent. This drop in the price of corn and the assurance of a record yield for the new crop means much to the hog feeders. They will not market many pigs or shoats, in the belief that it will pay them to send corn to market by the hog route. In this they are wise. Hogs will continue to be good makers for some time to come. The outlet for pork products should widen materially just as soon as the price is gotten within the reach of the average consumer. It has been and is too high for a good, healthy trade."

KING CORN WINS OUT

Record Sheep Arrivals at Chicago.

The western ranges continue to disgorge sheep and lambs at a furious pace. On Monday a new record was hung up at Chicago for one day arrivals. The total at 66,160 was the largest ever received at any market and compared with the previous banner run of 63,215 at South Omaha on Sept. 26. However, the combined receipts at the six leading western markets were reduced by around 26,000 from the enormous supplies Monday of last week, the total being 113,800.

Fully 75 per cent of the receipts at Chicago on Monday were feeders. However, there was a swarm of order and outside feeder buyers on the market, and steady prices prevailed for all desirable classes. This also was true of the trade in fat classes. It was truly a remarkable market, and one that the oldest traders here never saw before, in point of either supplies or outlet.

The questions naturally arise: When will there be an abatement in the heavy runs? When will the country's voracious appetite for feeders be appeased?

Regarding the first question, a lucid answer is contained in the statement of one of the largest and best-posted flockmasters in the West, whom we quote in part: "Necessity for liquidation exists, as we have little or no winter feed, and buying at current prices is impossible with many. The only alternative presented is to make sacrifices now and stock up again when feed conditions become normal. Of course, the process entails enormous shrinkage in values, but as it is unavoidable nobody is squealing. Many sections have additional incentive for liquidation in an invasion of settlers. The West will go into the winter with materially reduced flocks and nearly everybody is making preparation for feeding. These big runs mean a light movement in succeeding years, especially when the stocking process begins."

Anent the second question, conditions warrant a continuation of hungry demand for feeding stock. Fall pastures are good, a record crop of corn is assured and the farmers of the Middle West and East have learned to appreciate the animal with the golden hoof in enriching the soil as no other stock can. And besides prices have dropped sharply from the recent high point, and are mostly 25@50c below one year ago.

Is a Blessing in Disguise

The railroads have made a creditable showing this season; in fact, stock shipping service, in view of the tremendous pressure for cars, has been the best in years. Yet, there have been many complaints from consignors. And they have been quite justifiable in most instances. There is wide room for improvement in the service rendered by the railway lines. However, as in past seasons when there was widespread desire to rush stock marketward, inability of railroads to furnish enough cars proved a blessing in disguise. At the present time if all orders for cars could be filled as soon as wanted in the western range country and middle west states the markets would be swamped with cattle and sheep, and it would be hard to guess how low prices would drop.

Foundation Under Business Is Solid

Probably the greatest encouragement at the present is to be found in the growing crops. Politics may cause hesitancy, but the country may prosper in spite of political disturbances. With serious crop damage, however, the situation changes, for, after all, the product of the soil constitutes the rock on which is built the whole structure of our prosperity. Every day now brings us farther from danger of serious damage from frost, and there is ample reason for believing that the combined harvests will aggregate somewhere near $9,000,000,000, a bountiful addition of new wealth. The corn crop yield will not be far from 3,000,000,000 bushels, with an estimated value of $1,500,000,000. These figures show a handsome sum, most of it going into the farmers' hands.

In Southeast Missouri.

I WAS sitting at supper last night in a quaint old southern home in Blodgett, Missouri. During an old-fashioned meal of chicken, steak, fried potatoes, preserved apples, etc., along with the company of an ingenuous old lady, I asked Mr. Ben Gratz, the leading owner and spirit in a land company that owns 20,000 acres of land in the vicinity of the above town, "How did you come to own this land?"

"Well," he said, "I used to come down here to hunt deer. It was a wild wooded country, sand ridge and swamp, lakes and overflows meeting together, full of malaria, sickly people and just about in the same condition as when Mark Tapley visited it years and years ago."

Then Mrs. Lemmon, our genial hostess, spoke: "Yes, those were the old days. When Lemmon and I came here forty years ago it was a wilderness, very few settlers, and we had just a log cabin, and not a large one at that, to shelter ourselves. Money we never saw but at rare intervals. A silver dollar looked like a wagon wheel. We shot deer, wild turkey and quail for our meat and when we went to the store we traded coon skins for coffee and sugar, quinine and ammunition. The first were luxuries, the second necessities.

With this break, telling of old times, Mr. Gratz continued: "I had a factory at Champaign, Ill., in those days and when visiting it I saw the dredgers working in that vicinity, so I sent an engineer to this region and found that there was a fall of 1½ feet to the mile towards the Mississippi. That was enough, so I began to purchase these so-called swamp lands at $2.00@5.00 per acre and then after a bit as high as $10, and in one case $20 per acre. We built our first ditch at our own expense. You saw it this afternoon, and soon the neighbors began to see the benefit of it. Worthless land became worth $50@100 per acre. Now there are an endless number of ditches, but there is much to be done yet." Then he gave a sigh, thinking not of past achievements, but of what lay before him.

Many a time in this paper I have stated that our richest lands are yet dormant. There are millions of acres water-soaked, useless for want of the drain pipe and the big ditch. We have rushed to our arid lands, put water over them, made gardens in the desert, but we have done little to drain our swales, to ditch great territories of low-lying land so that the drain pipe could be be used to advantage. As you rush through our central states by train or otherwise you see hundreds of acres of low-lying land, wonderfully fertile, but at present sour, forbidding, home of the frog and mosquitoe, a nuisance in the neighborhood.

A dozen years ago this was the condition of the Blodgett country. It was wild, unkempt, a sickly, misty hue over its low lands, dispelled only by hot suns through the day, to gather again at night. The folks were shiftless, the land non-productive, the timber lands impossible to approach. So the Johnson Land Co., of which Mr. Gratz was the leading spirit, built a ditch to drain part of their lands, constructed a railroad to reach the timber, set a sawmill agoing and, while they did not make much, if any, money in this way, they cleared the land, and instead of a sporting preserve there are rich farms, wonderous corn fields, cow peas in profusion, elevators full of wheat, pastures not half filled with cattle, a fertile land where a healthy, vigorous people are doing their part in the world's work and still voting the Democrat ticket. I said to one of the leading spirits: "Don't you like to scratch your ticket now and again and vote for the best man?" "No sir-ee," was his reply. "I vote the ticket good man or bad." And this is why so many scalawags get into places of political trust. We have not the courage to follow our own judgment and cut out the politioal undergrowth.

Around Blodgett they have a style of cropping unique so far as I know. Wheat is the grand standby. It is cut about the end of June. The stubble is ploughed up at once and about July 10th cow peas are planted. The peas are at their best just now. They stretch away from the roadside, a mass of tangled green, rich in coloring, riotous in growth, crushing out weeds and providing a splendid crop of forage and concentrated food. Over and above they fertilize the soil. A good second in crops is corn. It grows to a great height and seems to be wonderfully prolific in that region. Very often peas are sown before the last working and not only have you a grain field, but endless forage also. Much of this drained land is sandy and dry, and the day may come when the feeding of sheep will be an important industry in this part of the world. The San Luis Valley produces more peas, better in quality, vastly more of them, but here they are a side issue, a second crop, and added profit.

But the feeding business here is only in its infancy. Few of the farmers know anything about it.

B. F. MARSHALL OF BLODGETT, MO.

In a new country the first efforts are towards easy money, and the cashing of grain at the country elevator is a path that presents few difficulties. And yet that elevator merely moves wealth from one part of the country to the other. This does not apply to wheat, but it does to corn. Corn was meant for two things: First, to provide a coarse grain that was convertible into money through live stock, and second, as a sequence to fertilize the soil. The shipment of corn in large quantities from a country is merely robbery under arms, so far as the farm is concerned. In the old country when a farmer began to sell all his grain, dispose of hay, let his turnip fields to a neighbor or some live stock dealer, then you knew the end was near financially.

At Blodgett Mr. Gratz is trying to change methods and have the grain consumed at home. In this line he is ably seconded by Mr. B. F. Marshall, the king of the Blodgett country, a large landholder in his own right, as well as in the big land company controlled by Mr. Gratz and his friends, the leading merchant and banker; in fact, the man of affairs so far as Blodgett is concerned. You will also meet Mr. George Buchanan, who has done great work in development under Messrs. Gratz and Marshall. He is superintendent of this great property and knows every hole and corner of it. Over and above he has a liking for stock, is a good judge and knows the business. But, as he says, "We have had so much to do here we could not overtake every point in the business. Part has been neglected, and, it is candid to say, it has been the live stock end. There is a remedy for that, and we are now fairly on the way towards it.

"When a deer was forced by the hounds to the North-cut Cypress coutry I used to blow them off and stop. It was an impassable country, knee-deep in water, a tangle of undergrowth, an impossible place." Such was the description of the big 3,500-acre pasture that is the apple of Mr. Gratz's eye in these modern days. A levee protects it now from the overflow. A dozen miles below, the surface water is emptied by big canals into the Mississippi. Come up that river in a boat and watch the depth of the soil. Five, ten, fifteen feet of black dirt, according to location, and the North-cut Cypress pastures is a continuation of those banks. There is some gumbo on top, but down where the ditches cut through you see the black soil and then on the surface are mighty trees, grass knee-high, a vigorous growth of underbrush.

There has been trouble about a proper outlet for the big ditches. Away some miles below is a ridge. There the outlet is narrow and through some legal complications a delay has occurred in making the way open. When the water flows freely and more ditches are dredged, when the drain pipe is laid up each little hollow, then the day will come when the North-cut Cypress pasture will be one of the finest in Missouri or any other state. Upon its dry patches blue grass and white clover are showing themselves now. Two to three thousand cattle will find a congenial home there for eight or ten months of the year. Then they will be transferred to the corn and pea fields and finished for market. In these days of high beef there cannot be a prettier commercial transaction than converting the raw products—grass, corn, peas and other feeds—into a manufactured article, and here is the place that it can be done to advantage. Instead of shipping corn, cattle sheep and hogs finished for market will find their way to East St. Louis and thence be distributed in one form and another to the ends of the earth. The sound of Mr. Gratz's horn will no longer be heard. In its place will be the lowing of cattle, the bleat of gentle sheep, the satisfied grunt of the fat back.

Some fourteen miles from Blodgett is the town of Sikeston. It is about the liveliest town I ever struck. Blodgett is dry; Sikeston is wet, very wet, and on the Saturday we spent there the consumption of liquor was enormous, and yet the owner of the principal saloon said it was a quiet day. The great market square was filled with wagons and buggies, mules and horses, men, women and children, fakirs and philanthropists, a gathering that reminds me of old days at Brantford, Ont. It was a good humored crowd, on pleasure bent. The week's work was over and the country was pouring into town to trade, shop and incidentally to drink.

Whence came this prosperity? Drive into the country, watch the fields of grain, the great straw stacks, the endless fields of corn, the rich pastures, and you have the answer. The stores in town are busy, the banks full of business, a factory or two make an industrial hum, while the pleasant homes tell of wealth and contentment. J. C.

Feeding Cattle Auction at Royal.

The feeder department of the American Royal, Kansas City, which looks like a monster record breaker this year, gains added interest from the standpoint of the visitor because the entries will be sold at auction. The feeders will be judged Tuesday, Oct. 11, and will be sold at auction Thursday, the sales starting at 9:30 a. m.

There is good promise of the largest and best lot of feeder cattle ever gotten together. This will be an excellent opportunity to stock up with cattle of a superior grade. Are you interested? If so, write Clay, Robinson & Co., Stock Yards, Kansas City, Mo., for more detailed information.

Nice Boost for Corn-Fed Cattle.

Cattle feeders have wisely followed the warning sent them to not get panicky and to reduce supplies. That the desired results have accrued is reflected in an advance of 25@50c during the first half of this week for good to choice corn-fed cattle as compared with low time last week. This boosting of the price range was accomplished not under a broadened demand, but solely under a an appreciable curtailment of supplies. Let this be a lesson for marketing cattle the next several weeks. Do not weaken and liquidate heavily again. Under sane supplies the market will act to feeders' satisfaction. A very encouraging factor is the ending of the Jewish Holidays this week and resultant wider outlet for beef. However, remember that with heavy runs next week the above price gain will rapidly melt away.

New Record in Range Cattle Trade.

On Tuesday, Oct. 4, Clay, Robinson & Co., Chicago, made another record in range cattle affairs. On that day a train of forty-four cars of cattle from Montana were billed to them. Not one car of this train was handled by any other firm. Considering the number of owners, eleven in all, it was the first time any live stock commission firm ever received as many cars in one train. However, Clay, Robinson & Co. several times have had as many and more cars in one train, once as high as sixty cars, billed to them from big ranchmen.

Practically all of the owners were small ranchmen, and the stock was badly mixed, the train comprising calves, bulls, she stock, feeders and fat steers. Most of the consignors were here in person, and all were delighted with the way their cattle were handled upon arrival at the Yards, the expert sorting and grading and the prices obtained considering the severe break from the recent high time, the break being influenced by a 40@60c declined in native corn-fed cattle last week.

Among those who had in the cattle were C. M. Belden and his son Platt Belden, J. A. Murphy, J. D. Waite, George Trask, Homer Goodell, Theo. Gray, Chas. Huffine and the Middlefork Cattle Co., all of Fergus county, Mont.

Included in the two-car shipment of Mr. Waite's were 21 beef steers, which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $7.10, the highest price in three weeks and 25c per cwt higher than any other range cattle brought this week. They averaged 1,482 lbs and were dehorned grade Herefords and Shorthorns. A detailed list of all the sales will be found on another page.

Believes Big Runs Will Taper Off.

Clyde Stevens, cattle salesman for Clay, Robinson & Co., Denver, has returned from a trip to Steamboat Springs and other sections of the northwestern part of Colorado. He states that the bulk of cattle from that part of the country have been shipped. A few of the outfits have stock to come yet, but the stockmen of that section are pretty well cleaned up for this year. "I believe we are going to find the big run over with one of these days pretty soon," said he, "and some of those fellows who have been holding back for the cattle to get cheaper before buying may find that they have waited too long." Mr. Stevens says it is pretty dry yet in Routt county, but the cattle are in good condition.

"Wyoming's Grand Old Man."

Rain or shine, the sheepmen can depend upon "standpatter" F. E. Warren. The Honorable Francis E. Warren, United States Senator from Wyoming, is not made of material that surrenders. "Wyoming's grand old man" fought in the ranks to save his country, and he is proud of the little button that is always found in the lapel of his coat. And, boys of the plains, you can bet your bottom dollar he is not ready to surrender the Senate to a band of "insurgents" bent on slaughtering the wool tariff. For 25 years this grand old tariff warhorse has stood pat for the American flockmaster, and when the Senate bugle call to arms is heard you will find him ready to fight in the last ditch any attempt made to destroy the American wool industry.—American Sheep Breeder.

Must Reduce Cattle Holdings in Wyoming.

W. T. Wolfe, for years a prominent cattle raiser in the Lusk, Wyo., territory, was on the South Omaha market Sept. 28 with a train of cows, heifers and calves of exceptionally good breeding. Clay, Robinson & Co. handled the shipment. Mr. Wolfe said conditions are far from satisfactory in his territory, which accounts for the heavy shipment of she stock at this time. The open range will afford but little feed. Herds must be cut down to the lowest point and, with a scarcity of hay, only the stronger class of cattle will be carried into the winter. Mr. Wolfe has been paying considerable attention in late years to the quality of his herd, and it is very disappointing to him to dispose of his fine breeding stock at this time.

5,800 Feeding Lambs Bought for One Customer By Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha.

Seventeen thirty-six foot double deck cars, 5,800 lambs, shipped in a special train, tells the story of one of the recent accomplishments of our sheep buying department. This purchase was made for W. F. Gieseke of the Marshall Milling Co., Marshall, Minn., by our South Omaha house, Sept. 28 and 29. The shipment was moved over the Northwestern Railway by special train via Council Bluffs and Sioux City in record time, being accompanied over the several divisions of the road by the trainmasters, who saw to it that nothing interfered with prompt service.

For several seasons Clay, Robinson & Co. have had the pleasure of buying a large number of feeding lambs for Mr. Gieseke, and for several seasons our Chicago house has been privileged to sell the fattened lambs. Mr. Gieseke is a keen, progressive business man, has reduced the business of lamb feeding to a science, has one of the best equipped feeding plants in the country, and has made a great success in this field. He concedes it is a great aid to success in this endeavor to have "Clay, Robinson & Co. service," both in the selection of his feeders and the selling of the stock when fat.

Recently in a card to a prospective feeding sheep and lamb purchasers, we said:

> "Last year we shipped feeding sheep into thirteen different states from this market. We filled orders for beginners, for old practical feeders of thousands for agricultural colleges, experimental stations and for show purposes at the Chicago International. Why did we draw from such distances this patronage? These purchasers are all in the business for the dollars there are in it, and hence patronize the firm that always gives honest, money-making service. No matter to what market they go, they know they are always sure to find our sheepmen are live wires, men of red blood, with sleeves rolled up, full of enthusiasm, vim and go, who know best how to serve their interests. You are wanting feeders? Are you critical? Are you hard to satisfy? Then give us a trial buying order. We want work worthy of our steel."

Mr. Gieseke's order was "work worthy of our steel," and we point with, we think, pardonable pride to its successful execution. Its accomplishment is but further evidence of the great buying organization we have built, an organization, we think not only creditable to ourselves, but to the live stock industry. In assisting buyers to secure a better selection, to buy at money-saving prices, we save them additional sums in the indirect expense of personal visitation to market, to say nothing of the enhanced selling value of the stock made possible by expertness in the selection and sort of the feeders. We consider no order unworthy "of our steel." Conscientious effort and our best service is given in the execution of an order for one car as it is in filling the larger commands. This order given us by Mr. Gieseke is the best evidence that our maintenance of a buying organization, separate and distinct from our selling service, is appreciated by the keen, wide-awake and progressive feeders.

Following in an exerpt from a letter received from Mr. Gieseke by our South Omaha house in reference to this transaction:

> "As to the run that we had. It might be best expressed as 'one of the wonders of the twentieth century.' It is surprising what can be done when taken up through the proper channels and entered into with the spirit of 'do or die' on the part of every individual connected with the entire unit. With a smile from every man in the yards, Jasmer's (South Omaha live stock agent, C. & N. W. Ry.) good-bye, in the company of the most accommodating and best trainmasters I ever met, Pike and Hansen, a grin from ear to ear on everyone from engineer to brakeman—particularly true when we sailed by passenger trains—you may imagine that neither wind nor weather could stop us. For quite a spell we were running at the rate of fifty to sixty miles per hour. As a matter of fact, we went so rapidly that as we neared our destination the arrangements for their train crews were made somewhat late, and necessitated my awaiting the arrival of their engines; but we got here at 4:00 a. m., leaving Omaha at 2:10 p. m., the last 61 miles requiring some four and one-half hours of the entire time. We started unloading at about 8:00 a. m. They came out in fine shape, the best I ever saw them, and by noon we were drinking to their welfare."

Fifth Inter-State Show, South St. Joseph is Very Successful

The Fifth Inter-State Live Stock and Horse Show, held at South St. Joseph last week, was unanimously pronounced the most successful ever held there, being the biggest and best. The number of entries considerably outnumbered those of previous years, the carload division showing a particularly large increase and being a very interesting display. The attendance was greater than at any previous show, there having been something like 75,000 paid admissions. The show was an interesting and instructive one, and outside of the show proper were some attractive features, particularly the exhibition on the grounds every evening of Miller Bros. 101 Ranch Wild West Show. The luncheon and smoker given in the Exchange Building on the closing day of the show, at which about 300 plates were laid, was a very pleasing affair, many notable guests being present, including Governor Hadley and Congressman Booher.

Champion Fat Cattle From Kansas.

Awards in the fat carload lot cattle division follow:

Judges—Fred Stemm, E. H. Erwin, Eugene Rothschild.

Three-year-olds—First, A. E. McGregor, Washington, Kan., on Herefords; second, A. W. Ebersol & Son, Union Star, Mo., on Angus; third, A. W. Ebersol, Union Star, Mo., on Shorthorns; fourth, Robert Frost, Plattsburg, Mo., on Herefords.

Two-year-olds — First, David Haxton, Sabetha, Kan., on Herefords; second, W. N. Gregory, Fillmore, Mo., on Angus; third, H. Williamson, Beatrice, Neb., on Herefords; fourth, Bucher Bros., Dubois, Neb., on Shorthorns.

Yearlings—First, W. P. Carpenter, Tarklo, Mo., on Angus; second, P. R. Low, Tarklo, Mo., on Herefords; third, C. Stickrod, Rock Port, Mo., on Herefords; fourth, W. L. Carpenter, on Angus.

Champion carloads — David Haxton, Sabetha, Kan., on two-year-old Herefords.

Aberdeen-Angus Special—First, W. P. Carpenter, Tarkio, Mo.

Hereford Calves—Champion Feeders.

Native and western carload lot feeder cattle awards were as follows:

Two-year-olds — First, George Carey, Sarpy Mills, Neb., on Herefords; second, F. B. Wilson & Son, Union Star, Mo., on Angus; third, Reinhold and Puderbough, St. Francis, Kan.

Yearlings—First, H. W. Skinner, Madison Lodge, Kan., on Shorthorns.

Calves—First, John A. Redmond, Maysville, Mo., on Herefords; second, John A. Redmond on Galloways; third, H. W. Skinner, Madison Lodge, Kan., on Shorthorns.

Champion carload—John A. Redmond, on Hereford calves.

Western Range Feeders.

Two-year-olds—First, C. C. Clover, Cambridge, Kan., on Angus; second, C. C. Clover, on Herefords.

Nebraska Hogs Carry Off First Honors.

Awards in the fat carload lot hog division were as follows:

250 lbs or over—First, E. L. Bowers, Birden, Neb.; second, W. L. Carpenter, Tarkio, Mo.; third, W. F. Davis, Forest City, Mo.

Under 250 lbs—First, A. T. Popple, Axtell, Neb.; second, E. L. Bowers, Birden, Neb.

Champion carload—A. T. Popple, Axtell, Neb.

Record Sheep Entries.

The number of entries of sheep for the thoroughbred division and the car lot division was the greatest in the history of the Inter-State Live Stock Show. The quality was very good, and there was a very good showing of all breeds. In the car load lot of range sheep, Peter Johnstone of Blackfoot Idaho, took first prize for the best car of fat range lambs, the 50 head, averaging 88 lbs, selling in the auction at $7.75 to Swift & Co. We had entered for Moroni A. Smith of Heber City, Utah, 57 range lambs of 86 lbs average, which took second prize and sold at $7.50 to Swit & Co., and three wether lambs for the same owner, entered for the Swift & Co. special price for three best wether lambs, these taking first prize, averaging 83 lbs and selling at $9.00 to Hammand Packing Co. We also had entered 125 wethers which took first prize and sold at $5.00 to Swift & Co. average 103 lbs. They were Oregon wethers and exhibited by the Connett Estate, Faucett, Mo. The first premium for the best car lot of native lambs went to R. N. Funk of New Hampton Mo., the 60 head averaging 85 lbs, selling at $7.30 to Hammond Packing Co. Peter Johnstone also exhibited 50 fed wethers of 143 lbs average which took first prize and sold to Swift & Co. at $4.25, and also 58 breeding ewes, averaging 149 lbs, that went back to the country at $4.50.

Cattle which won third prize in the fat carload lot class at the Inter-State Live Stock Show, South St. Joseph, last week. There were 15 two-year-old Hereford steers in the lot. They averaged 1,222 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction at $7.60. They were fed and shown by Henry Williamson, the famous feeder of Diller, Neb.

These 15 two-year-old Hereford steers, which averaged 1,494 lbs, and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.45 last week in the auction of the Inter-State Live Stock Show at South St. Joseph, were fed and marketed by the well known and successful feeder, Walter Williams, of Hanover, Kan.

Henry Williamson of Diller, Neb., was the owner and Clay, Robinson & Co. the sellers of these 15 yearling Hereford steers, averaging 938 lbs, which last week brought $7.40 in the auction ring of the Inter-State Live Stock Show at South St. Joseph.

The 20 Angus feeder steers which won second prize in the native carload lot feeder cattle exhibit of the Inter-State Live Stock Show at South St. Joseph last week. They averaged 925 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $5.10. They were exhibited by C. C. Wilson, a prominent stockman of Union Star, Mo.

These 15 yearling Hereford heifers, averaging 925 lbs, won second prize in their class at the Inter-State Live Stock Show, South St. Joseph, last week. They were sold in the auction ring by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.60. They were fed and marketed by P. R. Low of Tarkio, Mo. Their ration consisted of corn and the famous "Champion Molasses Feed." Mr. Low is also feeding two carloads of cattle on "Champion Molasses Feed," one for exhibit at the Royal Show, Kansas City, and the other for the International Show, Chicago.

Range Conditions Critical in Eastern Montana.

George B. Marshall an old-time stockman of Ewalt, Mont., was at South Omaha with a shipment of cattle to Clay, Robinson & Co. Mr. Marshall located in Eastern Montana in 1884, coming from Arkansas. He has been engaged in the stock business and said to the Journal-Stockman that he would have to move to a new country. Conditions in the range country of Eastern Montana are very critical this fall and stockmen do not know just which way to jump. A great many are going out of business and others are going to take the chance of a mild winter and try to winter the stock they have left. The range grass was practically destroyed by the dry, hot summer and the little growth which has come this fall will undoubtedly be killed and amount to nothing as soon as winter sets in. Mr. Marshall thinks that stockmen are taking a very big chance and in all probability the shipment he made will be the last he will consign from Eastern Montana. He says that the far West looks good to him, for there is not so much of a gamble with the weather. Sheepmen are up against it, not knowing whether to ship or hold their stock. Some will ship in, but others are preparing to hold and try and feed through the winter.

From An Ohio Feeder.

The following lines, printed under a portrait of Mr. Frank G. Bloom, president of the Bloom Cattle Co., Trinidad, Colo., in our issue of Sept. 23, furnished the text from which Mr. M. D. Bradley of Mechanicsburg, Ohio, in a letter to us under date of Sept. 25, preaches a snappy business sermonette:

"Mr. Bloom, for many years one of the most extensive and best known cattlemen in the entire West, has consigned continuously to Clay, Robinson & Co. since the firm's organization in 1896. For at least twelve years prior to that time he consigned to the present firm's predecessors, J. M. Robinson & Co., of which our Mr. Chas. O. Robinson's father was senior member. Therefore, in effect, Mr. Bloom has done business with our firm for thirty-six years without interruption of mutually pleasant and satisfactory relations. This is a rather remarkable showing, and ought to be a sufficient index for any man in selecting his commission firm. By profiting from the experience of keen and successful men like Mr. Bloom you may save making costly mistakes. Your commission firm, like your lawyer, banker or business partner, should be chosen with extreme care. If we can render satisfactory service for a period of thirty-six years to men of Mr. Bloom's calibre, can you doubt for a moment that your interests will be absolutely safe in our hands? Form your own judgment in this matter, and then allow no one to swerve you from it."

We quote from Mr. Bradley's letter, as follows: "I just ripped the wrapper off the Report and read of Mr. Bloom's experience which shows a 'Blooming' success for both of you. I am with you on the proposition that one should be careful to not be easily swerved when a matter of such vital importance is at stake. In the matter of buying cattle to feed I have made up my mind that the only honorable and just way for one who is wanting stock and wants what will suit him, and give you also a proper chance, is for the prospective purchaser to take a short business trip to your yards, go with some one of your men and show him in person just what build, color, etc., is desired, and then tell him to act strictly in accordance with the observation of the eye and the word of mouth and that if same is not kept strictly to, the stock will remain in the pens for your further disposition. I see it plainly written in the physiognomy of Mr. Bloom that if you failed to come up to proper requirements he would be heard from. I also see that he would be justly lenient if it was a first start-out between you and himself. Experience teaches us all, and today sees me at the fifty-sixth mile post on the road of life (part has been smooth and part rough) and my experience has made me decide to make the trip to Chicago when I desire stock and in person point out my kind, then for future orders call for the same man I showed my choice and type of stock to to be the one to select for me, and in case he proved to be short of memory it would cost you the bother of further selling at this end of the road. I have faith both in your ability and opportunity to find and fill orders to the letter, and expect to be there later to try you out. I appreciate the Live Stock Report and hope the same will be a guide for many others as well as for myself. It is a beacon light to us people out of the harbor."

Combines Ranching With Farming.

M. C. Campbell of Wichita, Kan., one of the most prominent cattlemen in Kansas and a valued friend of Clay, Robinson & Co., was at Kansas City to look the cattle situation over. Mr. Campbell has long been identified with the cattle interests of that part of the state. He owns a ranch in Clark county, Kan., and pastures cattle in Wabaunsee county. In discussing the conditions, Mr. Campbell stated that in all his experiences he never saw better times nor times when the cattlemen had done so well. "In these days," he said, "we combine ranching with farming. When we had to depend upon cattle alone, we very often failed. The grass has been good all season, and cattle are fat. A few days ago I sold 100 head of four-year-old steers at $67 each. I recall how we had a hard time several years ago to get just half that much for such steers. I have down on the Clark county ranch at present 1,500 head of three-year-old steers. They are the good kind, which I could readily sell now at $50. But I intend to carry them over. You see, since we combined farming with ranching we can handle cattle much better and cheaper. That 800 acres of wheat of mine will furnish a great amount of good feed for cattle all winter. In thrashing the wheat this season we saved the straw. That I will feed to the cattle, with a little cottonseed cake, and keep them fat all winter at a very slight cost. If there is any man in the cattle business who has been running behind the past few years, I do not know who he is. This has been one of the best of all years in the business, for the reason that the prices have held up."

Western Sheep Flocks Will Be Greatly Reduced.

"Wyoming and Montana will send more sheep and lambs to market this season than for many years," remarked F. E. Warren, Jr., of Cheyenne, Wyo., and son of Senator F. E. Warren of Wyoming, who brought in a big string of sheep and lambs to Chicago and sold them at very pleasing prices through Clay, Robinson & Co., considering the condition of the trade. "The flockmasters have to cut down their flocks to a minimum this year. A scarcity of feed on the ranges and a big shortage in the hay crop leaves them no alternative. Ship they must. Around Cheyenne conditions are not so bad, but they get worse as one goes north and west of there. The percentage of holdings this winter will be the smallest in years. This is the first time that we have marketed any big number of lambs on the central markets. We were forced to do this this season, as the Northern Colorado feeders, our main outlet, are about out of the lamb feeding business, alfalfa being too scarce and high for them to stock up. It will take several years to get the sheep business back to the numbers of 1909. The range sheep business is rapidly getting to be a lamb proposition, due to the great contraction of the range. So many have not range privileges that they cannot afford to carry the lambs over to the wether age.

The Warren Live Stock Co., of which Mr. Warren is vice president and his father president, is one of the largest sheep firms left in the West. Their stock is among the best bred and their lambs among the most popular with the feeders that reach the big markets. They also handle range cattle and market them through Clay, Robinson & Co.

Where Fair Play is Greatly Needed.

The producers of food animals take occasion to complain of the actions of the large packing establishments in controlling market prices of such stock to the prejudice of the interests of producers, in depressing prices, says the Price Current. The consuming interest introduces the fashion of holding the packer responsible for excessive prices of the food product of slaughtered animals. Thus the packers stand between two fires. A recent issue of the Boston Herald says the report on cost of living, made by a Massachusetts commission, shows that from 1897 to 1910, in that state, "the average price for beef for roasting advanced 37 per cent; fresh pork rose 79 per cent and salt pork over 92 per cent." The Herald in mentioning that federal officials are about to enter upon an investigation of the business of selling meat in that section of the country, to ascertain how far the management of the business has tended to reduce competition and to increase monopoly power, observes: "No investigation and no law can uncover or correct all faults that are factors in the cost of living. But every little helps, and an investigation like this which promises to throw light on one shady phase of the manipulation of prices from producer to consumer deserves support and success."

An illustration of the changes in cost of live animals in the comparison between 1897 and 1910 can be found in the records of prices of hogs at Chicago paid by the packers for the four winter months ending March 1, 1897, and for the four winter months ending March 1, 1910, the former period showing $3.25 per cwt as the record, the later period $8.42 as the record—an advance of 151 per cent in such cost. Comparisons for cattle for the periods stated show an advance of about 50 per cent in the averages.

If rational views could be had concerning the meat industry as represented by operations of the larger manufacturers and distributors, and if prejudice could be set aside, there would be found little or no ground for the complaints which are made and which bring so much of disturbance. It is to be regretted that the press is so largely responsible for promotion of the accusations of an unreasonable nature concerning an industry of such importance as that of meeting the requirements of the people for food produced from animals, in which is engaged a class of men who in worthiness of purpose and of action are the equal of any other class of productive operators.

Raising Pigs Cheaply.

There are two directions from which profits may come in raising hogs. The first of these, at least the first in the minds of most men, arises from high prices at selling time. The second, which is really the most important, is in more economical methods of production.

Not half the farmers who are engaged in raising hogs know half as much as they ought to about how to raise them cheaply. A certain farmer whose experience is told in one of our exchanges, this season taught a lesson. He did so, however, merely in an accidental way, and because, having little or no feed, and without inclination to lay out money for it, he turned the pigs on grass and let them hustle for themselves. As soon as oats were harvested he began to feed them sheaf oats and opened up to them the oat stubble in which there was a reasonable growth of clover. These pigs were perhaps a little leggy; they did not show a deep-bodied hog form but they did show strong muscle and bone development and they will without doubt, when finishing time comes, put on flesh more rapidly than any crop of pigs this farmer ever had on his place. They will, too, develop bony structure that will carry them to market in good shape. Undoubtedly pigs grown in this manner may be marketed at a much less percentage of cost than in any other way. So much less, in fact, that a double profit will certainly be expected from them.

Another feature that should not by any means be overlooked in this matter of raising hogs is the fact that the females to be reserved as brood sows for the following season are grown in exactly the best possible manner. They have strength and vitality and are in no wise injured by overfatness, as is the condition in nine cases out of ten.

This manner of raising hogs is not a new proposition. But it is unfortunate that few farmers, except in cases like that pointed out, take it upon themselves to follow the advice given.

Elisha Smith, Coles county, Ill., writes our East St. Louis house: "Load of cattle arrived in good shape. They look good for the money. I appreciate your efforts."

Let the Aged Hold On To the Farm.

About a year ago an elderly gentleman who had been living for some time with married daughter, decided to divide up his property and spend his last days in quiet and comfort. Without saying a word to his children of his plan he quietly disposed of his land and divided the proceeds equally among his children, reserving the largest share for the daughter with whom he lived. He had made lengthy visits to each of the other homes as a welcome guest, but always his heart turned back to his youngest daughter, and there he determined to end his days. The money was thankfully received by the children and all but one commended his course, saying he would have nothing now to bother him. The daughter with whom he lived immediately put on an injured air and said her father was likely to live to a good old age, and in return for taking care of him when he was old and peevish, she would have only a little more than the rest. Of course they in turn pointed out the great advantage of having "grandpa" in the house, because he helped take care of the children, did many chores, made the garden and was always there when they wanted to go without the children. In time tidings of the discontent came to the old gentleman's ears, and he tried to straighten things out, but all to no purpose. Up to this time everything had been harmonious and pleasant, because the old gentleman was wealthy and they all delighted to honor him, but the division of the property almost wrecked the good feeling of the circle.

Volumes upon volumes of advice have been written to young men to stick to the farm, but a disappointed young man can quickly recover almost everything he has lost, while a disappointed old gentleman has a hopeless case. If anyone on earth needs the advise to stick to the farm, surely it is the old gentleman or old lady alone in the world, even though well supported with children. And sticking to the deed hard and fast. The income from an ordinary farm will keep an old lady or gentleman in comfort and happy independence, whereas a penniless person of any age is seldom content. Over and over again it has happened that old people were thrust out either upon charity or placed in some institution after dividing their property, when if they had only stuck to their belongings they might have spent their days in affluence and peace. There is no use talking about what "my children" will or will not do. Human nature is the same the world over, and there is no telling what flesh and blood relatives will do to dispose of the men and women who bore them, and made heavy sacrifices to feed, clothe, and educate them. The best way is to hold on to one's possessions until death comes and then let the children have them. It is all right to give a little financial encouragement in time of need but to deliberately give away every penny is foolish in the extreme.

And even where parents are justified in thinking their sons and daughters are the best in the world, and would scorn to take advantage of a stranger, much less a relative, there are always enough risks to run of another nature. An old gentleman who gave his property unreservedly to his son with the understanding that he was to have a home with him all his life, found himself out of a home and everything in less than a year. The son died and the widow calmly took possession of the property leaving her father-in-law to go to the poor house. In course of time she married a worthless fellow, and the old man had the added pain of seeing his pain fully acquired acres slip easily down the throat of the new husband. Whether or not the young woman could have persuaded his own son to turn him out, had he lived, is a disputed question in the neighborhood, but there is no dispute concerning the foolishness of the man who spent his declining years living off charity. Instance after instance might be given where just such things have happened, but still elderly people go on handing out their last dollar to their children serenely believing that they are doing the right thing.

Another thing that is often forgotten is that holding on to the farm to the last seems to really prolong life. Without some interest in material things elderly people become inactive, idle, and rather despondent, but with something to look after they are just the reverse. There are old gentlemen all over the land without a thing to do who will welcome death to be rid of a prosy existence, while there are others who manage their own affairs, look after little repairs, make bargains and attend to business in healthy, alert fashion. They are looked up to in the community and have a vital interest in everything; while the men who have no money and nothing to keep their ideas fresh and wholesome are simply tolerated. There is an importance that attaches to a man with money that cannot be overlooked, and the men who give away their possessions must expect to lose much of their dignity and social standing by that act. Nobody ever consults the penniless old gentleman about business affairs nor is he referred to in the local newspaper as "one of our leading citizens," but the elderly man with property back of him enjoys many honors. These may sound like little things, but they are very sweet and precious to old people.

So while giving sound advice to young people about sticking to the farm, don't forget a word to the aged. To own a farm means to have a safeguard against not only poverty, but against loneliness and sadness and many other ills. And when the burdens of life are all laid down it will be time enough for the children to enjoy the things saved up for them by father and mother, and then if they waste them the loss will not bring sorrow to those who toiled so faithfully and well to obtain the old farm.—Farmer's Tribune.

How High Can Corn Be Fed at Profit?

Since the advance of corn to present high prices there has been widespread discussion as how high a price can be paid for corn to feed for hogs, and still make money on hogs, says the Duroc Bulletin. There are some who claim that when corn reaches 70c a bushel no money can be made on hogs fed on corn.

Those making this claim probably mean that there is no profit in hogs if fed on 70c corn alone, and if that is what they mean they are correct, but the southern farmer does not need to use corn alone, for the South is bountifully blessed with other feeds that can be used in connection with corn, at even 70c and higher, and with the combination, there is still money in hog raising.

Anyhow it is not best to feed corn alone to hogs, any more than it is to feed a human being on a diet exclusively of corn pone for six months. Man likes a change in diet and so does a hog. The hog in his wild state, free to make his own selection of food, feeds on roots, nuts, grasses and other life sustaining things nature provides, and if he cannot get as fat as hogs now demanded by the markets, he keeps in good flesh and has the frame and flesh foundation on which to lay fat.

The domestic hog has inherited from his ancestors the tendency to select his own ration from a variety of articles, and when he is enclosed in a pen and confined to one feed he is prevented from attaining the highest possibilities.

The hog needs variety, and if corn does reach 70c a bushel, if it is combined with other and less expensive foods, it can be used in feeding hogs as a finisher and money be made by the hog raiser.

PASSING IT ALONG.

Eastward Bound.

Oh, it's tony to ride on the brass back porch
  Of an observation car;
But you somehow feel it is not so real
  As the things behind you are.
Though the cinders fly in your musing eye,
  Your vision they cannot blind
To the dream of the horse that you rode last week—
  The cayuse you have left behind.

Oh, it's nifty to eat in the dining car,
  Though your coat feels in the way;
For the cloth is white and the food all right,
  And it helps to pass the day.
But you do not gloat o'er the table d'hôte;
  For there comes to your wistful mind
The thought of the grub that you ate last week
  In the camp you have left behind.

Well, it's back to the East, where the paychecks grow,
  To the desk and the jangling 'phone;
To the dinky flat where you hang your hat—
  Where you never feel alone.
There your pipe you'll light on a winter's night
  And the backward trail you'll find
To the hills and plains of the Golden West—
  The West you have left behind.

J. B. Horne & Son, Franklin county, Kan., write our Kansas City house. "The 558 feeding lambs came all right. We are well pleased with them and think you made a good selection."

Your Gain, Mr. Cattle Feeder.

Shortage of feed on the western ranges is driving thousands of thin young cows and heifers to the central markets. The rangeman's loss is the middle west and eastern farmer's gain. There is excellent opportunity to stock up with she offerings of the right weight, right quality and at the right place.

At this time fair to good quality Shorthorn and Hereford heifers of 500 to 600 lbs average can be purchased around $3.85@4.25, good framed thin young cows around 850 lbs average at around $3.65 and young bulls of good weight around $3.60.

Such cows can be put on fall pasture and afterwards given rough feed, and the heifers also on fall pasture and afterwards fed grain. By stocking up with these classes there is not so much money invested, she stock will make far greater gains on pasture than steers and they can be turned back to market much quicker.

It should be the aim of the prospective buyer to have the cows and heifers in condition for the market after Jan. 15. It is then that the demand is most urgent and prices highest for she stock, especially for light weight and yearling heifers. Others have made good money with these cattle for many years.

Are you interested? If so, write, or, better still, send your order to

Clay, Robinson & Co.

Alex Louis, Marion county, Kan., writes our Kansas City house: "I received the lambs and think they are a fine bunch. I thought the price rather stiff, but, quality considered, I believe you bought them worth the money."

John B. Hunter, Sangamon county, Ill., writes our Kansas City house: Cattle you bought for me came through in good shape and are now on pasture. I have looked them over carefully and am well pleased. The shrink was light."

S. W. Glasgow, Hillsdale county, Mich., writes: "Car of lambs received and I am well pleased with price and grade. All who have seen them pronounce them a good load. Thank you for your skill and fidelity."

Tarlton E. Pitman, St. Charles county, Mo., writes our South Omaha house: "Received the sheep in first-class condition and I like them fine. They are better than I expected. You did just as well as I could for myself."

Geo. Taylor, Jefferson county, Pa., writes regarding our sale of his western range stock: "Your account of sales of my sheep, also the W. T. Boggs & Co's., to hand. Am very well pleased with the way you sold them."

D. L. Puderbaugh, Warren county, Ia.: "Words fail to express my appreciation of the story in the REPORT, 'The Sheep Herder's Grave.' I was on the Sweetwater the years of '86 and '87 and was personally acquainted with Flood, Mackenzie, Tom Sun, and the entire country as described in the story. Long live the REPORT."

J. C. Shepard, Calhoun county, Mich., writes: "The 115 yearling ewes arrived in good shape. Every one is a yearling ewe and all good ones. I have found by experience that it is better to send my orders in to you and let you do the rest, than to go myself to the yards and buy. Thanks for your good work."

Grigsby & Turner, Nodaway county, Mo., write our South St. Joseph house: "Lambs were received in good condition. All came out of the car looking lively and fine, and are eating and filling in a most satisfactory manner. We wish to thank you for the good service rendered, and also the most courteous treatment."

Need of Live Stock Shows.

Publicity is essential to mold public sentiment in live stock affairs. Shows and expositions are the most efficient mediums of publicity in animal industry, as whatever has been achieved in the evolution of pure breeds at these institutions is placed as an object lesson, on exhibition.

Live stock expositions broaden the views of breeders and educate the general public in the standard of excellence of pedigreed animals as contrasted with mongrel stock. The average farmer who attends one of the modern live stock shows will learn more in one day than perhaps he could acquire in a score of years with ordinary observation. While shows are increasing in numbers, the attendance also gains and the sphere of usefulness of these events also widens.

Their influence extends from county to state and from state to international importance. Local shows are an elegant medium of weeding out ordinary individuals and encouraging the better animals to compete at state expositions. Any breeder who has meritorious stock finds no difficulty in making entries to live stock associations. The progressive breeder is anxious to compare the merits of his stock with rival breeders and enjoys the excitement of laudable rivalry in the show ring.

The two great incentives to patronize live stock expositions are to educate the public to the advantages of breeding pure-bred animals as contrasted with nondescripts and making sales. Premium stock is reserved for breeding purposes and prize winners command the extreme prices of the different registered breeds. The breeder of pure-bred stock who does not exhibit the best specimens of his herd is regarded as not progressive and satisfied with mediocre animals. The non-exhibitor makes but few sales and at indifferent prices as contrasted with the enterprising breeder who is always represented with exhibits at the leading expositions.

In order that better breeding may be encouraged live stock shows are indispensable. The prizes will not only add greater value to the winner, but they give wide publicity to the exhibitor. The breeder who advertises his stock increases his prestige with prospective customers by having good records of his herd as producing prize animals. The beginner prefers to select his foundation stock from establishments that have achieved brilliant records in the show ring. To be successful in any line of endeavor publicity is necessary. What more alluring recommendation can a breeder offer to a prospestive buyer than that the herd has produced national prize winners? The merit of one's establishment cannot be made known better than by the record achieved at live stock expositions. The improvement of animal industry is dependent on live stock shows, and that breeder is the most successful who makes the highest records at the state and national expositions.

J. F. Hazen, Ness county, Kan. writes our Kansas City house: "Received returns. You did well. Accept my thanks for your good service."

It was the pleasure of our Denver house to handle a car of cattle for Mrs. Mary A. Langton and F. A. Field each, shipped from Eagle county, Colo.

G. Garwood, Wayne county, Neb., had 82 native lambs on the South Omaha market Sept. 30 that averaged 82 lbs and were sold by our house at $7.00 top for the week.

J. W. Sawyer, Bureau county, Ill., writes our South St. Paul house: "Cattle arrived in good shape and they suit me all right. Thank you for selecting an even bunch."

William Holloway, Lenawee county, Mich., writes: "Load of yearling wethers came in good shape. Am well pleased with your selection. Will want a load of cattle later."

Butte county, S. D., was represented on the South Omaha market with cattle consignments from P. Edwards, L. Thompson, O. L. Boe, and sheep consignment from P. Renelt.

Among the prominent dealers in sheep who had shipments to our East St. Louis house were: Claud Bowen, Newton county, Mo.; Johnson & Sims, Saint Francois county, Mo.; C. W. Steel, Page county, Ia.; W. M. Thompkins, Miller county, Mo.; E. P. Harned, Cooper county, Mo.; P. J. Murta, Crawford county, Mo.; C. A. Sarter, Callaway county, Mo.; W. J. Kays, Benton county, Mo., Files & Johnston, Pettis county, Mo.

On Sept. 27 our South Omaha house handled a mixed load of hogs and lambs for J. A. Moses, Hamilton county, Neb. The lambs sold at $7.00, averaging 88 lbs, top for that week.

M. H. Follett, Martin county, Minn., writes our South St. Paul house: "Received yearling wethers in good shape and I like them very well. Thank you very much for your judgment."

J. E. Chapman of Chapman Bros., Uinta county, Wyo., heavily engaged in raising stock and banking business, was at South Omaha looking after the shipment of a train of lambs.

Mansker & Taylor, Valley county, Mont., write: "We are in receipt of your remittance and are very much pleased with the way our sales have been made. Thank you for past favors."

Frank Finney, Wabaunsee county, Kan., a very heavy shipper of cattle, writes our South St. Joseph house: "I think you made a good sale on the cattle, and especially on the Oklahomas."

Fremont county, Wyo., shipments to the South Omaha market included a train of cattle from H J. Fredericks, D. J. Sheehan and John Wales, and sheep consignments from Dave Schoening and D E. Fuller.

H. L. Buford, Shelby county, Mo., on Sept 30 marketed a load of sheep through our East St. Louis house. The lambs averaged 70 lbs and went at the top price of $6.75 and the sheep at $4.10, also a top figure.

L. G. McCoy, Mills county, Ia., was at South Omaha on Sept. 28 with a single deck of sheep and lambs. Our house sold the lambs at $7.00, averaging 77 lbs, extreme top, and a small lot of ewes and wethers at $4.25, averaging 125 lbs.

F. S. Hanson, cashier of Bigstone county, (Minn.,) State Bank., writes our South St. Paul house. "Load of feeding wethers which we ordered consigned to D. H. McGee arrived in fine shape, are a fine lot and we were well pleased with them."

J. M. Sutton, Shelby county, Iowa, was represented on the Chicago hog market Sept. 30 with 80 head of 237 lbs average. We sold them at $9.25. It was the highest price by 10c per cwt for offerings of this weight, and also proved the top of the trade.

The Palette L. S. Co., Bighorn county, Wyo., were represented on the South Omaha market Sept. 26 with a shipment of cattle. Included were 36 good steers that sold for feeders at $5.65, averaging 1060 lbs, and 75 cows good enough to bring $4.35, averaging 1004 lbs.

W. H. McVay Macon county, Mo., writes our South Omaha house: "Deck of ewes arrived all right and consider them a good bunch and well bought. Think it is folly for a man to be spending his time and money running to market to buy feeders if he knows what he wants, and so long as Clay, Robinson are in business."

L. A. Ruhl, Polk county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Cattle reached me in very good shape. Taking the grade of these cattle, the shrinkage, the price and it certainly makes a very satisfactory deal. Thank you for so carefully considering my interest and hope to sometime to be able to turn more business your way."

G. M. Peet, Saginaw county, Mich., writes: "Double deck of lambs from Omaha arrived. Every one came out of the car all right and they look good to me for the price. I know you saved me quite a sum by ordering them from Omaha and I appreciate the favor. Order two more double decks of the same kind and quality."

Clayton Spaulding, Rock county, Wis., writes our South St. Paul house: "Car of steers arrived in good shape. They are a good even lot, look to be thrifty and very quiet. If I ever buy any more cattle to feed, Clay, Robinson & Co. will buy them for me, as I am more than pleased with both cattle and price. Please accept my thanks for your good judgment and business courtesy."

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following prominent dealers in cattle: J. B. Collins, Montgomery county, Miss.; J. V. Griffith, Webster county, Mo.; C. L. Bruce and M. P. Kidd, Pettis county, Mo.; V. S. Hawker, Shelby county, Mo.; Charles Brockway, Henry county, Mo.; Charles Hacke, Macoupin county, Ill.; Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo.; Turner & Hicks, Appanoose county, Ia.; C. F. Young & Son, Saline county, Mo.; Moore Bros., Hempstead county, Ark.

Asa C. Irwin, Emmet county, Ia., writes: "Please send me the REPORT and Breeder's Gazette one year for which I enclose $1.50. I have been getting the REPORT for some time through the kindness of Clay, Robinson & Co., and find it a splendid help. I like to read it very much."

Peter Nelson, president of the Minnesota Scandinavian Relief Association, Goodhue county, Minn., writes: "Enclosed find postoffice money order for 50c for one year's subscription to the REPORT. This is a good and cheap paper. Every farmer who raises stock should keep it so that he may know the prices."

Alex Mahew, Mercer county, Ill., writes our South Omaha house: "My lambs got here in good shape and am well pleased with them. One of my neighbors was on Monday's market and bought lambs the same weight at $6.40, so you can figure for yourself that I am ahead by ordering from good buyers." (Mr. Mahew's lambs cost $6.25.)

It was Sept. 19 that our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle for John McArthur Moir, Geo. Crane and W. H. Hawken, all of Crook county, Wyo. There were some very good cattle in this consignment, steers selling at $5.15@5.25 and cows $4.00@4.40. Messrs Crane and Moir, who were there, were well pleased with the sales.

The limit for western range lambs at Chicago on Sept. 26 was $7.00, which we obtained for 1,404 head of 64 lbs average from the range of Austin Bros., Salt Lake county, Utah. We also landed their 600 feeding lambs, averaging 59 lbs, at the top price of $6.75, as well as 910 head of 58 lbs average belonging to Pollock & Reese, Coconino county, Ariz.

The following prominent feeders or shippers had hogs to our East St. Louis house: H. L. Bufford, Shelby county, Mo.; John Powell and G. W. Hindman, Union county, Ill.; Charles Brockway, Henry county, Mo.; Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo.; Wilcox & Littrell, Randolph county, Mo.; J. T. Kinnick, Noble county, Okla.; R. W. *Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

The moderate run of 2,000 showed up Thursday of last week. The total was a plenty, however, following the liberal supplies on previous days, the big break in natives and a small eastern shipping demand. The market lacked life, but prices were not quotably lower. A load of choice 1,400-lb Wyomings sold up to $6.25, but sales above $5.25 were rare. There was no quotable change in the market for either she stock or feeder steers. A string of 1,131-lb steers went back to the country at a cost of $4.85. Only a few odd loads were offered on Friday. Trade was dull and weak. As compared with the close of the previous week, the decline was mostly 25c. The seven-cent steer was put out of business. The week's run at 22,000 compared with 25,000 the previous week and 27,500 corresponding week last year. The bulk of the week's trading in beef steers was at $5.00@5.75. Cows and heifers were strong to 10c higher for the week, due to light supplies and a better demand. Prime heifers topped at $5.85. Most she stock went at $3.85@4.65. Feeders displayed 25c loss for the week, with sales largely at $4.50@5.25.

This week started out with a run of 10,000. Beef steer buyers endeavored to hammer the price range, but sufficient demand developed to clear the offerings at steady prices. It was a dull deal from start to finish. A large proportion of the arrivals were plain and medium quality grades and a good many sales were around $5.00 and under. It took a good fat class to bring around $5.50 and $6.00@6.25 bought offerings with big weight and choice quality. Cows and heifers were slow but about steady sale. Feeders made a steady price basis.

Marketing Tuesday 6,000. For the first time in many days sellers were in a position to dictate terms. The lighter run and a better general demand proved too much for the buying interests. Result was a more active market in beef steers and prices showed 10c advance. CLAY, ROBINSON & CO. OBTAINED THE HIGHEST PRICE FOR BEEVES IN THREE WEEKS when they sold 21 head of 1,482-lb native Montanas at $7.10. These cattle were grade Herefords and Shorthorns and were marketed by J. D. Waite of Lewistown, Mont. However, there were few sales above $5.75. Cows and heifers were slow to 10c lower sale. Feeders made a stronger price basis.

Supply Wednesday 4,000. There was another trade in beef steers and prices were boosted 10c. Brisk market for she stock at 10@15c advance. Feeders went steady.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of western range cattle:

Choice to prime steers	$6 50 @	7 10
Medium to good steers	5 25	6 40
Plain to fair steers	4 85	5 10
Canning steers	4 20	4 60

run of 181,284 the previous week. Under this enormous run it was only logical that prices should work downward. At the close of the week the market was 25@50c lower for both fat and feeding classes as compared with the previous week's finish, although light weight feeding lambs of around 40 lbs and under displayed 75c@$1.00 loss. Late in the week it took a prime class of lambs to reach $7.00, with choice yearlings at $5.40, wethers $4.35 and ewes $4.00. Bulk of the trading in feeding stock for the week was at $6.25@6.50 for lambs, $5.00@5.25 for yearlings, $3.75@4.00 for wethers and $2.75@3.00 for ewes.

At the start of this week receipts were 66,160, the world's record for one day arrivals. About 75 per cent of the offerings were feeders. Values were remarkably well maintained, considering the enormity of the arrivals. Opening practically steady, the late market sagged and prices were generally 10@15c lower at the finish. Top lambs made $6.95 and best feeders $6.50, latter price being obtained by us. Best yearlings went back to the country at $5.40, this sale being made by us. Bulk of the sheep were wethers and went at $4.00@4.10, with most feeders at $3.75@4.00. Tuesday run was 50,000. Fat offerings of a good to choice class sold readily enough at generally steady prices, but all price changes for the plainer grades tended toward a lower basis late in the day. There was a remarkably broad outlet for feeding stock and the trade was active at prices steady to higher. Prime lambs made $7.00 and we topped the feeder trade at $6.60. Our sale of yearlings to feeders up to $5.50 was again at the top. Both fat and feeding sheep sold in about the same notch as the previous day.

Wednesday run 40,000. Fat classes fully steady, with top lambs $7.00 and sheep $4.25. Feeders stronger sale, most lambs at $6.00@6.50 and bulk wethers $3.75@4.00.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Oct. 4.—There was another heavy run of cattle here last week, made up mostly of she and mixed stock. Few good steers were offered. Packers were bearish in their views, and range beeves wound up generally a shade lower for the week. The large supply of common and medium cows and heifers gradually sold lower and at the close were 15@25c lower. Inquiry for stockers and feeders was all that could be expected. Large numbers of outside orders kept supplies well cleaned up and values were a little better than a week ago, when the trade finished for the week with a material decline.

Under a liberal run the first two market days this week, beef steers went weak to a shade lower. However, feeders were generally steady sale.

Range Sheep.

Last week was a banner one here in the sheep division so far as number was concerned. The receipts footed up right at 167,000. Monday's offering of 63,000 head was a record for any market for any one day. Good fat stock was scarce and held fully steady, although feeder lambs of light weight and thin sheep working lower. Good killing lambs late in the week made $6.50@7.00, heavy yearlings $4.50@5.00, wethers $4.00@4.25, and ewes $3.25@3.90. Good heavy feeding lambs brought $6.00@6.50, light yearlings $5.00@5.40; wethers $3.75@4.10, and ewes $2.25@3.25.

Good to choice lambs scarce Monday and Tuesday and quotable at $6.50@6.85 on the latter day, with wethers $3.85@4.25 and ewes $3.40@3.85. Fairly good demand for feeders, with good to choice lambs of 50 to 60 lbs average at $5.90@6.25 and the 45 to 50 lbs average $5.25@6.00.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week.....	$4.65@8.00	$5.60@7.35
Previous week.....	4.65 8.20	5.65 7.50
Year ago.....	4.25 8.80	5.65 8.00
Two years ago.....	3.75 7.50	4.65 6.85

Last week the market closed in wretched shape. In fact, after Wednesday the trade was semi-demoralized. Prices naturally took a sharply lower turn, the decline from the close of the previous week being 25@60c. Top early in the week was $8.20, but prime offerings had to go at $7.90 later on. WE TOPPED BOTH THE YEARLING STEER TRADE AND YEARLING HEIFER AND STEER MARKET FOR THE WEEK by selling the former grades at $7.75 and the latter at $7.50.

Receipts at the start of this week, 30,246, included in which were 10,000 westerns. Buyers showed more interest in arrivals of value above $6.50 and after a trading basis had been established the market was fairly active at prices 10@15c higher. Those between $5.75 and $6.50 sold steady, but such as went under $5.75 met dull demand at mostly 10c lower prices. Top beeves went at $7.75 for 37 head of 1,564 lbs average, these being very similar to the kind at $8.20 Monday of last week. Most trading was at $5.60@7.25, against $5.90@7.50 corresponding day of last week. Tuesday run, 8,000, including 5,000 westerns. Beef steers were in scant supply and demand very indifferent. Trade was dull, but not quotably lower. Best offerings on sale were 20 yearlings, averaging 1,074 lbs, at $7.25.

Run Wednesday 16,000, including 4,000 westerns. Buyers were hungry for all desirable offerings and a brisk market ensued. Such as were of value above $6.50 sold 25@35c higher, those between $5.75 and $6.50 advanced 10@15c and those under $5.75 were merely steady. A fancy load of yearling steers and heifers mixed, mostly Angus, topped the market at $8.00.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

At the close of last week prices for cows and heifers were generally steady with the previous week's finish, although the higher costing kinds met with very limited outlet. One fancy lot of yearling heifers sold up to $7.10, but WE LANDED yearling heifers and steers mixed at $7.50. Bulls showed a price loss of 25@35c for the week and calves displayed 25c gain, top for week being $10.25.

This week started out with cows and heifers selling generally steady. Supply was very liberal, but the demand was equal to the occasion. Bulls went steady to 10c lower, bolognas and medium butchers showing the decline. Opening steady, the calf market closed 25@50c lower. Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was a mean one from start to finish and prices were generally 10c lower. Bull market had weak tone. All price changes for calves tended downward.

There was no change in the Wednesday market for either she stock, bulls or calves, although trade had slow tone.

Heavy receipts and a bearish demand caused a break of 25c for stockers and feeders last week. The loss from the recent high time was 25@50c. Fleshy feeders were wanted by near by feeders, while eastern buyers took the heaviest quota of the light stockers.

This week opened with a big run and a decline of 10c. The Tuesday trade was slow, but prices were not quotably lower. Demand was neither broad nor urgent.

Wednesday trade was more active, although prices were merely steady.

Last week closed with packing hogs 15@20c lower than the finish of the previous week, with top grades as much as 40c off. While the average price for the week at $8.78 was only 64c higher than corresponding week last year, the top at $9.65 paid on Monday, was $1.15 higher than then. At the close the limit was $9.25, with plain grades of heavy packers as low as $8.25.

Marketing at the start of this week, 24,454. Opening 15@25c lower, prices were generally 25c off on the late market. Shippers did not take their usual quota and packers had things pretty much their own way. An outside sale was made at $9.15, but there were few offerings a high as $9.00. Bulk of day's business was at $8.30@8.75 for packing grades to choice shippers. Tuesday run, 12,000. Market dull at prices 10@15c lower. Top $9.05 and bulk sales at $8.15@8.60.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW, AND OUTSIDE MARKETS BY WIRE

Native Sheep and Lambs.

In spite of increased marketing last week, the week closed with prices only 10@25c lower than the finish of the previous week. Common and medium grades showed most loss. Top lambs for the week $7.25, obtained by us, but the limit late in the week was $7.15 and only a prime heavy class of ewes were quotable as high as $4.25.

There was a larger proportion of natives than for some time included in general receipts at the start of this week. However, buyers had need of them and fully steady prices prevailed for desirable grades, although all price changes late in the day tended toward a lower basis for the less desirable grades. Top lambs made $7.15 and fancy heavy native ewes $4.25. Opening steady with the previous day's close, the Tuesday lamb market finished 15@25c lower than best time that day. Best sheep held steady with the close of Monday, but common grades were a drug on the market. Prime lambs reached $7.00 and practical top for ewes was $4.00.

Wednesday market was brisk at prices steady to strong. Practical top for lambs $6.95 and ewes $4.25.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

National Stock Yards, Ill., Oct. 4—Moderate supply of native cattle here this week, with corn-feds in light supply and prices a little stronger. Some well fatted steers sold Tuesday at $7.00 and a pretty good kind at $6.00. Cows and heifers were irregular, with a tendency to better prices. Good to choice cows sold around $4.00, with good to well fatted grass and corn-fed heifers at $4.50@5.00, few odd ones selling up to $6.00. Bulk of heifers around $3.75@4.35, with good canner cows to a good grade of grass cows at $3.00@3.85. Calves and yearlings were slow sale, especially good weight vealers and heavy calves. Stockers and feeders were in moderate supply and prices generally steady. There was a fair supply of Southern steers, with best showing strength and the lower class 10c higher. Cows and mixed lots steady. Calves and yearlings slow at 10@15c lower prices.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW, AND OUTSIDE MARKETS BY WIRE

Hogs still going down, with receipts light. Top Tuesday $9.10 and bu'k $8.75@9.00. Lights $8.75@9.10, medium weights $8.65@8.90 and heavy $8.60@8.75.

Sheep receipts moderate and prices generally steady. Best lambs brought $6.85, with others from $6.35@6.75 and plain to medium class $5.50@6.15. Best mutton sheep $4.00@4.25. Quite a supply of goats at $2.25@3.00.

Debts Are Debts.

The Supreme Court of Michigan, in an opinion delivered Sept. 28, held that International Harvester Co. of America is not debarred from collecting its outstanding debts by any plea that it is a "trust." The circuit judge decided the other way, but his decision was reversed, and the defendants will be compelled to settle their accounts with the Company.

This decision is not only of the utmost importance to all large trading companies, but to the general public. Incidentally, it once more brings to view the streak in human nature which deems it defensible to steal rides on railway trains, to smuggle personal purchases through the customs house, and to break contracts with large corporations.

The facts in the case are that the International Harvester Co. of America several months ago began action against some dealers to collect a balance long overdue. There was no equitable defense against the debt, but the defendants hit upon the novel plan of setting up the claim that the Company was a "trust," and that this was a bar to the collection of the amount due. Strange to say, a lower court sustained this claim, but on appeal the Supreme Court reversed the decision and ruled that the plea that a plaintiff is a "trust" is not a good defense.

A company selling an article or commodity bears precisely the same relation to the purchaser at the time the obligation falls due that it did at the time the purchase was made. If the decision of the lower court had been sustained it would be impossible for any large company to continue in business except upon a strictly cash-in-advance basis.

Ten Commandments for Dry Farming.

"He who obeys these precepts shall reap abundant crops. He who violates them shall be punished by decrease in yield in proportion to the transgression."

Professor W. C. Palmer, agricultural editor of the extension department at the State Agricultural College of North Dakota, says this in a foreword to "the ten commandments of dry farming," submitted to John T. Burns, secretary of the dry farming congress, for adoption at the fifth annual convention in Spokane, Oct. 3 to 6. The commandments follow:

First—Thou shalt plow deep.

Deep plowing permits rain to penetrate the soil easily and without runoff, also provides more feeding space for plant roots and makes available more plant food.

Second—Thou shalt keep the surface soil loose.

This prevents soil moisture from evaporating and conserves the rainfall. Harrow grain after it is up two inches or use weeder.

Third—Thou shalt cultivate level.

Level soil affords the least exposure to the air and will take in rainfall faster than ridged soil.

Fourth—Thou shalt summer fallow.

This should be practiced in all districts where the annual precipitation is less than fifteen inches, as it conserves two years' rain for one crop and kills weeds and plant diseases.

Fifth—Thou shalt add organic matter to the soil.

This holds moisture and plant food, improves mechanical condition of the soil and lessens washing, drifting and blowing. Stable manure is the best form. Plow weeds under while green.

Sixth—Thou shalt keep down the weeds.

Weeds consume moisture, retard plant life and make land work harder.

Seventh—Thou shalt grow early maturing crops.

Conditions for growing are best during the early summer; winter grains are better than those sown in the spring.

Eighth—Thou shalt grow corn every three to five years.

The cultivation required for corn saves moisture, kills weeds and plant diseases. Corn is the best preparation for a grain crop; it produces more food and fodder per acre than other crops. Do not hill up the corn, as this wastes the moisture.

Ninth—Thou shalt grow clover or alfalfa every few years.

Rotating with these grasses adds fertility and organic matter to the soil.

Tenth—Thou shalt keep stock.

The most profitable way of marketing grain and fodder is through stock, which produce the manure necessary to the soil.

We Look After Small Matters.

J. F. Sparks of Walker, Iowa, writes the following unsolicited letter: "Your letter enclosing check for 57c, refund on overcharge of freight, is before me and I hasten to acknowledge receipt of same. I was not aware of anything coming my way and must congratulate your firm upon your business system that can trace a matter of this kind and also that you take the time to look after so small a matter.

"This does not look like your house neglected small matters does it? Please accept my thanks and wishes for your continued popularity."

Advantages in Feeding Ensilage in Beef Production.

Feeding silage is gaining ground every year as an economical feed in beef production. In the first place, we save all of the food products in our corn crop. According to Purdue and other stations, corn fodder harvested in the best possible manner is not consumed without a large percentage of waste, varying from 20 to 35 per cent. And when corn is husked in the usual way, stalks left in the field, we lose 50 per cent of the food value of our corn crop. In the form of silage there is practically no waste. The load of cattle I sold the first of August was fed silage for seven months and they did not waste a bushel basket of silage in that time.

Silage promotes digestion and supplies a succulent food in winter as well as summer, which is important in feeding cattle. All cattle feeders realize that there is a large shrinkage in cattle changing from green to dry feed. In feeding silage in this change there is practically no shrink. This is largely in favor of the silo. To make winter feeding of beef cattle profitable an abundance of cheap succulent food must be used. Corn and fodder put in the silo give an abundance of cheap, succulent food. Food products are high and we must use cheaper foods and adhere to the more scientific methods of feeding to make a success.

Another point in favor of the silo: You can have more than double the amount of stock on the farm. With my silo one-fourth full at the present time, and the drought upon us as it is, twenty-five head of cattle in the feed lot, my silage looks good to me. I fed a load of yearling Herefords last year without the aid of silage. These cattle would eat from six to eight bushels of corn a day with clover hay for roughage. This year I fed a load of Polled Angus steers on silage and they would not eat to exceed six bushels of corn a day, and on an average four bushels. When I shortened the feed of silage, they ate more corn, but on a full feed of silage, three to four bushels of corn a day was the best I could get them to eat. This is another point in favor of the silage as a cheap and economical food for beef production. Understand, I am not an agent for silos. I am simply giving my experience. I have been asked these questions so often and I concluded to answer them in this way. JAMES DRUMMOND.

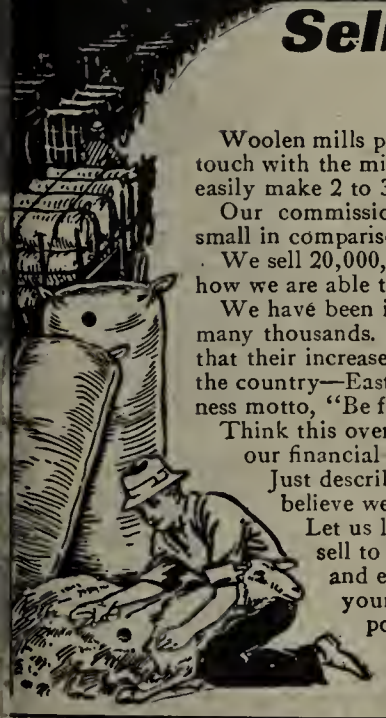
Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!



Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Ed Logan, Washtenaw county, Mich., writes: "Lambs arrived in fine shape and was perfectly satisfied with them. Thank you for your interest in filling my order."

G. F. Snyder, Lewis county, Mo., had sheep and lambs on the East St. Louis market Sept. 27. Our house handled the consignment and sold the lambs at $7.00, being 35c per cwt higher than any other sale that day, and also landed his mutton sheep at $4.25 and breeding ewes at $4.75, tops for the respective classes.

Included in a shipment of sheep and lambs which J. H. Dobbin, Wallowa county, Ore., had to our Chicago house Sept. 20 were 1,313 feeding lambs of 54 lbs average which sold at the top price of $6.85 for feeders that week and 981 yearling breedingewes, averaging 82 lbs, at $6.00, as high as paid this year.

Both the clipped and feeder lamb market at East St. Louis on Sept. 20 was topped by the sales of our house. They sold for E. P. Harned, Cooper county, Mo., a lot of clipped lambs at $6.00, best price for shorn stock in several weeks, and for Wm. Tompkins, Miller county, Mo., a deck of 45-lb feeders at the same price.

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, October 14, 1910 | No. 41

TOP WESTERNS FROM RANGE OF J. D. WAITE, WELL-KNOWN AND SUCCESSFUL CATTLEMAN OF LEWISTOWN, MONT.

These cattle were on the Chicago market Tuesday, Oct. 4, and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.10. This is the highest price by 25c per cwt obtained for western range cattle in four weeks. There were 21 head of 1,482 lbs average in the lot. Mr. Waite's entire shipment that day comprised only two cars. The cattle were dehorned grade Herefords and Shorthorns and were bought by Doud & Keefer for the fine beef trade in the East. One year ago this week Clay, Robinson & Co. sold for Mr. Waite 17 head of 1,401-lb beeves on eastern shipping account at $7.50, up to then a record price by 10c per cwt for western range cattle. The excellent prices which Mr. Waite's cattle bring is proof sufficient that his knowledge of handling cattle on the range is of the practical and result-getting kind and that Clay, Robinson & Co. are a good firm to ship to.

Cattle Trade Now and Year Ago.

One year ago cattle prices were soaring. Prime corn-fed beeves reached $8.90, up to then within 10c per cwt of the record price on the open market. Also the new high price of $7.50 was paid for western rangers. Bullishness was rampant Nine cent cattle were confidently expected. Supplies of choice corn-feds were small and buyers were anxious for them.

What a change from then! Fancy heavy corn-fed beeves this week had to go at $7.85. And the price was obtained only after hard work. Bearishness dominates both the selling and buying side. The number of good to choice cattle back is larger than anticipated. All buyers seem to be of one mind—to keep the price of top grades down as low as possible.

The day is always darkest just before dawn. Just now the consumptive demand is not broad. But it should improve. With the advent of cold weather will come a keener appetite for beef, which is relatively the cheapest meat on the list.

There is no doubt of more cattle being in the feed lots than one year ago, and the run of western rangers will continue liberal the balance of this month. But feeding conditions are so much better than a year ago that feeders should take courage. Corn is a bumper crop and considerably lower, fall pastures are fine and forage plentiful. There is no reason to have faint heart. Reduce the receipts on bad breaks and the market will take care of itself.

No Excessive Supply of Hogs in Sight.

Regarding the question, "Should hog values follow corn?" Charley Geopper, one of the best posted men in the business and chief of the hog-buying force of the National Packing Co., with headquarters at Chicago, has the following to say:

"Just because corn has declined in price is no reason that hog values will drop to a low level. Lower-costing corn is anything but a bearish argument at this time. With corn so much lower, it is reasonable to suppose that the country will increase the weight of the hog crop. There is no surplus of swine anywhere, and the demand for young hogs to follow cattle in the feed lots is of the clamorous kind in all parts of the corn belt. The pig crop is only around 10 per cent larger than last year, they are healthy and growers have no reason to do any sacrificing. Besides, many of the gilts will be held back for breeding purposes. I do not look for the number of hogs to come forward during the winter packing season to be over 10 to 15 per cent more than in 1909. And last year we had an enormous shortage from the previous year. It looks as though the bulk of big weight hogs, most of which were sows that had weaned a crop of pigs this spring and were crowded to the limit with feed, will have been well marketed within the next two or three weeks. From then until the first of the year indications are for moderate supplies. After then there will be no excessive runs. With corn so much cheaper it is not logical to anticipate any crowding of the market upon breaks. Then with more reasonable prices for pork products the consumer will be a big price factor. Of course, no one could sanely expect the high prices of last winter. Barring unforeseen adverse conditions, hog values will continue to rule high enough to warrant converting corn into hog products. Should prices drop $2.00 per cwt it would still well pay the raiser to shovel corn to hogs liberally. I do not expect to see the general price to fall below the $7.00 mark any time this coming winter. In my opinion, the droves will cost around $7.00 to $7.50."

Short Crop Years are Infrequent.

At the end of a summer somewhat more harrowed with doubts than usual, the grain crops are now made. It is in order then to remark that year in and year out, in spite of all alarms of drouth, flood, bugs and frosts, the grain crops do pretty regularly manage to mature. The government's October report indicated a corn yield 50,000,000 bushels greater than the previous record and well above a five-year average. Only once in ten years—in 1901—has there been any really extensive damage to corn. Then the yield, as compared with the average of the three preceding years, declined about 25 per cent. One must go back to 1894 to find the next "failure." The year's wheat crop is only 4 per cent under the average of the last five years and only once in ten years—in 1904—has the yield fallen below 600,000,000 bushels. Oats—a more variable crop—break the record this year and exceed 1,000,000,000 bushels for the second time. The year of the last corn crop "failure," 1901, was the year that produced the greatest wheat crop ever harvested in this country. In 1904, when wheat production suffered a big shrinkage, the yield of corn was above the average.

HOWARD GERLAUGH OF OSBORN, OHIO.

One of the most famous and successful cattle feeders in Ohio is Mr. Gerlaugh. He is a comparatively young man, but his knowledge of handling cattle would do credit to a man many years older. He is proprietor of the Woodberry Stock Farm and is a fancier of Shorthorn cattle and Duroc-Jersey hogs. Mr. Gerlaugh recently finished the marketing of 141 grade Hereford corn-fed yearling steers from the well-known S. M. S. herd belonging to Swenson Bros. of Stamford, Tex. The cattle were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. at Chicago. They were sent in in four different lots, averaged 837 to 1,228 lbs and made a range of $7.70@8.10. The cattle topped the market 10c, 15c, 20c and 25c per cwt on the respective days they were here.

Michigan Sheep Feed Lots Being Filled.

"During the past few weeks Michigan has been liberally stocking up with lambs," said James Hogan, the well-known feeder of Clinton, Mich., and a liberal patron of Clay, Robinson & Co., who returned from South Omaha after getting a big string of good wetserns. "Prices look right to the feeders and they are getting busy. Until three weeks ago it looked like many of our feed lots would be empty. The high price of hay caused many to hold off. We will also be good buyers of unfinished western lambs that are forced in by bad weather, particularly from Iowa. Feeders in Michigan have shed room facilities, and are in position to take advantage of big runs of half-fat lambs and a declining market late in the fall or early in the winter.

Indiana Cattle Top Chicago Market.

J. C. Clay, the extensive and successful feeder of North Salem, Ind., was on the Chicago market Oct. 10 with 49 head of cattle which were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. Included were 16 head that averaged 1,816 lbs and brought $7.85, which was not only the extreme top of the market but also the highest by a big margin for cattle carrying such big weight. They were heavy Indiana Shorthorns and were coarse. Because of the fact that they were coarse and extremely heavy, they did not meet favor with the buyers and thus sold lower than if they were smoother and of lighter weight. The second cut of the cattle averaged 1,594 lbs and brought $7.60.

Hogs of Record-Breaking Weight.

Hogs are running unusually heavy in weight for this time of the year. This is in marked contrast with one and two years ago, when growers were rushing light weights to market to escape a high feed bill. Things are different now. Corn is plentiful, the price relatively low, and underweight swine are being held for longer feeding.

The September average weight of hogs at Chicago was 259 lbs, heaviest for that month since 1893, when it reached 267 lbs, and showed 27 lbs increase over September last year. At South Omaha it was the heaviest September average on record, being 278 lbs, against 240 lbs last year. The Kansas City average was unusually heavy at 217 lbs and showed 25 lbs gain over September, 1909. The average weight of hogs received at most other markets was also exceptionally heavy. The heavier average, of course, does not make up for the net decrease of 172,933 head from September of last year, yet prevents a great shortage in the pork meats that otherwise would have happened.

Cattle Tick Costs South Fifty Million Yearly.

James E. Downing, expert in live stock investigations in the Bureau of Animal Industry of the Department of Agriculture, gives out an interesting interview regarding the crusade against the cattle tick in the South. He was at the Chicago office of Clay, Robinson & Co. in regard to the price difference between cattle for the infected and non-infected tick districts. He said:

"The Department of Agriculture has a standing appropriation of $250,000 a year which is used for the eradication of the fever tick. The work was started in 1906 and since that time 130,000 square miles have been rid of the pest. Twelve southern states are still quarantined and all cattle shipped from them must be either dipped or butchered.

"The cattle tick is costing the South $50,000,000 a year in cattle losses. As soon as it becomes a parasite on an animal the beef no longer thrives and it becomes impossible to fatten it. If a milch cow is infected it gives less milk and requires more feed. Its calves are likely to be stunted. In eradicating the evil the government is receiving the co-operation of the authorities of the southern states.

"I am certain that if the department of agriculture had not taken the measures which it did in 1906 the tick would have been prevalent in all parts of the country by this time. The sums which have been lost to cattlemen by the pest in past years are simply beyond calculation. We are reducing the territory in which it is prevalent at the rate of thousands of square miles a year and in time it will be wholly eradicated."

Likes the "Sheep Shearers."

Acknowledging receipt of the handsome picture showing a sheep shearing scene in the Lammermoors of Scotland, which we have been sending to sheepmen, Mr. John J. Garbutt, Winston, Mont. writes: "I am very much pleased with the fine picture of the sheep shearers and will have it framed the first opportunity. I appreciate it all the more as I used to live in England when a boy. Yorkshire being my birthplace, which I left in 1871 on the old 'Caledonia.' I learned to shear back there and the picture seems very natural. I don't know yet whether I will ship some stockers or not. If I do I expect to consign to you, as from what I can learn from shippers they seem to feel confident of a square deal from you."

A Word to the Wise is Sufficient.

Don't ship partly-fatted sheep and lambs. That is the burden of this article, which is intended primarily for corn-belt farmers. Premature marketing occurs every fall. Of course, it is the biggest mistake feeders could make. This is especially true at this time, when record runs from the western ranges are being piled up at the markets. This week both sheep and lambs that were taken out recently and given a run on grass were returned to Chicago, as well as to some of the River points, and they did not bring first cost. And it was unnecessary. Fall pastures are fine, forage feed is plentiful, a bumper corn crop is assured and the weather is excellent for feeding. Rangemen must ship. But it is needless and expensive for the corn-belt feeders to send in ovine stock that is in just ripe condition to take on flesh rapidly. It will be time enough to think about marketing when the western ranges are well out of the way.

Sending in Kansas Grass Cattle Freely.

George Gillespie of Bazaar, Kan., and a liberal patron of Clay, Robinson & Co., Kansas City, belongs in the great grazing district of that state. It is the custom of the big cattle outfits to bring to Bazaar each spring thousands of cattle from Texas and the Southwest and run them on pasture during the season. These cattle generally start to run about the last of June and continue until the pastures are cleared in October. The condition of the market, as well as the cattle, has everything to do with the movement. But when the middle of September has been passed then cattlemen who have stock in that country begin to get uneasy on account of the frost. A heavy frost deadens the grass, and after that the cattle will make no more gains.

"The pastures were full this season," said Mr. Gillespie. "The fore part of the season was a little off, so far as grass was concerned, and the pastures were eaten down pretty close. Then the August rains came and the grass made a second growth, and has been abundant ever since. Right now it is a dark, rich green, and very soft and tender, and cattle are doing well. Usually the grass in the fall dries up and becomes hard, and in that case the frost does not injure it so much. But a heavy frost now would sicken the grass in one night so that it would not be of much account because of its tenderness, and the amount of sap in it. In looking the country over I should say that at present about one-third of the cattle are back. But they are on the move, and another week will greatly reduce the number and clear up a great many big pastures. The cattle are all fat, and if the frost should hold off a little longer they would continue to put on flesh."

Rains Help Ranges in Utah.

"The prolonged drouth in the mountain ranges is what caused the heavy run of sheep and lambs this fall," said J. L. Bown, a well-known rancher of Notom, Utah, who sold 13 carloads of sheep through Clay, Robinson & Co., at Kansas City. "It has been a long time since any such a general drouth prevailed over Montana, Idaho, Wyoming and Utah as existed this season. It was worse in the northern states and as far west as Idaho than in Utah. But we felt it in places, and as fall approached we saw the necessity of getting our sheep out for fear we could not get through the winter. In that part of the state where I am we had rains recently that will bring on grass and help out considerably. We range the sheep up in the mountains through the summer months, and, of course, we manage to move around and get through, but if the winter range of the deserts is poor that settles it. In the mountain range district where I am we do not pretend to raise any feed. It is the range alone that we depend upon. A good many shipments of sheep have been made from my part of the state, but still we have back a good many. These will be moved out as fast as we can get the cars. The car shortage has held back the shipments, and, in a way, it has been a good thing, as the runs would have been larger and the market poorer had we been able to get the sheep out. This is the season of the year when we have to move towards the desert with our flocks. We generally manage to get them into winter quarters before the first of November. They are moved along in the valleys and grazed as we go to the places where we will hold them for the winter."

Important to Readers.

We wish each reader, if not a paid-up subscriber, would turn to pages 8 and 9 of this issue and read same carefully. Much to our regret, we have found it impossible to regularly mail each issue of the Report to every name on our general mailing list. Paid subscribers, of course, receive every issue promptly and regularly, but those who are getting the paper "complimentary" necessarily frequently miss copies. This is because of the fact that our general mailing list has grown so large that it would be out of the question for any business concern, however large, to stand the enormous postage expense of covering it with every issue. This is particularly true during the western range cattle and sheep shipping season when our customers in that part of the country are vitally interested and in order to keep them posted we must mail thousands of extra copies. By "rotating" the circulation, that is, sending to part of our list one week and another part another week, we are able to cover the entire list, but, as stated, not with every copy.

In years passed, when our list was smaller, we cheerfully undertook to send the Report absolutely free to any feeder or shipper who made request for it. Probably we have no one but ourselves to blame for the present enormous demand for the Report, in that we have apparently succeeded in producing a paper that stockmen regard as practically indispensable to them. This standard of quality will not only be maintained, but our constant ambition is toward improvement.

Such of our readers as are not paid subscribers, and who feel that they want every copy without break or interruption, are respectfully invited to make it possible for us to comply by enrolling as paid subscribers, for which purpose a coupon appears on page 9. This is not in any sense compulsory, and we shall continue as in the past to do the best we can in the way of complimentary distribution. The problem simmers down to whether or not it is worth 50c per year for you to receive each issue of the Report promptly and regularly, or whether an occasional complimentary copy will keep you sufficiently in touch with the market situation.

The foregoing refers to the Live Stock Report only, and has no reference whatever to our market letters or circulars, which are the most complete issued by any live stock commission firm. No charge in any shape or form is made for said market circulars, which are cheerfully sent to any prospective shipper upon request to Clay, Robinson & Co., mentioning the class of stock and stating about when same will be shipped.

Marketing at the Ten Leading Points.

On another page will be found detailed statistics showing the receipts of cattle, hogs and sheep at the ten leading markets for September and nine months, with comparisons. A feature of the September figures is the enormity of sheep arrivals. Chicago leads with 685,954 and South Omaha is second with 613,723. Both were record runs at the respective points as a result of forced liquidation in the West. The combined total at the ten places was 2,088,527, a net increase of 550,996 over September, 1909. East St. Louis and Fort Worth were the only points to show losses. Barring Kansas City, South St. Joseph and East Buffalo, all of the other markets had increased runs of cattle over September last year. South Omaha leads with an increase of 26,815 and South St. Paul is next with 12,010.

Combined receipts at the ten markets were 1,236,926, a net gain of 46,670 over September, 1909. Chicago, Sioux City, South St. Paul and East Buffalo had more hogs than the corresponding month of last year, while Kansas City, East St. Louis and Fort Worth, in order named, had the greatest decreases. Combined supply at the ten points was 1,067,990, a net decrease of 193,306 from September last year.

For the nine months combined receipts of sheep at the ten market were 8,412,405, a net increase of 935,222 over like period of 1909. Chicago comes first with 3,282,319 and South Omaha next with 1,856,792, the latter having the biggest gain over last year with 447,927. Only three points failed to receive more than in 1909, being East St. Louis, South St. Joseph and Fort Worth, the second market displaying the heaviest decrease at 73,532. Combined total of cattle at the ten places was 7,366,989, a net gain of 271,587 over 1909. Chicago had the most increase with 163,267 and South Omaha second with 104,618. South St. Joseph figures were about the same. Kansas City had the greatest decrease with 81,761 and Fort Worth showed 61,976 loss. These were the only points that received fewer arrivals than last year. Combined receipts of hogs at the ten markets were 12,589,069, a net decrease of 2,923,662 from 1909. South St. Paul was the only market to have an increase. Chicago showed the most loss with 1,027,500 and Kansas City next with 674,566.

Range Grass is Good in North Dakota.

J. W. Follis, the extensive and popular ranchman of Medora, N. D., was on the Chicago market Oct. 5 with a string of cattle which were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. The steers sold at $5.25@5.65 and the heifers at $5.00@5.40, the latter price being the top for range she stock that day. He remarked that he was delighted with the prices his stock brought and that the average was considerably higher than a year ago, especially for the heifers.

"Shipping operations are just beginning in my part of the state," said Mr. Follis. "There will be several trains come from there during the next few weeks and both the steer and she stuff will be in better flesh than those coming from most other range sections. Shipments will be about normal. Most ranchmen are in position to hold back their young thrifty steers and she stock. Grass is good on the range and while the hay crop is poorer than usual, it will enable us to winter our usual quota of cattle."

Will Feed Fewer Cattle on Beets.

The Great Western Sugar Co., with headquarters at Sterling, Colo., and factories at Fort Morgan, Greeley, Fort Collins, Eaton and Windsor Colo., and numerous other points throughout Colorado and Nebraska, and liberal patrons of Clay, Robinson & Co., marketed at South St Joseph a six-car shipment of long-horned steers They were the first shipment out of a herd of 2,000 head shipped from old Mexico last spring and run on the ranges in the immediate vicinity of Sterling, Colo., through the summer months.

"If the Colorado sugar beet crop had been up to the average, thus assuring an abundance of feed through the winter months," remarked George Bishop, who accompanied the shipment, "these cattle would not have been marketed until next spring. But as it is the beet crop is short and it has become necessary to market about one-third of the cattle that would otherwise have been fed through the winter for the spring markets."

Predicts Big Demand for Denver Feeder Cattle.

While hay will be high, there will be many feeder cattle held on roughage until about the first of the year on the western ranges. These will include the choice cattle. About the time of the annual National Stock Show at Denver the feeder buyers of the corn belt will be out after the good ones and it is confidently predicted that some high prices will be made. Vice President Patterson of the National Packing Co., with headquarters at Chicago, is of the belief that there will be a demand for 20,000 feeder cattle a week in Denver, commencing during the stock show week. As the choice cattle are sold at public sale during the show a very accurate index is secured at that time as to the relation of supply and demand. The prices established during the stock show will form the basis of trading during the spring.

Those who intend to have feeder cattle at the Denver show should get into communication with Clay, Robinson & Co. on that market and thus be kept in close touch with conditions affecting their cattle.

Philip Armour Wins Hall of Fame.

The commission in charge of the Illinois Hall of Fame at Champaign has decided that the late Philip D. Armour is entitled to recognition owing to his services in promoting the live stock industry in the United States. The date of the admission of his name will be fixed later. The name of James N. Brown, first president of the board of agriculture, will be admitted on Jan. 25, 1911, and that of Isaac Funk in 1912. It is probable Mr. Armour will be given recognition in 1913.

Rounding Up New Mexico Stock.

The end of the old days of the open range has arrived in Southern New Mexico. An outfit, which has purchased 500,000 acres along the Rio Grande, are engaged in the biggest roundup for years, taking up all the stock not bearing the company brand and placing them in pens at San Marcial. Cowboys are patrolling both sides of the Rio Grande and catching stock as they come to water, and the corrals at San Marcial are filled with hundreds of cattle, horses and goats. The great range is being fenced at every point. For centuries these great plains have been free as air to every man who had a head of stock, and its fencing is recognized as the beginning of a new era in New Mexico.

ON THE SOUTH DAKOTA RANGES OF THE MATADOR LAND AND CATTLE CO.

Above photos show a trainload of the company's range beeves rounded up for shipment. We sold this particular lot at Chicago on Aug. 23rd, 436 head averaging 1,156 lbs, bringing $5.75 per cwt.

Opportunity for Corn Belt Farmer.

"The tendency to turn off range sheep of all ages means scarcity of sheep for next year," says G. W. Hervey. "Conditions have developed quite favorably for the fall fattening of the sheep and lambs all over the western sections of farm country. The rains of August and September have developed a very heavy pasture supply, which has seldom if ever shown better autumn conditions for feed. This rank growth of pasture with a little grain is just what the sheep needs for quick results in flesh forming. The corn belt farmer sees his opportunity to make a quick return in the feeding of this grass with a little grain. When the condition of buying feeding animals meets the farmer with his fields covered with a good growth of pasture, such as prevails now over a very large area of the corn belt country, and a crop of corn that offers a still greater inducement for sheep feed by turning in the flock together and harvest this crop, it is certainly an opportunity that the corn farmer will take advantage of and make the most of in the interest of feed economy. It is also a good opportunity for the corn belt farmer who has had an idea of starting a farm flock to get the advantage of good quality of sheep at a much less price than has prevailed for several years."

Western Rangemen Will Store Grain.

The erection of numerous steel corn cribs in different parts of the western range country for storing a winter supply of grain for grass stock is one of the innovations of the industry this year that will doubtless serve to increase shipments from the West.

Whether this plan will have any appreciable effect upon the demand as a whole is a matter of no small moment to the larger elevator companies that have storage plants in all parts of Nebraska. In order to get some idea of the situation a long distance wire was sent to the chief clerk of one of the big concerns that has its central office three or four counties distant. The inquiry was made this morning and this is the reply, says the South Omaha Journal-Stockman:

"We figure on sending a few trainloads of corn to the range country each year, but it is too early to estimate accurately the amount that will be needed during the coming winter. Orders that have been filed thus far are no larger than usual but there are many stockmen, of course, who always wait until the new crop is safely matured before buying. We expect plenty of orders from the West later on and with winter range short and hay scarce and costly the outlook for a liberal patronage is promising. Less stock will be fed, however, and this fact will have a tendency to make individual shipments smaller than they would be with existing forage conditions."

Snow in Montana; Does Much Good.

Charles O'Donnell, the extensive ranchman and cattle feeder of Billings, Mont., writes to the following effect: "We had a big snowstorm here a few days ago and it did lots of good for the range. Grass is greener here now than any time in the summer months."

An Arkansas Letter.

To The Live Stock Report:

I am, and have been for some time, a subscriber to the Live Stock Report and when my time runs out shall renew, as I consider it a reliable and valuable source of information to any one who is interested in stock of any kind.

You have never had any shipments of stock from me, as at present I am not a carload shipper. I am raising Hampshire hogs and I consider the small price I pay for the Report for a year is paid back to me every week in valuable suggestions and information.

I wish to congratulate you on the article in the issue of Sept. 30 just to hand, signed Gordon Graham, which is surely an eye opener to me. I had always looked upon Gifford Pinchot as an undoubted authority on matters pertaining to forestry, but I believe that this article will be an education to many. The value of this communication to me is worth more than all the Report costs for a year.

Official figures just issued by the crop reporting board of the Department of Agriculture paint a glowing picture of material prosperity for the United States.

Corn and oats are bumper crops, the former having three billion bushels and the latter exceeding last year's billion-bushel crop by nearly 100,000,000 bushels. Even the wheat crop turns out to be only 45,000,000 bushels behind the big yield of 1909 and has been exceeded but four times in the nation's history.

Record Corn Crop by Big Margin.

While the figures show that the corn yield is a trifle below the 3,000,000,000-bushel mark, this report was made up only to Oct. 1. Since that data even the stragglers of the 1910 corn crop have come under the safety line. The November report will take note of these and will also tell the country that many millions of bushels of the crop of 1909 are still on hand.

The present corn crop is 205,000,000 bushels larger than that of last year and is over 50,000,000 bushels larger than the previous bumper crop—that of 1906—which was 2,927,000,000 bushels. The states south of the Ohio River and the Missouri and Kansas lines have raised more than a round billion of bushels of corn, something heretofore unheard of.

More Oats Than Ever Before.

Until last year a crop of a billion bushels of oats in America was unknown. This year there is a good, healthy start on the second billion, the official preliminary estimate for 1910 making the yield 1,096,000,000 bushels. In addition to being the largest crop of oats ever grown, the quality is exceptionally fine and the weight per bushel is among the heaviest ever recorded.

Yield of Wheat Makes Good Showing.

The production of spring wheat, as estimated by the crop reporting board for 1910, was 233,475,000 bushels, compared with 290,823,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 11.8 bushels, compared with 15.8 in 1909 and 13.7 the ten-year average. The quality was 94.1 per cent, compared with 86.2 the ten year average.

The production of all wheat for 1910 was 691,769,000 bushels, compared with 737,189,000 bushels in 1909, the yield per acre being 14.2 bushels, compared with 15.8 in 1909 and 14.1 the ten-year average. The quality was 93.1 per cent.

Condition of Corn Is Excellent.

The corn crop was 80.3 per cent of a normal on Oct. 1, or at time of harvest, as compared with 73.8 a year ago and 78.4 the ten-year average. Comparisons for important corn states as to condition follow:

Quality of Oats as Very Good.

The production of oats for 1910 was 1,096,396,000 bu, compared with 1,007,353,000 bu in 1909, the yield per acre being 31.9 bu, compared with 30.3 in 1909 and 29.5, the ten-year average. The quality was 93.8 per cent, compared with 86.1 the ten-year average. Comparisons for important oats states follow:

Encouraging to Corn Belt Feeders.

"One thing that makes the corn feeding cattle proposition look good this fall is the fact that there will be less competition from western hay and beet pulp feeders," comments the South Omaha Journal-Stockman. "The scarcity of hay all over the West has sent the price of that article to practically prohibitive figures, so that while a great deal of it will be used to rough stock through, comparatively little will be used for strictly fattening purposes. It is also estimated that the sugar factories will have less than half as much pulp to feed as last year, owing to the poor season for beets. In the past few years this competition from the West has been a very important factor in the fat cattle market and its elimination this winter will make it clearer sailing for corn fed stock."

Big Corn Crop Assured in South Dakota.

I. W. Seaman, the prominent and successful South Dakota banker and cattle feeder, with headquarters at Mitchell, was at the Chicago office of Clay, Robinson & Co. and had the following to say in regard to conditions in the southern part of South Dakota:

"We are going to have the largest and best crop of corn in the history of the state. That is assured, even with a visit from Jack Frost. A record acreage was planted and the quality fine in practically every section. Our hay crop was also a big one, although up in the range country it was greatly reduced by drought the past summer. The feed lots are being filled with cattle, many of which are intended for a short feed. Our supply of hogs is the smallest in years. Last spring many of them were taken with a sort of paralysis, and after a few days would drop over dead. Relatively few droves escaped. Of course, this greatly reduced the pig crop. A good many of the feeders are compelled to buy stock hogs to follow cattle in the feed lots."

Good News Comes From Wyoming.

The following encouraging and good news comes from Cheyenne, Wyo.:

"To the surprise and great satisfaction of the live stock interests, the ranges of Wyoming, which remained in a parched condition throughout the greater part of the summer, have taken on new life as a result of recent rains, and grass is again growing under the stimulus of a mid-summer sun. The weather throughout the state was never more perfect than now. Cattle and sheep are beginning to take on flesh, and many owners who had arranged to ship to market have canceled orders for cars and will make an effort to hold over everything they feel can be wintered with safety. With a continuation of the present weather for two or three weeks stock of all kinds will be in condition to weather almost any storm, and with quantities of hay and grain stored on the plains it is believed steckmen will go through the coming winter with nominal loss."

Has Taken Report Since First Issued.

Walter Hebblewhite, a prominent farmer and feeder of Macomb County, Mich., was on the Chicago market with stock which we sold to his entire satisfaction. Mr. Hebblewhite renewed his subscription to the Report and remarked: "I have taken the Report ever since it has been issued, almost twenty years. I read each issue of the Report very carefully and get more information regarding live stock and crop affairs than from any other paper, daily, weekly or monthly." When buying his feeding cattle or sheep on the markets he always purchases them through our firm and of late years has our East Buffalo house sell them when fat. He said his relations with our firm have always been very profitable and pleasant.

Another Letter from a Westerner.

Mr. Chas. O. Robinson,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Mr. Robinson:

Last evening I read Gordon Graham's article on forest fires and the cost to the country of Pinchotism. I wish to thank you and your company for printing the letter. You scored a big point with westerners when you published it. If we ship, as we think of doing, you will get the business. We thank you for helping us in our fight against this unjust scheme, and be sure it will come back to you in good hard cash. How we all detest the whole forest policy and hope to see Pinchot downed. The letter is grand. Every word counts and strikes the mark. We westerners are furious, fighting mad, disgusted and almost disheartened at the treatment accorded us. A bureau to run our affairs, we free citizens of a free nation to be treated in this high handed manner! You are true friends of ours. It is the best summing up of the worst policy that was ever inaugurated in this country. While hurling anathama at Pinchot, let us not forget Roosevelt. He inaugurated the inquitious policy.

Here are some of the things the forest policy has done: It gives the stockman no voice in affairs that affect him more nearly than anything else—his living; it is government without representation; it takes the range from an old-timer and gives it to a favorite of some of the petty officials; it makes the stockman pay the nation's conservation bill, and the eastern people have been cunningly misled into thinking of it as "our ranges." It is nothing of the sort. It should be the prerogative of the people who have built up the West, who have endured the privation and hardships, endured the toil and struggle to build these commonwealths.

Here are the things it does not do: It does not reseed the ranges—I have never known of one seed being sown; it does not plant trees; it does not prevent the squabbling between ranchers over range; it does not keep the tops, etc., cleaned up where trees have been cut; it does not study the poisonous plants on the ranges, and thus be of real benefit to the stockman; it does nothing well or carefully except collect money, and it does this thoroughly and whole heartedly.

Cattle Shortage in New Mexico.

G. W. McInturff of Portales, N. M., marketed 216 goats at Kansas City, the windup shipment of a string of about 1,200 head he sold through Clay, Robinson & Co. there. Fourteen years ago Mr. McInturff went to that part of the range country and engaged in the cattle business, which he has been following ever since.

"About a year ago I got into this goat business," he said, "but I found that goats and cattle would not get along well together on the range so I have just sold off the last of the goats. Cattle do not care to range on land covered by goats And a good many cattle have been marketed from that part of the state recently, owing to the fact that the range feed was very short. The forepart of the season was very dry and grass became scarce, so a good many cattle had to be shipped out. But about a month ago we had good rains, and since that the grass has come on, and now it looks as if we would have plenty of winter range feed. It has been a hard year on the dry farmers. For a few years they seemed to make a pretty good show, but this season has hit them hard. Some have left the country and others will probably go. Dry farming is a problem that has not been quite mastered. Of course, if they have a few good years and get far enough ahead to run a season without much, then they can hold out. In the irrigated districts good crops of feed and grain were raised, and in those places farmers are well fixed. But we are short on stock, and will be for another year at least. So with a shortage of stock, and the fall rains which brought on range feed, we ought to get through the winter all right."

Proved Salvation of Western Country.

Governor B. B. Brooks of Wyoming, a valued client of Clay, Robinson & Co., writes from Cheyenne to the following effect: "The good prices range stock has been bringing at South Omaha this season have certainly been the salvation of this western country. We may have a few more cattle to go, but no large shipments. I have been quite well satisfied with my sales throughout the year."

5,800 Feeding Lambs Bought for One Customer By Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha.

Seventeen thirty-six foot double deck cars, 5,800 lambs, shipped in a special train, tells the story of one of the recent accomplishments of our sheep buying department. This purchase was made for W. F. Gieseke of the Marshall Milling Co., Marshall, Minn., by our South Omaha house, Sept. 28 and 29. The shipment was moved over the Northwestern Railway by special train via Council Bluffs and Sioux City in record time, being accompanied over the several divisions of the road by the trainmasters, who saw to it that nothing interfered with prompt service.

For several seasons Clay, Robinson & Co. have had the pleasure of buying a large number of feeding lambs for Mr. Gieseke, and for several seasons our Chicago house has been privileged to sell the fattened lambs. Mr. Gieseke is a keen, progressive business man, has reduced the business of lamb feeding to a science, has one of the best equipped feeding plants in the country, and has made a great success in this field. He concedes it is a great aid to success in this endeavor to have "Clay, Robinson & Co. service," both in the selection of his feeders and the selling of the stock when fat.

Recently in a card to a prospective feeding sheep and lamb purchasers, we said:

> "Last year we shipped feeding sheep into thirteen different states from this market. We filled orders for beginners, for old practical feeders of thousands for agricultural colleges, experimental stations and for show purposes at the Chicago International. Why did we draw from such distances this patronage? These purchasers are all in the business for the dollars there are in it, and hence patronize the firm that always gives honest, money-making service. No matter to what market they go, they know they are always sure to find our sheepmen are live wires, men of red blood, with sleeves rolled up, full of enthusiasm, vim and go, who know best how to serve their interests. You are wanting feeders? Are you critical? Are you hard to satisfy? Then give us a trial buying order. We want work worthy of our steel."

Mr. Gieseke's order was "work worthy of our steel," and we point with, we think, pardonable pride to its successful execution. Its accomplishment is but further evidence of the great buying organization we have built, an organization, we think not only creditable to ourselves, but to the live stock industry. In assisting buyers to secure a better selection, to buy at money-saving prices, we save them additional sums in the indirect expense of personal visitation to market, to say nothing of the enhanced selling value of the stock made possible by expertness in the selection and sort of the feeders. We consider no order unworthy "of our steel." Conscientious effort and our best service is given in the execution of an order for one car as it is in filling the larger commands. This order given us by Mr. Gieseke is the best evidence that our maintenance of a buying organization, separate and distinct from our selling service, is appreciated by the keen, wide-awake and progressive feeders.

Following in an exerpt from a letter received from Mr. Gieseke by our South Omaha house in reference to this transaction:

> "As to the run that we had. It might be best expressed as 'one of the wonders of the twentieth century.' It is surprising what can be done when taken up through the proper channels and entered into with the spirit of 'do or die' on the part of every individual connected with the entire unit. With a smile from every man in the yards, Jasmer's (South Omaha live stock agent, C. & N. W. Ry.) good-bye, in the company of the most accommodating and best trainmasters I ever met, Pike and Hansen, a grin from ear to ear on everyone from engineer to brakeman—particularly true when we sailed by passenger trains—you may imagine that neither wind nor weather could stop us. For quite a spell we were running at the rate of fifty to sixty miles per hour. As a matter of fact, we went so rapidly that as we neared our destination the arrangements for their train crews were made somewhat late, and necessitated my awaiting the arrival of their engines; but we got here at 4:00 a. m., leaving Omaha at 2:10 p. m., the last 61 miles requiring some four and one-half hours of the entire time. We started unloading at about 8:00 a. m. They came out in fine shape, the best I ever saw them, and by noon we were drinking to their welfare."

Hogging Down Corn is Profitable.

It is evident that allowing hogs to gather a crop instead of harvesting and feeding it, must be a saving of expense. If at the same time the gains made are satisfactory, this method should commend itself. The advantages claimed for hogging down corn are that such a method saves labor, it produces pork more economically than in dry lot, especially where a supplementary crop, such as cow peas and soy beans are used, and lastly such a method preserves a large per cent of the fertility contained in the stalks and grain.

The objections raised are, that the feeding value of the corn fodder is lost, and that the necessary outlay for hog tight fencing is too great. As to the first objection, it might be said that it is merely a matter of personal opinion where one can best afford to place his roughage. If, as in Wisconsin and New York, this fodder is of great value in dairy operations, it is doubtful whether it would be good policy to tramp it under foot to be added to the natural fertility of the soil. If, on the other hand, corn fodder is abundant as in Iowa, Illinois and Missouri, the fertility proposition is of greater importance than the feeding value. The fencing proposition is merely a question of investing capital where one can make the most interest. And certainly it is hard to find a better paying deal on the farm than one in which the animals do the harvesting themselves.

The most commendable method of hogging off corn is one in which the hogs are limited in range, the corn being fenced off so as to allow ten days or two weeks' feed. By handling the corn in this manner the hogs will clean up their operations as they go, a fresh feed being given them at the end of each period. For this purpose a movable fence is desirable. Or in case this is not available the corn may be turned over to a mixed lot of hogs, some large and some small. In this way the corn is broken down and largely eaten by the large hogs, the smaller ones following and cleaning up what remains.

One of the most desirable features of harvesting corn in this fashion is the fact that it may be so operated as to give the pigs a natural balanced ration. Cow peas or soy beans planted the first of July between the corn rows will furnish an abundance of forage by new corn time. The value of these crops has often been demonstrated. Some experiment stations have claimed as much as 50 per cent greater feeding value in cow peas and corn than in corn alone, or corn and meat meal. Especially is this true of the younger stock which depends largely for its growth of bone on the legume crops. Not only does the addition of these crops produce pork more economically but it results in much more rapid gains.

The change from dry lot feeding or summer foraging to new corn must be done by degrees. It is well to commence by throwing the corn over to the hogs when it is passing into the glazed state until they are on full feed. In this way scours and a period of off feed are avoided.

The effect upon the soil is one of the most commendable features of hogging down corn. It leaves the soil in the best possible condition. The manure is distributed where it ought to be. Practically all the fertility value of the stalks and grain is returned directly to the soil, and where leguminous crops, such as cow peas and soy beans, are used, added fertility will be given to the soil through nitrogen which will be taken from the air.

So that taking this proposition of hogging down corn from any standpoint, it seems to commend itself as an economical and profitable way of harvesting and feeding the corn crop.—Hugh Webster.

One of the Things That Have Helped to Make

The Greatest Live Stock Commission Firm in the World

UNDOUBTEDLY one of the chief factors is an accurate knowledge, intimate grasp, and correct judgment of live stock and market conditions throughout the country. Having our own houses at the ten leading markets, North, South, East and West, we are at all times reliably informed upon conditions everywhere.

This enables us to advise our customers how, when, and where to ship in order to make money. It also enables us to pass on to all who desire it, whether customers or not, market information and advice of the greatest value.

Each week our views of market conditions and prospects, together with complete reviews of the trade, current quotations, etc., and all news from every source that we consider likely to benefit raisers, feeders or shippers of live stock, is boiled down and appears in condensed form in our sixteen-page illustrated weekly paper

Good All Round — CLAY, ROBINSON & CO. — LIVE STOCK COMMISSION — Sales That Suit

Now in its twentieth year, is published primarily in the interest of Clay, Robinson & Co. and their customers, but benefits everyone who reads it. It has been well called "The greatest aid to the profitable feeding and marketing of live stock in existence." The fact that the paper has attained an average circulation of over 30,000 speaks for itself.

We want you to have this paper—for your good and ours. We want it enough so that we are willing to stand most of the expense of sending it to you. To produce the paper costs per copy $1.00 per year, and 50 cents more for postage. If you will pay the postage only, we will do the rest. Fair enough, isn't it?

Guarantee

If after receiving the "Report" one month you are not more than satisfied, we will cheerfully refund your 50 Cents upon demand.

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Receipts of western range cattle last week totaled 25,000, as large as received here thus far this season and compared with 21,500 corresponding week of last year. Marketing for the season ending with last week was 196,200, compared with 185,200 like period of 1909. A very satisfactory trade in beef steers was had. Demand from both local dressed beef and eastern shippers was considerably broader and prices were 15@25c higher than the close of the previous week. We sold 21 head of 1,482-lb grade Hereford and Shorthorn beeves at $7.10, the highest price in three weeks and top last week by 25c per cwt. They were marketed by J. D. Waite of Lewistown, Mont. Most of the week's trading was at $4.85@5.75. Cows and heifers sold steady for the week, with most sales at $4.00@5.00. Feeders went 15@20c higher, with good to choice kinds at $5.10@$5.50 and common to medium lots $4.25@4.90.

This week started out with a run of 10,500. Quality of the beef steers was somewhat plain. The market was slow throughout the session, a goodly supply of natives rendering buyers independent, especially towards the higher-priced lots. While good to choice grades went 10c lower, other kinds sold steady. Twenty-eight very choice 1,427-lb beeves made the top price of $6.75. There were few sales above $5.75 and quite a showing at $4.75@5.30. Cows and heifers slow but about steady sale. Best feeders advanced 10c and others went steady.

Marketing Tuesday 4,000. Buyers displayed better interest and a more active beef steer trade resulted at strong prices. One load of extra choice 1,390-lb offerings sold up to $6.75. She stock made a steady price basis. Good demand for feeders at strong rates.

On Wednesday the big run of 12,000 was received. Beef steers of value above $5.25 went 10c lower and those under that figure were steady. A very choice lot made $6.90. She stock about steady. Feeders were stronger sale than the previous day and as compared with last week's close showed 10@25c advance, the good heavy fleshy kinds being 15@25c higher.

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

A new record was hung up in the sheep department last week. Receipts of 218,345 showed 15,152 in excess of the banner run of the previous week. Shipments for the week reached the record number of 116,964, practically all of which went back to the country for feeding purposes. Notwithstanding this enormous run, the week closed with prices generally steady with the finish of the previous week. The only exception was for feeding ewes, which showed 25c decline. Demand was broad from the packers and outlet through feeder channels of record-breaking proportions. Tops for the week were: Fat lambs $7.00, feeders $6.60, fat yearlings $5.50, feeder yearlings $5.40, fat wethers $4.25, feeder wethers $4.10, fat ewes $3.75 and feeder ewes $3.00. All of these prices were obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

This week started out with a run of 70,373, being 4,213 greater than the previous banner receipts of Monday last week. The market held remarkably good tone under the enormity of supplies, all classes selling on practically a steady basis. Both the fat and feeder grades met with fairly active sale. Clay, Robinson & Co. topped the lamb market with two different strings from Idaho at $7.00 and the feeding lamb market at $6.50. The limit for mutton wethers was $4.25 and for feeders $4.00, both prices being secured by Clay, Robinson & Co. Receipts Tuesday 60,000. Lambs sold steady to 10c lower and sheep generally steady. Best had to go at $6.90, and extra choice feeders reached $6.65. Heavy weight two-year-old wethers of an extra choice class reached $4.30.

Run Wednesday 55,000. Demand was again broad enough to clear the offerings at steady prices. Tops made $7.00 for lambs, $5.50 for yearlings, $4.25 for wethers and $4.00 for ewes.

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

Below will be found bulk sales of feeder sheep, yearlings and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk Sheep.		Bulk Yearlings.		Bulk Lambs.
This week	$2.50	@4.00	$5.00	@5.25	$6.00	@6.50
Last week	2.50	4.00	5.00	5.40	6.00	6.50

Two years ago	2.75	4.00	4.00	4.25	4.85	5.15

Supplies this week were even larger than the record run of last week. However, there was hungry demand for the offerings and the Wednesday price range was fully steady with the close of last week. There seems to be no limit to the outlet. Fine fall pastures, a plentiful supply of forage and a bumper crop of corn are mainly responsible for the record-breaking demand from both the East and middle West.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Oct. 11.—There was a fair supply of cattle here last week. The quality was rather ordinary, few good steers included. The trade started out rather slow the first of the week, but killing cattle wound up 15@25c better than early in the week. Cows and heifers also finished in considerably better shape. Stockers and feeders closed up strong and active, heavy fleshy steers commanding most attention.

As compared with last week's close best beef grades and feeders held steady and other kinds declined 10@15c. Quality rather common.

Range Sheep.

Sheep receipts last week were about 145,000. Best fat kinds and feeders held up well throughout the week, but common killers and feeders were very draggy on the close and a little lower. Good fat lambs were quotable at $6.50@6.75, wethers $4.00@4.15, and ewes $3.30@3.75. Best feeding lambs $6.00@6.25, light weight yearlings $5.00@5.25, heavy yearlings $4.50@4.75, wethers $3.60@4.00, and ewes $2.50@3.25.

The record-breaking run of sheep and lambs first two market days this week met the first sharp slump of the season. As compared with last week's close killer grades went steady to 10c lower, best lambs at $6.40 wethers around $4.00 and most ewes $3.25@3.50. Receipts were largely feeder lambs, with best kinds 10@15c lower than last week's close and others 25@40c. Top $6.05 and most best grades $5.50@5.80 and medium kinds $4.75@5.25. We topped the feeding lamb market on Monday at $6.50 and the Monday and Tuesday feeder yearling trade at $5.20 and $5.15 respectively.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week.....	$4.65@8.00	$5.60@7.35
Previous week.....	4.75 8.00	5.65 7.50
Year ago.....	4.00 9.00	5.35 7.65
Two years ago.....	3.50 7.60	4.50 6.75

Receipts of cattle last week totaled 65,256, included in which were 25,000 western rangers. The reduction in supplies and a broader demand from all sources proved very timely and beneficial. The week closed with good to prime grades 40@50c higher than the finish of the previous week and other kinds 15@20c. Top for the week was $8.00, paid for one load of fancy 981-lb Angus yearlings

This week started out with a run of 31,491, of which 10,500 were rangers. In spite of the liberal supply, prices were held steady, although tone of trade was slow. Both local dressed beef buyers and eastern shippers evinced better interest, an indication that the beef channels are less clogged. Late in the session the market was fairly active and a good clearance of all desirable offerings was made. Common and plain offerings were meanest sale, due to competition with westerns. The top was $7.85, obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co. for 49 head of 1,816 lbs average for J. C. Clay of North Salem, Ind. Owing to the fact that these cattle were of excessive weight, and therefore very coarse, they were discriminated against, and would have brought more money had they been lighter and smoother. Most of the sales were at $5.60 @7.25.

Receipts of 9,000 Tuesday included 4,000 westerns. Demand was very indifferent and it proved hard work to get steady prices. The top was $7.50, paid for 39 head of 1,286 lbs average.

Supply Wednesday was 21,000, including 12,000 westerns. The market ruled steady to 10c higher, the best handy weights being the only offerings to go higher. Top of $8.00 was for 32 head of prime 1,690 lbs average, and a fancy lot of yearlings made $7.90.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of native beef steers:

COWS AND HEIFERS.

Last week closed with cows and heifers steady to weak as compared with the previous week's finish. Sellers considered themselves fortunate in obtaining the prices they did, as supplies of both natives and rangers were liberal. Good to choice heifers were freeest sale, but anything in the cow line that had to compete with westerns proved mean sellers. Bull market closed 10 higher for the week and calves declined 50c from high time the previous week.

It was a slow but about steady deal in cows and heifers at the start of this week. Freeest sellers were the good fat heifers and choice heavy cows A two-load lot of extra choice 768-lb heifers sold up to $6.80. Strong active trade in bulls. A liberal run of calves met slow sale at 25c decline Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was unchanged Bulls sold steady. All price changes for calves tended towards a stronger basis under light receipts.

The Wednesday trade in cows and heifers was steady to weak, the late market being rather dull.

At the close of last week prices did not show material change from the previous week's finish. The outlet continued relatively poor. Illinois, Indiana and Ohio afforded best outlet for the heavy fleshy steers and eastern parties continued to stock up liberally with the lighter weights.

This week started out with a moderate supply and a fairly good demand. Strong prices were the rule. Packers took most of the heavy fleshy steers at better prices than feeders were willing to pay. The Tuesday market was active at prices generally 10@15c higher.

The Wednesday market lacked life and prices were barely steady.

ception was for the poor light and rough heavy packing. These going 25@40c lower. The spread between the common and good hogs continues to widen and promises to be a marked feature of the trade from now on.

At the start of this week the run was 22,355 Packers had things all their own way and trimmed the price range to the extent of 15@25c. The nine-cent hog was put out of business, the best being obtained at $8.95. Most light and handy weight hogs brought $8.50@8.75 and bulk heavy $7.95@8.30. Tuesday supply 13,000. Brisk market at 15c advance. Top $9.10, with bulk of crop at $8.15@8.85 for heavy packing to choice light shippers.

Wednesday total 13,000. Opening 10@20c lower. market closed with all of the advance lost on packing grades. Top $9.30 and bulk $8.25@9.00.

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Last week closed with native sheep and lambs on a strong to a little higher basis than the finish of the previous week. This was remarkable, in view of the fact that total marketing for the week made the banner number of 218,345. Prime lambs reached $7.15, and bulk of week's trading was at $6.25@6.75. Fancy heavy ewes sold up to $4.25 and bulk around $4.00.

This week started out with steady prices prevailing, in spite of the record total run of 70,373 City butchers paid up to $7.15 for fancy assorted offerings and bulk went at $6.50@7.00, while most ewes sold at $4.00@4.25 and best up to $4.30. Sheep and the best lambs held steady Tuesday, but the plainer grades showed 10@15c loss. A fancy lot of lambs went on shipping account up to $7.25 and a city butcher paid $7.10, but big packers would not go over the seven-cent line. Bulk of the ewes sold at $4.00@4.25.

Steady prices prevailed on Wednesday. It took very choice lambs to make $7.00 and $4.30 was the limit for prime heavy ewes.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you.

Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Ridpath's History of the World may be regarded as a complete library in itself. No other work of its kind has ever supplied a history so well suited to the needs of all classes and conditions of men. It embraces the whole round of literature, science, art, philosophy, conquest, exploration, romance and biography. If Dr. Ridpath had written nothing more than American history, that alone would have been a master-piece. From Washington's time to the present day, it carries the reader along with enthusiastic interest. We cheerfully commend this most popular and complete of all world's histories to our readers.

RIDPATH'S enviable position as an historian is due to his wonderfully beautiful style, a style no other historian has ever equaled. He pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan; to watch that thin line of Greek spearmen work havoc with the Persian hordes on the field of Marathon; to know Napoleon as you know Roosevelt.

RIDPATH in your home means you need never spend a lonely evening. You can associate with the world's heroes; you can cross the Rubicon with Caesar, after which Rome was free no more. You can sit at the feet of Socrates, the loftiest genius of the ancient world. You can kneel at the shrine of Lincoln, "the greatest character of all time; the gentlest memory of our world." It is ennobling to commune with these children of destiny. To be associated with great men is to be great one's self, and you will add to your store of knowledge which is power, and to richness of your life.

SEND COUPON TO-DAY.

RIDPATH takes you back to the dawn of history, long before the pyramids of Egypt were built; down through the romantic, troubled times of Chaldea's grandeur and Assyria's magnificence; of Babylonia's wealth and luxury; of Grecian and Roman splendour; of Mohammedan culture and refinement; of French elegance and British power; of American patriotism and religious freedom, to the dawn of yesterday. He covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence. Nothing more interesting, absorbing and inspiring was ever written by man.

RIDPATH throws the mantle of personality over the old heroes of history. Alexander is there; patriot, warrier, statesman, diplomat, crowning the glory of Grecian history. Xerxes, from his mountain platform sees Themistocles with three hundred and fifty Greek ships smash his Persian fleet of over a thousand sail, and help to mould the language in which this paragraph is written. Rome perches Nero upon the greatest throne on earth, and so sets up a poor madman's name to stand for countless centuries as the synonym of savage cruelty; Napoleon fights Waterloo again under your very eyes, and reels before the iron fact that at last the end of his gilded dream has come. Bismarck is there, gruff, overbearing, a giant pugilist in the diplomatic ring, laughing with grim disdain at France, which says, "You shall not." Washington is there, "four-square to all the winds," grave, thoughtful, proof against the wiles of British strategy and the poisoned darts of false friends; clear-seeing over the heads of his fellow-countrymen, and on into another Century, the most colossal world-figure of his time.

Big Car Shortage in the West.

J. Frank Owen, pioneer and prominent range cattleman, with headquarters at Dayton, Wyo., was on the Chicago market Oct. 12 with a string of his cattle and paid Clay, Robinson & Co. a very pleasant visit. He had the following to say regarding western range conditions: "During the thirty-one years of my residence in the West I have never seen range conditions as bad as they are at the present time. Everybody wants to cut down their holdings, this applying to cattle as well as sheep. Thousands of range stock are awaiting shipment and the only thing that is holding them back is the shortage of cars. In not a few places after the cattle had been rounded up they had to be turned back onto the range because of inability to secure cars. Of course, it is needless to say that the heavy liquidation is at the expense of the future. There is no doubt in my mind that when the stocking up period commences prices for both cattle and sheep will prove very high and that the markets during the range shipping season will be rather moderately supplied. Thus both breeding and fat stock will naturally rest on a high price basis. There will be fewer cattle and sheep fed in the West this winter than for many years, due to a shortage of hay. For the past three months alfalfa has been bringing $10 per ton, in my part, and the worst part of it is that there is none for sale."

Feeding Cattle Problem in Ohio.

"I am not an old man, yet I can well remember when we could go out about home and in a short time buy a carload of feeding steers," said B. F. Hawley, owner of a good farm near Champaign Ohio, and who purchased a string of cattle at Kansas City last week through Clay, Robinson & Co. "Then they became a little scarcer, and more time was required to pick up a carload. Today if I had the best automobile made, and would ride a week, I could not find a carload of steers suitable for feeding purposes. When this class of cattle begun to play out we would go out a little distance toward the west for them, and now I am here away out at Kansas City, for the purpose of buying several carloads of cattle. Now just imagine what will be the condition, say in 25 years from now with reference to this feeding cattle problem. Our farms are growing smaller each year, so that 80 acres is now a pretty good sized farm in central Ohio where I live. We raise a good many hogs and in places a great deal of corn and feed is raised. But it is getting the cattle to feed is what is causing us a great deal of trouble. On the Kansas City market we find a class of very high-bred cattle that are just right for feeding. But in coming so far for our feeders, we are under a heavier expense than if we could get them closer to home, of course, or raise them ourselves. It really seems strange that we cannot raise a few good cattle, but on the small farms it is impossible. Then some one will ask why we feed cattle at all. In answer to this I will say that there is a certain amount of rough feed on every farm that if not fed up will go to waste. And it is good feed and ought not to be wasted."

Frontier Days in the Dakotas.

I. W. Seaman of Mitchell, S. D., was born in McHenry county, Ill., in 1851. When but a child he with his parents, migrated to a frontier farm in Minnesota, remaining there until the Indian outbreak in 1861. Shortly after this they moved to Howard county, Ia., where he attended district school and worked on his father's farm. In his twentieth year he was presented with a yoke of steers and a year of time, and, bidding farewell to his boyhood home, he started out for Dakota, there to seek his fortune. In the absence of railroads in this young territory traveling was done by stage and team. On arriving at Yankton he sold his steers and hired out to Lewis Vollin, who held a contract to furnish the United States government with wood and hay at Fort Rice, a military post situated on the Missouri River. The sterling qualities of courage, perseverance and untiring industry, which so characterized him in later life, were manifested at this time in meeting with and mastering problems incident to a wild and dangerous country. Starting with a salary of $30 per month, his experience in making hay and driving oxen soon commanded an increase to $75. Later he, with others, took a contract to cut 100,000 ties on Bon Homme Island, west of Yankton, to be used on the first railroad laid in Dakota territory, known as the Dakota Southern, since purchased by the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad. He spent the winter in chopping ties and cutting wood. In the spring of 1872 he bought a span of mules, a harness and wagon, and worked for Dr. Burleigh to help build the railroad from Jamestown to Bismarck. Later in the year he took his first government contract to put up hay for troops, located at Camp Hancock, near Bismarck. The following winter he drove his team and freighted from Sioux City to Yankton and points up the river. In the spring of 1873 it became necessary to send 7,000 lbs of freight by team to Fort Rice. The government offered Mr. Seaman $15 per cwt to undertake the job. He accepted and the contract was closed. At this time there were no white settlers beyond Fort Sully. Starting from Sioux City on March 1, he encountered the most difficult trip of his life. It was a spring of long and severe snow storms. The dangers of the trip were increased and made the more hazardous by the certain fact that each stage of the distance was marked by probable daily attack from the Hunkapawpaws, a tribe of cunning and warlike redskins, who lay in wait, causing him, at one time, a delay of two weeks. He stopped at Chief Two Bear's Camp, the present site of Standing Rock Agency. His tact and strategy was shown in winning the favor of the pompous old chief, who espoused his cause to the extent that he sent 35 warriors with him for protection from the hostile tribes, until he was well beyond the reach of danger. On April 20 he arrived at Fort Rice with everything in perfect condition. The summer was spent in teaming at Bismarck, then a small and lawless town. Returning in the fall to Yankton, he took contracts for hauling freight for the government. When the Black Hills opened he was among the first to start a freight train, teaming from Pierre to the Hills, himself a prominent factor for two years in transporting in this way all classes of freight. He next went into the contracting business for the purpose of furnishing beef and stock cattle to the Indians for the United States government. At one time in his career he handled more beef contracts than any one individual in the United States, but the sharp competition, reducing prices to the extent that the profits were exceedingly unreliable, he turned his attention to farming and dealing in lands. His time is now busily occupied in breeding and feeding cattle and in attending to his financial interests, involving as they do, large amounts of land in both South and North Dakota, also banking interests in a number of points in these states. Mr. Seaman's life has been marked by unusual success. He has contributed generously to the needs of a young and growing state, not only by financial aid, but by personal participation in all civic, educational and philanthropic enterprises. His chief interest has centered in the cause of temperance, his policy being a clean town for the rising generation. Mr. Seaman's successful life career has been characterized by untiring energy, business sagacity and strict honesty.

He has been shipping cattle and hogs to Clay, Robinson & Co. for twenty years, and for the past fifteen years has not consigned one load to any other firm. It is needless to say that he has always been well pleased with the service rendered him, which included topping the Chicago cattle market for him many years.

Big Prizes for Range Cattle.

Hereford cattle breeders in the West are planning to compete for the big premiums offered at the National Western Stock Show, Denver Jan. 16-21, for feeder cattle in car loads. The American Hereford Breeders Association has offered a special purse of $500 for the best car load of feeder cattle showing a preponderance of Hereford blood and the same amount for the best load of fat cattle. This purse with the other purses and specials will make about $800 it is possible to win with one load of cattle, to say nothing of the fancy price the cattle will undoubtedly bring. Hereford cattle are the popular range breed in the West and there will undoubtedly be close competition.

Wyoming Being Denuded of Stock.

"It is my opinion that both cattle and sheep will be shipped out closer this fall than they have been any time for at least fifteen years," remarked R. S. Van Tassell of Cheyenne, Wyo., to the Journal-Stockman, while disposing of a big string of cattle through Clay, Robinson & Co., at South Omaha last week. "I am in the saddle all over the state the greater part of the time and this has been one of the most unfavorable seasons that stockmen have experienced for years.

"We had good early grass and lots of it, so that stockmen were congratulating themselves that after an exceptionally severe winter they were to have a good spring. In this they were doomed to disappointment however, as a late frost cut down the grass, it dried up and became worthless as feed. Again the grass started in fine shape and again it was cut down and ruined by frost. Then, as if this was not enough, we had a nine-weeks drouth, so that by the close of summer there was no grazing to speak of.

"Late rains started up the grass again, but it did little good, as it only made the stock soft and it is bound to be cut down by the first hard frost and rendered worthless. With no winter feed in sight stockmen will be up against it and cutting down their herds and flocks is a matter of necessity and not of choice. Of course, stock cattle and sheep are going to be kept back as much as possible, but with all kinds of feed scarce and expensive stockmen are cleaning up closer than they have done in years, and I look for heavy shipments just as long as it is possible to ship.

"The fact that stockmen have been able to meet this enforced liquidation so successfully demonstrates the sound condition of the whole live stock industry of the state, and by next year the process of restocking the state will be in full swing and the business will be on a better, bigger and safer basis than ever before."

Meeting of Indiana Cattle Feeders.

The fourth regular fall meeting of the Indiana Cattle Feeders' Association has been called by President DePuy to meet Nov. 19 at Lafayette, Ind.

The Purdue experiment station has on grass 80 choice fleshy feeders that will be placed on feed with different rations. These cattle will be finished for the annual spring meeting of the convention, thus giving the members of the association the opportunity to see the cattle when placed on feed and when finished by different methods of fattening. No better object lesson could be found than this practical demonstration of the variation in the rate and cost of gains and the finish secured from different feeds.

The program will consist not only of the valuation of the cattle and a talk on the markets by commission men, but also addresses by men prominent in the meat producing circles of the country. The cattle feeding at the station will be reviewed and the plans for the feeding experiments this winter discussed. It is also hoped that a plan will be adopted whereby the members of the association will make annual reports on their feeding operations, thus giving each member the benefit of the experience of the other members.

Something Shippers Should Avoid.

Do not divide your consignments of cattle between two or more commission firms on the same day. This has brought the loss of thousands of dollars to those who have followed this plan. Every split shipment is watched by buyers. They use one firm against the other in trying to lower prices on such consignments. Buyers reluctantly bid on divided shipments. Each fears that the other may make the cheapest purchase. The buyer who pays the most will be criticised by his house. Thus split shipments often are draggy sale and the owner suffers a monetary loss. It can readily be seen that if one firm has the entire shipment buyers must necessarily compete with each other for the same. This enables the salesman to raise the price. If shippers insist on dividing their shipments they should do so on different days.

Scotch Highland Cattle for Crossing.

A Montana ranchman recently purchased two Scotch Highland bulls which he will cross on his grade Hereford cows with a view to produce a strain of cattle that are better adapted to the open range than the Hereford or any other pure breed. It seems that he has had some experience with such cross-breeds and says:

"My experience with them convinced me that the cross makes a superb animal for a range country where the winters are severe. They proved their hardiness by coming through a very hard winter in good shape, the storms apparently not bothering them a bit. Crossed with a good grade of Hereford cattle they make an animal better in many ways, especially for a cold climate, than the straight strain of either breed. They are thriftier, blockier and heavier at the same age than are our cattle, and at the prices that have in the past been secured for them on the market, they undoubtedly dress out very satisfactorily. The offspring produced by this cross are for the most part of about the same yellow color as are the Scotch cattle, though many are of a slate color. All have the shaggy hides of the Highland cattle."

The West Highland or Scotch Highland cattle came originally from the uplands of Western Scotland. Professor Plumb, of the Ohio Experiment Station, describes them as follows:

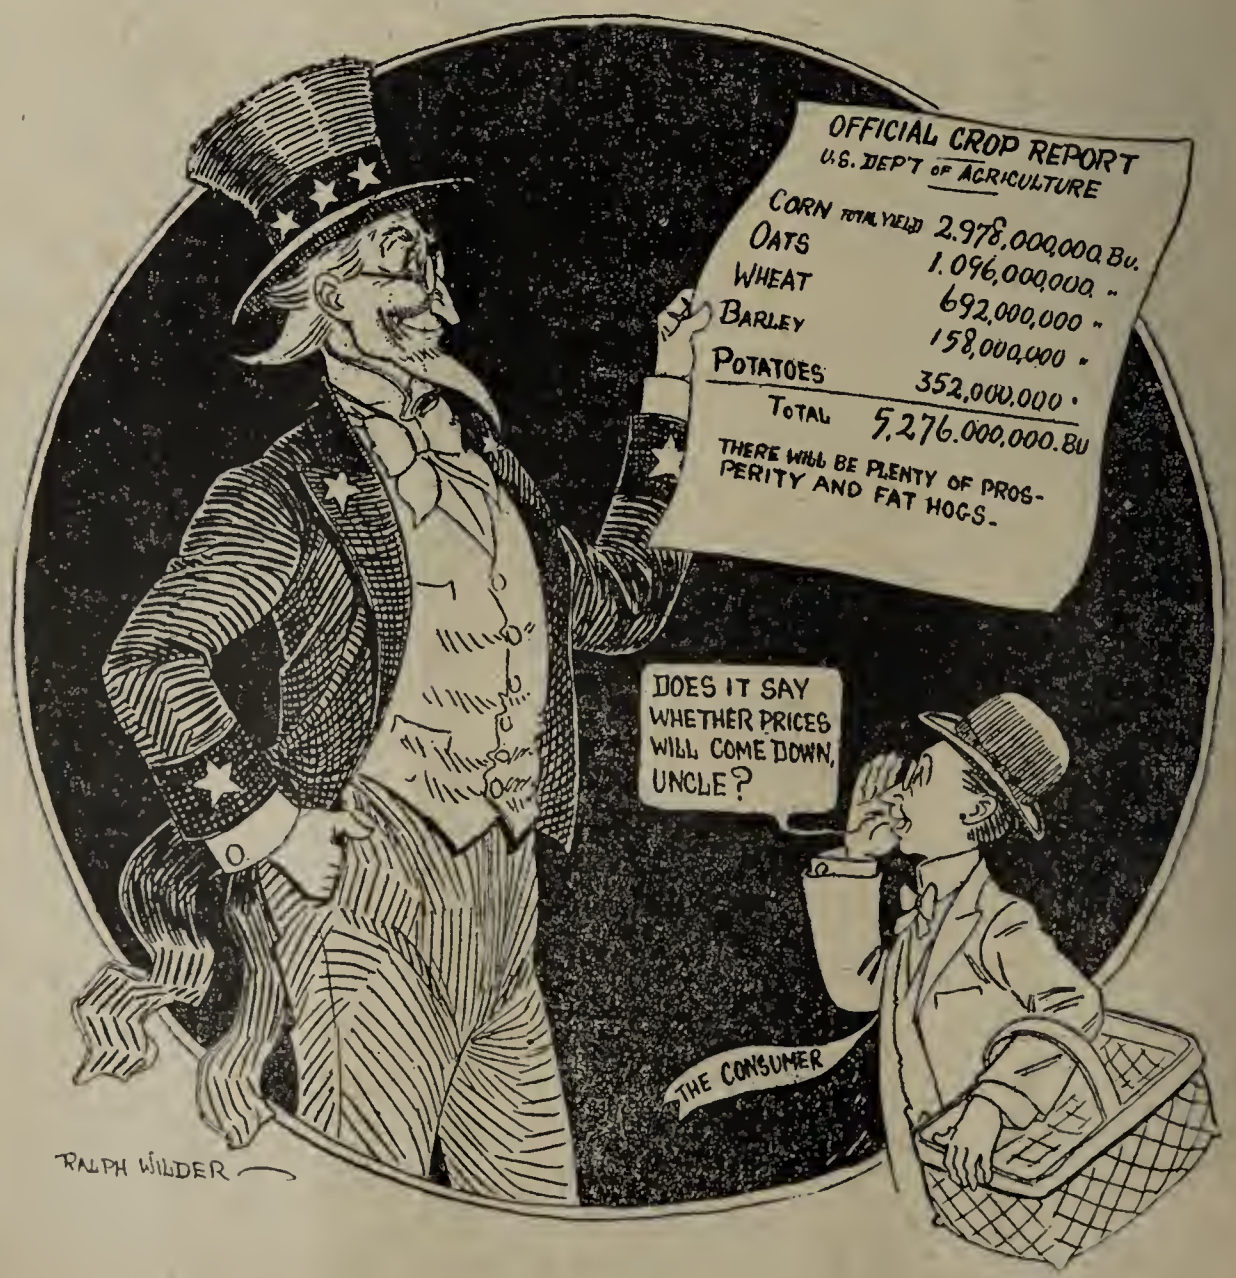
"This breed is very picturesque and distinct in character. The color is variable, but yellow predominates. The hair is very long and shaggy, often reaching six inches in length. The head is very hairy and is surmounted by very long, large horns with points wide apart. In size, the cattle are comparatively small, the cows averaging, perhaps, 900 lbs and males 1200 lbs. The breed as a beef producer is superlative so far as quality is concerned. The hardiness of the Highland cattle is remarkable and they seem capable of enduring the roughest climate. Cross-bred or grade Highland cattle are best suited to conditions where food is scarce and winters rough."

This experiment will be watched with considerable interest by northwestern ranchmen.

Prefer Strong Language to Logic.

It is interesting to observe the comments and the attitude of the daily press on the recent federal indictment of ten leading meat packing officials for alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. It was a foregone conclusion that the majority of newspaper critics would hail the indictment with unconcealed joy. Knowing nothing whatever of the conditions surrounding the meat industry, they have taken it for granted that the packers must be guilty of anything and everything charged against them. They either have paid no attention whatever to actual evidence presented bearing on the facts, or else they have belittled it by ridicule. Their motives need no lengthy explanation; it is popular to attack successful modern business enterprise, and for obvious reasons the meat industry has been a shining mark.

Therefore it is not surprising to hear one editor take it for granted that "the country would of course like to see the responsible men of the meat trust put in jail," or another declares that "sending corporate outlaws to prison will at last give the people their rights." Such comments represent the most ignorant type o fedltorial critic, who prefers strong language to logic.—National Provisioner.



—Chicago Record-Herald.

Cattle for the Farmer Feeder.

Regarding this timely subject, W. J. Tod, the famous raiser and feeder of cattle, of Maple Hill, Kan., writes in the Farmers' Mail and Breeze:

"It behooves the farmer to think twice before he starts feeding and if he does conclude to fulifeed, to be most careful as to variety of stock he handles. I think it may be said, as a general rule, that the best steer, if handled judiciously, seldom loses the feeder money, and the scrub steer seldom makes money.

"The great trouble the Kansas farmer has to contend with is the getting of really good cattle. He has stopped breeding them himself and he has to depend on others for the raw material. The range, from whence the majority of the cattle fed in Kansas originated, is at present in a state of transition, and from it, for many years to come, we can hardly look for the large numbers of well-bred, thrifty young steers we have so much depended upon. The question now is, Where are we to get our feeders? But, as Kipling says, 'That's another story,' and a long story, too long for this letter. The scrub is the fellow we must all avoid.

"The good feeder is not necessarily a thoroughbred, but his sire must be a thoroughbred, and his mother a fairly good cow of any of the beef breeds, and in the West these breeds are practically confined to the three, Hereford, Shorthorn and Angus. A cross-bred steer is often the best, but there must be no cross-breeding in the sire; he must be a thoroughbred.

"The following paragraph, published in Clay, Robinson's Live Stock Report, explains fully and well what is wanted in a good feeder.

" 'In speaking to the farmers of North Dakota from the "Better Farming" special train, Professor Richards said that many farmers continue to raise cattle for market for beef purposes from stock that does not possess any blood of the beef breeds, and consequently they lack what is known as the beef type. It is impossible to produce beef economically from cattle that possess any considerable amount of this blood. To produce an animal of the beef type it is necessary to use the beef breeds of cattle, such as the Shorthorns, Herefords, Aberdeen-Angus and Galloways. Cattle of such breeding put on flesh much more rapidly and of a better quality. A beef animal could be described in a general way as a low down, compact, blocky animal. He must have a short, blocky head, a wide breast, a deep wide chest, a broad back, a good spring of rib, heavy, full thighs. He must have a pliable mellow skin, for this quality indicates a good fleshing tendency.'

"The scrub is the narrow chested, narrow backed, sharp shouldered, flat ribbed long, narrow headed variety, usually with what is known as a bad color. Feeding the latter sort to any great extent generally spells ruin, and nearly always means a loss.

"The milk and butter industry in Kansas has been largely adopted by many of the smaller farmers. The cows most popular for this purpose, Jersey, Holstein, etc., are those not suitable to produce calves that would make good feeders. These calves should be fed for veal, but often are not, the cream is too precious They must weather through as best they can on separated milk, with a little meal. They are bred scrubs and the scrub in them is aggravated by starving rations in their youth. The farmer who feeds these has at best only his experience as a recompense. The buttermaker's interest is protected by a heavy tax on colored oleomargarine, consequently, under the present laws we are not likely to get any good feeding steers from the dairy farm in Kansas.

"Speaking of experience, I drove into the yard of a dairy farmer the other day and saw about 20 coming yearlings of the above scrub type. I asked the farmer what he meant to do with them, and his reply was, 'O, sell them to someone to feed.' To some one who needs experience The feeder who gets these will probably be heartily sick of them long before they are fat enough to bring even a medium price, and will send them on the market. Then he will go home cussing the packer and the commission man, and find he has little or nothing for his corn crop.

"A fact that came under my own observation last year may be worth relating, as an illustration of the difference between high-bred, first-class feeders and even moderately good cattle There were two bunches of 200 each, of the same age and fed within a few miles of one another, practically in the same manner and under the same conditions. The first of these, the good were sold from six to eight weeks earlier than the others, and brought on the open market $2.00 per cwt. more. Such high-class beef as they produce is always scarce and always wanted.

"It has often been a wonder to me why the Ayrshire cow has been ignored in this country. She has long been noted in Scotland as a milker, and a butter and cheese producer. A calf from her, sired by a pure-bred Shorthorn, makes a good, thrifty feeder."

High Prices Cut American Trade.

Former President Price Jones of the Liverpool Provision Trade Association, one of the oldest and best known provision dealers in England, was a visitor at Chicago.

"Our trade in American meats is not one-third as large as it used to be," he said. "High prices are responsible. We are getting all kinds of meats from other countries and at prices with which the American product cannot compete except for a very limited trade. We are getting Danish, Irish, Canadian, Siberian, Australian, French and Servian products, and a great quantity from China. The latter trade has come to stay. Their prices are right and their products satisfactory."

Mr. Jones is a brother of John Jones, the well-known English statistician, and president of the Commercial Telegram Bureau. In company with his son, Edgar Price Jones, chief engineer of the London and Northwestern Railroad, he is touring Canada and the United States and stopped over here to attend the meeting of the American Meat Packers' Association. Mr. Jones' firm at Liverpool was the agent there for Armour & Co. for a quarter of a century.

All's Well in Western Colorado.

Norman Ballantine, the well-known ranchman of Colorado, returned to Denver from his ranges in the western part of Colorado and reports everything looking fine over there. The feed is good and cattle are in fine condition to go into the winter. The weather continues fine and they have had no storms of any consequence as yet, which is a great boon to the cattlemen.

Of Interest to Shropshire Breeders.

L. E. Troeger, secretary of the American Shropshire Register Association, writes us to the following effect:

"Owing to the large amount of work we have had on hand this summer, caused by adding new equipment and making improvements in our system, in addition to recording a great many sheep we have found it impossible to move the office to Chicago as announced the forepart of the season, and will continue to receive mail addressed as usual to LaFayette, Ind. We have been able to reduce the time required for recording pedigrees very materially and were able to issue all work for the fall shows on time. Not a single exhibitor has been disappointed to the best of our knowledge. We have recently closed Volume 24 which contains 26,016 pedigrees which is more by a wide margin than is contained in any previous volume. We are now receiving pedigrees for Volume 25 and wish to call the attention of members to the fact that Dec. 1 is the time limit for recording 1909 lambs at fifty cents each. After that date the fee is twice as much. We also wish to announce that at the last meeting of the executive committee it was decided to refuse to credit members or officers or hold money in deposit for the same to be drawn on from time to time for work issued, and require remittance with all applications to cover same in full."

Folly of Burning Corn Stalks.

Forty reports secured from all parts of Illinois show that both northern and southern Illinois are practically exempt from the practice of burning cornstalks in the spring, while central Illinois from Henry county on the north to Macon on the south very generally follows this custom of destroying large quantities of nitrogen and organic matter, both of which are seriously needed in the soil. But it is very significant and promising that at least seven localities in La-Salle, Will, Ford, Vermilion, Menard and Sangamon counties reported that many or most of the farmers had abandoned the burning of stalks. These spring bonfires that light the corn fields across the whole state are inexcusable—almost arson—an advertisement that we do not know or do not believe the serious and needless loss to the soil in these fires—loss of essential elements that must be returned to the soil in full. Ample experience has shown that the stalks can be cut or disced and plowed under successfully, and on the average there is large benefit to the soil and crops.

A. J. Bixler, Cedar County, Ia., writes: "I am well pleased with the ewes."

MARKET TOPPING CATTLE AT $7.90 FROM INDIANA.

J. C. Clay, a representative farmer and feeder of North Salem, Ind., was the feeder and owner and Clay, Robinson & Co. the sellers of the above cattle, which brought the top price of $7.90 at Chicago on Monday, Oct. 17, with 41,140 head on sale. There were 20 head of short two year olds in the lot and they averaged 1,358 lbs. They were Herefords and Shorthorns, mostly Herefords. Mr. Clay started them on shock corn Dec. 1, averaging at that time 700 lbs. They received this ration until May 1, when they were put on a full feed of ear corn on grass. Monday of last week Clay, Robinson & Co. topped the market with Mr. Clay's four-year-old cattle of 1,816 lbs average at $7.85, and last year topped the market with his cattle. It is needless to add that Mr. Clay is a past master in the art of preparing cattle for the shambles.

Show Entries Close November 1.

Secretary & General Superintendent B. H. Heide of the International Live Stock Exposition, Chicago, announces that entries for the individual classes for the International close Nov. 1. Intending exhibitors are urged to file entries as soon as possible before the closing date.

Practical Plans for Dry Farmers.

"I consider the work being done by the men of the Dry farming Congress Association and by the meeting held in Spokane the greatest educational movement in existence towards the improvement of farming methods and conditions in the United States." This is the declaration of D. Clem Deaver, head of the homeseekers' bureau of the Burlington Railroad, who attended said meeting.

"The dry farming plans and efforts are in no way more important than the irrigation, except as they reach a much greater number of the farmers of this country," continued Mr. Deaver. "The plan that appealed to me the most as not only one of the most practical proposals put forward, but as particularly applying to lands in Nebraska and the Middle West, was the one relating to irrigation by pumping. This plan shows how a dry farmer can, by installing a small engine, pump water onto from five to ten acres and run it in conjunction with the larger operations of a 320-acre farm and always have something for home use and for experiments in special cultivation and thus keep up with the times and learn the products easiest raised and the most profitable on his land."

1910 American Royal Live Stock Show.

AMERICAN ROYAL FEATURES.

Of the 43 carload lot entries of cattle. Clay, Robinson & Co. handled 24 cars.

Cattle consigned to Clay, Robinson & Co. took 33 prizes out of a total of 50.

The Grand Champion load of fat cattle were from the famous Matador Land and Cattle Co.'s herd of Herefords in Texas. were fed by Fowler & Tod of Maple Hill, Kan., and were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co.

The Matador Land and Cattle Co. of Trinidad, Colo., Murdo Mackenzie manager, bred and exhibited the Grand Champion load of feeder cattle and Clay, Robinson & Co. handled them.

The American Royal Live Stock Show was held at Kansas City last week. It was a history making exposition and marks one of the really great chapters in the record of the progress that is made in the breeding and feeding world. The response made by breeders and feeders to the Royal invitation this year was an admirable one. They came from all sections of the United States in the hope that their entries might at least wear some of the purple ribbons in this great show. They also came for another purpose, to submit their products for the inspection of those thousands of progressive farmers and stockmen of the great Southwest, who were daily assembled in the big amphitheater and at the stables. The expression of their approval was found in the facts of the many record sales of breeding animals at the Royal of 1910. Breeders were supported by liberal patronage from their countrymen, and it is a remarkable fact that many breeding animals were sold for export to the Hawaiian islands, in the Pacific. The fame of the Royal has spread to every civilized country on the globe, and the followers of pedigreed live stock from all nations have learned that they find in the competition there the very best animals that can be found in the known world. They are willing, therefore, to disregard distance and come to the Royal for the purpose of obtaining some of our breeding animals.

Great Showing by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Of the 44 loads in the carlot division, against 48 one year ago, 25 were decorated with the well-known and popular blue and white banner showing the stock was in care of Clay, Robinson & Co. The blue and white banner was the lucky one, too, as entries under it carried off 36 prizes out of a total of 50 for which there were contestants. Included in this sweep were the Grand Championships of both fat and feeder contents.

Range Cattle Show Improvement.

During the past year nature has not favored the range states of the country. Jupiter Pluvius has not paid them the visits they should have had, and as a result range conditions have not been satisfactory until recently. But if one were not aware of this the range cattle exhibits of the Royal would not serve to bring about a realization of the fact.

Judges, commission men, spectators, and everybody else who knows anything about the range cattle department of the Royal agreed that the quality of the exhibits as a whole was better than those of last year. This is in line with the trend of breeding operations on the ranges of the country in recent years. That the quality was better this year is certainly proof that the rangemen have not been discouraged by the dry spell which a majority of them suffered from.

Improvement has been the keynote of the aims of all range cattle producers in recent years. The feeders of the range cattle appreciate this and show it by the passing of prejudice against range cattle when stocking up their feed lots. Growers of pure-bred bulls believe it because of the kind of sires the range men have bought, and their knowledge of the wonders that those sires are capable of accomplishing. Lastly, the improvement is plainly discernable to stock yards interests who see the cattle year after year at the yards and in the pens where the range men put up their best for prizes during Royal week.

Fat Stock at Auction.

In the auction sale of fat steers in the carlot division 15 steers constituted an exhibit. In the sale the winners of the first prize and championship, the steers owned by the Matador Land and Cattle Co. of Trinidad, Colo., Murdo McKenzie, manager, were the first brought to the auction ring. They averaged 1,284 lbs, and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $8.15.

The steers shown by C. L. Browning of Laredo, Mo., came next. This exhibit won second prize and sold for $8.60, averaging 1,420 lbs.

Two bunches of steers shown by A. R. McGregor of Morrowville, Mo., sold at $8.55 and $8.35 respectively. The first bunch averaged 1,548 lbs and the other 1,494 lbs.

J. A. McClanahan of Smithville, Mo., who exhibited a carload of senior yearling Panhandle steers, which were bought at Kansas City last October, made a good showing in feeding, took third prize and sold for $8.50 on the open market. When taken out last October they averaged 322 lbs and last week they averaged 948 lbs.

Steers exhibited by J. B. Woods of Smithville, Mo., shortfed yearlings, sold for $7.50. There were 30 in the exhibit and averaged 955 lbs.

The R. P. Low spayed heifers of 826 lbs average from Tarkio, Mo., at $7.25 were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co., and were fed Champion Molasses Feed. Mr. Low, who is one of the best cattle feeders in the corn belt, is manager of the firm that manufactures the above feed, which is so popular with cattle feeders.

There were but two breeds represented in the fat cattle class, Herefords and Angus. The Herefords were all sold, but the Angus were held, and will be taken back to the country to be finished for Christmas beef.

Average of Pure-Bred Sales.

Last week's sales of pure-bred cattle in connection with the American Royal at Kansas City were satisfactory. No sensational prices were paid. Bidding was active throughout, and while some breeders thought higher prices would have been had a month later when the corn crop is definitely known, they were entirely satisfied with the firm tone that pervaded trading and the settled basis of values on which trade rests.

The average prices received by each of the four breeds are here shown:

	Bulls.	Cows.	General.
Herefords	$164.25	$166.28	$166.45
Shorthorns	195.62	177.33	181.18
Angus	114.32	111.00	111.83
Galloways	102.88	76.82	88.30

Iowa State College Students Win.

The student stock judging team from the Animal Husbandry Department, Iowa State College, added another victory to its long list at the recent American Royal Live Stock Show, Kansas City. The Iowa team composed of E. L. Quaife, Iona, Ia.; E. M. Cassady, Whiting, Ia.; F. R. Long, Marne, Ia.; R. S. Shearer, Marshalltown, Ia.; C. F. Gobble, Fairfield, Ia., and Rex Beresford, Vinton, Ia., by defeating the teams from the leading colleges of the Central West brought to Ames the magnificent $500 silver trophy offered by the American Royal Show to the college whose student judging team did most proficient work in judging horses, cattle, sheep and swine. The Iowa team was trained by Professor W. J. Kennedy.

T. E. Young, Clinton county, Ind., writes: "Having bought a load of black heifers through you in August, and being well pleased, I write asking you to buy me a load of choice Hereford heifers. Take your time in buying these cattle; that is if you think there is a chance of buying cheaper in a week or two. I think I will ship the load of black heifers back to you in thirty or sixty days. They are doing fine."

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

A. C. Botsford, Delta county, Colo., had a four-car shipment of cattle at Denver.

Annett & Edwards, Ada county, Idaho, were the shippers and we the sellers of the 827 head of 56-lb feeding lambs which topped the Chicago market at $6.50 on Oct. 10.

Henry Miller, Laramie county, Wyo., marketed a car of cattle through our Denver house and E. E. Culver, Park county, Colo., sold a train of mixed cattle through them.

Our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle for S. W. Daughenbaugh, for years a prominent ranchman of Custer county, S. D., and also his son, A. W. Daughenbaugh.

Last week our Denver house handled a train of cattle for Hulett Bros., the well-known Rio Blanco county, Colo., rangemen at prices which were highly satisfactory all around.

On Oct. 5 our South Omaha house handled sixteen cars of cattle for Horne Bros., Carbon county, Wyo., who for several years have been extensively engaged in the cattle business.

Alex. McBlane, Alberta, Canada, writes: "We have had a very dry season, but things are not very bad. Hay is rather scarce and high, yet there will be enough for local needs."

Ed. Huckins, Schuyler county, Mo., had a load of sheep and lambs on the East St. Louis market Oct. 10, included in which were 90-lb yearlings that our house sold at the top price of $5.50.

E. Forbes & Son represented Foster county, N. D., on the Oct. 11 market at Chicago with 536 wethers of 115 lbs average. They were sold by us at $4.30, top of the market that week.

Holt County, Mo., was represented on the South St. Joseph hog market Oct. 4 with 97 head of 177 lbs average. They were marketed by C. E. Noland and sold by our house at the top price of $8.75.

John Johnson, St. Francois county, Mo., was represented on the East St. Louis market Oct. 11 with deck of sheep and lambs and our house sold the sheep at the top price of $4.50, averaging 90 lbs.

Our house topped South St. Joseph hog market Oct. 7 by selling a 159-lb load for A. J. Williamson, Gentry county, Mo., at $8.95. This was the fourth day in succession that they have topped the hog market.

It was Oct. 11 that our Chicago house secured $6.90 for 1,653 lambs of 67 lbs average, being the top for Western rangers that day. They were sent in by the Highland L. S. & L. Co., Ada county, Idaho.

Recently the Yampa Live Stock and Land Co., heavily engaged in raising fine cattle in Routt county, Colo., were on the Denver market with heavy shipments which were disposed of by our house at top prices.

The Routt Live Stock Co., Routt County, Colo., had a big string of sheep and lambs on the Chicago market Oct. 4, same being handled by us. Included were 1,597 lambs of 65 lbs average which brought the top price of $7.00.

Our South St. Joseph house topped the Oct. 6 hog market at $8.90 with 31 head, averaging 179 lbs. shipped by Albert Kunz, Andrew county, Mo., and also with 41 of 172 lbs average, marketed by W. H. Lewis, Harlan county, Neb.

G. W. Penn, E. P. Baker, Mr. Batemen of Penn & Baker, and Wyoming Ranching Co., had on the South Omaha market seven cars of cattle which our house sold at satisfactory figures. The shipment was made from Laramie county, Wyo.

George A. Keeline, one of the most extensive cattle and sheepmen of the West, writes concerning our sale of 35 double deck carloads of sheep and lambs for him last week: "I am very well pleased with the prices you obtained for the sheep and lambs."

Among the prominent dealers in sheep who had shipments to our East St. Louis house were: Edgar Wiley, Buchanan county, Mo.; Jenkins & Bodenheimer, Christian county, Mo.; Clement & Stidel, Greene county, Ill.; R. W. Kindcaid, Benton county, Mo.

Chouteau county, Mont., was represented on the Chicago sheep market Oct. 12 with a big string of sheep and lambs marketed by A. Crossen. We handled the shipment, included in which were 142 head of 72-lb feeding ewes which brought the top price of $3.25.

The highest price for hogs at East St. Louis on Oct. 10 was $9.05. Our house obtained this figure for 100 head of 176 lbs average, belonging to Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo., and for 81 head averaging 172 lbs, marketed by H. P. Schmidt, Massac county, Ill.

Both the fat and feeder western range lamb market was topped at Chicago on Oct. 7 by us with the E. Laird & Son offerings from Fremont county, Idaho. The lambs for slaughter, numbering 1302 and averaging 67 lbs, made $6.90 and the feeders, 350 of 60 lbs, $6.50.

Summit for western range lambs at Chicago on Oct. 12 was $6.90. We sold two strings from Idaho at the price, the sales following: For Hunt Bros., Fremont county, 1,256 head of 70 lbs average, and for the Highland L. & L. S. Co., of Ada county 1,457 head, averaging 67 lbs.

M. W. O'Hara, representative farmer and feeder of Dixon County, Neb., marketed 14 yearling grade Hereford heifers and steers mixed, including 9 heifers, at Chicago on Oct. 5. The lot averaged 865 lbs and were sold by us at $7.50, being the top for this class of stock, considering the number of heifers included.

E. L. Larence, Laclede county, Mo., marketed a load of sheep and lambs at East St. Louis on Oct. 12, the same being handled by our house. Included were 82 lambs of 64 lbs average at $6.50, highest Southwestern lambs made that day, and 15 sheep of 92 lbs average at $4.25, top of the sheep market.

H. F. Mortag, Cascade county, Mont., had a good sized string of western range cattle on the Chicago market Oct. 13 which were handled by us. Included were 35 head of beef steers, averaging 1,343 lbs, which brought the top price of $6.00 and 21 cows of 1,112 lbs average which made the top price of $5.00 for cows.

The top for heavy hogs at Chicago on Oct. 7 was $8.90. The offerings which made this price numbered 58 head, averaged 293 lbs, were marketed by T. M. Yates of Pike county, Ill., and sold by us. We also obtained the top for extreme big weights by landing 52 head of 360 lbs average at $8.75 for Wm. Adcock, Galesburg, Ill.

A. Klaasens, Wabasha County, Minn., on Oct. 5 marketed at Chicago 111 lambs of 80 lbs average. We sold them at $6.90, being 15c per cwt higher than any other load of native lambs brought. We also sold for M. L. Hussey, Noble County, Ind., 119 native lambs, averaging 78 lbs, at the next highest price for a load, which was $6.75.

J. Burg, progressive feeder and farmer of Johnson County, Ia., was at Chicago on Wednesday of last week with four loads of mixed grass cattle and we landed the whole of them at very pleasing prices. Mr. Burg said that they were assured of a big crop of corn in his part of the state and that there was no fear of a visit from Jack Frost.

It was Oct. 6 that our house at East St. Louis topped the hog market with three different lots. The sales follow: For R. M. Woodruff, Cooper county, Mo., 90 head of 182 lbs average; Sims & Smith of the same place, 81 of 166 lbs average; E. A. Jordan, Shelby county, Mo., 93, averaging 132 lbs, being very light to make the price at the time.

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following prominent dealers in cattle: F. W. Kroner, Phelps county, Mo.; H. L. Holiman, Montgomery county, Miss.; V. S. Hawker, Shelby county, Mo.; R. F. Hulsey, Okmulgee county, Okla.; Barby Bros., Cooper county, Mo.; Hanson & Bros., Pickens county, Ala.; L. M. Boyd, Montgomery county, Miss.

H. W. Langdon, Williams County, N. D., had a string of sheep and lambs on the Chicago market Oct. 5. We handled the entire shipment. Included were 796 wethers of 112 lbs average at $4.25 and 150 ewes, averaging 87 lbs, at $3.75, these prices being the top for the respective classes. On the same day we sold for D. Nelson of Rosebud County, Mont., 2,980 head of 102-lb feeding wethers at the top price of $4.00.

The following prominent feeders or shippers had hogs to our East St. Louis house: E. P. Harned, Cooper county, Mo.; R. I. Bilby, Nodaway county, Mo.; J. G. AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Cherry county, Neb., shipments to South Omaha included those from H. C. Hudson, F. Hobbs, H. B. Clapp and J. R. Thompson.

Top for hogs at Kansas City on Oct. 4 was $8.75, secured by our house for a shipment from F. A. Finley, Johnson county, Kan.

W. E. Hammans, one of our good customers from Larimer county, Colo., was on the Denver market with a two-car shipment of cattle.

Recently our Denver house sold for the Yampa Live Stock and Land Co., extensive cattle dealers of Routt County, Colo., 18 cars of cattle.

Engleking Bros., ranching in Converse county, Wyo., had two cars of cows at South Omaha which our house sold to their entire satisfaction.

Fred J. McDermot, Laramie County, Wyo., and I. C. Miller, Carbon County, Wyo., sold cattle through our Denver house at pleasing prices.

Top for hogs at Kansas City on Oct. 6 was $8.90, obtained by our house for I. G. Himes, Dade county, Mo., who sent in 82 head, averaging 186 lbs

A six-car shipment of cattle was sold by our Denver house for Alfred Butters, executor of the Wilson estate, shipped from Mesa county, Colo.

Our firm topped the hog market at South St. Joseph on Oct. 13 with a load from C. E. Noland, Holt county, Mo., averaging 157 lbs and selling at $9.00.

Henry T. Gray, a valued customer of our South Omaha house, was represented on that market Oct. 3 with a shipment of cattle from Converse county, Wyo.

Early this week A. H. Banks, Knox county, Neb., had 40 head of 1,340-lb beef steers on the Sioux City market and our house landed them at the top price of $6.60.

At Denver early this week the limit for cows was $4.25. Our house got this price for 42 head of 981 lbs average, they belonging to A. C. Botsford, Delta county, Colo.

The 65 head of 262-lb hogs which made the top price of $8.85 for their weight at Chicago on Oct 5, were marketed by W. Kaster, Carroll County, Ia., and handled by us.

J. B. Sanders of Benton county, Iowa, was the owner and we the sellers of the 104 lambs of 82 lbs average which sold at the top price of $7.00 at Chicago on Oct. 12.

The Ash Sheep Co. of Yellowstone county, Mont., marketed through our Chicago house on Oct. 13 a string of 337 feeding wethers, averaging 92 lbs, at the top price of $4.00.

Hulett Bros., Rio Blanco County, Colo., among our most valued customers, were on the Denver market with a 16-car shipment of steers, which were handled satisfactorily by our house all around.

The limit for feeder lambs at Chicago on Oct. 17 was $6.50. We sold at this price for C. W. Daniels, Yellowstone county, Mont., 524 head of 60 lbs average and for Bishop & Son, Park county, Mont., 260 head, averaging 53 lbs.

Geo. Keeline & Sons, famous Wyoming range cattle and sheepmen, who reside in Pottawattamie county, Ia., had a big string of their feeding lambs on the Chicago market Oct. 12 and as usual met high favor with the buyers. We handled the shipment and the sales included 1,403 head of 57 lbs average at the top price of $6.60.

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following prominent dealers in cattle: H. L. Holiman and J. B. Collins, Montgomery county, Miss.; J. W. Orr, Morgan county, Ala.; W. C. Brown, Butler county, Kas.; Williss Bros., McPherson county, Mo.; S. F. Keltner, Williamson county, Ill.; R. W. Lay, Johnson county, Ill.; F. P. Chamness, Williamson county, Ill.; Joe Mason, Randolph county, Mo.; T. D. Draffen, Cooper county, Mo.; J. C. West, Crawford county, Mo.; J. B. Spiva & Co., Stoddard county, Mo.; J. G. Cannon & Son, Lonoke county, Ark.; Ragsadale & Co., Randolph county, Mo.; W. Isgrig, Crawford county, Mo.; Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo.; E. P. Harned, Cooper county, Mo.

Important To Readers.

Much to our regret, we have found it impossible to regularly mail each issue of the Report to every name on our general mailing list. Paid subscribers, of course, receive every issue promptly and regularly, but those who are getting the paper "complimentary" necessarily frequently miss copies. This is because of the fact that our general mailing list has grown so large that it would be out of the question for any business concern, however large, to stand the enormous postage expense of covering it all every week. This is particularly true during the western range cattle and sheep shipping season when our customers in that part of the country are vitally interested and in order to keep them posted we must mail thousands of extra copies. By "rotating" the circulation, that is, sending to part of our list one week and another part another week, we are able to cover the entire list, but, as stated, not with every copy.

In years past, when our list was smaller, we cheerfully undertook to send the Report absolutely free to any feeder or shipper who made request for it. Probably we have no one but ourselves to blame for the present enormous demand for the Report, in that we have apparently succeeded in producing a paper that stockmen regard as practically indispensable to them. This standard of quality will not only be maintained, but our constant ambition is toward improvement.

Such of our readers as are not paid subscribers, and who feel that they want every copy without break or interruption, are respectfully invited to make it possible for us to comply, by enrolling as paid subscribers, for which purpose a coupon appears below. This is not in any sense compulsory, and we shall continue as in the past to do the best we can in the way of complimentary distribution. The problem simmers down to whether or not it is worth 50c per year for you to receive each issue of the Report promptly and regularly, or whether an occasional complimentary copy will keep you sufficiently in touch with the market situation.

The foregoing refers to the Live Stock Report only, and has no reference whatever to our market letters or circulars, which are the most complete issued by any live stock commission firm. No charge in any shape or form is made for said market circulars, which are cheerfully sent to any prospective shipper upon request to Clay, Robinson & Co., mentioning the class of stock and stating about when same will be shipped.

Use this Coupon for enrolling as a Regular Paid Subscriber to the Live Stock Report.

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

4 years ago	2.90	6.25	4.15	5.00	3.35	4.00

The Thursday total was 3,000. There was a good demand for beef steers and the market was active at 10c higher prices. Best offered brought $6.00 and bulk $5.00@5.40. A steady trade in she stock and a firm one in feeders.

About 500 arrived Friday. Beef steers met ready sale at prices steady to strong. Twenty head of choice 1,342-lb North Dakotas sold on shipping account up to $6.75. No quotable change in the market for either she stock or feeders.

Receipts for the week were 31,000, largest of the season, and compared with 25,000 the previous week and 26,500 corresponding week last year. Supply for the season amounted to 227,300, against 211,700 and 221,700 corresponding periods of one and two years ago respectively. Beef steers showed a steady to 10c lower basis with the close of the previous week, those of value under $5.25 being steady. Top for the week was $6.90 and sales were largely at $5.00@6.00. She stock went steady for the week, most trading at $4.00@5.00 and top heifers at $5.50. Feeders advanced 10@25c over the finish of the previous week, good fleshy steers displaying most gain. Bulk made $4.75@5.35.

This week started out with 11,000 rangers, which, along with a big run and sharply lower market for natives, enabled buyers to have things pretty much their own way. It was a dull affair from start to finish. Beef steers were generally 10@15c lower, with cases even more. Prime Wyomings, numbering 16 head and averaging 1,540 lbs, reached $7.00, and others made $6.00@6.75, with most at $5.00@5.75. Bulk of she stock showed 10@15c decline, with some early sales about steady and later ones 20c lower. The better kinds proved hardest sale. Feeders met good demand at steady prices.

Supply Tuesday was 3,000. Buyers showed lively interest in the good fat beef steers and readily paid prices strong to a shade higher for these kinds, and other grades sold steady. Sales above $5.50 were scant, due to a drop in the quality of arrivals. A steady market for she stock, and feeders made a firm range.

Marketing Wednesday 5,000. An active trade in beef steers at mostly 10c higher prices. She stock strong to 10c higher, with top at $5.75 for range cows, a record one and OBTAINED BY US for 22 Herefords of 1,110 lbs average from the Catlin range in Montana. Feeders steady sale.

Take no chances of a storm overtaking you. So keep all cattle intended for the market this season coming as fast as possible.

AUSTIN BROTHERS ASSOCIATION

MARK AUSTIN PRESIDENT
THOS H AUSTIN, MANAGER
GEO A. SMITH, SECY & TREAS

215 SHARON BUILDING

SALT LAKE CITY, UTAH,

Oct. 3, 1910.

Clay Robinson & Co.,

Union Stock Yards,

Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

We are just in receipt of the full account of sales of our 27 cars of sheep which you handled, and we desire to thank you very much for the effort you made in getting us top prices. We know that you did your very best and will say that as soon as we can get cars, we will have more shipments going to either Omaha, Chicago or Kansas City, and will let you know about the time they reach either point.

Heber Land & Livestock Company (of which I am secretary) will also have in the neighbourhood of 20,000 lambs to be shipped. Some of them should already have gone, but we have been unable to get cars. Just as soon as we can get enough to make shipment will forward them on.

Yours truly,

Geo A. Smith

Secretary.

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Two new records were hung up in the sheep department last week. Monday's run of 70,373 was a banner run for one day by 4,213, and the week's total at 227,748 proved 9,403 more than ever received before in one week. The market held remarkably good tone under the enormous supplies. Demand from both packers and feeders was pleasingly broad, which prevented demoralization in the trade. As compared with the close of the previous week, good to choice fat grades held fully steady, but other kinds lost 10@15c. Choice feeding lambs showed no quotable change, but the plainer classes, as well as yearlings and sheep, declined 10@15c. Top lambs for the week went at $7.00, HANDLED BY US, and bulk sales at $6.75@6.95. Yearlings sold largely at $5.25@5.50. Prime big weight wethers reached $4.35 and most sales at $4.10@4.25. Bulk ewes landed at $3.75@4.00. Trading in feeders was largely at $6.00@6.50 for lambs, $5.00@5.25 for yearlings, $3.75@4.00 for wethers and $2.50@3.00 for ewes. Most yearling breeding ewes brought $5.25@5.50, with those of older age largely at $4.25@4.75.

The run at the start of this week was 63,743. Both fat and feeding grades of lambs held steady, we obtaining the top price of $6.85 and $6.50 respectively. Bulk of sheep made a steady range, we selling the top wethers at $4.25.

Receipts Tuesday 40,000. There was a good demand for both fat and feeding classes and prices ruled fully steady, the outlet through feeder channels being surprisingly broad. The supply of fat range lambs is fast falling off, best offered going at $6.75 and some Idahos with a kill to them went back to the country at a cost of $6.70. Most of the sheep sold at $3.75@4.00, there being quite a drop in the quality as compared with the previous day.

Run Wednesday 55,000. A fairly active trade in both fat and feeder classes at prices steady to strong. Best lambs offered went at $6.75 and top wethers at $4.25.

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

Below will be found bulk sales of feeder sheep, yearlings and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk Sheep.		Bulk Yearlings.		Bulk Lambs.
This week	$2.75@4.00		$5.00@5.25		$6.00@6.50
Last week	2.50	4.00	5.00	5.25	6.00	6.50

Two years ago	2.75	4.00	4.00	4.25	5.05	5.25

There was no abatement in the hungry demand for feeder sheep and lambs this week. Supplies were reduced, an indication that the record-breaking movement from the western ranges is tapering off. However, there will be liberal supplies from there for the next few weeks. Good to choice offerings sold fully steady with the close of last week, but the plainer classes showed 10@15c loss.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week	$4.65@7.80	$5.60@7.35
Previous week	4.75 8.00	5.75 7.35
Year ago	4.00 9.00	5.35 7.65
Two years ago	3.50 7.60	4.75 6.85

Last week closed with prices for good to choice offerings 10@20c lower than the previous week's finish, while the common and medium grades showed a steady range. Top for the week was $8.00, paid for prime heavy offerings, and fancy yearlings reached $7.90. The general demand was partial to the weighty and yearling offerings all week. The week's total included a light number of strictly choice heavy beeves, but there was a liberal run of good to choice yearlings. Notwithstanding this fact the heavy grades showed $1.00 decline from one year ago, while the difference in price for yearlings was 75c. This difference would indicate that there is a strong demand for the best light beef cuts, although the supply of choice heavy beeves is not large enough to admit of much discrimination where buyers need the best quality beef. Receipts for the week totaled 73,919, included in which were 31,000 westerns. The total at the six leading western markets was 257,600, compared with 229,100 the previous week.

This week started out with a run of 41,140, of which 11,000 were rangers. This heavy liquidation, along with very hot weather, proved the undoing of the market. Buyers very leisurely looked over the offerings and grew more indifferent as the session progressed. A few of the best grades sold steady on the first round or so, but the close was fully 10c lower. All other offerings met with 10@25c decline, the in-between grades showing most loss. Common and medium grassers and warmed-up steers made up a heavy proportion of the arrivals. Top steers went at $7.90, obtained by us for 20 head of short two-year-old Herefords and Shorthorns of 1,358 lbs average, being marketed by J. C. Clay, North Salem, Ind. Bulk of selling was at $5.60@7.35.

The Tuesday run was 8,000, included in which were 3,000 westerns. There were only a few lots of fresh native steers offered. This was fortunate, as the outlet was very narrow. It was a dull and weak deal from the outset. Top was $7.50, paid for 17 head of 1,465 lbs average.

The Wednesday supply was 22,000. Most trading in the early and middle hours of the session was on a steady basis, but late arrivals did not meet with as good demand and prices were weaker. The top for heavy beeves was $7.80, paid for 43 head of 1,484 and 1,601 lbs average. WE OBTAINED THE TOP PRICE FOR YEARLINGS when we sold 49 head, including 15 heifers, of 904 lbs average at $7.55, and we also obtained $7.50 for 16 head, including 12 heifers, averaging 865 lbs, these belonging to Miller Bros. of Olds, Ia.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

At the close of last week cows and heifers were generally 10@20c lower than the finish of the previous week. Supplies were liberal and buyers showed their preference for western rangers. There was quite a number of offerings from the dairy districts and packers discriminated against these. Choice yearling heifers were in scant numbers and good demand. Top for the week was $6.80, paid for extra choice heifers, but there were few cows that went above $5.00. Bulls advanced 10@20c for the week. Calves lost 25c from the previous week's close. Top for the week $10.25, as high as paid this season.

At the start of this week there was a price break of mostly 10@20c for cows and heifers, the market being the lowest in many weeks. Barring the strictly good corn-fed grades, there was a loss of 30@50c from ten days ago. A big run of range stock helped to make things bad in the native trade. Bulls sold 10@15c lower. Calves lost 25@50c. The Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was dull and weak and where there was any marked change in prices it was toward a lower basis. There was a fresh decline of 10@15c for bulls. Opening 25@50c higher for calves, the later market was minus the advance. Practical top was $10 for assorted offerings.

The Wednesday market for cows and heifers was strong to 10c higher. Bulls steady to 10c lower. Calves were unchanged.

Stockers and Feeders.

Top price and bulk sales of stockers and feeders this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Top Feeders.	Bulk Feeders.	Bulk Stockers.
This week	$5.75	$4.65@5.45	$3.65@4.50
Previous week	6.00	4.75 5.50	3.75 4.50
Year ago	5.40	4.25 5.10	3.50 4.25
Two years ago	4.75	3.75 4.35	2.85 3.75

Last week the demand was fully equal to the liberal receipts. Indiana, Ohio and Pennsylvania bought liberally of the light steers and Illinois purchased heavily of the feeders. At the close of the week prices showed 15@25c advance over the previous week's finish, with the good weight steers selling close up to the best time of the season. Stock heifers declined 25c for the week, the supply exceeding the demand.

This week opened with a very heavy run of stockers and feeders. Yard dealers were indifferent bidders and the attendance of outsiders was reduced. Result was a dull trade at prices 10@20c lower. On Tuesday the bulk of the offerings went at 10c decline, with the market very slow.

Good quality offerings sold steady on Wednesday, but it was a weak to 10c lower deal in the common and medium kinds.

Good to choice feeders	$4 75 @	5 50

At the close of last week most of the packing and heavy hogs sold in about the same notch as the finish of the previous week, but the light weights displayed 25@30c gain. The top last Saturday was $9.35, and bulk of trading was at $8.10@9.25 for heavy packing to choice light shipping. The week's run was 83,730, against 85,998 the previous week.

At the start of this week receipts were 23,880. Starting out generally 5c lower, the market closed 10@15c higher. A $9.50 top was made and trading in shipping grades was mostly at $8.80@9.35, with bulk packers at $8.30@8.65.

Marketing Tuesday 15,000. All offerings suitable for shipping sold 10@15c higher, while the packing grades went strong to 5c higher. However, the market was very uneven and the close was weak.

Receipts of hogs Wednesday 25,000. General market was 15@25c lower. WE TOPPED THE MARKET WITH TWO LOADS of fancy light weights at $9.60, but the limit late was $9.30. Most packing grades and butchers sold at $8.15@8.90. Stags declined 50c, with bulk at $9.00@9.40.

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Last week's trade in native sheep and lambs closed steady with the finish of the previous week on all offerings with the exception of common and medium sheep, these showing 10@15c loss. Top lambs for the week made $7.25 and bulk $6.25@6.85, with best ewes at $4.50and most at $3.75@4.25.

At the start of this week there was a more liberal proportion of natives. Opening steady, the lamb market closed 10@15c lower, while sheep were generally steady. A fancy lot of lambs reached $7.10 at the start and there was a good showing at $6.50@7.00. Best ewes brought $4.25 and most desirable kinds sold around $4.00.

On Tuesday the demand was equal to the occasion and steady prices prevailed for both sheep and lambs, as compared with the previous day's close. The limit for lambs was $7.00 and sales were largely at $6.25@6.75. Best ewes landed at $4.25 and $3.75@4.00 gathered in most of them.

Wednesday's market was steady to strong, with demand very good. Lambs reached $7.00 and ewes $4.25.

East St. Louis Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

National Stock Yards, Ill., Oct. 18—Comparatively light receipts so far this week has held this market about steady, with strength in spots. Beef classes were well represented, but not in excess of the demand. Top was $7.15 for some 1,460 lbs average. Bulk receipts fair to good lots selling at $6.10@7.10. A string of western grazed Mexican steers made $3.80. There was a scarcity of fat cows and heifers, also mixed lots. Stockers and feeders were in good demand at prices steady to stronger. Southern cattle receipts fair and market steady, although slow. A good class of 1000-lb steers sold at $5.10 and some plain sorts at $4.70, with some plain steers around 900 lbs at $4.40.

A fairly good hog market so far this week, although it closed a little lower than the opening Tuesday. Top $9.45, with bulk at $9.10@9.35.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW, AND OUTSIDE MARKETS BY WIRE

There was a fairly good supply of sheep and lambs here, bulk running to lambs. At the opening it was generally a steady deal, but as the market progressed it began to weaken and soon showed a decline of 10@15c. Top lambs $7.05 There were a few heavy wethers that sold for $4.50, but the bulk of the sheep sold around $4.25.

RECORD PRICE FOR WESTERN RANGE COWS.

The Catlin Land and Live Stock Co. of White Sulphur Springs, Mont., among the most famous breeders of Hereford cattle in the West, were represented on the Chicago market Oct. 19 with 20 loads of open cows from their herd. They were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co., who obtained the record price of $5.75 for 222 head of 1,110 lbs average, the others going mostly at $5.25 to $5.40.

Remember The International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago on Nov. 26 to Dec. 3, 1910.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

I. H. Saylor, Phillips county, Colo., favored our Denver house with two cars of cattle.

Jos. Allen, Laramie county, Wyo., marketed two cars of cattle through our Denver house.

E. E. Culver, Jefferson County, Colo., a good friend of our firm, marketed cattle at Denver.

Milton Clark, Redwillow county, Neb., a heavy shipper, was on the Denver market with a car of hogs.

On Oct. 13 our Chicago house sold at the top price of $7.00 a lot of 59 native lambs of 79 lbs average.

Our Denver house had the pleasure of handling a shipment of cattle for Chapman Bros., Carbon county, Wyo.

R. S. Van Tassell, the well-known cattleman of Laramie county, Wyo., marketed a car of cattle at Denver.

Geo. F. Crowe, El Paso county, Colo., one of our good friends, was on the Denver market with a car of cattle.

Weltner Bros., extensive stockmen of Sheridan county, Wyo., had a train of sheep on the South Omaha market.

C. P. Sheehan and Ed. McKenney, both of Fremont county, Wyo., were at South Omaha with a train of cattle.

A. T. Davis, prominent among ranchmen in Grant county, Neb., was at South Omaha with a shipment of cattle.

W. C. Brewster and M. H. Gouldy, Routt County, Colo., marketed cattle through our Denver house at the top of the market.

Hugh Stewart, F. E. Burdette and R. L. Weber, all of Garfield county, Colo., marketed cattle through our Denver house.

J. G. Moore, Jessamine county, Ky., writes: "Central Kentucky has a good corn crop this year and also a good crop of young hogs, which will go to market in January. Good cattle are scarce and very high."

William Robison represented Yellowstone county, Mont., on the Chicago lamb market Oct. 17 with 899 head of 72 lbs average which we sold at the top price of $6.85 for rangers.

Limit for western range lambs at Chicago on Oct. 10 was $7.00. We landed two Idaho strings at the price. The sales follow: For the Highland Land and Cattle Co. of Ada county, 1,471 of 68 lbs average and for John C. Gibbs of Bannock county, 190 head, averaging 68 lbs.

The western range sheep market at Chicago on Oct. 16 was topped by us when we landed two different strings of wethers at $4.25. The sales follow: For H. G. Robinson, Valley county, Mont., 965 head, averaging 102 lbs. and for A. A. Booth, Mitchell county, N. D., 1,486 head of 116 lbs average.

Among the prominent dealers in sheep who had shipments to our East St. Louis house were: Ed. M. Huckens, Schuyler county, Mo.; J. T. Johnson, St. Francois county, Mo.; T. D. Draffen, Cooper county, Mo.; J. M. Irvine, Pike county, Mo.; E. L. Lorance, Laclede county, Mo.; F. M. Fowler, Saline county, Mo.

Must Fertilize the Soil.

The time is rapidly approaching when the farmer will have to pay more attention to fertilization of the soil in order that he may make his land more productive. The higher cost of living is due to no other cause than that of short production, and while the farmers are getting good prices for what they have, they are not producing enough to fill the bill. To raise larger crops on the same amount of land means more careful cultivation and a better knowledge of the fertilizer problem. Thus far the rich prairies have grown good crops without much attention to the care of the soil, but that condition cannot last always, and even now the progressive farmer realizes the need of checking soil robbery. To do this more live stock should be produced, and there is no getting away from it if the soil is to be saved.

Tiny farms in France, where one or two acres keeps a family for years; the rugged farmers of Scotland, where one small house and a patch of ground is wealth—what is the source of their well-doing? The secret lies in the fact that they are raising more live stock per acre than is the average farmer. In Germany there is one head for 3.6 acres: in Denmark, one for four acres; in France, one for 4.3 acres, and in England, one for 5.3 acres. In this last country two-thirds of all the good farm land is used for grazing purposes.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

$498 BUYS THE MATERIAL TO BUILD THIS BARN

OUR JOIST FRAME BARN NO. 221.

The above is an illustration of our famous Joist Frame Barn. It is the most practical and serviceable barn ever designed. We can supply this barn in six different sizes, all of the uniform width of 36 ft. The above quotation covers a barn 36 ft. wide by 48 ft. long and 18 ft. high, but picture shows 80 ft. in length. The roof is of the self-supporting type, there being no posts in the hayloft. There are 6 windows on each side, 3 in each end and 2 in each gable. Our price covers all the lumber, mill work, hardware and nails required to complete this building from the ground up.

$570 BUYS THE MATERIAL TO BUILD THIS BARN

BARN DESIGN NO. 250.

In this design we show a barn 30 ft. wide by 60 ft. long and 18 ft. high to the top of the plate, and is arranged exclusively for horses. Especially designed for those who do not wish to put their horses under the same roof with other stock. This is undoubtedly preferable in some cases. The floor plan is so arranged as to allow for 12 single stalls of 5 ft. each, and 5 double stalls of 10 ft. each, and a 10-ft. driveway the entire length of the barn.

$885 BUYS THE MATERIAL TO BUILD THIS BARN

BARN DESIGN NO. 206.

This barn is not a round barn exactly, as the picture seems to show, but has 14 sides, each side being 14 ft. long, making the circumference 196 feet. It is 60 ft. in diameter and 26 ft. high to plate. A big feature is the 36-ft. silo in the center with a silage capacity of 160 tons. Hay capacity is 65 tons Ventilators are provided along the silo which may be extended to the stable below. 60 to 100 head of cattle may be housed.

$550 BUYS THE MATERIAL TO BUILD THIS BARN

OUR "STAR" BARN DESIGN NO. 270.

A modern cattle and horse barn which we believe will meet the requirements of many farmers who make a business of raising stock on a moderate scale. This building is of the baloon type of construction as shown more fully by our Blueprint Plans. The haymow extends to ground floor and also above the grain rooms on each end of the barn. Cattle stalls are arranged on one side of the haymow, while the horse stalls are arranged on the other side. We particularly call your attention to the numerous windows shown in the ground plans. There is no part of this structure that is not amply lighted, and the windows together with the ventilation in the roof furnishes an ample supply of fresh air to every part of the building. Our Mammoth Free Plan Book contains over 100 illustrations and designs of houses and barns.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

There were 222 head of Herefords, averaging 1,110 lbs, in the bunch. They were on the Chicago market Oct. 19 and were raised and shipped by the Catlin Land and Live Stock Co. of White Sulphur Springs, Mont. In the whole shipment there were 20 carloads and we obtained the remarkably high average price of $5.42 for the whole drove. Our other sales for them follow: Fifty-two cows, 1,177 lbs, $5.40; 88 cows, 1,168 lbs, $5.25, and 75 cows, 1,055 lbs, $4.65. Edwin H. Catlin, one of the members of the firm, accompanied the shipment and of the transaction said: "The owners are pleased, the salesmen are pleased and the buyer is pleased. It was a most satisfactory deal throughout, and much credit is due Clay, Robinson & Co. for the high price the cows brought."

The members of the firm are all brothers, being George J. Catlin, a prominent Montana banker; Edwin H. Catlin, a prominent farmer and feeder of Augusta, Ill.; James K. Catlin, owner of a fine fruit ranch near Carpinteria, Cal., and John S Catlin, manager of the ranching property in Montana. All the four brothers migrated to Montana from Forrest, Ill., in 1878, with very little of this world's goods. However, they had plenty of pluck and perseverance and stayed by each other throughout the many years. They now have one of the best herds of Hereford cattle in the West, own 19,000 acres of land, raise 10,000 bushels of corn, several thousand tons of hay and run 2,500 cattle annually. Their idea for ranching cattle in the West is to have no more on hand than they can take care of in both summer and winter. They provide plenty of hay during the winter to keep the cattle in good thrifty growing condition and market about as many cattle as they brand every year. They keep the herd closely culled, keeping the top grades and marketing those of less desirable kind. Their aim has been to keep the best blood and buy the best bulls obtainable.

Mr. Catlin remarked that last year was the first time they had shipped to Clay, Robinson & Co., and they were so well pleased with the treatment and prices their stock brought that they concluded to come again, and results were again very satisfactory.

It will be remembered that at Chicago, on Sept. 7 Clay, Robinson & Co. sold 17 western range grass beef steers of 1,444 lbs average at $7.35 for Wallis Huidekoper of Two Dot, Mont., highest price obtained this season for a load of rangers. This sale, along with the above mentioned sale of cows at $5.75, makes two top sales of western rangers scored by Clay, Robinson & Co. this season.

Many Short-Fed Cattle to Come.

C. F. Brown of Flora, Ill., who is rated as one of the best and most successful cattle feeders in the West, and is an expert judge of cattle, was on the Chicago market last week with cattle which Clay, Robinson & Co. handled to his entire satisfaction. Remarking of conditions in his part of Illinois, Mr. Brown said: "We have one of the best corn crops in years. There are plenty of fields that will yield 75 bushels to the acre, which is remarkable in consideration of the fact that we are in a fruit country. There are very few cattle on feed, although quite a number of stock cattle have been brought in that weigh 450 to 550 lbs to winter on roughage and put on pasture next summer. The winter trade in cattle does not look very promising to me, as a big number have been put on feed and no doubt there will be a heavy liquidation of short-fed offerings with the advent of bad storms. However, prospects for hogs look good. I look for relatively large supplies for the next ninety days. Market prices are high and corn relatively low. There is a big demand everywhere for stock hogs to follow cattle in the feed lot. In my section cattle feeders have paid as high as 14@15c per lb for them. There will be no big runs of light hogs as in past years, as farmers will feed out for heavier weights than usual."

Fowler & Tod Had Grand Champion Feeders.

The grand champion feeder cattle at the recent American Royal Live Stock Show were bred and raised by Fowler & Todd, the famous breeders and feeders of cattle at Maple Hill, Kan. In last week's Report it was erroneously printed that the Matador Land and Cattle Co. of Trinidad, Colo., were the raisers and exhibitors of these cattle. However, the Matador people gathered in great honors by raising and showing the grand champion feeders of the Southwest and Northwest districts. The Fowler & Todd cattle were the sweepstake winners, the best car of feeders of any age or breed and grand champions of the show. Both of the above lots of cattle were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Surplus of Corn Above All Records.

"The government report on corn this month indicated a crop of 3,057,000,000 bushels when figured on last five-year averages," says B. W. Snow. Mr. Snow's report showed "farm stock of 158,000,000 bushels, making total available supply of 3,215,000,000 bushels, against similar total a year ago of 2,852,000,000 bushels. The present available supply is 365,000,000 bushels greater than the average supply similarly available at this date for five years past. During the last three years the actual consumption of corn, taking supplies at the beginning and deducting stocks carried over at the end of the period, was 2,669,000,000 bushels, so that the present supply is 516,000,000 bushels greater than the average actual consumption for the last three years. The South has a 10 per cent increase in acreage and the largest corn crop on record. There are fewer cattle and hogs in the country than there were three years ago. The only possible conclusion is that we have a surplus of corn above all records and above any normal distributive demand. Prices must come down to an export level before this surplus can be absorbed."

Sanger Texas Sheep Sell High.

Two loads of sheep from the Sanger farm in Falls county, Texas, were marketed at Fort Worth recently and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at $4.75, a very strong price. The Sanger Brothers, who own and manage the Sanger farm, own one of the largest independent stock farms in Texas, and it is also an old one. Some few weeks ago a load of hogs from this farm was sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $9.00. At that time the market was a little off, and the sale was called very good. It was several points above the Northern markets on the same day.

"The lesson to be learned from the sale of this bunch of sheep," said a Fort Worth buyer, "is that this market is ready to take care of all good stuff that comes here. Good sheep will sell as good if not better here than on any other market in the country. Those sheep had the proper attention, and that is what it takes to make good market stuff. Fort Worth would be one of the best points for sheep in the country if Texas sheep were fattened and shipped here. Several times it has been demonstrated here that good sheep sell for the best of prices, and it should be remembered by sheepmen that Fort Worth is the place to sell their choice stuff."

Yearling Cattle Satisfactory Sale.

If any complaints are coming from the camps of feeders marketing good to choice fat yearling cattle, steers or heifers, we have failed to hear them. For some time buyers have been eager bidders for finished baby cattle, and at times when prime heavy beeves have dragged on the market, a condition most unsatisfactory to those who paid up to $6.00 @6.50 for heavy fleshy steers last spring.

Yearling cattle, if fat, are making a good account of themselves. But they have to be intelligently handled to get the desired results. When in the care of those who know how to mature and feed them, maximum profits accrue in most cases. Evidence is not lacking that it pays well to give good care and proper attention to the winter feeding of choice quality calves.

However, yearlings in half-fat condition meet with relatively poor demand. In fact, they are harder sale, as a rule, than older cattle in similar condition. In most instances merely roughing calves through the winter with the intention of marketing them as baby beef in the summer or fall months has proved unsatisfactory. But yearlings that received good care and were well fattened met with ready sale at remunerative prices.

Below are cited a few representative sales of yearling cattle made by Clay, Robinson & Co. at Chicago in late weeks:

Business-Like Letter of a Missouri Seven-Year-Old.

We reproduce below a letter written by Master James Emory Matthews of Sykeston, Mo., to his father, R. C. Matthews, who is in the employ of Clay, Robinson & Co. at the National Stock Yards, East St. Louis. The young man lacks a few days of being seven years old, and this is his first letter. Notwithstanding the childish penmanship and quaint expression, it is clear, definite, and to the point, and in these important particulars might well serve as a model for many an older letter-writer.

Proving Unpopular With the Buyers.

More of the thin and half-fat western sheep and lambs are coming back from near-by states. In addition, a good many of them are burry, and are shunned by feeder buyers. Thus they have to go to killers for what they were worth to them, which, of course, means relatively low prices. There is certainly nothing in the situation to encourage the marketing of such stock at this time, while on the other hand there is every inducement for holding them back. Feed is plentiful and reasonable in price and prospects favor strong prices for good fat sheep and lambs in the near future.

Top Range Cattle at Omaha.

The latter part of the week ending Oct. 15 our South Omaha house handled a train of thirty cars of cattle for Higgins & Knighten, prominent cattlemen of Glenrock, Wyo. In this shipment were a few 1,344-lb steers that brought $6.00, top price for that week. About a car sold at $5.50, averaging 1,298 lbs, while 29 of 1,116 lbs average went at $5.25; and good feeders at $4.70@5.00. A small number of cows brought $5.00, top price for that class in several weeks, and several cars of heifers $4.00@4.55.

East Feeding More Cattle and Hogs.

Regarding live stock conditions in Indiana, Ohio and Michigan, Clay, Robinson & Co., East Buffalo, write to the following effect: "From what information we can gather at this time, would say that there will be from 25 to 35 per cent more cattle fed in Indiana, Ohio and Michigan than last year. The increase in sheep and lamb feeding will be 35 to 50 per cent. There will be a rather liberal run of hogs from these states until December. However, the marketing will not likely be as heavy as last year on account of the low price of corn. The average weight of the hogs marketed will be around 190 to 200 lbs. These weights are normal, as farmers there send their hogs to the shambles when they attain these weights even if corn is low and hogs are high. There is about a normal number of brood sows on the farms. No doubt there will be some gilts held back for breeding purposes, but not to any great extent."

Appreciation of Western Subscribers.

C. A. Marston of Cody, Wyo., writes: "Enclosed find $1.50 for Report and Breeder's Gazette as per your published offer. About the first thing I look for when I get the Report is to see if Mr. John Clay has any contribution therein. I certainly enjoy reading his articles. I have lived in Wyoming twenty-eight years. Mr. Clay always has something good for Wyoming."

C. W. Clarke of Bismarck, N. D., writes: "Enclosed find $1.50 for Report and Breeder's Gazette. Were I not interested in the live stock business I would still be a subscriber to the Report in order to have the pleasure of receiving at first hand the valuable and interesting literary efforts of 'J. C.' Long may Mr. Clay be spared to the benefit of the business, literary and social world."

Kansas Feeders Secure Fine Cattle.

One of the finest strings of cattle that have been at Denver for many months arrived there Oct. 21 The shipment consisted of forty-seven cars of yearlings and two-year-old heifers from the Swan Land and Cattle Co. range in Wyoming. The offerings were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. and the buyers were J. F. Douglas, O. L. Summers and B. L. Smith of Beloit, Kan., and J. B. Case of Abilene, Kan. The heifers were all uniform in size and high-grade Herefords, being fully 95 per cent whitefaces. These cattle were shipped to the above parties. They will be put on feed and marketed during the spring months. The cattle were loaded out of Denver in two special trains and their feeding grounds are located in Solomon valley, one of the richest in Mitchell and Cloud counties, Kan. The above parties are well-known and successful feeders and no doubt their cattle when marketed will be of the market topping kind, if quality and ability to handle stock in the feed lot counts for anything.

Prominent Sheep Feeder of Missouri.

C. F. Afflick of Clarence, Mo., was at the office of Clay, Robinson & Co., Kansas City. Mr. Afflick is a successful sheep feeder. "I have been feeding lambs and wethers, and never handled ewes very much. Some have handled them and made it a great success, but I prefer to take out lambs or wethers or both in the fall, and feed them through the winter and then sell the whole lot and rest until fall again. In feeding lambs one has to give attention to them about 6 months out of the year. But in handling breeding ewes they are on the place all the time, and need care all the year around. Then when lambing time comes they require especially good care. Feeding sheep seem to hold up to a high point this fall. I expected under the heavy runs to find the market weakening off considerably, but it does not seem to do so. But on the other hand we have cheaper feed, which may balance the thing up. I do not recall a fall when there was better grass in Shelby county. There is grass everywhere. Then we have all kinds of forage feed for winter feeding. And corn is bound to sell cheaper this fall and winter than last year. Corn will in all probability sell around 40c a bushel. If we can get it at that, and it now looks like an assured fact that we can, then we can afford to go ahead and feed. But there is no doubt but that more sheep will be fed this fall and the coming winter than any year for some time. They seem to be buying them freely everywhere. The fact that so many are going on feed may have a tendency to break the fat sheep market along through the winter."

Some War-Time Hog Sales.

C. R. Black of Mapleton, Ill., recently sent us a couple of account sales issued in 1865 by the old firm of R. P. & M. Conger, live stock commission merchants, Chicago, covering stock shipped them by Mr. Black and his partners. It is quite interesting to note the difference between these rather ancient documents and the more ornate account sales that are in use today. One of the bills, dated Aug. 9, 1865, covers the sale of 60 hogs, grossing 14,360 lbs, at $10.40, while another covers 61 hogs, grossing 13,870 lbs, at $11.25. Among the charges on each account sale is the war-time tax, then in effect upon documents of this character, amounting to something over $1.50 on each bill. Evidently banking facilities in those days were not of the best, as on each bill appears notation "proceeds remitted in currency by express."

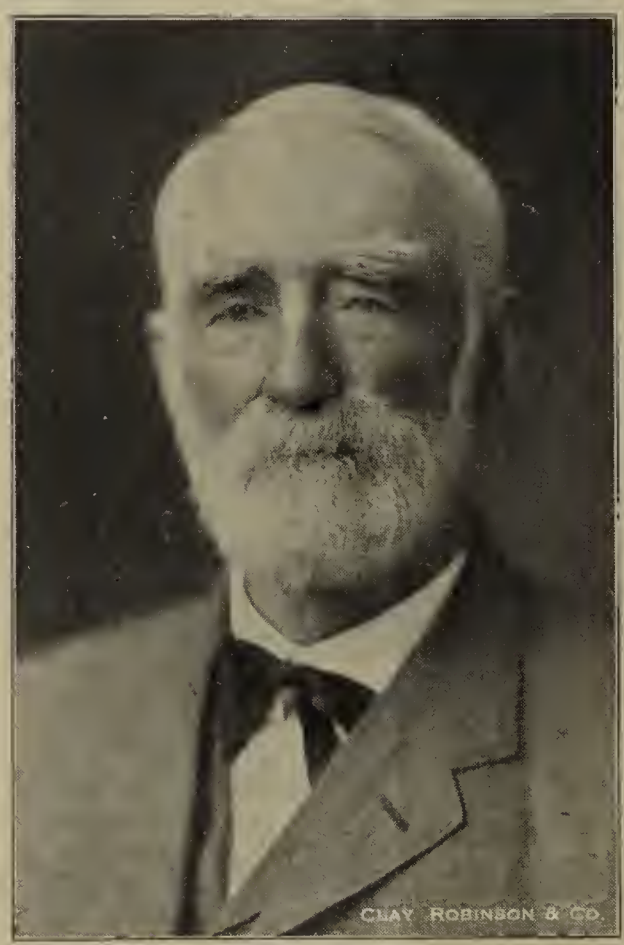
We quote as follows from Mr. Black's letter: "In looking over my old papers I came across some of my old sales of cattle and hogs, perhaps before you were born, one of Aug. 9, 1865, and one Oct. 18, 1865. I will send you the bills. You can compare them with the high-toned bill of the present. I was well acquainted with Nelson Morris. He was what we called a scalper then. Neill & Black, Meguire & Black, Black & Holcomb and Black & Blandin shipped to Chicago during the war, and for some time after, more stock than any other firm. They talk about heavy cattle; you don't get any. Neill & Black shipped to Chicago 70 steers that averaged at home 2,100 lbs, fed by Thomas Garrison of Peoria county. We did not call them heavy if they weighed less than 1,800 lbs. I am now 87 years old. My boys are shipping to your firm and are well pleased with the sales."

David Rankin is Dead.

David Rankin, the world's most extensive farmer, is dead. Mr. Rankin died at his home in Tarkio, Mo., last week, death being due to paralysis. He had long been prominent in north Missouri affairs, and was well known for his generosity to philanthropic institutions. He operated 25,640 acres on which he employed 250 men to cultivate his fields. Mr. Rankin, whose name is known in almost every farm homestead in the land, was born in Sullivan county, Indiana, May 28, 1825, and was of Scotch-Irish descent. Rankin when a boy was compelled to quit school at the age of 11 years and had to go to work to help support the family.

Mr. Rankin started out for himself in the business of farming in Illinois in 1846 with half a yoke of oxen—one bull. He later traded lumber for another ox in order that he would have a team. He went in debt for his first plow, a friend affording him security.

In the year 1847 Mr. Rankin drove a bunch of cattle, about 50 head, to Chicago, and drove them across the prairie so that they could feed as they traveled, and stopped at the edge of the timber to stay all night. At this time the Chicago Stock



DAVID RANKIN.

Yards were not muen larger than the average loading yards now found at small towns, and did not cover more than a half acre of ground.

Mr. Rankin has often said that when he first married he had but $5 and he gave that to the preacher. When in the first years of his farming career trading was done at Oquawka, Ill., and Burlington, Iowa, it being twelve miles from his farm to either place. At that time there was a ferry boat to Burlington across the Mississippi river and it would take a day and a night to go to town and back to the farm with a team of oxen. He had said that it was in 1853 that he received the inspiration to become a great farmer, and it was McCormick's improved reaper and John Deere's steel plow that gave him the first inspiration.

This inspiration resulted in Rankin planting 19,000 acres in one year to corn, which yielded about 1,000,000 bushels. At his farm at present it requires 1,000 horses and mules to do the work, and there are generally 250 loads of cattle being prepared for the market at one time. In one field there has been planted 6,000 acres of corn, the largest corn field in the world.

Value of Hog Cholera Serum.

A successful demonstration of the value of the new government serum for preventing hog cholera has been concluded in South Omaha by the Bureau of Animal Industry of the United States Department of Agriculture. the efficiency of the serum has been proved many times in the past, but in order that its value might be brought more strikingly before the people of Nebraska a demonstration was arranged for at the Union Stock Yards at South Omaha in co-operation with the Union Stock Yards Company of Omaha.

The stock yards company purchased thirty pigs, weighing from 40 to 60 lbs each, from a farm which had been free from hog cholera for several years. These pigs were brought to the stock yards and on July 23 four of them were injected with blood from hogs sick of hog cholera. These inoculated pigs were placed in a pen by themselves, and within five days they had become sick, at which time eighteen of the remaining pigs were each given one dose of the serum, while the other eight pigs were not treated in any way. The eighteen serum-treated pigs and the eight untreated pigs were then placed in the same pen with the four pigs which had been made sick by inoculation.

The four pigs which were first given hog cholera all died, and the eight untreated pigs all contracted the disease from them. The eighteen pigs which were given serum, and which were confined in the same pen with the four original sick pigs and with the sick untreated pigs, remained perfectly well, and were finally turned over to the officials of the stock yards company upon the completion of the experiment, Sept. 17.

The Department of Agriculture does not distribute this serum to farmers, but is endeavoring to bring the value of this method to the attention of the stock raising interests in order that they may arrange to secure state funds for the manufacture and distribution of the serum. The government authorities consider that this new serum treatment, if properly applied, will result in the saving of millions of dollars.

An Extensive Kansas Wheat Grower.

G. L. Matthews of Kinsley, Kan., a good patron of Clay, Robinson & Co., Kansas City, and an exhibitor at the American Royal, is one of the representative farmers out in the wheat belt. Although it was said last spring that the wheat crop would be very light out through that section, Mr. Matthews reports that the crop was one of the best ever raised. At present on Mr. Matthews' 2,000-acre farm is a field of 360 acres of wheat, green and growing. This season he raised 8,000 bushels of good wheat, the kind that brings the top price. "We do not sell our wheat now as we formerly did as soon as it is thrashed," said Mr. Matthews. "I think it is safe to say that less than one-third of this year's crop has been sold. This is a pretty good sign of the times, the financial times, I mean. We all remember when the Kansas farmer was compelled to sell off his wheat from the machine That was the very time when the price was the lowest, so that the poor farmer got the worst of it all the time. Now we can put our wheat in the granary and hold it until we think the market is best, and let it go. All over Edwards county can be found granaries full of wheat. When farmers can get 85c@1.00 per bushel for wheat it pays to raise it. The acreage this fall is about as usual In places the wheat is up and green, but as the seeding covers several weeks, the fields vary from the green fields down to the fields where it has not come up."

First "1911" Lamb for Michigan?

L. H. Emerson, of Rhodes, Mich., writes under date of Oct. 17:

"We enter the state of Michigan for the earliest lamb for the season of 1911. Claimants disputing must establish a better record than held by Lee Emerson on his lamb named 'Ten-ten ten.' (10-10-10), born Oct. 10, 1910."

Handling of Brood Sows.

In the corn belt most farmers find their abundant and inexpensive corn a feed which cannot be avoided or ignored, nor should it be; but while its use need not by any means be omitted, it should be but moderate, and as a part of a reasonably balanced ration. Sows kept for breeding should not herd with fattening hogs kept on corn, but be in pasture and given a supply of slop, such as equal parts of shorts, corn meal and wheat bran. Feeds which furnish considerable bulk are preferable, and those tending to prevent constipation are important.—Coburn's "Swine in America."

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

The Montgomery Land and Cattle Co., Rio Blanco county, Colo., marketed cattle at Denver.

John R. Bartlett and J. B. Nimerick, both of Garfield county, Colo., marketed cattle through our Denver house last week.

Harrison Newell, Laramie county, Wyo., was on the Denver market with a shipment of cattle which our Denver house handled satisfactorily.

A. J. Winjun represented Hamlin county, S. D., on the Chicago lamb market Oct. 25 with 98 natives of 86 lbs average for which we obtained the top price of $7.00.

Early this week the top of the Sioux City cattle market was $6.30, obtained by our house for 35 head, averaging 1,303 lbs, fed and shipped by A. H. Banks, Knox county, Neb.

Files & Johnston, Pettis county, Mo., and John G. Yeager, Pike county, Ill., were represented on the East St. Louis sheep market with shipments to our house.

Last week our Denver house had the pleasure of handling a shipment of cattle for R. S. Van Tassell, the well-known cattleman of Wyoming, and one of our valued customers.

At Chicago on Oct. 24 the limit for native lambs was $7.00, which price we obtained for offerings sent in by L. Springer, Wabasha county, Minn.; George Perkins and E. T. Cox, Fremont county, Ia.

Our Sioux City house topped the lamb market this week with 83 lbs average at $6.50 for M. A. Slocum, Edmunds county, S. D. The next highest price was $6.35, which they secured for the Sam Barns 77-lb offerings from the above county.

Best beef steers offered on the East Buffalo market this week were handled by our house and marketed by Fred Moran & Son, Genesee county, Mich. There were 20 head in the lot and they averaged 1,393 lbs and brought $6.85, top by 10c per cwt.

This week started out with our Chicago house again topping the hog market by landing two loads at $9.40. The sales follow: For A. J. Webb of Williamson county, Ill., 73 head of 197 lbs average, and for J. E. Gerry of Winona county, Minn., 78 head of 161 lbs average.

Uinta county, Wyo., was represented on the sheep market at Chicago on Oct. 24 with a big string from the J. D. Noblitt range. Included in the shipment were 1,393 head of 69 lbs average which our house sold at the top price of $6.90 for rangers and 437 ewes, averaging 118 lbs, at $4.00, the top for that class.

During the first two market days this week the top for sheep at South Omaha was $4.25. We handled the shipment and J. W. Shepperson, Natrona county, Wyo., was the owner. There were four loads of ewes and wethers mixed in the shipment, averaged 93 lbs and sold at $4.25. We also obtained the top price of $3.70 for ewes, they averaging 95 lbs.

During the past week our Denver house had the pleasure of handling shipments for the following well-known Colorado shippers: Frank Schultz, Garfield county; Glen Cattle Co., and H. C. Rhine, both of El Paso county; Tompkins Cattle Co., Custer county; N. S. Ballantine, Mesa county; H. L. Welsh, Lincoln county, and Culver & Corbin, Jefferson county.

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments of cattle for the following prominent dealers: F. D. Draffin, Cooper county, Mo.; J. Frank Carlock & Co., Dade county, Mo.; J. A. Dawson, Lonoke county, Ark.; J. A. Abbott, Panola county, Miss.; C. L. Bruce, Pettis county, Mo.; A. E. Jordan, Shelby county, Mo.; W. F. Dougherty, Ripley county, Mo.; Hobbs & Osborne, Independence county, Ark.

Zimmerman & Co., prominent merchants and live stock dealers of Noble county, Ind., write: "Cattle arrived in good form. We are much pleased with them and expect a fine gain. The price was a surprise. When we raised the limit from $4.60 to $4.75 we confidently expected they would cost us that figure, consequently we were much gratified to receive your invoice at $4.40. Will avail ourselves of your expert service when opportunity offers."

Why You Miss Copies.

Much to our regret, we have found it impossible to regularly mail each issue of the Report to every name on our general mailing list.

Paid subscribers, of course, receive every issue promptly and regularly, but those who are getting the paper "complimentary" necessarily frequently miss copies.

This is because of the fact that our general mailing list has grown so large that it would be out of the question for any business concern, however large, to stand the enormous postage expense of covering it all every week.

This is particularly true during the western range cattle and sheep shipping season when our customers in that part of the country are vitally interested and in order to keep them posted we must mail thousands of extra copies.

By "rotating" the circulation, that is, sending to part of our list one week and another part another week, we are able to cover the entire list, but, as stated, not with every copy.

In years past, when our list was smaller, we cheerfully undertook to send the Report absolutely free to any feeder or shipper who made request for it.

Probably we have no one but ourselves to blame for the present enormous demand for the Report, in that we have apparently succeeded in producing a paper that stockmen regard as practically indispensable to them.

This standard of quality will not only be maintained but our constant ambition is toward improvement.

Such of our readers as are not paid subscribers, and who feel that they want every copy without break or interruption, are respectfully invited to make it possible for us to comply, by enrolling as paid subscribers, for which purpose a coupon appears below.

This is not in any sense compulsory, and we shall continue as in the past to do the best we can in the way of complimentary distribution.

The problem simmers down to whether or not it is worth 50c per year for you to receive each issue of the Report promptly and regularly, or whether an occasional complimentary copy will keep you sufficiently in touch with the market situation.

The foregoing refers to the Live Stock Report only, and has no reference whatever to our market letters or circulars, which are the most complete issued by any live stock commission firm.

No charge in any shape or form is made for said market circulars, which are cheerfully sent to any prospective shipper upon request to Clay, Robinson & Co., mentioning the class of stock and stating about when same will be shipped.

Use this Coupon for enrolling as a Regular Paid Subscriber to the Live Stock Report.

H. S. Holmes, president of the Kempf Commercial Savings Bank, Washtenaw county, Mich., writes: "Lambs received and seem to be very satisfactory. You secured me a fine bunch."

L. A. Landon, Jackson county, Mich., writes: "Car of lambs arrived in very good condition. They were worth the money. Thank you for the interest you have taken in filling my orders."

George A. Laing, Oakland county, Mich., writes our South Omaha house: "Received car of lambs in good shape. They are the best I ever saw. They will make friends for you in this vicinity."

Our South Omaha house on Oct. 26 sold a single deck of native fed lambs of 73 lbs average at the top price of $7.00. They were marketed by F. M. Culver, Montgomery county, Ia.

Charles H. Babcock, Woodbury county, Ia., writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for Report two years and your document file. I am an enthusiastic reader of the Report and would not like to miss a copy."

W. C. Morton, Adams county, Ill., writes our South Omaha house: "Sheep arrived all right. Please send me your market report as may want something else in the sheep line. These are all right."

J. C. Lawrence, Whitley county, Ind., writes: "Cows and bulls arrived in fine condition. They look good. Thank you for your prompt treatment of my order. I never saw such fine pasture in the fall as we have at the present time."

George A. Keeline, breeder and grower of cattle, sheep and horses, with ranges in Johnson, Crook and Weston counties, Wyo., writes: "I received your account sales of all lambs and sheep you sold for us this week. I am very well pleased with the sales."

W. J. Hitchcock, Nodaway county, Mo., writes our South St. Joseph house: "I received the load of ewes in good condition, and I am well pleased with them, as they are better than I expected. I will remember you in the future when I want more."

W. H. Clute, Delaware county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Three loads of lambs came through in fine shape. I have fed large bunches of lambs for ten years, but never have seen as even and clean, healthy bunch as these. I am glad I didn't waste my time and money going to Omaha, as I have been there every year for six years, but I will give in to your buyer."

Rueslink Bros., Lenawee county, Mich., writes our South Omaha house: "Lambs arrived in good shape. The 760 head ran out of the car feeling good. We are very well pleased with them and all who saw them, which included some of the best sheepmen in this community, said they were a good bunch."

First National Bank, Havelock, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Cattle arrived O. K., and Mr. Boysen is well pleased with the lot. They are a nice and even lot, and just what he wanted, and did not expect to get them any cheaper. Mr. Boysen may order feeders through you again in the near future."

H. S. Hoyman & Son, Cedar county, Iowa, write our South Omaha house: "Yearlings came through in good shape. We are well pleased and think they will finish up fine and reach the top. You surely know your business. We may want some more. Will give you the order when we get ready for them."

J. C. CLAY OF NORTH SALEM, IND.

One of the most prominent farmers and feeders in Indiana is Mr. Clay. He owns and farms 1,100 acres of land, the best of which is worth $150 an acre, land that ten years ago could have been bought at $40@45 per acre. He feeds about 150 cattle every year and around 500 hogs. He generally has from two to three hogs follow the cattle in the feed lots. Mr. Clay has shipped to Clay, Robinson & Co. for the past several years and said that he has always been well pleased with the service rendered him. Mr. Clay had cattle on the Chicago market Oct. 10 and 17, which brought the top price of $7.85 and $7.90 respectively, through Clay, Robinson & Co. Also last year his cattle sold at the top of the Chicago market. He remarked that within a radius of ten miles of North Salem more cattle are fed than in any other section of Indiana, usually about 1,000 being handled annually. Longfed cattle are practically all gone and most of the cattle back will be short fed. Mr. Clay is of the opinion that prices for all classes of live stock have been too high and are due for a greater drop, the consumer being unable to meet the high cost of meats.

R. H. Bowman, Woodbury, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Load of western ewes arrived O. K. They unloaded fine; every one lively and frisky. This load was divided among several farmers, most of them beginners in the sheep business. They all liked them and those who have had experience say they are good."

Chas. R. Lawrence of Lincoln county, Neb., writes our Denver house: "I received the two cars of feeding lambs all O. K. There was not one dead, crippled, or weak. I am well pleased with them. Had I come to Denver and paid railroad fare and hotel bills, I would not have suited myself any better. Thank you for the care you displayed."

J. W. Bartleson, Pulaski county, Ill., writes our East St. Louis house: "I am well pleased with the way you handled my hogs, and certainly appreciate your special effort in getting me the money you did on this load. I expect to have other consignments to you within the next few days."

H. Walter, Oakland county, Mich., writes: "Load of cattle arrived and I am very much pleased with the weight, quality and price. My two customers were also highly pleased. When I order any more cattle will be glad to have you make the purchase. Thank you for the good service and prompt shipment."

A. J. Pietrus, Brown county, Minn., writes: "I want the Report to come right along, as I think it is cheap for the money. I would miss it very much if it stopped coming. Even though I am out of the live stock business for the present, I enjoy looking over the paper each week. Enclosed find $1.00 for two years more."

D. T. Hinderlider, prominent dealer in all kinds of general merchandise, Jackson county, Ind., writes: "The cattle arrived in good shape. They are good enough for anybody. I am well pleased with the transaction. I shall want more cattle in the near future and will not go by your house seeking a buyer. In the meantime, if you can buy another load of similar weight and quality, well worth the money, send them to me."

J. G. Coy & Son, Larimer county, Colo., write our Denver house: "Two cars of cows and heifers arrived O. K. and are very satisfactory as to quality and flesh. I thought from what I saw of the market when I was in Denver that we would be able to buy such cattle around $3.20@3.30, but I see by the papers that the market has advanced since that time, so I must agree with you that it is a good buy, and thank you for the same."

J. F. Shutters & Son, Decatur County, Ind., write our Kansas City house: "I received car of heifer calves O. K. Was more than pleased with them and think they will be the means of getting several more orders for you, as several cattlemen who have been to see them say they are the best bunch of calves they ever saw. Thank you for the carefulness with which you selected my cattle and the manner in which you shipped them to me. I will gladly send you another order when I get ready to buy more."

We are pleased to mention the following prominent feeders or shippers who favored our East St. Louis house with shipments of hogs: Vincel Keith, Shelby county, Mo.; Sims & Smith, Cooper county, Mo.; Wilcox & Littrell, Randolph county, Mo.; Joseph Heimer, Douglas county, Mo.; A. J. Holt, Nodaway county, Mo.; Charles Brockway, Henry county, Mo.; H. B. Gurley, Dekalb county, Ill.; Henry Sands, Warren county, Ill.; D. A. Woodward and A. H. Fay, Chariton county, Mo.; H. P. George, Caldwell county, Mo.; J. J. Smith, Linn county, Mo.; L. Wehrman, Lincoln county, Mo.; Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo.; W. G. Reynolds, Obion county, Tenn.; Green & Roff, Scott county, Ill.; J. E. Lindsey, Lewis county, Mo.; M. Mayfield, B. L. Thompson and C. C. Jones, Cooper county, Mo.; T. D. Blackwood, Shelby county, Mo.; H. P. George, Caldwell county, Mo.; N. J. Merritt, Fulton county, Ill.; R. M. Woodruff, Cooper county, Mo.; J. W. King, Marion county, Mo.; A. P. Merritt, Montgomery county, Mo.; F. O. Kelley, Linn county, Mo.; R. H. Garrett, Henry county, Mo.; B. F. Marshall, Scott county, Mo.; C. O. Chittenden, Adams county, Ill.; H. L. Bufford, Shelby county, Mo.; F. Marmion, Van Buren county, Ia.

*A record price.

Thursday of last week the run was 3,000. Beef steers made a steady to firm range. Demand from packers was good. Choice offerings were missing, bulk of trading being at $5.05@5.40. She stock ready sale at steady prices. Feeders continued in good demand at steady rates.

Around 1,000 head arrived Friday. Bulk of the steers were plain and common light grades, many being suitable only for feeding purposes. Trains were late, yet the offerings found outlet in due season at steady prices. There was no quotable change in the market for either she stock or feeders.

Receipts for the week totaled 23,000, against 31,000 the corresponding week of last year. Arrivals for the season were 250,300, the heaviest since 1907, and compared with 243,200 like period of last year. The week closed with beef steer prices fully steady with the finish of the previous week. Both local slaughterers and eastern shippers gave the market very good support. Prime Wyomings, numbering 16 head and averaging 1,540 lbs, topped the week's trade at $7.00, and bulk made $5.00@5.75. Closing trade in she stock was steady with the like period of the previous week. Best price for the week was $5.75, obtained by us for 222 head of 1,110-lb Montana cows, with most cows and heifers at $4.00@5.00. Feeders sold on a firm price basis with the close of the previous week, sales being largely at $4.75@5.25.

The moderate run of 7,000 head was recorded at the start of this week, an indication that big single-day runs are over for this season. The supply compared with 11,000 Monday of last week and 9,000 corresponding day last year. A brisk demand prevailed for beef steers and prices were boosted mostly 10c, with extreme cases showing even more advance. A few loads of fat heavy offerings brought $6.25@6.50, but there were not many sales above $6.00, and bulk went at $5.10@5.65. An excellent trade in she stock at prices strong to 10c higher. Few heifers were good enought to go above $5.00, and most cows ranged from $3.85@4.40. Feeders met good demand at strong prices.

Supply Tuesday totaled 8,000. Buyers seemed eager for steers of value around $5.50 and lower, and readily paid stronger prices for these. But such as went above $5 50 proved slow sale, with all price changes tending toward weakness. We sold the J. W. Summerville Montanas at $6.50, numbering 17 head and averaging 1,454 lbs, and 17 head of thick-fat 1,485-lb treble-wintered Texans from the A. Niedringhaus range in Montana at $6.40. Both she stock and feeders made a firm range. We topped the cow market with 15 of the J. W Summerville Montana offerings of 1,157 lbs average at $5 30.

Receipts Wednesday 6,000. It was a 10c lower deal in the best beef steers and steady for other kinds. There was quite a drop in the quality of the offerings, best available going around $6.00. She stock met good demand at 10c higher prices. Feeders held steady.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of western range cattle:

Copious Rains Fall in Montana.

Mr. Patterson, Sr., who appears in the photo found below, was on the Chicago market last week with a big string of sheep to Clay, Robinson & Co., who obtained very satisfactory prices, considering the condition of the trade. The senior Mr. Patterson is one of the pioneer and most successful cattle and sheepmen in the West.

"During the past few weeks copious and timely rains have been had throughout the greater part of Montana," remarked Mr. Patterson. "As a result the growth of fall grass has been rejuvenated and there is most excellent feed for both cattle and sheep. This is fortunate, as there is a big shortage of hay. From all indications there will be no further sacrificing of either cattle or sheep of a young, thrifty class. They will be held wherever possible, as owners realize that when the stocking-up period commences prices will be high. Montana is really marketing a treble crop of sheep, and thus the numbers coming to market are naturally larger than usual. Also rangemen are reducing their flocks by sending in the aged offerings and the light and unthrifty stock."

Range Sheep.

Following shows top prices for and bulk sales of western range sheep and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Sheep			Lambs
	Top.	Bulk.		Top.	Bulk.
This week	$4.30	$3.75@4.25		*$6.90	$6.50@6.85
Last week	4.25	3.75	4.25	7.00	6.50	6.90
Year ago	4.50	3.65	4.35	6.90	6.65	6 90

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Marketing of sheep and lambs last week totaled 203,886, a decrease of 23,862 from the record number received the previous week, an indication that the liquidation from the western range has spent its force. Early in the week the trend of prices was downward, but by the close all of the break was repaired. Very choice lambs sold up to $7.00 and bulk of trading was at $6.50@6.90. Choice handy weight yearlings reached $5.50 and most sales were around $5.25. We topped the sheep trade with several strings of wethers at $4.25 and most trading was at $3.75@4.15. Bulk of ewes brought $3.75@3.90, with the top at $4.00, this sale being made by us. In feeding grades it was mostly a $5.50@6.50 deal for light to strong weight lambs, $5.00@5.25 for yearlings, $3.50@3.90 for wethers and $2.50@3.00 for ewes. Yearling breeding ewes sold in main at $5.00@5.25 and those of older age at $3.65@4.75.

This week started out with a run of 49,963. Conditions were bad in the East and buyers used this as a pretext to lower prices for lambs to the extent of 10@15c. We topped the market with a string of Wyomings at $6.90. Sheep sold fully steady and enjoyed an active demand. Extra good Montanas sold up to $4.25, and we topped the ewe market with a string of Wyomings at $4.00 The feeder demand was as broad as ever and the trade was active at prices steady to strong. We topped the feeding lamb market at $6.40, and sold several strings of wethers at $3.90.

Marketing Tuesday 50,000. Opening weak, the lamb market closed on a firm basis, with the best going at $6.90. Sheep trade was active and steady, with choice wethers selling up to $4.25. There was a continuation of the active call for feeding stock and prices ruled fully steady. We sold the top feeders at $6.50, being 10c higher than the previous day, and choice feeding wethers were quotable up to $4.00.

Wednesday supply way 44,000. There was an active trade in fat grades at firm prices, buyers seeming to be eager to secure their quota of the offerings. Good lambs were missing, but choice wethers made $1.30, best price of the week. Feeder stock met broad outlet at steady prices, best lambs going out up to $6.50.

Two years ago	2.75	4.00	4.15	4.35	5.10	5.35

There was a big reduction in the supply of feeder sheep and lambs this week, a result of the decreased movement from the western ranges. A further falling off may be expected from now on. There was no abatement in the hungry demand for supplies and prices for most offerings held fully steady with the close of the previous week. The only exception was for the loppy grades of lambs and yearlings, all price changes for these tending downward.

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

South Omaha, Oct. 25.—Supplies of cattle moderate last week. The trade was in good shape all the way through, most kinds of beef cattle and feeders showing an advance of 25c, with desirable heavy fleshy feeders in cases showing even greater gain. Top beeves brought $6.75, paid on Wednesday for a choice load. General quality was fair; even a little better than the previous week. It is generally expected supplies will be fairly liberal the next couple of weeks, although generally conceded the heaviest run of rangers is over for this season.

There was a fair run first two market days this week and beef grades sold steady and feeders strong.

Range Sheep.

Sheep receipts of 159,000 fall about 33,000 short of the previous week's record run. Good killing sheep and lambs were scarce and prices showed little change. Light lambs on the feeder order were in excessive supply and prices dropped 25c and other feeders 15@25c. Good killing lambs were quotable at $6.50@6.60; fair, $6.25@6.40; wethers, $3.75@4.25; ewes, $3.25@3.75. Good feeding lambs, 50 to 60 lbs, $5.00@5.50; fair 40 to 45 lbs, $4.50@5.00; light yearlings, $4.65@4.85; heavy, $4.00 @4.35; wethers, $3.65@4.00; ewes, $2.25@3.00.

Decreased marketing rendered trade in lambs very active Monday and Tuesday, with prices on the latter day 30@60c higher than last week's low time. Good to choice killers brought $6.50@7.00 and fair to choice feeders $5.00@6.00. Best wethers made $4.25 and ewes $3.50@3.75. Feeding ewes were in liberal numbers and prices steady to a shade lower, with bulk good kinds at $2.65@3.00. We handled the top fat ewes and wethers mixed at $4.25 and top ewes at $3.70.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week	$4.75@7.90	$5.75@7.35
Previous week	4.65 *7.90	5.60 7.40
Year ago	4.00 9.10	5.40 7.75

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Receipts of 78,142, including 23,000 rangers last week, proved excessive. Buyers were bearish and the break in prices was only logical. Beef steers showed a decline of 10@15c from the close of the previous week. A big proportion of the arrivals were grassers and short-fed lots, which suffered by coming into direct competition with western rangers. Top beeves for the week went at $7.90, this price being obtained by us for 20 head of short two-year-old Herefords and Shorthorns of 1,358 lbs average. Best price for yearlings was $7.55. We made the sale, landing 49 head, including 15 heifers, of 904 lbs average at the figure. Bulk of the week's trading was at $5.60@7.35.

This week started out with a run of 27,296, included in which were 7,000 westerns. The supply was below expectations, which was fortunate for the selling interests. Choice to prime beeves were slow and barely steady sale, demand for these from both local and eastern buyers being limited. Fat handy weights and yearling stock were ready sale at prices strong to 10c higher, these meeting with good favor from the outset. The moderate supply of westerns worked for the good of the trade in plain and medium natives and these sold with more freedom at stronger rates. Thirty-two head of fancy 1,690-lb beeves reached $7.90. The top for yearling cattle was $7.60, which we obtained for 45 steers and heifers of 918 lbs average, belonging to C. G. Soderstrom of Bercsford, S. D., and for 17 steers and heifers of 972 lbs average, belonging to S. R. Rew of Winside, Neb. Most of the day's business was at $5.75@7.35.

Marketing Tuesday 13,000, including 8,000 rangers There was a very short crop of native steers and prices were nominally steady. General demand was very narrow. Best offered were 35 head of 1,347 lbs average at $7.15.

Receipts Wednesday 27,000, being above all expectations. The trade was in semi-demoralized condition for bulk of arrivals. General demand was very limited, especially for plain and medium flesh offerings, as well as the big weights. Yearling cattle were best sale, and prices for these ruled steady to 15c lower. Other kinds were anywhere from 25@40c lower, those of value between $6.75@7.25 bearing the brunt of the decline. Thirty-two prime 1,588-lb beeves had to go at $7.70 and 20 fancy yearlings, averaging 1,060 lbs, made $7.65.

COWS AND HEIFERS.

The trade in butcher stock last week was very irregular. However, the trend of prices late in the week was upward and all of the price break on early days was fully repaired. There was another big proportion of offerings shy of desirable quality and these were sharply discriminated against by packers, who favored western range she stock for the reason that the latter are killing out at relatively lowest cost. Sales of heifers were rarely above $5.50 and few cows above $5.75. Bulk of cows and heifers sold at $3.85@4.90. Bulls lost 25@35c for the week. It was a very uneven trade in the calf market, yet prices held steady for the week.

This week started out with a brisk trade in cows and heifers at prices strong to 10c higher. A moderate run and a big demand were the boosting factors. Bulls gained 10@15c. Calf trade was steady.

The Tuesday market for cows and heifers had strong undertone. The supply was light and demand continued good. Grassers made up a heavy proportion of the receipts. Eleven head of fancy corn-fed Herefords of 537 lbs average brought $7.00, being the best seen here in many weeks. Bulls made a steady range. There was no quotable change in the market for calves.

The Wednesday trade in cows and heifers was active at 10c advance. Bulls sold 10c higher. Calves were steady sale.

Stockers and Feeders.

Top price and bulk sales of stockers and feeders this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Top Feeders.	Bulk Feeders.	Bulk Stockers.
This week	$5.75	$4.65@5.35	$3.75@4.50

Two years ago	4.85	3.85 4.40	3.00 3.75

Receipts last week were the largest in a long while. Barring choice fleshy steers, which were about steady, the week closed with prices 10@25c lower than the finish of the previous week. Plain light stockers were in heavy numbers and had it not been for the big outlet through eastern channels trade in these would have been in demoralized shape.

This week started out with a reduction in supplies and a broad demand, which resulted in a brisk trade at prices 10@15c higher. Conditions are not favorable for any slump in prices, as the big corn crop and fine pastures both in the East and near-by states is affording remarkably broad outlet for both feeder and stocker steers.

Another brisk demand was recorded on Tuesday Both outsiders and order buyers were busy as bees and all price changes tended toward a stronger basis. Eastern buyers took a heavy number of the light low-quality steers to be used as brushers and the heavy flesh feeders were ready sale to parties from near-by sections.

The Wednesday market was steady for the good to choice offerings and all price changes for the less desirable kinds tended downward.

Conditions surrounding the hog market last week were bearish and it was an up-and-down affair Receipts were materially increased at 109,148, and outlet through eastern shipping channels was more narrow. Barring light weights, which held steady, prices on Saturday were generally 10@15c lower than the close of the previous week. The heavy grades proved poorest sale. At the close of the week fancy light reached $9.35 and the limit for prime heavy was $9.00. Bulk of trading was at $8.20@9.20 for heavy packing to light shipping grades.

This week started out with a total of 24,639. Good to choice light and medium weights advanced 10c, but other grades were generally steady. We topped the market at $9.40 with two loads of fancy light. Bulk of sales were at $8.20@9.30.

Tuesday run was 18,000. Barring a limited early trade in assorted light and handy weights at 10@15c decline, the market was 20@30c lower. The close was semi-demoralized, with thousands of offerings left in the pens without bids. A speculative top was made at $9.35 early, but the limit late was $9.00, and after the false start bulk of trading was at $7.90@8.90.

Wednesday run of hogs 25,000. Prices were about steady with the bad close of the previous day. Top was $9.10 and sales largely at $7.90@8.85 for heavy packing to light shipping.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of hogs:

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Receipts of sheep and lambs last week were 203,886, a falling off of 23,862 from the record run of the previous week, an indication that the liquidation from the western range has spent its force. The week finished with prices generally steady with the close of the previous week. Top lambs for the week made $7.20 and bulk good to choice offerings brought $6.75@7.00, with a plain to light and coarse weighty class at $6.00@6.50. Heavy lambs met with some discrimination, especially the big bucky kinds, many of which had to sell under $6.50. Prime heavy ewes landed up to $4 25 during the week, with most medium to good kinds at $3.75@4.00.

This week started out with arrivals of 49,963. It was generally a 10@15c lower deal than early last Friday for lambs, adverse conditions in the East rendering buyers very bearish. The proportion of natives was the largest in some time. We topped the market with several choice lots at $7.00, although some of the big buyers refused to go that high. An active demand for sheep at steady prices, the supply of good fat lots being rather short. Good to choice ewes went largely at $4.00@4.25.

Marketing Tuesday 45,000. There was an excellent demand for both sheep and lambs and prices held fully steady. Top lambs $7.00, we selling one load at the price, and $6.25@6.85 gathered in the bulk. Prime heavy ewes sold at $4.25.

Total run Wednesday 44,000. Market was active at prices steady to 10c higher. We topped the lamb trade with two loads—without a cut-out—at $7.10, against $7.00 the previous day. Most desirable to choice ewes went at $4.00@4.25.

East St. Louis Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

National Stock Yards, Ill., Oct. 25.—Heavy receipts of native cattle so far this week. Best kind went around $7.50. There was a big proportion of beef steers on sale today. Cheap kinds and yearlings sold steady early and good grades 10@15c lower, with the general market closing steady. Cow and heifer market was steady. Best calves sold for $9.00. Stockers sold steady to stronger. Feeders were in good demand and some 800 to 950-lb steers made $4.50@4.80, with 600 to 750-lb stockers at $4.00@4.40. Southern supply was fair, with good kinds selling lower in sympathy with natives. There was a train of 1,300-lb caked grass beeves at $5.75 and some pretty good $4.50@5.10. A few cars of Mexico steers grazed in Kansas, reached $3.90. There was a good supply from Arkansas, Mississippi and Tennessee. Canner and cutter grades sold at $3.60@3.85 and good Oklahoma cows at $3.90@4.25.

Fairly good supply of hogs on sale so far this week. The market closed strong Monday, but opened Tuesday 5c lower and closed fully 20c off. Top $9.30. Best kinds around 200 lbs brought $9.15@9.25 and 250 to 275 lbs $8.75@8.90. Mixed heavy weights at $8.65@8.75.

Exceptionally good supply of sheep on sale this week. Best lambs opened at $7.00 Tuesday morning, but the same kind would not have brought over $6.75 at the close. Best sheep brought $4.25 on the early market, but were going around $4.10@4.15 on the closing market.

Your Gain, Mr. Cattle Feeder.

Shortage of feed on the western ranges is driving thousands of thin young cows and heifers to the central markets. The rangeman's loss is the middle west and eastern farmer's gain. There is excellent opportunity to stock up with she offerings of the right weight, right quality and at the right place.

At this time fair to good quality Shorthorn and Hereford heifers of 500 to 600 lbs average can be purchased around $3.85@4.25, good framed thin young cows around 850 lbs average at around $3.50 and young bulls of good weight around $3.75.

Such cows can be put on fall pasture and afterwards given rough feed, and the heifers also on fall pasture and afterwards fed grain. By stocking up with these classes there is not so much money invested, she stock will make far greater gains on pasture than steers and they can be turned back to market much quicker.

It should be the aim of the prospective buyer to have the cows and heifers in condition for the market after Jan. 15. It is then that the demand is most urgent and prices highest for she stock, especially for light weight and yearling heifers. Others have made good money with these cattle for many years.

Are you interested? If so, write, or, better still, send your order to

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Edgar Bros., Ingham County, Mich., write: "Sheep arrived all right. We are well pleased with them."

Thomas Harstad, Fillmore county, Minn., writes: "I am getting the Report regularly and like it very much."

James C. Rollins, Fillmore County, Minn., writes: "Am well pleased with the way you handled my load of sheep."

Mrs. Edgar Cranson, Washtenaw County, Mich., writes: "Considering the price, I feel well satisfied with the lambs."

W. A. Reed, Jackson county, Mich., writes: "Load of wethers arrived O. K. and I am well pleased with them."

George E. Braley, Macoupin County, Ill., writes: "I received the double deck of sheep and am well satisfied with the deal."

Dr. C. L. Van Doren, Champaign County, Ill., writes: "Am well pleased with the lambs. Think I will want some more."

H. O. Adcock, Weld County, Colo., writes our Denver house: "Car of ewes received O. K. and am well pleased with same."

John Carruthers, Shiawassee county, Mich., writes: "Mr. Hunt, my neighbor, is greatly pleased with the lambs which I ordered for him, and I thank you for your good work."

Andrew Olson, Nobles county, Minn., writes our Sioux City house: "Car of cattle handled by you brought a price which was satisfactory in every way. I have a load and a half of sheep which I intend to consign to Clay, Robinson & Company."

A. L. Cridler, Barry County, Mich., writes: "Double deck of feeding lambs arrived O. K. This is my first experience buying 'unsight and unseen,' but am well pleased with the transaction, as there is not a poor one in the lot. I will return them to Clay, Robinson & Co. at East Buffalo when they are finished."

Buchanan Bros., proprietors of the Darlington Stock Farm and breeders of Aberdeen Angus cattle and Percheron horses, Montgomery County, Ind., write: "Double deck of sheep arrived in good condition. We are more than pleased. The age is right, the quality is right and the price is right. Thank you for past favors."

John T. Williams, president of the First National Bank, Converse County, Wyo., writes: "The sale of the last eight cars of sheep was certainly good and I appreciate the way you handled this shipment and the amounts received for it. Thank you for the clean-up of the twenty-four car shipment, proceeds from which are very satisfactory."

George E. Dick, DeKalb county, Ill., writes: "Enclosed find remittance for amount to balance the purchase of two double decks of yearling sheep. They came in good shape and suit me first class. I received the same day one double deck of good lambs from your South Omaha house and also one load of cattle from your Kansas City firm. I am well satisfied with the stock and price."

John C. Tullis, Champaign county, Ohio, writes: "Lambs arrived in a wonderful rain and the cars were in deplorable condition. However, when they were unloaded every lamb walked out in good shape to my surprise. I want to say that we are highly pleased with them. You could not have suited me better. Hope you will do as well with the wethers."

D. T. Morcland, Saline county, Mo., writes: "Many cattle have been put on feed here during the last thirty days. The supply of hogs is not above normal; in fact, there seems to be a shortage for the winter packing season. All of the corn will get ahead of the frost, with the crop a full average. Plenty of moisture and pastures are good."

J. B. Russell, Andrew county, Mo., was on the South St. Joseph market Oct. 20 with a load of his Duroc-Jersey hogs, 71 head, averaging 203 lbs, which our house sold at $9.30, being 5c per cwt above any other sale. Mr. Russell is a successful breeder of Duroc-Jerseys, and he claims they are the most prolific hog that can be handled. He raises more of them than any man in Andrew county, and invariably tops the market with them through our firm.

Among the well pleased customers of Clay, Robinson & Co. at South St. Joseph on Oct. 21 was F. H. Barker, York county, Neb., who brought in two loads of exceptionally well finished hogs of his own raising, that averaged 405 lbs and brought $8.50. These hogs weighed more on the market than they did at home. This was Mr. Barker's first experience on that market, and he was enthusiastic in his praise of the excellent facilities there for handling hogs.

J. H. Kennedy and Frank Virden, well-known cattlemen of Converse county, Wyo., were represented on the South Omaha market with a shipment of cattle.

Wilton Live Stock Association, Monroe county, Wis., on Oct. 20 sold through Clay, Robinson & Co. at Chicago 83 native lambs of 79 lbs average at the top price of $7.10.

W. D. McKeon, Weston county, Wyo., was represented on the South St. Joseph market Oct. 18 with two double-decks of feeding ewes which our house sold at $3.10.

J. D. Elliott and Endicott Bros., young cattle raisers of Custer county, S. D., were at South Omaha with three cars of cattle from their ranch in the Black Hills.

H. D. Lute, a progressive cattle raiser of Keith county, Neb., had at South Omaha on Oct. 12 a shipment of feeders that sold at the satisfactory prices of $4.70 and $4.90.

On Oct. 12 the Diamond Cattle Co., Albany county, Wyo., had six cars of good feeders and heifers at South Omaha, our house selling two cars of the latter at $4.50, averaging 905 lbs.

The 631 feeding wethers of 107 lbs average which sold at the top price of $4.00 at Chicago on Oct. 20, were handled by our house and marketed by J. N. Ringheim, Rosebud county, Mont.

Top price for lambs Oct. 10 at South Omaha was $6.50, obtained by our house for A. Humburg, Bear Lake county, Idaho, for 370 head averaging 69 lbs. The price was also the highest for the week.

R. H. Homer, Albany county, Wyo., for years a prominent patron of our South Omaha house, had a shipment of good cattle there in charge of Otto Burns that sold at very satisfactory figures.

D. R. Whitaker, prominent cattleman of Laramie county, Wyo., had 109 feeder cattle at South Omaha on Oct. 10 that our house sold at $5.95, averaging 1,218 lbs, the extreme top of the week on this class.

Fred Avey was on the South Omaha market from Audubon county, Ia., Oct. 13, with a load of native sheep and lambs to our house. A small bunch of 92-lb lambs sold at $6.50, top price for lambs that week.

W. B. Sleeper, of the Sleeper Ranch Co., had twenty cars of yearling wethers on the South Omaha market Oct. 10 and 11 from Bighorn county, Wyo., that our house sold at the top of the market for that week.

E. W. Ericson, progressive farmer and feeder of Union county, S. D., had 26 yearling steers and heifers mixed of 995 lbs average on the Chicago market Oct. 20, and we sold them at the top price of $7.50 for yearlings.

Best cattle offered at Kansas City on Oct. 17 went at $7.15, handled by our house. There were 36 head of 1,406 lbs average in the lot and were shipped by Walter Williams, the successful feeder of Washington county, Kan.

The Empire Sheep Co., Crook county, Wyo., had a ten-car shipment of sheep and lambs to our South St. Joseph house Oct. 17, with 61-lb lambs selling at $6.45 and 52-lb feeders at $5.55; fat ewes at $3.60 and feeders $2.80@3.10.

Chouteau county, Mont., was represented on the Chicago sheep market Oct. 18 with a big string of sheep marketed by M. Wasesha and handled by us. Included were 130 feeding wethers of 94 lbs average, which topped the market at $4.00.

E. C. Kinney, Carbon county, Wyo., was at South St. Joseph on Oct. 19 with his second shipment to our house this fall. We sold a double of 55-lb lambs to the killers at $6.40 and four doubles of 48-lb feeders at $5.60, top for their class.

Oct. 17 our South St. Joseph house topped the week's market for range lambs and ewes, selling for Lege Christenson, Winta county, Wyo., 573 lambs, averaging 71 lbs, at $6.75; 202 feeders, 56 lbs, at $5.75; fat ewes at $3.90, and feeder ewes at $3.25.

B. Luckenbill, prominent farmer and feeder of Des Moines county, Ia., marketed both cattle and hogs at Chicago on Oct. 19, the shipments being handled by us. The hogs numbered 137 head, averaged 185 lbs, and sold at $9.60, the top by 5c per cwt.

Ed. Yocom, Pipestone county, Minn., was on the Chicago market with a single deck of sheep and lambs of his own raising and reported pastures fine and a big yield of all kinds of crops. Land values are advancing, with the best tracts going up to $85 per acre.

Top of the native lamb market at Chicago on Oct. 18 was $7.00, which price our house obtained for 97 head of 85 lbs average, marketed by Faux & Seagley of Lagrange county, Ind., and for 69 head, averaging 79 lbs, sent in by Renaud & H. of Allegan county, Mich.

On Oct. 18 our South Omaha house handled three cars of good cattle for Egleston & Hill, Banner county, Neb., two cars of feeders going at $5.30, averaging 1,038 lbs, and a car of cows at $4.00. Mr. Hill was in charge of the shipment and was very well pleased with the sales.

Miller Bros., the extensive feeders and shippers of Henry county, Ia., had 16 yearling cattle, including 12 heifers, on the Chicago market Oct. 19. They averaged 865 lbs and were sold by us at $7.50, the top of the market, considering the big proportion of heifers in the shipment.

William Bell, Franklin county, Ia., had a shipment of cattle on the Chicago market Wednesday of last week, and when he learned the prices they brought, he said: "I am certainly pleased with the whole transaction and you may rest assured that C. R. & Co. will receive more of my shipments."

Thomas Pyeatt, Lemhi county, Idaho, writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for which send me the Report two years. Thanks for other favors received. All the fleshy cattle in this valley have been sold to the Big Hole, Mont., feeders at $45@47.50 per head for three-year-old steers and $35 for cows. Our steers were not fat enough to stand shipping."

The price limit for western range wethers at Chicago on Oct. 18 was $4.25, obtained by us for 166 head of 89 lbs average, marketed by M. Fidler, and 67 head, averaging 75 lbs, sent in by C. Mutchelknaus, both being of Hettinger county, N. D. Mr. Fidler also had in 318 ewes of 77 lbs average, for which we obtained the top price of $4.00.

Two well pleased gentlemen were F. W. Hudson of Valley county, Mont., and H. Hanson of the same county, when they learned of the prices we obtained for their stock at Chicago last week. Mr. Hudson, who had in a string of cattle, said this was his second shipment to Clay, Robinson & Co., and that it would certainly not be his last. Mr. Hanson, who also had in cattle, remarked that he would bill all his stock via the Clay, Robinson & Co. route.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Train of Feeding Cattle Bought for Customers by Clay, Robinson & Co., South Omaha

Above photo shows fourteen cars of cattle bought by us at South Omaha on Sept. 15 for well-known Iowa feeders. Six cars were for W. D. Runge of Osage, Iowa, three cars for H. W. Lock of Orchard, Iowa, and five cars for R. L. Clark, shipped to the same point. The three and five-load lots were of the noted "Spade" brand of the Nebraska Land and Feeding Co. (Richards & Comstock), Ellsworth, Neb., while the six-car lot comprised 1,100-lb feeders of exceptionally good breeding. The fourteen cars made up a special Illinois Central train.

Train of Feeding Lambs Bought for One Customer by Clay, Robinson & Co., South Omaha

Above photograph shows a special train comprising seventeen thirty-six foot double-deck cars loaded with 5,800 feeding lambs bought for a single customer. These lambs were all purchased by Clay, Robinson & Co., South Omaha, for Mr. W. F. Gieseke of the Marshall Milling Co., Marshall, Minn., on Sept. 28 and 29. For several seasons past we have bought a large number of feeding lambs at South Omaha for Mr. Gieseke and for a like period our Chicago house has had the pleasure of selling them when fat. Mr. Gieseke has reduced the business of lamb feeding to a science, has one of the best equipped feeding plants in the country and has made a great success in this field. His selection of Clay, Robinson & Co. both in the purchasing of his feeders and the selling of the fat lambs speaks for itself.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, November 4, 1910 | No. 44

Range Cattle Season Near Close.

In about two more weeks the movement of western range cattle to market will subside materially. Of course, straggling shipments will come forward as late as the forepart of December, but the total will not likely be as heavy as during November and December last year. This year the liberal movement started earlier than usual, 266,800 arriving at Chicago during August, September and October. Badly burned pastures accounted for the heavier runs early this season, Wyoming and Montana being especially liberal shippers of immature stock.

Regarding receipts for the season, the total will be a surprise in that it will be below all expectations. Making the liberal estimate of 60,000 for November and December, the season's run will have been 366,300 or 5,800 under last season and only 44,100 larger than in 1908, when receipts were the smal'est since 1903.

This season's supplies are as disappointingly small as last season's were surprisingly large. The liquidation of yearling and two-year-old steers and young she stock was unusually heavy this season, owners fearing to risk carrying many young cattle over this winter because of a short hay crop. On the other hand, more three and four-year-old steers are being held back in the Northwest than in years. Ranchmen knew there would be a shortage next year and were reluctant to part with aged catt'e, as they could rustle for themselves this winter. Thus, in 1911 the Northwest will market relatively few cows and heifers and feeder steers, and a goodly proportion of four and five-year-old beef steers.

Increased Freight Rates Suspended.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, Washington, issued an order suspending increased freight rates which were to have taken effect on 150 western and southwestern railroads on Nov. 1. The suspension extends until March 3, and in the meantime the justification of the increase by the railroads will be inquired into.

The suspension includes general freight rates west of Pitttsburg, and live stock rates between Missouri River and Mississippi River points.

Wise Words From Samuel Allerton.

A representative of the Live Stock Report this week called at the Chicago home of Mr. Samuel W. Allerton to get his views on the live stock situation. There is no better posted man on either feeding or farming affairs than he. It was to give our readers the benefit of his wise counsel and advice that we made this visit.

"What do I think of the cattle situation?" replied Mr. Allerton to our question. "Well, it does not look promising for feeders who have to market their cattle during the next two or three months. Lower prices are likely to come. It is true that some are looking for a reaction with the western range cattle out of the way, which will be in a few weeks more. But it should be remembered that poultry will cut a big figure in the beef trade until after the holidays. Then there are hundreds of feeders who will market their cattle with the advent of a big storm, irrespective of market conditions. They have not provided shed covering. No one can feed cattle profitably out in the open with inclement weather prevailing. After these cattle have been liquidated I believe that the market will work to a higher basis. There are no burdensome supplies in the country. It is true that we have had an enormous movement of cattle to the country in late months, but we have more people to eat beef than ever before. If the cattle could be sent to market in an equable way there would be no low or slumpy trades.

"There never was a better time for the farmer to have a few loads of cattle in the feed lots. Prices are bound to go higher. Then no farmer can afford to market his grain by the elevator route. He is robbing his soil, and that means smaller yields. The Northwest has been literally stripped of cattle and the Southwest is short. Between the drought the past summer and the influx of settlers in those sections a shortage of cattle has been brought about there, and the marketing of calves when they should be held and matured in the East and Midd'e West has brought us face to face with a shortage of feeding stock. The shortage will be more apparent next year."

Mr. Allerton was next asked his opinion of conditions surrounding the hog trade, and said: "There is no surplus of hogs in the country. The crop was decimated in 1908 by high-costing corn and a low hog market. Farmers have been busy breeding swine since the advent of the high market in 1910, but the crop has not been increased to the point where it is as large as the consumptive demand. It will take another year to do this. In the meantime the hog will continue to be a very valuable asset on the farm. In fact, I never expect to again see what you could call low-priced hogs. We now have three great crops of corn. The farmer will not part with his young healthy hogs, but will keep and feed them liberally of the new corn for heavier weight. We will not have a great deal lower market for hogs until 1911. Even then prices will not fall to a level where the hog will fail to make a profit for the farmer under normal conditions."

Although Mr. Allerton is 82 years of age, one would never discern it from his appearance. Keen, alert and stalwart, he carries his years lightly, thanks to a rugged constitution, outdoor life and careful living. While his business interests are enormous, they do not seem to weigh him down with care. His keenest enjoyment is when he is benefiting his fellow men. Many young men owe their first substantial start in business, farming or feeding to Mr. Allerton. He is one of the oldest and most extensive farmers and feeders of cattle and hogs in this country, and none has better farming land or markets better cattle than he and his sons. In addition Mr. Allerton has extensive railroad and stock yard interests.

Wyoming Sheep About All In.

J. D. Noblitt, who has been on the Chicago market marketing a large shipment of Wyoming lambs through Clay, Robinson & Co., says that practically all Wyoming sheep and lambs that will go to market from that state this season has been sent in, and that sheepmen are busy making preparations to winter the comparatively small flocks left on the Wyoming range.

"The clean-up of Wyoming ovine stock this fall has been the nearest to an actual clean-up that has been made within recent years," he said. "The same I believe is true of other western range states. The drought the past summer was the worst we have ever experienced and flockmasters had no alternative, close marketing being made necessary by the lack of grass, water in some localities, and feed for the winter.

"I am shipping earlier than usual this year, because I could not hold the stuff longer without it deteriorating in quality. I do not usually ship until about Nov. 1, and so great is my confidence in a higher market for the immediate future that I believe this shipment of lambs would have netted $1,000 to $1,500 more money if it could have been deferred a week or ten days longer."

The shipment was made under the firm name of Noblitt & Marks, extensive and successful ranchmen of Cooperville, Wyo.

Holiday Number Breeder's Gazette.

We understand that the 1910 holiday number of the Breeder's Gazette, to be issued Dec. 14, is to surpass even the magnificent issues of past years. No reader of the Report should miss the Holiday Gazette, which is the great annual event in agricultural journalism. Any Gazette subscriber will readily admit that the Holiday Number alone is worth the price of a year's subscription.

The regular price of the Breeder's Gazette is $1.75 per year. We are glad to state, however, that we have a clubbing arrangement whereby we are able to furnish the Breeder's Gazette and the Live Stock Report (both papers one year) for only $1.50. Thus you save 75c as compared with cost if you subscribe for each paper separately.

We wish to urge upon our readers the desirability of sending your subscriptions at once. Each year after the Holiday Gazette is out we receive many combination subscription orders wherein the senders urge us to have their Gazette subscription commence with the Holiday Number. This is absolutely impossible. The only way to insure getting the Holiday Gazette is to have your name on their subscription list before same is issued.

If you are already a subscriber to either paper, or both, that does not prevent you from taking advantage of this offer, as your subscription will be extended one year from present expiration date.

Should Not Become Frightened.

What effect will current bear raid have on the hog market when the news is thoroughly disseminated in producing circles? That is the question now agitating the minds of packers and the "talent" generally.

For months producers have balked every time prices were given a set-back. From the producer's standpoint that would be the wise and profitable thing to do for months to come. From practically every corner of the hog raising territory the report is the same: "No big supply of hogs in sight." There is too much corroborative evidence to doubt that in a general sense this is the true situation.

Packers on Tuesday entered the winter packing season with hogs costing around $8.00. Of course, this is putting the cart before the horse with them. However, if producers refuse to take fright, ship only matured hogs and keep the pigs and shotes on the farm, the signs seem to portend a reign of prices that will pay to keep young thrifty hogs on the farm.

Lighter Average Weight of Hogs.

Light and medium weight hogs are coming more plentifully. Last spring's crop, now weighing 165 to 225 lbs, are quite a factor in the trade at Chicago. The decrease in the average weight reflects a partial depletion of the crop of big weight swine.

Receipts of 111,923 last week were the largest in three months and the average weight at 244 lbs stood the lightest in four months and showed 20 lbs decrease from four weeks ago, when the average was 264 lbs, the heaviest since 1893. However, last week's average weight was unusually heavy for this time of the year, being 14 lbs above one year ago and 35 lbs greater than two years ago. This is a result of fine feeding weather, healthy swine and high prices as an incentive for converting corn into pork.

Changing Range Cattle Plans.

F. M. Crockett of Angus, N. M., has come to the conclusion, after an experience of 23 years at cattle ranching in the White mountains in the central part of that state, that raising high-grade cattle and depending upon the open range for feed is a losing game. In the early days of that country the open range plan worked fairly well, but now the country is in different hands, and the loss among high-priced cattle hurts.

Last week Mr. Crockett sold at Kansas City, through Clay, Robinson & Co., 350 cattle, and in about two weeks he will be back with another trainload. And just as fast as he can get cars he is going to cut down his herd, preparatory to removing about 350 miles farther northwest into the extreme northwest corner of that state, not far from the Utah and Arizona lines, where he has a ranch on which he can raise feed and provide for his stock.

"The old way of doing things must be abandoned," said Mr. Crockett. "We have got to take up the newer and more practical plan of handling cattle. We have been accustomed to letting the cattle run on the range and live or die, just as the case might be, and just according to the amount of range feed there was in the country. But our cattle are now worth too much money when they get to be a year old and over to allow them to die off. So I am cleaning up, and when I get rid of the surplus cattle on hand I will go to the northwest and there plant myself and handle cattle in a different way. Out where I am going I can raise feed, and that is just what I will do. We have had three dry years in the White mountains and they have caused heavy losses. I am going to keep just as many cattle hereafter as I can provide feed for and that will pay me better than the other way."

"The Handwriting on the Wall."

Light Run; Cattle Market Acts Well.

Evidence is not lacking that all the cattle market needed was a rest from excessive receipts. A run of 19,000 on Wednesday resulted in local dressed beef buyers and eastern shippers using whip and spur vigorously and a price boost of mostly 15@25c. The trade was in marked contrast with the corresponding day of last week, when receipts were 25,797, buyers very indifferent bidders and prices 25@40c lower for all offerings with the exception of fat handy weights and yearling stock. If the cattle back in the feed lots could be marketed in an equable way, there would be no fear of buyers' serious domination of the market. The near future trade is in the hands of the feeders. Will they liquidate heavily or refuse to ship freely when the trade inclines downward? These are the questions uppermost in the minds of commission men now.

Heavy Wisconsin Lambs Bring a High Price.

Rolland Fuller of North Lake, Wis., who is young in years and wise in experience, was on the Chicago market Nov. 1 with 105 fancy native lambs of 91 lbs average which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $6.50, the top by a big margin for offerings of this weight. They sold straight and would have brought considerably more money if they had not weighed so heavy, buyers giving decided preference to the handy weight lambs at this time. At best time last week they would have readily reached $7.25. If the lambs had been fed out for the International Show they would no doubt have carried away high honors, so choice was their quality. They were grade Shropshires. Young Fuller has 65 ewes and they raised 112 lambs, all of which lived and proved healthy and thrifty. The lambs shrunk only 3¾ lbs per head from home weights, which is an unusually light shrinkage. The 65 ewes averaged 9 lbs of wool per head, which, along with the lambs, Mr. Fuller says the income from the ewes was fully $1,000 for the season. Mr. Fuller always gives his ewes and lambs the best of care and attention at all times, which, with his knowledge of sheep, accounts for the excellent condition of his flocks and the high price his stock always brings on the market. When only ten years old he raised and fed a load of lambs which topped the Chicago market 35c per cwt in spite of a big run on the day they were sent in. He was accompanied to market by his father Albert Fuller, who is a prominent farmer and feeder.

Wider in Scope, Larger in Entries.

The eleventh anniversary of the International Live Stock Exposition will be held at the Union Stock Yards, Chicago, on Nov. 26 to Dec. 3 and will be wider in scope, larger in entries and greater in importance than any of its predecessors. Seventy-five thousand dollars will be given away in prizes, which will be awarded by the most expert and distinguished judges in this country and from abroad. It is the greatest school of instruction of its kind that has ever been presented to breeders, farmers, stockmen and others who are interested in the live stock industry, and an institution of practical information that teaches in a fortnight more than can be learned in double, treble and quadruple the time anywhere else. The comparison of the various champions and other prize winners with their less fortunate brethren shows the breeder and student the weak points and shortcomings of those which do not reach the required standard; and so these men go home, carrying with them an object lesson that can be acquired nowhere else, and a fund of breeding knowledge that will stand by them and be their very best friend.

Steady Patron for 23 Years.

Close business relations extending over a period of twenty-three years affords ample test, not alone of the stability and efficiency of service, but of the appreciation and loyalty of the patron. Frequent mention has been made in the Report columns of late of long-time patrons of Clay, Robinson & Co. Prominent among these long-tried and true friends of Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha is Jame Irvine of St. Paul, Neb. Twenty-three years ago, when a struggling young farmer, trying for a nesting place on the then poorly valued plains of Nebraska, Mr. Irvine became a patron of the South Omaha branch of Clay, Robinson & Co. opened in December of the preceding year. Continuously and without once having strayed from the fold, Mr. Irvine has ever since been one of the valued patrons of our house at that market. As Clay, Robinson & Co. have grown and waxed stronger and greater and better, so has Mr. Irvine prospered and gained of this world's goods, and in the esteem and good will of his neighbors and associates in his home and business life. He now owns liberally of the broad acres of Nebraska soil, which, with intelligent care and cultivation, has been made to blossom as the rose. Mr. Irvine was kind enough to intimate he felt some measure at least of his prosperity was due to the care and attention his interests have had at the hands of Clay, Robinson & Co. He is a firm believer in the efficiency and value of our service, both buying and selling, and at South Omaha last week had us buy for him a load of good feeders.

Growing reminiscent, Mr. Irvine made some interesting comparisons of the "then and now." Interrogated as to land values in his neighborhood, he stated present prices are ranging around $100 per acre, and this reminded him that in the days of his early residence in Nebraska, whenever a person could be found with sufficient temerity to accept a deed to a quarter section, the maker had to be watched to prevent him from throwing in an extra quarter, so little was the land valued.

Only A Few More Big Shipments.

Lewistown, Mont., was represented on the range cattle market at Chicago last week with a train of fourteen cars. The shippers were N. C. Nelson, George H. Day, W. O. Downing, Slater Bros., Chris Nelson and D. Brabant, all of whom are prominent and successful ranchmen. Most of these gentlemen sold their stock through Clay, Robinson & Co. for the first time last week and each one of them were unstinted in their praise of the way their cattle were handled and the prices they brought. According to them there will be a few more big shipments from that part of Montana, most of which will be on the beef order. Both cattle and sheep holdings were cut down to the lowest proportions in many years, due to the drought of the past summer and the shortage in the hay crop.

Cattle Situation Sized Up Right.

T. R. Perrett of Cerro Gordo county, Ia., writes: "Out of about fifteen live stock commission firms that have been writing regarding the markets, Clay, Robinson & Co. are the only one that had the cattle situation sized up right. All the rest predicted a shortage. You did not, and there certainly does not seem to be any apparent thus far."

Dry Farmers Have Ranchmen on Run.

Mack Highfill of Folsom, N. M., was at Kansas City last week with 16 loads of cattle and five loads of lambs. This large shipment came from the northeast part of that state, one of the good grazing districts, which in recent years has been invaded by the settlers and dry farmers. While Mr. Highfill regards that as a splendid grazing country, he admits that the days of the open range are about over. Mr. Highfill is prominent in New Mexico ranching circles and is one of Clay, Robinson & Co.'s valuable clients.

"We might just as well surrender and lay down," he said. "These settlers are coming in, and they already have the best of the country and are farming. It is dry farming, and this year it was dry farming sure enough, as it was a very dry season up till about August, which cut their crops short. But they are there to stay and they are going to make a go of dry farming. The first settlers may not all succeed, but the rest that come on later and join those that stay will succeed, and finally that will be a farming state. They have us all on the run, and we are about at the end of our rope."

He Likes the Report.

J. D. Evans of Washburn county, Wis., writes: "I could not well do without the Report, even apart from the market and live stock information contained therein. Such articles as 'In the Land of the Mormon' and 'The Sheep Herder's Grave' by Mr. Clay are charming. Being a child of the heather and the gorse myself, his glimpses of Scottish life awaken old-time memories of days among the sheep in the glens of Brecknockshire, as well as in the sage-brush in the shade of the Rockies. Please find enclosed 50c to continue my subscription."

Montana Markets Stock Closely.

Thomas W. Chittick, formerly in Chicago cattle department of Clay, Robinson & Co., and now live stock agent of the Milwaukee, St. Paul & Puget Sound Railroad, with headquarters at Helena, Mont., paid us a visit last week. Tom says the season's crop of range cattle and sheep has been about all marketed from his territory. The hay crop is short in most of the Northwest, which will make it a hardship for those who have much stock to carry over this winter. The disposition has been to market as closely as possible where hay is scarce. Many of the settlers in the dry farming area surely found it very dry this year and the majority had slim crops.

Buffalo Bill's French Nimrod.

The retirement of "Buffalo Bill" recalls his own story at the expense of a French Count who came to hunt on his cattle ranch.

"What luck?" asked Colonel Cody, when the Frenchman returned empty-handed.

"Vair good, exclaimed the Count, smiling with pleasure. "Ze balrds were too difficile, but of ze wild cows and calves you will find seven dead near ze water-hole."

Limits on Commission Men.

"Many a man has failed to realize the most money for his stock on the live stock market because he has attempted to gauge conditions better than his commission man could," comments the National Stockman and Farmer. "It is a common thing for a shipper to put a price limit on his stock and to miss an opportunity to sell it at a fair figure because his representative cannot use his judgment. This of course is true of declining markets, but it is not always confined to them The market price is not affected by what the stock cost in the country, or by what the owner thinks it is worth, but by conditions existing on market day. If the consignor has not sufficient confidence in his representative on the market to trust his judgment as to prices he should seek another man to do his selling. If he has confidence in his representative he should show it by trusting him to get the best price the market affords, and not miss a sale by delay or a shift in the condition of trade. The time to sell is when the buyer is at hand and bidding the market price. It hurts sometimes to take market prices, but on a dull day it usually hurts more to put a string on the commission man and so hamper him that he cannot make the best deal possible under the circumstances.'

Arkansas Valley Hard to Beat.

C. P. Ayers of Great Bend, Kan., likes to make an occasional visit back in Illinois where he was born and raised, but when it comes to sticking up for Kansas he is a "standpatter." Mr. Ayers stopped off at Kansas City and paid Clay, Robinson & Co. a visit on his way to McLean county, Ill. It was 24 years ago that he left his native county and went out along the Arkansas Valley and settled near Great Bend.

"It is all very good to visit one's birthplace, and home folks, but I could not think of going back to McLean county to remain," said Mr. Ayers. "That part of the Arkansas Valley where I live is certainly hard to beat. The great wheat crops and the alfalfa yield on farms up there make it an ideal place for the farmer. Just think of cutting four crops of alfalfa a season and then selling it at $10 a ton. Of course, our farmers feed up a great deal of it. On every farm there is so much feed that is good but which cannot be sold that more or less cattle feeding must be done to get the benefit of this forage. But alfalfa beats all other feeds in the way of hay. Our farmers now think there is no use in attempting to raise hogs or feed cattle without it. The more alfalfa is raised the higher the price seems to go. In Illinois farm lands are held at higher figures than our farms out along the Arkansas sell at, but still we can sell the crops of our lands for more than the average Illinois farmer."

Ranging Sheep in Colorado.

Charles Heathers of Hesperus, Colo., who marketed sixteen carloads of lambs through Clay, Robinson & Co. at Kansas City last week, grew up with that rough mountain range country. He knows every sheep trail up and down the mountains, and the old freight trails over which they used to haul their freight a distance of 220 miles before there was a railroad over the mountains at that point. Mr. Heathers lives in La Plata county. In shipping stock from that far off corner of the state they are loaded into narrow gauge cars, in which they travel over 200 miles, when they are loaded into the large standard gauge cars. It generally requires almost a week to make the long trip.

"While we have a great many sheep in that part of the mountain range country, about all the cattle are gone," said Mr. Heathers. "The cattle have been driven out by settlers in the valleys, who are now raising crops under irrigation. We run our sheep over a large territory. In winter we get them down out of the mountains, and drive them over into the valleys of New Mexico, or out into the deserts of Utah. In handling our flocks we have a summer residence and a winter residence. We travel about with the sheep up and down the mountains all summer, and when the winter comes on we move them out into the plains and valleys on lower altitudes. Almost every bit of valley land in that part of Colorado that can be farmed is under irrigation; and fine crops of small grain, vegetables and fruits are raised. It is a grand country. The valleys are about 5,000 feet or a little more above sea level, and these are surrounded by chains of mountains that are covered with snow all the time."

What of the Winter Hog Market?

"The hog can transform a bushel of corn into double the quantity of pork as the steer can into beef," says E. W. Wagner, a Chicago provision expert. "Annual increase of the hog 500 per cent, versus 30 to 80 per cent for horses, cattle and sheep. Ten bushels of corn required to round out a hog. The hog is the farm saving bank. University of Illinois states: 'A 225-lb hog may be raised on 900 lbs or 2,000 lbs of feed. Result depends on breeding and feeding.' Cost of producing 100 lbs of pork with corn valued at 63c per bushel, $6.95; with other mixtures at 63c corn, $4.47. On this basis, with 35@40c corn, 100 lbs of pork can be built for around 3c per lb. The packer is watching corn. He intends to fill his cellars on the basis of 35@40c corn. If he is successful in his resistance, the 8c or the 9c hog is an impossibility, notwithstanding the fact that the hog population on Jan. 1, 1911, will be 10 per cent below a proper total. Packing stocks are at a 'nothing level' and the packer will easily sell every pound of his winter slaughtering. The 3,000,000,000 corn crop and the reduced corn price will, however, rule hog values. Southern states with their record corn yield, will undoubtedly score a heavy hog increase in 1911, and can sell their hogs with a liberal profit at 5@6c. A 10 per cent increase in Illinois, Iowa, Ohio and Indiana will give these middle west states 16,300,000 hogs in January next against 14,883,000 in 1910, 17,769,000 in 1909, and 18,800,000 in 1908. In November and December, 1908, 1,800,000 hogs entered Chicago. The 1909 November and December total showed a decrease of 500,000 at 1,300,000. Recent arrivals do not suggest a serious increase in the coming winter rush. In the next report Ohio and Indiana will undoubtedly increase their totals 10 to 15 per cent. Reports from other states are mainly mixed. Missouri will not gain seriously. On the basis of the 1909 corn yield, Illinois should increase 500,000."

Sheep Feeding Proposition Looks Good.

Mahlon Bishop, a prominent feeder and farmer, and a strong advocate of the Clay, Robinson & Co. buying and selling service, of Topeka, Kan., thinks the sheep feeding proposition looks favorable this fall. Mr. Bishop owns a large farm near Abilene, Kan., also a farm near Valencia, Kan. Last week he was at Kansas City and bought four loads of good western wethers which he will at once start on feed. These wethers will be fed along until about February before he will market them. By that time, on a ration of corn and alfalfa, they will be good. It has not been but a few years since Mr. Bishop came to Kansas from McLean county, Ill., He has been investing in lands and handling stock, and made considerable money.

"So far as I can see the sheep feeding business looks as promising to me as anything else," said Mr. Bishop. "There ought to be some profit in feeding both cattle and sheep this winter. Feed is cheaper. Feeding sheep cost less than they did a year ago. These are items of considerable importance. I like to handle sheep. Everything being equal, I would prefer them to cattle. In feeding cattle a person has to handle hogs, and so that is another thing that adds a little to the work. And without the hogs, cattle feeding is a little risky. I feed alfalfa and corn. It is the best of all rations, and the one that does the work best. I will feed in a dry lot, in troughs."

Something Shippers Should Avoid.

Do not divide your consignments of cattle between two or more commission firms on the same day. This has brought the loss of thousands of dollars to those who have followed this plan. Every split shipment is watched by buyers. They use one firm against the other in trying to lower prices on such consignments. Buyers reluctantly bid on divided shipments. Each fears that the other may make the cheapest purchase. The buyer who pays the most will be criticised by his house. Thus split shipments often are draggy sale and the owner suffers a monetary loss. It can readily be seen that if one firm has the entire shipment buyers must necessarily compete with each other for the same. This enables the salesman to raise the price. If shippers insist on dividing their shipments they should do so on different days.

A Sharp Youngster.

"Tommy, your master's report of your work is very bad. Do you know that when George Washington was your age he was head of the school?"

"Yes, father, and when he was your age he was president of the United States."

TOPPED WEEK'S LAMB MARKET.

During first half of the week top of Chicago lamb market was $6.75, no other sales being within 10c per cwt of this figure. The sales were made by Clay, Robinson & Co. on Wednesday, and follow: For F. S. Seymour of Eyota, Minn., two loads of 85 lbs average—a none too popular weight at this time—and for J. Shirk of Bricelyn, Minn., one load of 78 lbs average.

TOPPED CHICAGO CATTLE MARKET.

The heavy cattle which made $7.75 and the yearlings $7.60, the top by 10c per cwt for the respective offerings at Chicago on Wednesday, as well as for the week, were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. and fed and marketed by M. O. Sullivan of Waveland, Ind. The first lot numbered 17 head and averaged 1,568 lbs, and the second lot comprised 26 head of 1,157 lbs average. We also sold for Mr. Sullivan 26 beeves of 1,433 lbs average at $7.60. All of the cattle were grade Shorthorns and Herefords.

This makes the tenth consecutive year that Clay, Robinson & Co. have topped the Chicago cattle market with Mr. Sullivan's cattle. He is one of Indiana's pioneer citizens, as well as one of the best and most successful feeders and farmers in that part of the country.

Why You Miss Copies.

Much to our regret, we have found it impossible to regularly mail each issue of the Report to every name on our general mailing list.

Paid subscribers, of course, receive every issue promptly and regularly, but those who are getting the paper "complimentary" necessarily frequently miss copies.

This is because of the fact that our general mailing list has grown so large that it would be out of the question for any business concern, however large, to stand the enormous postage expense of covering it all every week.

By "rotating" the circulation, that is, sending to part of our list one week and another part another week, we are able to cover the entire list, but, as stated, not with every copy.

Probably we have no one but ourselves to blame for the present enormous demand for the Report, in that we have apparently succeeded in producing a paper that stockmen regard as practically indispensable to them.

Such of our readers as are not paid subscribers, and who feel that they want every copy without break or interruption, are invited to make it possible for us to comply, by enrolling as paid subscribers, for which purpose a coupon appears below.

This is not in any sense compulsory, and we shall continue as in the past to do the best we can in the way of complimentary distribution.

It is simply a question of whether or not it is worth 50c per year for you to receive each issue of the Report promptly and regularly.

Use this Coupon for enrolling as a Regular Paid Subscriber to the Live Stock Report.

Year ago	4.25	7.50	4.85	5.50	3.60	4.35

Marketing Thursday of last week 3,000. While the plain and medium beef steers sold steady, good to choice kinds went 10@15c lower. Best offerings reached $6.00, obtained by us. She stock made a firm range and feeders sold steady.

Around 500 arrived Friday. There was no material change in prices for either steers or she stock. The market was inclined to slowness, although all offerings were bought up in due time.

Receipts for the week totaled 32,500, against 23,000 the previous week and 21,500 corresponding week last year. Marketing for the season 272,800, against 292,900 same period of last year. The bad break for good to choice native steers effected weakness in rangers of value above $5.50, the week closing with the prices for these 25@35c lower than the finish of the previous week. However, those of value under $5.50 held steady. Packers showed marked partiality for the lower-costing kinds, this class of beef meeting with best consumptive demand. Top beeves made $6.65 and most trading was at $5.00@5.75. Cows and heifers advanced 15@25c for the week, with sales largely at $3.90@4.85. Feeders averaged steady, with bulk sales at $4.75@5.35.

This week started out with a total of only 4,000. Quality was only fair, but packers cleared the pens of beef steers in good time at fully steady prices. Sales were rarely above $5.50, although we landed some lots up to $6.00. Bulk of trading was at $5.15@5.50. She stock sold steady and generally at $4.00@4.75. Good quality strong weight feeders held steady and the plainer and lighter kinds declined 10@15c.

Marketing Tuesday 5,000. There was good demand for beef steers and the supply was bought up in good season at strong prices. Strictly choice offerings were not available, best offered going at $6.25. She stock was slower sale, although prices were about steady. Feeders dull but about steady sale.

Supply Wednesday 3,000. Buyers were eager for beef steers and prices were boosted 10@15c. Real good offerings were not available. She stock strong sale. Feeders strong to 10c higher, good heavy grades being a big dime higher.

Range Sheep.

Following shows top prices for and bulk sales of western range sheep and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Sheep			Lambs
	Top.	Bulk.		Top.	Bulk.
This week	$4.30	$3.50@4.25		$6.35	$....@....
Last week	4.35	3.75	4.25	*6.90	6.50	6.85
Year ago	4.60	3.50	4.50	7.25	6.80	7.15

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

The market for both sheep and lambs was hit a hard blow last week, closing 25@40c lower for lambs than the previous week's finish and 25c lower for yearlings and sheep. A big run of natives and increased marketing of fed-westerns proved depressing factors in the range trade. We topped the week's lamb market at $6.90, although there was no safe outlet higher than $6.60 late in the week. Bulk week's trading was at $6.50@6.85. Yearlings largely at $5.25@5.40. Prime wethers reached $4.35 during the week and $3.85@4.25 gathered in most of them. Top ewes $4.00, obtained by us, and bulk $3.50@3.85. All price changes for feeders tended downward, especially late in the week. Bulk of the trading for the week was at $5.75@6.40 for lambs, $5.00@5.25 for yearlings, $3.50@3.85 for wethers and $2.50@3.00 for ewes.

This week started out with a run of 45,654. The proportion of rangers was one of the smallest Monday totals of the season. While some good to choice sheep were included, bulk of arrivals were light feeding lambs and thin aged ewes, conclusive evidence of the close proximity to the end of the movement from the western range. Prices were not materially changed for either fat or feeding grades from the bad finish of last week. A string of prime Montana wethers made $4.30. A fair class of Idaho lambs went for slaughter at $6.35 and we topped the feeding lamb trade with offerings at $6.40.

Receipts Tuesday 37,935. Practically all of the range lambs were of the feeder variety and sold at $6.25@6.40 for good to choice offerings, while many of the common light weight grades were a drug on the market at $4.50@5.00. A cut off the band of Montana wethers which made $4.30 the previous day went 5c lower at $4.25. Good feeding ewes found outlet at $2.75@3.00, but the commoner kinds met a very unreliable outlet.

Run Wednesday 35,000. There was outlet for good fat offerings at steady prices, but feeding lambs and ewes sold 25@50c lower than last week's close, with common and light grades a drug on the market.

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

Below will be found bulk sales of feeder sheep, yearlings and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk Sheep.		Bulk Yearlings.		Bulk Lambs.
This week	$2.00@3.85		$4.50@5.00		$5.25@6.25
Last week	2.50	3.90	5.00	5.25	5.75	6.40
Year ago	2.65	4.50	4.75	5.35	6.50	6.75
2 years ago	2.75	4.00	4.15	4.35	5.10	5.35
3 years ago	2.25	4.40	4.25	4.75	5.75	6.35
4 years ago	3.50	5.10	5.10	5.50	6.00	6.60

Prices for feeding sheep and lambs were on the down grade this week. During the first half of the week lambs and ewes declined 25@50c. Those carrying good weight and of the thrifty class met with fair demand at the price break, but anything on the common and light order were a drug on the market, with the outlet very unreliable.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of feeder sheep and lambs.

TWO VIEWS OF THE SHEEP FEED LOTS OF E. F. EVARTS, CHESANING, MICH.

These lambs were purchased at Chicago by Clay, Robinson & Co. and Mr. Evarts has the following to say regarding them: "The four cars of lambs came O. K. and I must say they are a fine bunch. I am well pleased. Many thanks for your trouble for sifting so good for me." Mr. Evarts appears in the photo on the left and his son in the foreground of the one on the right.

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

At the close of last week good to choice handy weight beef steers and yearling cattle showed 10@15c loss from the finish of the previous week. These met best favor from both local and eastern buyers throughout the week, consumptive demand being strongest for the lighter cuts of beef. Other offerings, especially big weight beeves, met dull demand, and prices dropped anywhere from 25@50c. Numerous loads of heavy weights were unsold at the close, due to unsatisfactory bids. The greatest weakening factor was the narrowing of the outlet through eastern shipping channels. A top of $7.90 was paid for prime heavy at the start of the week, but at the close there was no safe outlet for a similar class above $7.50. Yearlings topped the market at $7.65. The bulk of the week's trading was at $5.75@7.35. The week's run was 77,577, included in which were 22,500 western rangers, against 65,335 corresponding week last year.

This week started out with a total of 34,606, of which 4,000 were westerns. While it was a very uneven deal, the trade was by no means a bad one, considering the big run. Offerings of value above $6.25 proved best sale, these going generally 10c higher. Unevenness was a marked feature for those of value under $6.25, prices being anywhere from steady to 10@15c lower. Quality was the poorest in a long while, an indication of feeders' inclination to market their plain and medium flesh steers freely. Thirty-three head of prime 1,337-lb offerings topped the market at $7.60. The bulk of the day's business was at $5.65@7.00.

Marketing Tuesday, 10,000, included in which were 5,000 westerns. Nominally the market was on an unchanged basis with the previous day. It required hard work to get rid of the common and medium offerings, and most of the more desirable kinds were held over. Best offerings available were 26 yearlings of 878 lbs average at $6.85.

Under the moderate run of 19,000, including 3,000 rangers, on Wednesday buyers made short work of the crop of beef steers at prices 15@25c higher. Top beeves at $7.75 were handled by us for M. O. Sullivan of Waveland, Ind. There were 17 head in the lot and they averaged 1,568 lbs. We also sold Mr. Sullivan's yearlings of 1,157 lbs average at the top price of $7.60.

Butcher Stock.

Bulk sales of beef cows and heifers, canners and cutters, and bulls this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk cows and heifers.		Bulk canners and cutters.		Bulk bulls.
This week..	$3 90@5.00		$2.65@3.50		$3 85@4.65

Last week's trade in cows and heifers closed up in excellent condition. In spite of the big break for beef steers, prices for she stock showed 15@25c advance over the finish of the previous week. Moderate supplies and a brisk demand proved too much for the buying interests. The call is for cheaper beef, and packers are thus compelled to pay relatively high prices for cows and heifers. Bulk of the beef grades brought $4.00@5.00 and most of the canners and cutters $2.65@3.65. Bulls showed 25@35c advance for the week, the demand for bolognas being very urgent. Sales were largely at $3.75@4.50. Vealers held a remarkably high price last week. At the close the market was on a firm basis, with fancy vealers up to $10.25, right at the highest figure ever paid on this market.

At the start of this week cows and heifers sold generally steady. The quota of these offerings was light and the general demand strong. Prime yearling heifers of 828 lbs reached $6.75. Bulls were weak to 10c lower. Bulk of the calves showed 25c loss.

The Tuesday market was a dull to 10c lower deal. Trading was very uneven. Offerings of value around $4.25 and under proved hardest sale, they being in very large proportion. Bulls were generally steady sale. The decline in the calf market the previous day was regained, prime offerings reaching $10.25.

Wednesday's trade in cows and heifers was 10c lower. Bulls and calves made a steady range.

At the close of last week stockers and feeders showed 15@25c decline from the previous week's finish. A fairly liberal proportion of these offerings and the big break in beef steer prices proved too much for the selling interests. However, there was ready outlet for all desirable steers and she stock at the prices. Near-by feeders continued good buyers of heavy fleshy steers, and eastern parties bought liberally of the lighter weights. Assorted heavy fleshy feeders of extra choice quality went back for a short turn in the feed lot at a cost of $6.00, but they were well worth the money for slaughter. Bulk of the trading was at $4.65@5.25 and most of the stockers went at $3.85@4.25.

At the start of this week receipts were liberal and buyers very bearish, and a decline of 10@15c was logical. The market was dull from start to finish. Common and plain light grades were especially hard sale, most call being for offerings of desirable quality.

There was a better attendance on Tuesday, but sellers failed in their efforts to boost prices. Fresh arrivals, along with those held over from the previous day, proved ample for all trade requirements. The market continued dull and unsatisfactory for the common and plain light steers.

Opening steady, market closed 10c lower for the plainer and lighter lots on Wednesday.

Last week's average price for hogs was the lowest in ten weeks. The average at $8.43 stood 15c under the previous week, but 62c higher than the corresponding week of last year. At the close of the week the limit was $8.95 for fancy light and handy butchers, comparing with $9.40 at the start of the week and 45c lower than the close of the previous week. The bulk of the business in packing grades on the last market day of the week was at $7.85@8.20. Receipts for the week were 111,923, the largest in three months, and comparing with 109,981 corresponding week last year. Reflecting the increased marketing of light and medium weights was the average weight for the week at 243 lbs proved the lightest in four months.

This week started out with a run of 26,547. The market got worse as the day advanced. Speculators started the ball rolling by paying prices 5@10c lower. Then a few small packers got in at 10@20c decline. When the big packers started operating it was a 20@30c lower deal. Early top was $8.90, then $8.80 and finally $8.60. Bulk of trading was at $7.45@8.50 for packing and shipping grades.

The Tuesday run was 17,000. Prices declined 10@20c from the general market of yesterday. We topped the market with fancy handy weight butchers at $8.65. There were few sales above $8.50 and most of the packing grades were laid in at a cost of $7.35@7.55, with offerings carrying a butcher top at $7.65@7.85, while bulk of the heavy and light shipping were at $8.00@8.50.

Marketing Wednesday 23,000. Opening 5@10c higher, trade closed with advance lost. Fancy light topped at $8.70. Bulk medium and light shipping $8.20@8.60 and heavy shipping $7.80@8.00. Packing grades largely at $7.40@7.65.

Native Sheep and Lambs.

Last week's trade in sheep and lambs closed in wretched condition. As compared with best time of the previous week, which was Friday, lambs were 50@60c lower and sheep 25c. A bad market situation in the East, where prices were relatively lower than here, was the bearing-down factor. We topped the week's lamb trade at $7.10, but at the close $6.65 was the limit. Most of the week's trading was at $6.25@6.75. A prominent market feature was the forced sorting out of heavy bucky lambs from loads, and they had to sell $1.00@1.50 per cwt under choice handy trimmed lambs. Good to choice ewes made $4.00@4.25 up to Friday, when $3.75@4.00 bought similar offerings. The week's receipts were 199,808, against 131,372 corresponding week last year.

At the start of this week total arrivals were 45,654. It was generally a steady deal in both sheep and lambs. Fortunately receipts were held down; a big run would likely have caused further sinking of the price range. Top lambs went at $6.65, we obtaining this figure, and sales were largely at $6.25@6.50. While we sold some fancy ewes at $4.25@4.35, there was no safe outlet above $4.00.

Receipts Tuesday were 35,000. Opening slow, the lamb market gained a little strength as the session progressed. However, prices were not quotably higher. We again sold several lots of lambs at the top price of $6.65. It took choice offerings of strong weight to make $6.50 and fat 100 lbs average had to go at $6.00. Sheep slow and weaker sale, bulk ewes going at $3.50@3.85 and best at $4.00.

Marketing Wednesday 35,000. A firmer market was had for good to choice offerings, but half-fat stock met dull and unreliable demand. We topped the lamb trade at $6.75, and $4.00 was about the limit for prime heavy ewes.

B. T. Ridgeley, Baltimore county, Md., writes: "Car of cattle came. They are all right and very satisfactory."

Adam Zimmerman, Chaves county, N. M., writes our Kansas City house: "Many thanks for the good sale of my cattle. It was the best I ever had."

H. E. Leach, Medina county, Ohio, writes: "Deck of lambs arrived all right. They are exactly what I ordered; are a very even bunch and are doing fine."

Joseph Koenig, Mantitowac county, Wis., writes our South St. Paul house: "Sheep arrived in good condition. I am well satisfied with the purchase. They are doing well."

I. L. Piper, Faribault county, Minn., writes: "I look for the Report each week and don't want to be without it. Enclosed find $1.00 to extend my subscription two years."

George Clifton, Williams county, Ohio, writes: "Keep the Report coming. It is the most value for the money I ever bought. Please find enclosed $1.00 for two years more."

V. F. Blankenbaker, Chouteau county, Mont., writes: "I received complete returns for the sheep and am well pleased with the way you handled them and also with prices."

Alfred Conrad, Henry county, Ill., writes our South Omaha house: "Double deck of ewes and lambs arrived. They certainly are a fine lot and look cheap. Thank you for your good service."

W. G. Fulton, cashier of the Fairland (Ill.). Banking Co., writes: "Load of cattle received in good shape. Am well pleased with the purchase and thank you for prompt attention."

William Garner, Franklin county, Ohio, writes: "I would like to have another load of heifers like you sent me last week. The steers arrived in good condition and I was much pelased with them."

H. F. Arnott, Nemaha county, Kas., writes our South St. Joseph house: "Your sales have been entirely satisfactory to me."

L. D. Sweetman, prominent dealer in cattle and horses of Valley county, Mont., writes: "Yours containing check for my shipment of cattle received. In looking over the sales it seems that I got about the highest price going that day."

A. B. Hensley, Montgomery county, Mo., writes our South Omaha house: "Sheep arrived and think they are a very good bunch. Thank you and hope to be able to do some more business with you."

The extreme top for lambs at Chicago on Nov. 1 was $6.65, which price we obtained for three different lots of natives. The sales follow: For E. G. Frost of Portage county, Wis., 92 head, 71 lbs; J. A. Shimerada of Miner county, S. D , 114 head, 72 lbs, and Hauft & Pretz of Eousia, county, Ia., 79 head, 87 lbs.

C. C. Wilson, De Kalb county, Mo., writes our South St. Joseph house: "I have received the photo of my premium load of feeder cattle which you handled for me through the Live Stock show last month, and I wish to convey to you my appreciation for the very fine treatment which you have extended to me."

Milo C. Nelson, Floyd county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Ewes came and are certainly a fine bunch. Am immensely pleased with them. They were beyond my expectation. They surely ought to raise some lambs for Clay, Robinson's high prices next year. Thank you for the selection you made."

Alex Marshall, prominent breeder and importer of Shorthorn cattle and Leicester sheep of Tuscola county, Mich., writes: "Lambs arrived all in fine condition and I am more than pleased with them. They are a good bunch of feeders. Thank you for square dealing. I will certainly do all I can to help you make a success in your business."

Clyde Beers, Genesee county, Mich., writes: "I have received the lambs you sent me and they are a good bunch. Enclosed find $2.00 for which send me the Report two years and the Breeder's Gazette one year."

Among prominent dealers in sheep who had shipments to our East St. Louis house were: Calvin Clark, Craighead county, Ark:; H. L. Bufford, Shelby county, Mo.; J. Cantrell, Webster county, Mo.; W. H. Lynes, Callaway county, Mo.; L. A. Smith, Shelby county, Mo.; Joe Oswald, Cooper county, Mo.; Benjamin Gratz, Saint Louis county, Mo.; J. W. Shannon, Livingston county, Mo.; W. L. AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

On Oct. 27 our South Omaha house handled five cars of cattle for J. H. & W. L. Howe, Bighorn county, Wyo., valued patrons of our firm.

Charles O'Donnell, Yellowstone county, Mont., writes: "We are having fine weather now, and have more green grass than any time all summer."

J. W. McFarland, Meade county, S. D., for years a valued patron of Clay, Robinson & Co., was at South Omaha with a consignment of cattle.

Bighorn county, Wyo., shipments to the South Omaha market the past week included sheep from J. L. Baird, A. M. Sanberg and G. Leeper.

Our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle last week for Babcock Bros., Grant county, Neb., prominent stockmen of that section.

A. Rasmussen, Custer county, S. D., a regular patron of our South Omaha house, was on that market with two cars of cattle that sold satisfactorily.

Weltner Bros., extensively engaged in cattle and sheep raising in Sheridan county, Wyo., were represented on the South Omaha market with cattle in charge of F. H. Weltner.

F. M. Culver, Montgomery county, Ia., was at South Omaha on Oct. 26 with a single deck of fed lambs that averaged 73 lbs and were sold by our house at $7.00, top for the day. Mr. Culver was very well pleased with the price.

Ray M. King, Grundy county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Load of yearling ewes arrived in good shape and were just what I asked you to get me. Thank you for the good work."

J. W. Brinnegar, Sweetwater county, Wyo., had a train of sheep at South Omaha on Oct. 26, including 1,231 feeding lambs, which our house sold at $6.10, top of the trade for several weeks.

On Monday our Chicago house handled two carloads of cattle for Joseph H. Warren of Delaplane, Va. It is rare indeed that any cattle reach the Chicago market from that section of the country, and interest naturally centers in shipments of this character.

The J. Morton Sheep Co., Converse county, Wyo., had a big string of feeding lambs on the Chicago market Oct. 31, the bulk of which were sold by us at $6.10@6.40. The latter price was the top for feeders and the sale included 480 head of 55 lbs average.

Amel Taylor, Newton county, Ind., writes: "Cattle arrived all safe and sound. To say I am pleased is putting it mildly. Your feeder buyer knows his business and did just as I would if I had been there. When they are fat if you sell them as good as you bought them they will surely make me money."

On Oct. 26 our South Omaha house handled a shipment of good sheep and lambs for Mrs. R. S. Condie, Salt Lake county, Utah, shipped from Bannock county, Idaho. Included were 200 lambs that sold at $6.75, averaging 63 lbs, top for westerns during the week. There were also two cars of feeding lambs that went at $6.00, and fat ewes at $3.60@3.80.

Ralph C. Knox, Whiteside county, Ill., writes our South Omaha house: "Sheep arrived; all strong and lively. I am very well satisfied with the buy, and after I feed these out may have you buy me some cattle."

John D. Matthews, Clay county, Mo., writes our Kansas City house: "Thank you for your services in selling the load of hogs sent you. Topping the market and the prompt returns were very much appreciated by me. I will be pleased to have you handle my future consignments."

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling cattle shipments for the following prominent dealers: J. P. Phillips, Panola county, Miss.; C. L. Bruce, Pettis county, Mo.; Jeffrey & Jeffrey, Woodruff county, Ark.; Monsees & Warner, Pettis county, Mo.; M. Mayfield, Cooper county, Mo.; Dr. I. G. Gee, Jefferson county, Ill.; Hanson Bros., Pickens county, Ala.; Frank Marmion, Van Buren county, Ia.; J. W. Monk, Gentry county, Mo.; I. P. Stephens, Monroe county, Mo.; Hugh Landers, Jackson county, Ill.; J. W. Wise, Pope county, Ill.; C. W. Erisman, Audrain county, Mo.; R. M. Shannon, Audrain county, Mo.; C. F. Yancy & Sons, Saline county, Mo.; J. E. Thornton, Union county, Ill.; Cobb & Ray, Wichita county, Tex.; Joe Oswald, Cooper county, Mo.; J. B. Spiva & Co., Stoddard county, Mo.; Nunnelly & Sailor, Montgomery county, Mo.; W. T. Burford, Macoupin county, Ill.; H. M. Harrison, Montgomery county, Ill.; Books Bros., Callaway county, Ill.; T. B. Stroup, Stoddard county, Mo.; F. E. Hoelscher, Warren county, Mo.; J. G. Cannon & Son, Lonoke county, Ark.; Marion & Webb, Williamson county, Ill.; C. S. Batchelder, Macon county, Ill.; Edward Dillon, Jackson county, Ill.

TO INTENDING EXHIBITORS

IN CARLOAD CLASSES

International Live Stock Exposition

TO BE HELD AT CHICAGO, NOV. 26 to DEC. 3, 1910.

AS the time for the "Big Show" is rapidly approaching, we desire to hear from persons who intend exhibiting in the Carload Classes. It will be mutually beneficial if all such will fill out, detach and mail us the blank form on lower portion of this page. This will enable us to enter your exhibit in its proper class. Bear in mind the VERY IMPORTANT FACT that ALL ENTRIES IN CARLOAD CLASSES MUST BE MADE ON OR BEFORE NOV. 19.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Eberhardt Bros., Blue Earth county, Minn., had 57 hogs of 206 lbs average at Chicago Oct. 27, and we landed them at the top price of $9.10.

Charles O'Donnell, Yellowstone county, Mont., writes: "We are having fine weather here now. I have cattle on feed and they are doing fine."

B. S. Love, Berrien county, Mich., was the owner and we the sellers of the 95-lb lot of native ewes which made the top price of $4.25 at Chicago on Oct. 27.

J. G. Woodrum, Columbia, Mo., writes: "The weather is fine. Stock all in good shape. Hogs are scarce and but few cattle are going on feed here."

The native ewes which averaged 116 lbs and brought the top price of $4.25 at Chicago on Oct. 26 were marketed by L. G. Sherbon, Grundy county, Ia., and sold by our house.

Writing to our Kansas City house, S. E. Test, Henry county, Ind., says: "Cattle are very satisfactory and I am well pleased with your method of doing business."

The best price for western range cattle at Chicago on Oct. 27 was $6.00. We obtained this figure for 37 head of 1,295-lb beef steers from the H. A. Nottingham & Son range in Chouteau county, Mont., and for 21 of 1,299 lbs average marketed by J. P. Mansfield, Fergus county, Mont.

The 215 fed western wethers of 101 lbs average which brought the top price of $4.35 at Chicago on Oct. 27 were marketed by F. B. Caldwell, Mahaska county, Ia., and handled by us.

C. H. Ragland, Chouteau county, Mont., had a string of sheep on the Chicago market Oct. 27. We handled the consignment, included in which were 470 wethers of 106 lbs average which made the top price of $3.90 for feeders.

W. J. Shannon, Carroll county, Mo., had a deck of lambs, yearlings and sheep to our East St. Louis house on Oct. 28. Included were 96-lb yearlings which brought $5.25, highest price by 25c per cwt for yearlings there in two weeks.

William Holton Dye, Marion county, Ind., writes: "Thank you for yours of Oct. 27, enclosing check for $4,230.09 for 70 cattle sold on account of the Cedar Creek Ranching Co. The sales were very satisfactory, as they always are with your company."

Theo. Meyer, Moody county, S. D., writes: "Everybody seems to be crazy for feeding steers, and there are not enough to go around. Frosted corn is the cause, as cattle are our only means to turn such into cash. Find enclosed 50c for the Report, without which I cannot get along."

E. E. Stutz, manager of the Star Tank Co., manufacturers of the Stutz steel thresher tank, galvanized steel tanks, tank heaters and Ideal feed cookers, Goshen, Ind., writes: "Received car of white-faced yearlings promptly and in good condition. I am pleased with them in every particular."

Adams county, Ill., was represented on the East St. Louis market Oct. 27 with a load of 70-lb lambs which our house sold at $6.65, the top for a load. They were sent in by R. E. Morley.

At Chicago on Oct. 26 the limit for feeding lambs was $6.50. Our sales at this price were: For S. C. Johnson of Park county, Mont., 204 head of 60 lbs average, and for the Heber Land & Live Stock Co., Wasatch county, Utah, 1,656 head, averaging 59 lbs.

Yegen Bros. represented Yellowstone county, Mont., on the Chicago sheep market Oct. 28 with a string of wethers, included in which were 401 of 97 lbs average which sold at the top price of $3.90 for feeders. The whole consignment was handled by us.

The limit for lambs at Chicago last week was $7.10. This price was obtained by our house Oct. 26 for 102 natives of 86 lbs average, marketed by E. Kluckholm, Sac county, Ia., and for 100 head, averaging 81 lbs, sent in by Long Bros., O'Brien county, Ia.

G. W. Wilson, Polk county, Iowa, writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for which send me the Report. I have been taking the paper the past two years, and it is most useful to me, containing a great deal of information outside of the regular market reviews."

H. A. Rundell, Grant county, Mo., writes our South St. Paul house: "Load of lambs arrived in good order, and am well pleased with them. I think the last two loads are the best bargains that have been received here this fall. If I need any more I shall send to you for them."

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef.

The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

Best Time to Sell.

In reply to the inquiry of an Ohio patron, a commission merchant declared that the best time to sell was when the feed lot could be emptied at a profit, says the Breeder's Gazette. The advice was excellent. Too much live stock is marketed under conditions that do not realize maximum possibilities even when it does not lose money actually. A disposition to overstay good markets is one fault of the feeder; another is playing the market to repeat what it did the previous year.

There has been a more pronounced disposition to sell when a profit is available in recent years, due probably to a high feed bill. When corn was cheap and hay had little cash value, the temptation to nurse the market was strong. Examination of the figures will disclose the fact that the summer movement of cattle and sheep to feed lots has been heavy. Should it return to market in the same tumultuous manner that it went out, trouble may be expected. A rush toward the stock yards after the first storm of winter will not help the feeder.

Always a good time to ship is when market conditions insure a reasonable profit.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Fill in carefully the coupon below. Send it to us and we will mail you at once free of all cost samples of the very best "galvanized rust-proof" roofing, ceiling and siding for your examination.

These samples are large and generous enough to show you the quality of the large sheets, the prices on which are quoted in this ad. This special spring offer made in time for the farmer or town resident who wants to begin improvements—shipments made anywhere—take advantage of this great bargain sale while the offer lasts. No matter for what purpose you require the metal covering, you will not buy roofing, siding or ceiling again this year at lower prices than quoted in this ad. These metal coverings, proven by over 60 years of actual experience, to be the most economical and longest lasting in the market, far superior to shingles, excelling ready roofing, and better than slate which is seven times heavier and breaks from freezing or thawing. Our "galvanized, rust-proof" steel covering keep buildings warmer in winter and cooler in summer; does not taint your rain water.

Only tool needed to lay is a hammer, except with Standing Seam Steel Roofing

Rust-Proof Galvanized Steel

ROOFING=SIDING=CEILING

Note our wonderfully low prices—lower than those ever quoted by any factory or any other manufacturer anywhere. Send for samples at once. Get in your order now for Fall improvements. Suitable for every purpose. Fully guaranteed. Requires no painting, economical and easy to put on, no previous experience necessary; absolutely guaranteed, brand new, clean stock—bright as a dollar.

The sheets are full sized and come in corrugated "V" crimped standing seam or plain flat sheets, heavily galvanized on both sides with most approved galvanizing material. The preparation will adhere forever. Galvanized means that the steel has been coated with liquid zinc, which makes absolutely rust and weather-proof. Not affected by heat or cold. Square means 100 square feet.

Makes your insurance cheaper. Sold direct from our own roofing factory, the largest in the world. The Chicago House Wrecking Co. sells more roofing material than any other concern. Used in all climates for every kind of a building. Suitable for farm houses, barns, stores, city dwellings, poultry houses, etc. Our prices defy all roofing competition. Don't buy until you see our samples. Our liberal offer to ship subject to your examination is proof of our confidence that our material will meet with your entire satisfaction after the closest scrutiny.

Unpainted and Painted Steel Roofing We also quote in this advertisement steel sheets unpainted, also painted. These are identically the same sheets as the galvanized rust-proof, except are not coated with the molten zinc or spelter, which coating makes the galvanized sheets rust-proof. While the unpainted and painted steel sheets will not last as long as the galvanized rust-proof, yet you can use them with a perfect degree of safety that they will last a good many years and give splendid service, and of course the first cost is not as much as the galvanized rust-proof nor can you expect the same amount of wear, so we believe in the end the galvanized rust-proof is by far the best proposition. However, if you feel that you want to make the smallest possible investment in roofing, why then buy the unpainted or painted steel sheets, all of which are covered by our guarantee as printed below, and if you so desire we would be glad to send you samples free of unpainted or painted sheets, quoted in this advertisement.

Our Guarantee The Chicago House Wrecking Co., manufacturers of these steel coverings, positively guarantee entire satisfaction on every order, or money refunded without delay or argument. The material may be returned at our expense both ways if it is not up to our representation and entirely satisfactory. We are headquarters for roofing supplies of every kind and our stock is always complete, covering every style at prices from $1.25 per 100 square feet and up. Our million dollar capital stock and surplus is sufficient evidence of our responsibility. We want all your inquiries of merchandise. Our roofing department is one tremendous branch of a business of the greatest magnitude. We are constantly buying complete stocks of new, high-grade goods at sheriffs', receivers' and manufacturers' sales, carrying in stock a full line of building material, including lumber, sash, doors and anything needed for a building; wire fencing, machinery, gasoline engines, traction outfits, furniture, household goods, plumbing material, heating apparatus, water work system and hardware of every kind.

FREIGHT PAID!

At prices quoted in this ad. we will prepay the freight on all Roofing, Siding and Ceiling orders in full to all points east of Colorado in the United States except Oklahoma and Texas. 15c per square additional for these two states. ol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, November 11, 1910 | No. 45

Holiday Number Breeder's Gazette.

We understand that the 1910 holiday number of the Breeder's Gazette, to be issued Dec. 14, is to surpass even the magnificent issues of past years. No reader of the Report should miss the Holiday Gazette, which is the great annual event in agricultural journalism. Any Gazette subscriber will readily admit that the Holiday Number alone is worth the price of a year's subscription.

The regular price of the Breeder's Gazette is $1.75 per year. We are glad to state, however, that we have a clubbing arrangement whereby we are able to furnish the Breeder's Gazette and the Live Stock Report (both papers one year) for only $1.50. Thus you save 75c as compared with cost if you subscribe for each paper separately.

We wish to urge upon our readers the desirability of sending your subscriptions at once. Each year after the Holiday Gazette is out we receive many combination subscription orders wherein the senders urge us to have their Gazette subscription commence with the Holiday Number. This is absolutely impossible. The only way to insure getting the Holiday Gazette is to have your name on their subscription list before same is issued.

If you are already a subscriber to either paper, or both, that does not prevent you from taking advantage of this offer, as your subscription will be extended one year from present expiration date.

A 3,100,000,000 Bushel Corn Crop.

It is expected that the government report for November will show 3,100,000,000 bushels, the yield per acre being slightly above 27 bushels. The October statement indicated a crop of 2,977,000,000 bushels, so that expectations are for about 125,000,000 bushels more than suggested last month and 328,000,000 over last year. It will be the largest crop ever raised by 173,000,000 bushels. Farm reserves are expected to show between 130,000,000 and 140,000,000 bushels, against 80,000,000 last year.

Corn has been somewhat slower in maturing as compared with last year, hence the movement of new corn is light, and interior dealers are slow to make sales, as they are not buying it from the farmer. Some of the new corn that has appeared at Chicago is very good, and a few cars showed poor, and would have been improved had shelling been deferred.

Market Corn By Meat Route.

A great proportion of the corn crop must be fed on the farm in the next year if the price for the cereal in the market is to be held at a decent basis as compared with high prices in recent years. In the last few years the world has shown a capacity for three consecutive big crops at remarkably high prices, but now value is quite seriously affected by another record crop. The value of any commodity is regulated by the demand, and it is now up to the farmers themselves to increase the outlet for corn by providing for greater disposition of it upon the farms. Here its earning capacity is greatest, even though the price received is represented by the returns on the animal food commodity it fattens. Patronize the lumber companies by buying lumber for extension of the corn cribs. A surplus of corn on the farm is a more valuable asset than if stored in the elevators.

Raising Well-Bred Swine is Profitable.

When hogs for some time bring more than ordinarily high prices the tendency and temptation are for rushing pell mell into swine raising, and likewise to be forgetful of quality in obtaining quantity. It has always been so, and probably always will be. But the observations of F. D. Coburn of Kansas is that it has taken persistent and skillful mismanagement to lose money in hog raising with prices as they have ranged for 30 years past, barring, of course, some such epidemic as the so-called cholera. There is no branch of farming or stock husbandry which, conducted with a reasonable amount of fair horse sense and stayed with systematically, one year with another, will do better by its proprietor and more successfully keep the wolf and sheriff from his door than the rearing of well-bred swine. This, if he is satisfied with reasonable gains and such substantial, steady growth as pertains to the better class of farming conducted with skill and intelligence. If the experience of the best men is worth anything, if their observations and bookkeeping have any value as standpoints from which to judge, there is surely a profit in wisely bred, wisely fed hogs, and there always has been, at any price for which they have been sold two years in succession within the observation of men now in active life.

F. D. COBURN.
Secretary of Kansas State Board of Agriculture.

Exporting Few Cattle and Sheep.

Total exports of cattle from this country for nine months ending September, 1910, were only 72,875, against 135,455 for the same period in 1909 and 221,060 head for nine months in 1909, showing decreases of more than 46 per cent as compared with a year ago and of more than 67 per cent as compared to two years ago. Exports of sheep for the same period totaled 26,284 head, against 40,390 in nine months in 1909 and 83,772 head for the same period of 1908.

There is promise of a wider outlet for cattle through export channels soon. The export trade in Northwest Canada grass cattle is about over for this season, and Great Britain will have to look more to the United States to supply the fresh killed beef trade there. The price will largely determine the extent of our export trade in sheep. Should the market for big weight sheep fall to a level where exporting will prove attractive, a broader outlet may be expected. Otherwise the trade will continue very slim.

Southern Colorado Feeding More Sheep.

Selling spring range lambs at a little better than $5.00 each at Kansas City is going some even though the sheep market is not near as good as it was some time ago. Last week Ed Leatherman of the feeding firm of Leatherman & Leasure of Lamar, Colo., brought in a load of lambs that averaged 75 lbs and sold through Clay, Robinson & Co. for $6.75. This firm has on feed at present 7,000 lambs, and all very choice in quality. The lambs that topped the market last week were of their own raising on the ranges in that vicinity.

"Corn is a little cheaper than last year, and we have more alfalfa than we had a year ago," said Mr. Leatherman. "In the Lamar district of the Arkansas Valley there will be fed around 170,000 sheep this winter. That is an increase over a year ago, but it is not a fair estimate of sheep feeding in that state. A large number of the feeders up in the Fort Collins district came down and are now feeding in our district, and not feeding at home. The reason for this is that we raised a bumper alfalfa crop this season, while they are very short. All our crops were extra good this season. The sugar beets were good in our community. We had beets on our place that made $100 to the acre, which is a very high yield. But fewer beets than usual were raised, as a good many farmers have dropped out. They have taken up instead alfalfa, which is a big paying crop now. But so far as the sheep feeding proposition goes, we do not care to make any predictions. There is a big increase in the number of sheep on feed down in the corn-belt districts, and that may have a tendency to reduce prices on fed sheep later on. If there is a general shortage of hogs, that might have a tendency to hold up fat sheep prices, but it is all guess work now."

Date of Great Show is Near.

Preparations are practically completed for one of the greatest after-harvest farm shows and festivals ever offered northwestern farmers. For four days—Nov. 15 to 18—South St. Paul will be the mecca of great crowds of farmers and their families from all parts of Minnesota, Wisconsin, North and South Dakota, Iowa and Montana. For on these days will be held the fourth annual Northwestern Live Stock Show and, in conjunction with it, the first annual Northwestern Corn and Grain Show.

The show this year has a new and substantial home, housing facilities having been provided for all exhibits. The show now enjoys the distinction of being the only one of its kind in the country to offer all its attractions under cover. Carload entries of live stock, which have heretofore been shown in the stock yards, will be displayed in a sheltered building, a feature that will appeal to both exhibitors and spectators. The show ring and pavilion have been enlarged and the capacity doubled in line with the general enlargement of the show.

Practical Lessons To Be Learned.

It may be interesting to state that the International Live Stock Exposition, to be held at Chicago on Nov. 26 to Dec. 3, from a comparatively small beginning eleven years ago, has assumed such importance in the live stock world as to render its annual occurrence an absolute necessity, not only on account of its being the high court of appeal, the court of last resort to stockmen, but because it sets the stamp of approval upon those of our domesticated animals that are most in demand and establishes a standard among stock that must be lived up to in order to realize for the breeder, feeder and farmer the highest price for his produce.

The day of the inferior animal, the slow feeder and the tardy money getter is passed and in order to succeed and obtain the best results in the shortest possible time stockmen must breed for the types set by this great international tribunal, follow its mandates, adhere to its principles, and abide by the findings of its judges, in order to breed that which is best, reaches maturity the quickest, and realizes the highest price in the shortest time.

The ordinary observer has little idea of what this Exposition is, what it teaches and what it means. It must be seen to be appreciated; it must be studied to be understood.

Season's Top for Feeding Cattle.

Colonel W. E. Hughes, president of the Continental Land & Cattle Co., Estelline, Tex., had 40 choice high grade Hereford steers of 1,020 lbs average on the Denver market Nov. 2 which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold on feeder account at $5.65. This price was the top by 15c per cwt of the feeder market there for the season. The cattle were raised on Mr. Hughes' ranch in Texas and summered in Perry Park, Colo. They sold "flat" and went to the feed yards at Windsor, Colo. The Continental Land & Cattle Co. is one of the most famous and successful raisers of Hereford cattle in the Southwest and no doubt when these cattle are returned to market they will be eagerly sought after by the slaughterers.

Conditions Improving in Great Britain.

Ellis Owen, prominent sheep feeder of Ponca City, Okla., accompanied by his brother, Edwin Owen, was a visitor at our Chicago office last Friday and had the Report sent to him another year. Mr. Owen has just returned from Wales, England, where he spent three months. He says that industrial conditions are improving in Great Britain and that the live stock situation is of an encouraging kind from the standpoint of both producer and feeder. Mr. Owen has always sold his sheep through Clay, Robinson & Co. and says that the service has always been of a high standard.

Says It's a Snap.

That our money-saving offer to furnish both the Report and Breeder's Gazette one year for only $1.50 is appreciated by our readers is evidenced by dozens of such letters as the one quoted below reaching us in almost every mail. This offer still remains open and we urge any of our readers who intend taking advantage of it to do so at once in order to insure getting your name on the Gazette subscription list before their magnificent Holiday Number is issued. The Gazette people inform us that it is absolutely necessary that subscriptions to their paper be "of record" prior to Dec. 14 to insure receiving the Holiday Number, and as it takes anywhere from a week to ten days after a subscription is received to get the paper started, especially during the rush subscription season now on, our readers will see the advisability of sending in their subscriptions or renewals at once, thus avoiding possible disappointment in non-receipt of the Holiday Gazette, which in itself is well worth the price of a year's subscription. Mr. Smith Taylor, El Reno, Okla., writes as follows:

"Enclosed is draft for $1.00 for which renew my subscription to the Live Stock Report and have my Breeder's Gazette subscription renewed from present expiration, Dec. 7, as per your offer published in the Live Stock Report. I call this a snap, as I have always paid $1.75 or $2.00 per year for the Breeder's Gazette alone, which paper has been in our family since its first issue. If more farmers and stockmen would read such papers as the Breeder's Gazette and the Live Stock Report, and follow the information they can get through same, there would be less howling about hard times and the money market."

Galloway Feeder Calves Bring $5.25.

J. B. Anderson of Page, Neb., marketed a load of high-grade Galloway calves at Sioux City on Nov. 1. These calves were about the best strain of this breed that has ever been on that market. They averaged 405 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. on feeder account at $5.25. Mr. Anderson is a prominent breeder of Galloway cattle, and his calves were of a class to be proud of.

Will Carry Over Many Cattle.

A. W. Smith and John Angus, extensive ranchmen of Piney, Wyo., were on the South Omaha market last week with a train of eighteen cars of cattle which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold satisfactorily. These gentlemen have been engaged in cattle raising in the Big Piney district for many years, and generally have a trainload for the South Omaha market each year. While conditions have not been the best in their section the past season, grass has been fairly good and considerably better than in most parts of the state. So far little annoyance has been caused by settlers, as Big Piney is 65 miles from the railroad. A large number of cattle will be carried over this winter and from the present outlook no more than the usual loss should be had.

A Bear on Cattle and Hogs.

Patrick Cudahy of the packing firm of Cudahy Brothers has returned from a trip abroad. Mr. Cudahy expressed his opinions on the meat situation freely. He predicted a drop of 25 per cent in the price of pork in the next year. He also prophesied a fall in the price of beef, although not so marked a drop as in the price of pork. He gave it as his opinion that beef probably would go down about 10 per cent. The basis of his prediction, he said, was the fact that the big corn crop this year would lead the farmers to feed more cattle and hogs, thereby increasing the supply of meat, and a corresponding decrease in price, he thought, would result. He said he found prices abroad as high, if not higher, than the prices here.

Feeding Silage in the Open.

An interesting phase of a recent experiment was respecting the value of shelter when silage is fed. There has been a general impression among feeders that the use of corn silage necessitated greater protection against cold, as on account of its succulent and laxative nature cattle would suffer if not kept in warm quarters. Results show that steers fed in the open shed made more rapid gains at a saving of 62c per cwt in cost. At the close of the experiment they had cost 17c per cwt less and were valued at 15c per cwt more than those in the barn. The profit per head from open-shed feeding was $14.06 and from feeding in the barn $10.69, or an increase of 12c per bushel in the value of corn fed to cattle out of doors over those in the barn. It suggests that protection from wind and rain is all that is necessary even when a maximum quantity of silage is fed.

"A Dandy Good Paper.

S. F. McGillivray of Carpenter, Ia., writes: "All good, up-to-date stockmen must have the Live Stock Report. It is a dandy good market paper. We are still in the business and find your publication a great help. Enclosed find 50c to renew our subscription."

Seth Williams, Garfield county, Colo., marketed cattle at Denver as did also A. P. Ralston and J. McNulty, both of Garfield county, Colo.

THE FARMER HAS THE RIGHT OF WAY.

Markets Hogs Under Great Difficulties.

Severt Swenson of Charlson, N. D., was on the South St. Paul market Nov. 3 with a shipment of hogs from his part of the frontier that probably holds the season's record for difficulties encountered in getting to market. Mr. Swenson is a pioneer hog grower in his section and has grown his crop 40 miles from a railroad. The drove, sold through Clay, Robinson & Co., had been driven across the prairie, starting from home a week previous. Incidentally the swine were transported across the wide and muddy bosom of the Missouri River on a ferryboat and after all this jaunt to the railroad, rode several hundred miles to South St. Paul on the cars. Mr. Swenson expressed himself as well satisfied with his sale and declared he believed his returns were better than he could have obtained by selling the grain used to fatten the hogs at the elevator. There were 125 head and they brought $8.00@8.35. He says there are not many hogs in his territory, but the number is growing. Cattle raising is one of the leading occupations of farmers in those parts.

Belle Fourche Stock Shipments.

According to present estimates, stock shipments from Belle Fourche, S. D., this fall will exceed those of last year by over 800 cars. The season is expected to close about the middle of this month, at which time over 2,000 carloads of stock will have gone from that part of the country. The record shipments from there were made ten years ago when 4,500 carloads left Belle Fourche in that fall.

Mrs. Ireland Hampton Dead.

Friends of Ireland Hampton, manager of Clay, Robinson & Co.'s house at Fort Worth, deeply sympathize with him in the loss of his wife, who died Friday of last week. Mrs. Hampton was 36 years of age, and had been for twenty-five years a resident of Forth Worth. She is survived by her husband, two sons, and several sisters and brothers. Funeral services were conducted from the Mulkey Memorial Methodist Church, of which she was a member, Sunday afternoon.

Fowler & Tod Ranch is Sold.

Information comes from Kansas City to the effect that the Fowler & Tod ranch of approximately 55,000 acres, located near Folsom, N. M., has been sold to a company of St. Paul capitalists who will probably cut it into small tracts and colonize it. This is one of the more important of the large breeding ranches of the Southwest. On this ranch Fowler & Tod have maintained a herd of 1,500 to 1,800 Hereford cows which are practically pure bred, the last several top crosses having been registered Hereford bulls. Fifty or more registered Hereford bulls have been kept on the ranch for service.

W. J. Tod of Maple Hill, Kan., is the managing member of the firm. He is one of the most widely known cattle feeders of the Central West. He has drawn his stock of feeding cattle for his Maple Hill farm from the New Mexico ranch, and they have been a feature of the carlot shows of fat cattle at the big stock shows of recent years. And from that ranch Mr. Tod secured the carlots of calves, yearlings and 2-year-olds he showed at the International Live Stock Show with remarkable success.

Iowa Renting Farmers Lose Money.

That the renting farmers of Iowa, the richest agricultural state of the Middle West, are actually losing money and even the land owners of that state are practically only "breaking even" in this era of high prices was the burden of the testimony given at Chicago before the Interstate Commerce Commission in the rate hearing which affects 47 railroads in the Chicago district.

Placed on the stand in behalf of the Farmers' Co-Operative Association of Iowa, Henry C. Wallace of Des Moines produced a long array of figures in disproof of the contention of the railroads that the farmers are the beneficiaries of high prices. Estimating the total valuation of the 1909 crops in Iowa at about $330,000,000, Mr. Wallace declared figures showed that the owners of the land realized a bare 5 16-100 per cent profit, allowing nothing for depreciation and that, allowing 10 per cent for depreciation, the renter actually lost $305 yearly on every quarter section he worked.

Steady Patron For Twenty-Five Years.

There is no better known or better liked farmer and feeder who comes to Chicago than Mr. Sullivan. He is a pioneer citizen of Indiana and one of the oldest shippers to the Chicago market. He is 74 years old, but carries his age lightly. Mr. Sullivan has made a decided success in tilling the soil and feeding cattle and hogs. Between

M. O. SULLIVAN OF WAVELAND, IND.

March 10 and November he sold cattle and hogs to the value of $15,000, and his net profits were very satisfactory. He started out with none of this world's goods, but by push and determination has a plenty now. On November 2, he was on the Chicago market with 17 head of 1,568-lb beeves which brought $7.75 and 26 yearlings of 1,157 lbs average which made $7.60, top for the respective classes last week by 10c per cwt. This made the tenth consecutive year that he has topped the Chicago cattle market, and every sale was made by Clay, Robinson & Co. "I have been shipping without a break to Clay, Robinson & Co. for twenty-five years," Mr. Sullivan said, "and I will never consign to any other firm as long as I live. I can cheerfully recommend Clay, Robinson & Co. to any shipper or feeder for the best service and the squarest deal."

Top Sheep Prices at Kansas City.

Following shows top prices obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co. at Kansas City last week:

Oct. 31.—Topped feeding lamb market 15c per cwt with 654 head, 59 lbs, at $5.75 for Geo. Dale of Durango, Colo.

Oct. 31.—Topped the sheep market for J. Bol'er of Ogdensburg, Kan., with 220 wethers, 123 lbs, at $4.25.

Nov. 1.—Topped the feeding lamb market at $5.65 for Chas. Heather and L. L. Powell of Hesperus, Colo., with 59-lb offerings.

Nov. 2.—Topped the lamb market 25c with 222 head, 75 lbs, at $6.75, shipped by Leatherman & Leasure of Lamar, Colo.

Nov. 2.—Topped the feeding lamb market at $5.50 with shipments sent in by J. B. Baird and H. J. Phillips, both of Heber Utah, and L. Brinkerhoff of Hesperus, Colo.

Nov. 2.—Topped the sheep market at $4.20 with 331 ewes, 86 lbs, shipped by Leatherman & Leasure of Lamar, Colo.

Nov. 3.—Topped the lamb market at $6.60 with 742 head, 71 lbs, shipped by W. H. Harvey of Atkinson, Utah.

Nov. 3.—Topped the sheep market for J. F. Hunn of Glenwood Springs, Colo., with 224 wethers, with a few yearlings on them, 105 lbs, at $4.20, and 47 ewes, 102 lbs, at $3.50.

Neither Do We!

"I really do not understand why every farmer and stockman does not subscribe to the Live Stock Report," writes John Sheedy of Pawnee, Ill. "I was nearly fifteen years a conductor on a stock train running to the Chicago Stock Yards, and I find lots of valuable information in your paper. It is very instructive and keeps one posted on the live stock markets."

Three Good Reasons Why You Should Consign Your Show Stock to Clay, Robinson & Co.

FIRST—At the 1909 International there were 58 loads of fat cattle which passed through the auction ring. Of these Clay, Robinson & Co. handled 14 loads, which they sold at an average price of $11.38 per cwt. The 44 loads handled by other firms made an average price of $11.07. This average was 31c per cwt lower than that obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

SECOND—Clay, Robinson & Co. obtained the record price of $50.50 per head for two loads of the show feeder calves, and sold all the calves consigned to them at the remarkably high average price of $38.68 per head.

THIRD—The show lambs which made $11 per cwt, top by 50c per cwt, were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co.

If you intend to show cattle, hogs, sheep or lambs at the 1910 International, Chicago, for the best service and best prices, consign them to

The Denver Feeder Cattle Exhibit.

The special attention of western cattlemen is called to the annual carlot exhibit of feeder cattle at the National Western Stock Show, which will be held in Denver on Jan. 16-21. This department of the Denver show has the reputation of being the greatest in the world, and, owing to the present condition of the cattle business, there is every reason to expect some records to be made at the coming show. At the show last year conditions were ver yadverse; corn was high, hay was scarce and cattle were comparatively high. Yet, notwithstanding these conditions, the champion carlot of feeders brought $8.00 per cwt through Clay, Robinson, highest price paid for feeder cattle as far as known in history. This year there is every indication that corn will be cheap and by the first of January those farmers who have been holding their crops expecting to sell their corn at profitable prices will have determined that the most profitable method of marketing their crop will be to feed, and they will be on the market for cattle. Under these conditions, there is a splendid opportunity to break last year's record and good prices should extend, not only to the prize winners, but to all of the cattle exhibited at the show. The usual plan of selling the show cattle by auction will be followed and every effort will be made to attract a large number of buyers there.

The liberal prices that have prevailed on the market this fall, together with the high price of hay, is inducing very close marketing on the part of western cattlemen. There is a temptation to sell everything and avoid the worry and expense incident to winter. But remember it is only a few weeks from now until the stock show, and the cost of carrying a few loads of good cattle up to that time will not be heavy. The demand for feeder cattle during the present fall has been unprecedented and buyers will be in the field for a new supply to be fed for the April, May and June markets. With the close marketing that is now taking place, the supply available for feed lots at that time is certain to be limited. The buyers who will be there will be the best feeders in the country; men who know quality when they see it, and are willing to pay for it. Western cattlemen are urged to consider these facts carefully and, if possible, arrange through Clay, Robinson & Co. to enter a few loads of their best cattle and help maintain the reputation of the National Western Stock Show as the home of the best feeder cattle in the world.

The American Shorthorn Breeders Association offers a special premium of $500 on the champion load of fat cattle and $500 on the champion load of feeder cattle, if they are Shorthorns. The American Hereford Breeders Association offers the same premiums. These special premiums make it possible for either Shorthorn or Hereford catttle to win close to $1,000. This is worth considering.

Equity for Agriculture.

That a readjustment of tariffs will occur in this country before very long is evident. The leaders of the party now in power declare for revision a schedule at a time and have put a tariff commission to work to furnish the basis of it. The opposite party declares for it without reservation. In justice to themselves and their business farmers must give some attention to this subject, not as a matter of politics, but from a purely financial standpoint, suggests the National Stockman and Farmer. No difference to which party future tariffs are entrusted, as a class farmers must demand equity in tariff revision if they would avoid discrimination against their industry. Equity in this consists of at least two things:

First: If tariffs on articles farmers produce are reduced or removed they must be reduced or removed in like measure on things farmers buy.

Second: If tariffs on the so-called raw materials farmers produce are reduced or removed there must be a corresponding reduction or removal on the manufactures thereof.

It is self evident that no industry is justly treated whose adherents must sell their products in an open market and buy their supplies in a restricted one. Last year farmers suffered discrimination from a total removal of duties on their product hides and only a reduction of duties on the products of hides. This injustice will be repeated on a larger scale if farmers are not on guard. Manufacturing interests which want free wool and taxed products of wool will make a powerful effort to obtain that very thing. And the same will apply to some other products.

Stay With the Hog.

The abnormally high price of hogs on the markets for some time past will, without question, stimulate production and the efforts to catch up with the demand will be rewarded. The hog is a prolific animal and it will not require any great period of time to very largely augment the supply.

No doubt the same men who, a couple of years ago, were so frantic to go out of the hog business, are now bending every effort to get back in.

When they are ready to realize on their production probably the price will be considerably lower than when they bought, and they will then be about determined to go out again. Thus it is with the speculator, for such men are speculators, pure and simple.

They gamble on margins and with the near future. Nine times out of ten they are buyers when prices are high and sellers when prices are low.

The man who equips himself to produce pork at the lowest possible cost and stay by it year in and year out, will be a sure gainer in the end. He will sometimes be obliged to sell at unremunerative prices, but he will also be a seller when prices are far above cost of production, and over a period of years he will be ahead.

Stay by the hog and the hog will stay by you.—National Swine Magazine.

Appreciative Words from Wyoming Ranchman.

To The Report:

It is perhaps not too late to make acknowledgement of the pleasure brought to me by the fine picture of "Shearing In The Lammermoors" and by a perusal of the beautiful booklet containing the story of "The Sheepherder's Grave."

Back of these stretch a series of travel sketches and western reminiscences written in past years by Mr. John Clay for the Live Stock Report, which have placed your little journal on a literary plane far above that of many of our pretentious magazines.

All of the advertising matter, so generously sent out by Clay, Robinson & Co., carries an evidence of Mr. Clay's fine taste and feeling. Be it a post card, a tape measure, or a calendar, the decoration is sure to be suggestive of his native heather or depicts some memory of his old range life on our Wyoming plains.

Mr. Clay loves to write of the humble folk in the Border vales; the old shepherds and the cottagers' wives. From these he turns to his memories of our early Wyoming pioneers, and with simple art he weaves a story around our Joe Sneider, our John Signor or the old Scotch painter at Chugwater. Just as Burns could mourn the severed daisy or the mousie's ruined nest, so Mr. Clay finds inspiration in those who dress in hodden grey across the sea, or in our own rough plainsmen and their lives obscure.

He writes only for the love of it, and sincerity marks every word. He is not writing for so much per line, nor is he like the staff contributor on our popular magazines, who must expose a "system" or unmask a grafter every thirty days or lose his job. It must cost thousands of dollars to make gratuitous distributions of these pictures, booklets, etc. Let us calm ourselves amid all the prevalent raillery against wealth and be glad that Mr. Clay has the means to follow the promptings of his heart and give pleasure to so many of us, whose literary labors at present consist mainly in signing promissory notes to buy corn for starving stock.

I, too, in life's morning have brushed the dewy jewels from the glistening fern on the old Cheviot Hills, and by my hearth today sits a bride of Lammermoor. Long may Mr. John Clay be spared to write of old faces and hallowed places, and we to enjoy the gentle art of this most gentle gentleman.

Casper, Wyo. Gordon Graham.

M. Havenhill, a young and successful farmer and feeder of Kendall county, Ill., was on the Chicago market last week with sheep of his own raising and he stated that we always make for him the sales that suit. Mr. Havenhill is a graduate of the Iowa Agricultural College at Ames, which, along with the practical experience gained under his father, he is unusually well equipped to farm and feed on a scientific and practical basis. The big crops of grain and the excellent condition of the stock that he markets are proof conclusive that Mr. Havenhill knows his business thoroughly.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Wm. Chadwick and Lawrence Skelly, Garfield county, Colo., marketed cattle at Denver.

F. R. Williams, Laramie county, Colo., was on the Denver market with three cars of cattle.

Clayton Cook, Shiawassee county, Mich., writes: "Lambs came and I am sure they will make some money. Thank you."

R. H. Homer, Albany county, Wyo., and I. N. Bard of Laramie county, Wyo., marketed cattle at Denver.

Parris Bros., the well-known Colorado cattlemen, were on the Denver market with 10 cars of cattle from Garfield county.

Chapman Bros., Geo. E. Conant and W. V. Hughes were all on the Denver market with cattle from Routt county, Colo.

Last week our Denver house handled for the Colorado Stock Feeding Co. 16 cars of cattle from their range in Routt county.

Pyke Bros. & Clark, Fremont county, Idaho, were on the Denver market with 9 cars of cows which our house disposed of to good advantage.

Our Denver house handled two cars of cattle for Mrs. O. L. Lykens, Boulder county, Colo., and one car for Mrs. O. Stoddard, Garfield county, Colo.

R. W. McLemore, Williamson county, Tenn., writes our East St. Louis house. "Am highly pleased with the cattle. If I need any more will certainly give you the order."

The 42 hogs that averaged 206 lbs and brought the top price of $8.45 at South St. Joseph on Nov. 8 were marketed by J. Q. Weller, Macon county, Mo., and sold by our house.

F. A. Nave, proprietor of the famous Fairview Stock Farm, Fountain county, Ind., writes: "Lambs arrived in fine condition and I am well pleased with them. Thank you for many favors."

Max Lyons, Lafayette county, Mo., writes: "I can't afford to miss a number of the Report. It is the best of all stock papers. Please find enclosed 50c for which send me your valuable paper for one year."

James M. Ray, Benton county, Mo., writes: "I have read the Report for a little over a year and I am well pleased with it. You have made the paper a success and I feel it would be a loss to be without it."

George Hardin, Beverly, Ohio, writes: "Find enclosed 50c for which continue my Report subscription another year. Am well pleased with your paper, but don't see how you can furnish so good and reliable a stock report so cheaply."

W. A. Gridley, Logan County, Kan., writes our Denver house: "Cattle arrived in good shape and are a fine lot. They will make good feeders. If I turn these cattle before the first of the year, will want to get another string for the spring market."

George Locke, Potterville, Mich., writes: "Load of cattle arrived in good condition and were satisfactory in every way. Thank you for the way you take care of my occasional orders. I intend to ship you a bunch of lambs the fore part of next week."

L. P. Gardner, Sandusky county, Ohio, writes: "Received load of cows and steers and am well satisfied with them and the price. As we are going to be short of shed room this winter, we sold the steers and the purchaser was well pleased with them."

Peorus A. Neely, Juniata county, Pa., writes: "Load of feeding steers arrived promptly and in good condition. All the parties are well pleased with them. We will certainly recommend Clay, Robinson & Co. to our friends who want to buy feeding cattle."

McCarthy & Brown, Guthrie county, Ia., had 23 head of cattle on the Chicago market Nov. 7, which were handled by us. Included were four head of 962-lb yearlings which brought the top price of $7.50, no other cattle selling within 5c per cwt of this figure.

Frederickson & White represented Adams county, N. D., on the Chicago sheep market Nov. 2 with a string of sheep and lambs which were handled by our house. Included were 204 wethers of 97 lbs average which brought the top price of $4.25 for range sheep.

Leroy Dixon, Mills county, Ia., writes: "I shipped my surplus cattle this year to your firm at South Omaha and am well pleased with the way they were handled. If I get something I think good enough may come to you at Chicago. Thanks for paper and market reports."

S. S. Staly, Monroe county, Ind., writes: "I can't very well do without the Report for I think that it is all right. Find enclosed check for one year's subscription to H. H. Staly and S. S. Staly. Both cattle and hogs are scarce. Corn is a good crop and selling at 35@40c."

F. B. Dewey, Brown county, Minn., had a shipment of sheep at Chicago on Nov. 7 which was handled by us. Included were 57 yearling ewes of 76 lbs average which went on breeding account at $5.50 and 13 ewes of 87 lbs average for slaughter at $4.00, being the top for the respective classes that day.

It was Nov. 7 that we sold three different lots of native lambs at the top price of $6.65 at Chicago. The sales follow: For F. E. Wilson of Kalamazoo county, Mich., 105 head of 78 lbs average; Seth Way & Son of Marion county, Ia., 234 head, 69 lbs and J. B. Sheridan of Cherokee county, Ia., 106 head, 90 lbs.

The top for wethers at Chicago on Nov. 7 was $4.25. This price was obtained by us for 763 head of 94 lbs average, they belonging to L. & P. Hensen, Chouteau county, Mont. The next highest price was $4.10, also obtained by us for 601 head of 95 lbs average, these belonging to D. LaFrantz of the same county.

J. S. Hunn and R. H. Tucker represented Garfield county, Colo., on the East St. Louis sheep market Nov. 7 with a big shipment which was handled by our house. Included were 150 yearlings of 100 lbs average at $5.00 and 412 wethers, averaging 105 lbs, at $4.15. They belonged to Mr. Hunn and the sales were at the top of the market for the respective classes.

The Cole Creek Sheep Co., Natrona county, Wyo., had a string of feeding lambs on the Chicago market Nov. 8 which were handled by us. Included were 203 head of 58 lbs average at the top price of $6.20. The Pine Ridge Sheep Co., of the same county, also marketed through us 778 feeding lambs of 53 lbs average at the same price.

J. W. Good was at South Omaha with two cars of hogs that he had in from his ranch in Dawes county, Neb. Mr. Good deals extensively in hogs there, raising a large number of stock hogs each year, mostly on alfalfa. What corn is used is shipped in, but even with this extra expense Mr. Good figures there is plenty of margin in the business to warrant continued liberal operations.

J. L. Herman, well-known cattle and sheep feeder, and also a prominent breeder of Barred and Buff Plymouth Rock chickens, Wood county, Ohio, writes: "Load of steers arrived in fine condition and am well pleased with them. You have once more proven to me that it pays the farmer and feeder to stay at home and place his order with Clay, Robinson & Co. Thank you for your choice selection for the price paid."

"We had a very short crop of hay in our country," said P. A. Costello, prominent in farming, feeding and shipping circles of Cass county, N. D., "and where it is obtainable prices range from $11@15 per ton, against $2.50@4.00 per ton under normal crop conditions." Mr. Costello was on the Chicago market Wednesday of last week with four loads of sheep and one load of cattle and hogs, which we sold to his entire satisfaction.

Why You Miss Copies.

Much to our regret, we have found it impossible to regularly mail each issue of the Report to every name on our list.

Paid subscribers receive every issue, but those who are getting the paper "complimentary" necessarily frequently miss copies.

This is because of the fact that our mailing list has grown so large that it would be out of the question to stand the enormous postage expense of covering it all every week.

By sending to part one week and another part another week, we are able to cover the entire list, but not with every copy.

Probably we have no one but ourselves to blame for the present enormous demand for the Report, in that we have apparently succeeded in producing a paper that stockmen regard as indispensable.

Such of our readers as are not paid subscribers, and who feel that they want every copy, are invited to make it possible for us to comply, by enrolling as paid subscribers.

This is not in any sense compulsory, and we shall continue to do the best we can in the way of complimentary distribution.

It is simply a question of whether or not it is worth 50c per year for you to receive each issue promptly and regularly.

Use this Coupon for enrolling as a Regular Paid Subscriber to the Live Stock Report.

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

That the country continues in a selling mood was reflected in a run of 80,610 cattle last week, against 75,243 corresponding week of last year. Included in this total were only 13,000 western rangers. Buyers played for a lower market and obtained offerings of value below $6.25 at prices 10@15c under the close of the previous week, although sellers held those of value above $6.25 on a steady basis. Choice offerings of 1,500 to 1,600 lbs were fairly plentiful. Demand was very partial to fat yearlings and 1,200 to 1,350-lb offerings. The eastern demand was broad only on one day—Wednesday. Top for heavy beeves was $7.75 and for yearlings $7.60, both sales being made by Clay, Robinson & Co., and 10c per cwt higher than any other cattle brought. Bulk of the week's trading was at $5.50@7.25. There were quite a number of light grass-fed steers which had been given a little corn that had to go at $5.15@5.50.

Receipts at the start of this week were 39,082, of which 3,000 were westerns. Barring choice to prime heavy beeves and yearlings, of which there was a rather small proportion, and which sold steady, the market was dull and draggy at 10@15c decline. Railroad service was wretched. Around 8 o'clock there were close to 1,000 cars still back and these kept trailing in the greater part of the day's session. A great many cattle had to be carried over, owing to their late arrival. A heavy share of the offerings were plain and medium short-fed and warmed-up lots from Nebraska, Iowa and South Dakota. We topped the market with a lot of 962-lb yearlings from Iowa, at $7.50, and the best heavy weights had to go at $7.15. Strictly choice 1,500 to 1,700-lb and heavier offerings went at $7.25, which not long ago would have sold around $8.00. Most of the day's business was at $5.40@7.15.

Tuesday supply was 7,983, included in which were 500 rangers. The market was of a peddling kind from the start. The excessive supply of the previous day and big run in sight for Wednesday put buyers in a very independent shape. However, prices were not quotably lower. A good many beef steers that arrived too late Monday to find outlet were carried over from that day but were not offered and would be on sale Wednesday. Best offerings on sale were 34 head of 1,432 lbs average at $7.15.

Supply Wednesday 27,000, included in which were 4,000 westerns. The market was in the worst demoralized condition in months. It was a case of excessive supplies. Barring choice to prime beeves, which went around 15c lower, prices showed 25@35c decline. Offerings that went between $6.00 and $7.00 displayed most loss. The market was an all-day affair, with few sales made by the noon hour. Thick-fat beeves were in larger numbers than on any Wednesday in many weeks, while the outlet through eastern shipping channels was the narrowest in a long while. Many loads of good and half-fat steers did not find outlet, thousands going over without bids. Prime beeves had to go at $7.40 and fancy yearlings at $7.30. Most of the day's trading was at $5.40@6.85.

Butcher Stock.

Bulk sales of beef cows and heifers, canners and cutters, and bulls this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk cows and heifers.		Bulk canners and cutters.		Bulk bulls.
This week..	$3.75@4.75		$2.35@3.35		$3.65@4.35

2 years ago.	3.35	4.50	1.75	2.75	3.00	4.00

The trend of the market for cows and heifers last week was downward from the outset and at the close prices showed 10@25c loss from the previous week's close. It was a very uneven deal and buyers were far apart in their ideas of the value of the offerings. The decline would have been considerably more had it not been for the light supply of rangers. A few prime yearling heifers reached $6.75, but there were not many heifers above $5.75 and choice heavy cows went at $5.50. Bulk of the week's trading was at $3.85@4.75. Bulls declined mostly 15c for the week. The week's run of calves was 7,374, as compared with 6,038 corresponding week of last year. The market held up surprisingly well and top vealers went as high as any time on record, tops reaching $10.25. The general market was unchanged for the week.

At the start of this week there was a limited trade in the best cows and heifers and yearling stock at steady prices, but weakness soon pervaded the trade and prices were lowered 10@15c. There was a liberal supply on sale. Bulls were slow to 10c lower. The market for calves was generally 25@50c lower.

The Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was in very bad shape. Receipts were liberal and demand very unreliable. Price declines of 10@15c were the rule. The lower trend in beef steers is having a very depressing effect on the she stock market. Bull trade slow but about steady. The break for calves with the previous day was fully repaired, fancy assorted lights reaching $10.25.

Cows and heifers on Wednesday sold mostly 25c lower. Bulls declined 10c. Calves were mostly 25c lower.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW, AND OUTSIDE MARKETS BY WIRE

Barring good to choice fleshy steers, which were about steady for the week, stockers and feeders sold generally 25c lower last week. Demand was chiefly for the better quality offerings and anything on the common to medium order proved very difficult sale. Stock heifers were generally 15@25c lower.

There was a further reduction of 10@15c at the start of this week. The demand from all sources was greatly subdued, the poorer outlook for fat cattle being a depressing factor in the feeder trade at this time.

The Tuesday market was a dull and lower affair, most sales being 10c down. Yard dealers had a big accumulation of supplies and demand from outside sources was considerably reduced. Arrivals included many loads of inferior lots from Wisconsin and Minnesota and these proved particularly hard to sell. She stock was dull and 10c lower sale.

Market on Wednesday was very dull at prices 10@25 lower. There was scant call for anything on the common and medium order, and especially where lacking in weight.

Receipts of hogs last week totaled 105,445, as compared with 108,802 corresponding week of last year. The market closed with the general run of light hogs showing 40@50c decline from Saturday of the previous week and heavy packers were 15@20c lower. This narrow spread was due to the increased number of light weights and the narrow outlet for them through shipping channels, the eastern markets being liberally supplied at this time. Top for the week was $8.90, paid on Monday for butcher weights and the limit Saturday was $8.50, paid for light weights. The week's average weight of hogs was 233 lbs, the lightest in over six months and 11 lbs under the previous week, yet 8 lbs heavier than corresponding week of last year. On the closing day of the week light bacon hogs brought $8.00@8.30, mixed packing $7.70@8.05 and heavy packing $7.45@7.85.

This week started out with a run of 23,702. Taking the day's trade as a whole, light offerings were a little lower and the weightier grades strong to a little higher. The dividing line was 200 lbs. There was demand for offerings above that weight and practically none for those under that weight. An $8.50 top was paid for 246-lb butchers. Bulk of the shipping grades went at $8.10@8.40 and most packers at $7.85@8.10.

Marketing Tuesday 20,484. There was no reliable outlet only through local packer channels. Thus, a decline of 20@25c was not surprising. We topped the market with fancy medium weight butchers at $8.35. Bulk of the offerings suitable for shipping went at $7.85@8.25 for light to heavy and most packing offerings went at $7.75@7.90. Pigs declined 25@40c, with most strong weights at $7.50@7.60 and light weights at $7.00@7.25.

Receipts Wednesday 24,000. Opening 10c lower, the trade got stronger as the day advanced and closed with all of the break repaired. Top $8.20. Bulk of shipping grades went at $7.90@8.10 and most packers at $7.70@7.95.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of hogs:

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Marketing of sheep and lambs last week totaled 152,781, against 94,178 corresponding week of last year. The closing market was in wretched condition. The demand was as limited as it was urgent a short time ago. As compared with the close of the previous week, lambs were on a weaker basis and sheep showed 15@25c decline. We topped the week's lamb market at $6.75, but it took a choice assorted class to reach $6.50 late in the week. Most of the week's trading was at $5.75@6.50. Choice fed-western yearlings brought $5.25@5.30. On the high spot fed-western wethers made $4.35 and a similar class had to go at $4 20 late in the week. We landed prime heavy native ewes up to $4.25 at best time, but a similar class had to go at $4.00 late in the week and most of the week's trading was at $3.50@3.85. There was some marketing of western lambs and yearlings that had been slightly introduced to corn and they met with decided disfavor and in cases had to sell 50@75c under first cost as feeders.

At the start of this week receipts were 68,565. Buyers took hold of the good to choice handy weight lambs readily at fully steady prices, but strong weights and coarse bucky offerings were draggy sale. Opening steady, sheep and yearlings closed weak to 10c lower, the supply being in excess of trade requirements. We topped the market with natives at $6.65 and very choice fed-westerns made $6.60. Fancy handy weight fed-western yearlings reached $5.50. The top western wethers as $4.25 were handled by us and choice fed-western ewes $3.80. We sold fancy heavy native ewes up to $4.00, but there was no safe outlet for any number above $3.75.

The Tuesday run was 22,182. The general market was slow, and prices were steady to 10c lower, sheep selling to least advantage. Fancy handy weight lambs reached $6.65. Buyers sharply discriminated against lambs weighing above 80 lbs and bulk of the 85-lb and heavier offerings were gathered in at $6.00@6.25. Coarse bucky lambs were most difficult sale and a good fat class had to go at $5.50. There were very few sales of ewes up to $3.85, with most trading at $3.50@3.75 for a good to choice class. Good fat western mixed yearlings and wethers went at $4.40 and choice two-year-old fed-western wethers at $4.20.

Marketing Wednesday 37,000. Buyers took hold of the good to choice fat classes in fair season at generally steady prices, but the trade in common and medium lots was dull, with all price changes tending downward.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

National Stock Yards, Ill., Nov. 8—Receipts of cattle were heavy Monday but light today, good share of which were beef steers. Best Tuesday at $7.25, but these were heavy and fat. Prices 10c lower than last week's close. Grassy and decent killers $5.00@5.75. Little change in cows and heifers. Canners poor sellers. Calves and yearlings better. Top calves $9.50, with bulk $8.75@9.25. Heretics stronger sale. Short supply of stockers and feeders and market stronger. Southern cattle selling stronger. Common lots in majority. Common Oklahoma steers sold at $4.10@4.35, and light Arkansas and Louisiana steers at $3.00@3.95.

Supply of hogs fair. Prices dropped 10@15c Monday and 15c Tuesday. Top $8.55 Tuesday, with best 180 to 240 lbs average at $8.25@8.50, 250 to 300 pounders $8.00@8.45, according to quality and weight, and rough heavy $7.50@7.75.

A good supply of sheep and lambs Monday and a light one Tuesday. Prices 15c lower than close last week on lambs and a shade lower on sheep. A small bunch of choice lambs sold at $6.75, with good ones at $6.15@6.50, fair $5.50@6.00, culls $4.50@5.00 and little common kinds $3.50@4.25. Sheep to the slaughterers $4.00@4.15 and plain kinds $3.75@3.90.

RANGE CATTLE AND SHEEP AT CHICAGO AND SOUTH OMAHA

Current Comment and Chicago Quotations to Wednesday Noon.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

Receipts of western range cattle at Chicago this week and for year to date, with comparison, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

This week	14,000
Last week	13,000
Year ago	18,000
Receipts for season of 1910 to date	285,800
Corresponding period of 1909	323,000

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Steers Range.		Steers Bulk.		Cows and Heifers Bulk.
This week	$4.60@5	75	$5.00@5.35		$4.00@4.75
Last week	4.65	6.25	5 10	5.65	4.00	4.90
Year ago	4.25	7.50	4.90	5.65	3.65	4.50

Receipts of western range cattle last week totaled 13,000, against 26,500 corresponding week of last year. There was an excellent demand for beef steers and prices were boosted 15@25c above the close of the previous week. Bulk of offerings were common and medium grades and these showed as much as 40@50c advance over low point of the season. Choice offerings were not available and best offered went at $6.25. A few lots were good enough to reach $6.00, but bulk went at $5.10@5.60. Cows and heifers met broad demand and prices gained 10@15c for the week. Most trading was at $4.00@4.85, with choice heifers conspicuous by their absence. Feeders were generally steady sale all week. There was an excellent demand for good quality fleshy steers. Sales were largely at $4.75@5.35.

This week started out with a run of 3,000. Most of the beef steers were on the plainish order. Market held steady in spite of a mean trade in natives. Sales were largely at $5.25@5.50. She stock comprised a heavy proportion of the total receipts. Demand was good at steady prices, with $4.00@4.75 gathering in most arrivals. Feeders were steady sale.

There were only 500 on sale Tuesday. While the market lacked snap, beef steers, she stock and feeders were not quotably changed in price from the previous day. Buyers seem eager for steers costing under $5.75, but are indifferent toward those of value above that price. Condition of steer arrivals was plainer than usual, and most sales were at $5.00@5.25.

Supply Wednesday was 4,000. The break in natives had a depressing influence on the range beef steer trade and prices broke mostly 10@15c. Cows and heifers were generally 25c lower. Feeders went 15c lower.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of western range cattle:

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Marketing of sheep and lambs last week, 152,781, comparing with 94,178 corresponding week of last year. A big increase in the proportion of natives and fed westerns put the range trade in bad condition. Prices dropped 15@25c for fat grades and 25@50c for feeders, light lambs and low-grade ewes showing 50c loss. There was broad enough outlet for the good quality fat and feeder offerings, but common light grades were a drug on the market. The few lambs available for slaughter sold at $6.00@6.25, wethers $3.85@4.25 and ewes $3.50@3.75. The great bulk of the offerings were feeders and went at $5.00@6.00 for lambs, $4.40@4.75 for yearlings, $3.50@3.85 for wethers and $2.00@2.75 for ewes. The limit for choice yearling breeding ewes was $5.25 and aged lots went down to $3.75.

Receipts the first half of this week totaled 127,700. Desirable grades of fat offerings went about 10@15c lower than the close of last week. Feeders suffered greatly, sheep and yearlings going around 25c lower, with fair to good lambs 25@50c and the common and plain light lots 75c@$1.00. Lambs on the pee-wee order were almost unsalable, thousands of these being carried over from day to day, with some going as low as $3.00.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of western range sheep:

Feeder Sheep and Lambs.

Below will be found bulk sales of feeder sheep, yearlings and lambs this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk Sheep.		Bulk Yearlings.		Bulk Lambs.
This week	$2.25@3.75		$....@....		$4.00@5.75
Last week	2.00	3.85	4.40	5.00	5.00	6.25
Year ago	....	....	....	....	6.80	6.85

Prices for feeder sheep and lambs this week dropped to the lowest level of the season. Supplies were among the smallest of the season and demand greatly reduced. Feeding lambs showed most decline, fair to good grades going 25@50c under last week's close, while common and plain light grades lost 75c@$1.00. In fact, the poor quality pee-wee lambs were almost unsalable. Feeding sheep and yearlings went 15@25c lower.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of feeder sheep and lambs.

How Automobile Affects the Farmer.

The automobile is an adjunct to the farm and its effectiveness in helping farmers' boys to overcome the lure of the city is interestingly treated by C. V. Gregory in the current issue of the Co-operator. The problem of obtaining satisfactory farm help, he says, is the most perplexing of propositions to the modern farmer. Mr. Gregory argues that improved agriculture is one of the most fascinating of occupations.

"But why, if the work is congenial and the opportunities unsurpassed, does the boy leave the advantages of farm life for the uncertainty of the city?" asks Mr. Gregory. "The chief reason, perhaps, is the lack of social advantages in the country. The boy loves company, and life on the farm, with few companions of his own age, gets dreadfully monotonous sometimes. Too often the farmer does not even have a driving horse for his children to use, and if they go to town or to the neighbors it must be on foot. Walking takes so much time as to be almost prohibitive, and as a result the boys and girls are confined to the farm for the greater share of the time.

"For the farmer who can afford it—and it is not so extravagant as it appears at first sight—the automobile is a most profitable investment. Now that automobiles are being made which are especially adapted to country use, they may be purchased at a figure that is well within the means of a great majority of farmers, and when all the advantages are considered the 'benzine buggy' is not a luxury but a necessity.

"It is always ready to go at a moment's notice, and it covers the ground at a rate that makes the old farm team seem woefully out of date. The boys—and not only the boys, but the whole family as well—can enjoy a rapid, invigorating spin after supper, visiting the neighbors, going to town or simply taking a run of a few miles and back home again.

"The exhilaration of the rapid motion sets the blood to tingling through their veins, and a few care free moments spent in this way in the cool of the evening leaves that whole family mentally and physically better equipped for the next day's work. Nor is this pleasure obtained with the guilty consciousness that it is at the expense of the already overworked farm team, for the horses are nibbling grass in the barn lot while the tireless machine is solving the transportation problem.

"For these and many other purposes the automobile will be found indispensable. Many a time it will be pressed into service for a hurry-up trip to town when the harvester breaks down or some member of the family is taken suddenly ill. It will run the churn, washing machine or grindstone as willingly and efficiently as it throws dust in the eyes of the neighbor's crack driving team. Taken all around, the automobile is a valuable addition to the equipment of the farm, and if it keeps even one of the boys contented with life there it has accomplished its purpose and paid for itself many times over."

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

M. & John Barrett, Beaverhead county, Mont., had a train of cattle at South Omaha last week.

J. J. Orr, Genesee county, Mich., writes: "Received wethers and was well pleased with them."

D. E. Scott, Hendricks county, Ind., writes: "Sheep arrived in good shape and I am well pleased with them."

Tobin & Owens, Marion county, Ohio, write: "Two decks of lambs received in very good condition and are very satisfactory."

W. D. Beadle, Genesse county, N. Y., writes: "Lambs arrived and am well pleased with them. They are a very even lot."

Eugene Brockway, Genesee county, Mich, writes: "Lambs were received in good condition. We are entirely satisfied."

William Cook, Dane county, Wis., marketed a lot of 180-lb hogs at Chicago on Nov. 1 and we sold them at the top price of $8.65.

E. L. Eberhard, Whitley county, Ind., writes: "Lambs arrived O. K. I am well pleased with your purchase. They are a nice bunch."

Our South St. Joseph house topped the hog market there Nov. 2 for J. B. Russell, Andrew county, Mo., selling 81 head averaging 194 lbs, at $8.50.

Alfred Lefurgy, Hillsdale county, Mich., writes: "Lambs came through in good shape and very well pleased with them. They are the right kind. Everyone that has seen them think they are the finest bunch of lambs that has come here."

E. F. Clark, Story county, Ia., writes our South St. Paul house: "I got the load of cattle all right. Think you bought them right and saved me money and time by giving you my order. When I get ready for more, I will let you buy them. Thank you for your good work."

W. H. Vandenburg, Hillsdale county, Mich., writes: "Lambs arrived O. K. They are a fine bunch. Will know who to go to for lambs next year."

B. F. Anderson, Scott county, Mo., writes our East St. Louis house: "Well pleased with the cattle. Thank you very much for your kindness in this matter."

Our South Omaha house handled a cattle consignment from F. L. Clark, prominent cattleman of Converse county, Wyo., and for years a valued customer of ours.

J. H. Runner, Marshall county, Ia., writes: "Not the usual number of cattle on feed in this loocality and about the same number of hogs, but they will be late.

Fowell & Lewis, Culpeper county, Va.: "Load of cattle was O. K. We had no trouble in selling them. We wish to thank you for what you have done for us in filling our orders."

F. T. Woods, Randolph county, Mo., had 120 western ewes on the East St. Louis market Nov. 2 which averaged 97 lbs and were sold by our house on feeding account at the top price of $3.15 for that class.

F. D. Kingsbury, Teton ounty, Mont., writes concerning recent sale of four cars of cattle: "I am in receipt of proceeds from sale of cattle as per your statement and same was very satisfactory."

Our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle for Pfeiffer & Copps, Sheridan county, Wyo., which was accompanied by W. C. Copps, who has been a regular customer of our firm for several years.

On Nov. 2 R. S. VanTassell, Laramie county, Wyo., one of the foremost cattlemen of that state, had a shipment of cattle on the South Omaha market, four cars of which were sold by our house at $5.60 for feeders averaging 1,192 lbs. They were high-grade Herefords, and the price was the extreme top of the feeder market there that week, next highest price being $5.35.

Albert Knoop, Miami county, Ohio, writes: "There will be more cattle and sheep fed in this vicinity than in former years. Enclosed find $1.50 to renew my subscription to the Report and Breeder's Gazette."

Blackshere Bros., heavy shippers of cattle and owners of the Clover Cliff Ranch in Chase county, Kas., write our South St. Joseph house: "We were well pleased with the sales of our grass steers this season."

Joseph Warren, proprietor of the Aspen Dale Farm, Fauquier county, Va., writes: "Your letter and statement of sale of 44 cattle and check of $2,157.22 received. I feel that you got all you could for the cattle."

J. W. Wise, Pope county, Ill., writes our East St. Louis house: "Was pleased with the way you handled my cattle. When I get another load of stock will send same to you. Am very thankful for your market letters."

G. M. Peet, prominent shipper of live stock, Saginaw county, Mich., writes: "Two double decks of lambs arrived in good shape and am well satisfied with them. I think you made a good buy. Thank you for your favor."

Frank Finney, Waubansee county, Kan., writes our Kansas City house: "We thank you for the good sales you have made for us. We certainly appreciate it. I am proud to be one of Clay, Robinson & Co.'s customers."

L. C. Hazlett, Holt county, Mo., an extensive and successful farmer and feeder, was at South St. Joseph last week with 43 yearling steers and heifers that averaged around 700 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at a very pleasing price. "This is the last of my summer feeding," said Mr. Hazlett, "and put an end to my operations for the winter, as I don't think I will feed many for the spring markets. There is quite a number of spring pigs on feed at the present time in the vicinity of Maitland, with few fatalities being reported. I think the pork supply in Holt county will be up to the average in every respect."

LOWEST RATES ON ALL RAILROADS

Makes Call for a Convention.

H. A. Jastro, president of the American National Live Stock Association, has ordered a call for the fourteenth annual convention of that association to be held at Fort Worth, Tex., on Jan. 10, 11, and 12. Every member should attend as the meeting will be of unusual importance. Among the prominent subjects to come up for discussion at the meeting are: Effort of the railroads to increase freight rates on live stock; legislation by Congress enlarging the powers and duties of the present tariff board; repeal of the Grout bill which imposes a prohibitive tax on oleomargarine; admission of cattle, meat food animals and their products free of any duty; enactment of the law providing for the classification of all government lands and promoting the leasing of the unappropriated semi-arid grazing lands, subject at all times to the rights of the homesteader.

On July 30, 1910, there was sent each member three copies of a form for reporting delays in the furnishing of live stock cars and for supplying exact data as to railroad service, speed of stock trains, etc. Mr. Gastro requests that these blanks be filled out for this season and forwarded to Secretary Tomlinson at Denver, Colo., not later than Dec. 1, in order that they may be tabulated for use by the Committee on Transportation and for submission to the proper committees in Washington in support of legislation requiring the furnishing of cars, speed minimums, etc.

JUST WHAT YOU WANT GET IT FREE

The Expansive File

Something every farmer and stockman needs for the classification and safe keeping of valuable documents, insurance policies, receipts and papers of all kinds. Substantially made. Six compartments. Size, 4½ by 10⅜ inches.

Here is Our Offer

Fill out coupon below with your name and address and send to us with $1.00 for two years' subscription to the weekly Live Stock Report, and the Expansive File will be sent you immediately free and postpaid by us. If not at present a paid subscriber here's your chance. This is a splendid opportunity for persons who have been receiving the Report complimentary for a while to enroll as regular subscribers, thus entitling them to the paper for two full years from now and giving them this valuable premium, all for $1.00.

We are sure that after you have used this Expansive File for a short time you would not be without it, to say nothing of also getting the Live Stock Report each week for two years. This file will absolutely prevent losing or mislaying your valuable papers and may save you many times its cost. Every document is properly classified and safely kept where you can put your hand on it at any time.

Present subscribers to secure this premium must send $1.00 for two years additional from present expiration date. Even though purchased by us in large quantities this is a pretty expensive premium for us to give away, in addition to furnishing, for the bare cost of postage, a paper which costs three times the subscription price to produce. We therefore wish to make it clear that the only way to secure the Expansive File is to send $1.00 for two years' subscription. Subscriptions sent in prior to publication of this offer do not count. No matter how far ahead your subscription may now be paid it will pay you to extend it two years more and secure this premium.

This announcement may not appear again, therefore send in the coupon at once.

Big Increase in Iowa Farm Values.

The census bureau's first preliminary comparative statement concerning the general farm data derived from the recent census of agriculture, as a part of the thirteenth decennial census, has been issued at Washington by Census Director Durand. It relates to the state of Iowa and contains principally the results of the census bureau's tabulation of the number of all farms and farms of specified classes, and also gives the acreage and value of farm land in the state in 1910 in comparison with the twelfth census figures.

Similar statements concerning the other states are being prepared, and early issuance of those for Indiana, Illinois, Minnesota, and Wisconsin may be expected. Following these there will be others showing the same facts for the individual counties within each state. Statistics relative to the acreage and yield of crops, and the number of domestic animals on farms and ranges will be next in order.

From 1900 to 1910, according to Director Durand's statement, the total value of Iowa's farm land alone rose from $1,256,752,000 to $2,799,025,000, an increase of $1,542,273,000, or no less than 122.7 per cent; the value of all farms, including that of their buildings, increased from $1,497,555,000 to $3,253,719,000, a gain of $1,756,164,000, or 117.3 per cent; and the value of the buildings alone rose from $240,803,000 to $454,694,000, an increase of $213,891,000, or 88.8 per cent. The value of farm implements and machinery rose from $57,961,000 to $95,273,000, a gain of $37,312,000, or 64.4 per cent; and expenditures for labor from $16,376,000 to $24,732,000, an increase of $8,356,000, or 51 per cent.

The total number of farms dropped, during the decade, from 228,622, to 216,807, a decrease of 11,815, or a trifle over 5 per cent. This falling off in the number of farms is one that has been anticipated by all students of agricultural conditions in Iowa, and is believed to correspond quite closely with an anticipated decrease in the rural population of the state.

The farm acreage reported in 1910 is 33,905,000, as compared with 34,574,000 in 1900, a decrease of 669,000 acres, or 1.9 per cent. This decrease, in the opinion of the census bureau, probably represents a less perfect enumeration of land in the several townships owned by people residing in other townships, due to the change in the census date from June 1 to April 15. Much of this land is in pastures and meadows, and intended for lease, but at the date of the enumeration in April, it had not been leased for 1910, and was therefore unoccupied and unreported.

Shorthorns and Poland-Chinas.

C. F. Shaffer, Wellman, Ia., who has been breeding Shorthorn cattle and Poland-China hogs for the past eighteen years, is recognized as one of the leading breeders of cattle and swine in the United States. During the past few years he has shipped stock into thirty-five states, also into Canada and Old Mexica. This record speaks for itself. Mr. Shaffer has a good many customers in the South and in the range states and wherever he has shipped animals they have always made good. He describes his stock just as it is and always stands back of each deal. Read his advertisement on page 15 and write him for prices.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef.

The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

Clay, Robinson & Co. desire that their friends shall make free use of their facilities, and call upon them for any assistance within their power to render.

Cattle Market Hit Hard Blow.

"To ship or not to ship" is puzzling most cattle feeders at this time. Present conditions warrant deciding in the negative at least in regard to the plain and medium flesh steers. Too many have answered the above question in the affirmative, being reflected in excessive supplies. This has resulted in terrific pounding of the market, the decline from three weeks ago being 50c@$1.00.

It is imperative that receipts be curtailed if further slashing of the price range be avoided. This applies especially to the plain and medium flesh grades. Local slaughterers have big stocks of beef in their coolers and the consumptive channels are badly clogged.

There is no doubt of more cattle being on feed than a year ago. The movement from the leading feeder markets to the country during the last four months shows this. However, it should be remembered that industrial conditions are in generally favorable shape the country over and there should be broader outlet for beef, since retail prices are being reduced. But it will require conservative marketing and a firm determination to not feed a sinking market freely to prevent further sliding of prices downward.

A very encouraging factor is the November report on corn, issued by the Government last week. The 1910 crop is estimated at 3,121,381,000 bushels, a record by 194,381,000 bushels and 349,311,000 more than last year. In addition, the report says there are 119,056,000 bushels of old corn left on the farms, an increase of 39,277,000 over last year. Then the quality of the new crop is three points better than the 1909 crop. For this time of the year December corn at Chicago is the lowest since 1906, and 16c lower than one year ago. Also the 1910 crop of oats is reported to be 90,038,000 bushels in excess of 1909.

If you have the hogs and facilites for handling cattle during cold, stormy weather, do not market good quality cattle in half-fat condition this side of the coming new year. However, keep topping off the good fat animals. If you have several loads of well-fatted beeves, ship one, two or three loads instead of the whole string at one time. This not only divides the risk, but buyers do not have so much opportunity to dominate the market.

Encouraging to Producers of Hogs.

All signs point to no cheap hogs in sight. It is true that the number of swine in the hands of farmers at this time is estimated to be 10@15 per cent larger than a year ago. Even the most reckless guessers do not place the total beyond the last figure. And last year, it should be remembered, there was a big shortage from many years previous. Advices from everywhere are of the same tenor: "No big supplies of young or matured hogs on hand and no burdensome receipts in sight at either the western or eastern markets for months to come. The supply for the year to date at the eleven leading markets shows a decrease of upwards 3,300,000 head from the same period of last year. This is sufficient evidence of a depleted hog supply and at the same time is a source of encouragement to producers.

Prospects are so favorable that the hog will continue a valuable asset on the farm that extreme measures to insure its health, comfort and rapid growth are certainly warranted, and also to make it a very foolish policy to market thrifty swine this side of the 200-lb mark. Packers' representatives on the Chicago market, who are naturally bearish at all times, have expressed the opinion that droves of hogs will not be put up much under the seven-cent mark this winter. As to whether they are right or wrong, time alone will tell.

It is not probable that the market will drop so low as to render marketing corn by the pork route unprofitable. Another strong factor in the favor of hog producers is a record crop of corn and current prices the lowest since 1906 for this time of the year, with prospects of still lower prices.

Marketing healthy pigs or shotes, or swine tipping the beam under 200 lbs, will prove a very unwise policy for months to come. However, in our opinion, hogs weighing upwards of 200 lbs and in good marketable condition should be sent forward right along, and especially those around 225 lbs and heavier.

Situation is Largely in Care of Feeders.

Now that the movement of western range sheep and lambs is practically over for this season, slaughterers must look to the natives and fed westerns to supply their trade requirements. Thus, the future market is pretty much in the care of corn-belt and eastern feeders. Fairly good supplies of native stock will come forward for the next three or four weeks, but after then the supply from this source will have been well exhausted.

While the number of sheep and lambs taken out from the leading markets during the past four months was of record-breaking proportions, the total number is not as much in excess of last year as figures would indicate. It should be remembered that practically all of the feeder stock was purchased on the markets this season and very little done in the way of shipping direct from the western range to the feed lots east of Nebraska. In addition, feeding operations in Northern Colorado are greatly under last year, due to a short hay crop.

Thus can readily be seen the urgent necessity of feeders of western sheep and lambs refusing to feed a sinking market liberally and sending their offerings forward in a sane and conservative way. Of course, it is illogical to look for the high prices of last winter to rule this season. The public is in no humor to pay high meat bills. Also, the market for both cattle and hogs has been hit a hard blow during the past few weeks, and indications point to a further lowering of prices before the readjustment has been accomplished.

An excellent plan for holders of ovine stock to follow this winter will be to top off and market the fat offerings right along and refrain from sending in stock in half-fat condition. With the largest corn crop on record and current prices the lowest since 1906 for this time of the year, there is surely no necessity for sacrificing either sheep or lambs where parties have shed facilities to carry on their feeding operations during cold or stormy weather.

Highest Feeder Sale of the Season.

M. L. Stanley, a prominent and successful ranchman of Routt county, Colo., was on the Denver market Nov. 10 with two cars of feeding steers and a car of cows. The shipment was handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. The steers numbered 37 head of 1,132 lbs and sold on feeder account at $5.75. This is the extreme top of the season by 10c per cwt there for feeding cattle. The next highest price is $5.65, which Clay, Robinson & Co. obtained for Colonel W. E. Hughes of the Continental Land and Cattle Co., for a load he had in from his ranch in Perry Park, Colo.

T. J. Barnard, Prowers county, Colo., consigned two cars of cattle to our Denver house and they were disposed of to his entire satisfaction.

The official figures of the Department of Agriculture show that the corn crop of the United States, the largest crop grown in any country on earth, has outdistanced its best previous record by virtually 200,000,000 bushels and now reaches the enormous total of 3,121,381,000 bushels. This means that the backbone of the nation's prosperity is stronger and stiffer than ever before.

In the great corn belt embraced in the six states, taking in Ohio on the east and Nebraska on the west, with Iowa, Missouri, Illinois and Indiana between, the showing is excellent despite the fact that the southern states (which have lately gone to raising corn in earnest because of high prices and the boll weevil) have a larger proportion of the country's yield than ever before.

Chief Corn States' Gain.

In the strictly corn surplus states the crop is much more than half of the total or 1,752,000,000 bushels. This is 180,000,000 bushels more than these six states raised last year and 325,000,000 bushels more than they raised in 1908. Illinois this year leads her next nearest competitor, Iowa, by 70,000,000 bushels and shows a crop of 414,000,000 bushels. Official yields of the last three years in the surplus states were:

	1910 bu.	1909 bu.	1908 bu.
Ohio	144,000,000	153,000,000	137,000,000
Indiana ...	202,000,000	197,000,000	138,000,000
Illinois	414,000,000	370,000,000	299,000,000
Missouri ..	271,000,000	214,000,000	204,000,000
Kansas	169,000,000	154,000,000	156,000,000
Iowa	344,000,000	290,000,000	287,000,000
Nebraska ..	208,000,000	194,000,000	206,000,000
Total ..	1,752,000,000	1,572,000,000	1,427,000,000

The figures for 1910 are subject to official revision next month, but these changes are usually slight.

The largest previous corn crop ever raised in the United States was in 1906, when the total was 2,927,000,000 bushels, or 194,000,000 bushels less than the one on which the government issued its preliminary estimate Nov. 9. In addition to a large yield, the Department of Agriculture shows that the production per acre is nearly two bushels more than last year and that the quality is 3 per cent better. The percentage of the 1909 crop of corn on farms ..ov. 1, 1910, is estimated at 4.3 per cent (119,056,000 bushels), against 3 per cent (79,779,000 bushels) of the 1908 crop on farms Nov. 1, 1909, and 3.8 per cent the average of similar estimates of the past ten years.

International Show Entries.

As the date of the 1910 International Show at Chicago approaches it becomes more clearly evident that the promise of "a bigger and better International than ever," made for the 1910 show at the close of the wonderful exhibition of a year ago, is going to be made good.

The list of entries goes far in convincing the interested public that it may come to this great annual event confident that they are to witness the greatest display of fat and pure bred live stock that has ever been assembled. Not only are the total entries larger than in any previous exhibition, but the names of the breeders, importers and feeders who will contest for the highest honors that the show ring affords are a guarantee that quality in the superlative degree, as well as quantity, will be on exhibition to delight all lovers of fine stock that will be fortunate enough to attend.

The published list of entries shows a total 447 head greater than last year, outside of the carlot fat cattle division, which will be announced later. Compared with the 1908 exhibiton, the published list this year shows an increase of 1,348.

Pure bred breeding cattle classes are hardly as large as last year, but a glance at the list of entries shows that the very cream of the country's herds will be well represented. Shorthorns will lead in numbers with Angus and Herefords coming a close second and third the Hereford list being greater than a year ago. Fat pure bred, grade and cross bred cattle will be more numerous than at the 1909 show by 37 head.

In the hog division there is also a slight falling off in the breeding list, but it is more than made up by the increase in the fat hog display. The Hampshire will be the most numerous in breeding classes, with the Durocs the runner up, Chester Whites third, and the blacks and Yorkshires trailing after.

In the sheep division a total of 1,160 head are entered outside the carlot division. Ten of the best known breeds will be shown in pure bred, breeding and fat classes, the Suffolk alone being missing. Shrops will lead in number, while the entries of Rambouillettes, Hampshires and Cotswolds are also large.

Nebraska Yearlings Top Chicago Market.

To top the Chicago cattle market 10c per cwt when there are 27,028 head on sale is of more than passing interest. It requires the right kind of cattle and superior salesmanship to perform this feat. On Nov. 14, H. E. Leisy, a prominent farmer and feeder of Wisner, Neb., had in 26 yearling steers of 1,003 lbs average and Clay, Robinson & Co. obtained $7.60 for them, being 10c per cwt higher than any other sale. They were high-grade Shorthorns and were from the excellent herd of E. Short of Gordon, Neb. W. H. Butterfield of Wisner, who is an expert judge and feeder, purchased them. Clay, Robinson & Co. also sold for Mr. Leisy 36 yearling heifers and 11 yearling steers of the same breed and 998 lbs average at $7.05, top for their class by 30c per cwt.

Both lots were fed on $140 per acre land and made excellent money. They cost $20 per head, and each gained 600 lbs in about eleven months. Mr. Leisy started them on a short ration last December, consisting of shelled corn, cottonseed meal and alfalfa. The ration was gradually increased and when turned out on grass May 1, were given a full feed of corn and cottonseed meal.

Fed-Western Lambs at $6.80.

R. M. Reeder of Tipton, Ia., was at Chicago on Nov. 10, with 341 fed-western lambs that averaged 79 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $6.80, highest by 15c per cwt for western lambs that week. They were bought at So. Omaha in July by Clay, Robinson & Co. Mr. Reeder said that the lambs had the run of a blue grass pasture and a meadow until Sept. 1, when they were run in the cornfield. They made the neat gain of 30 lbs, involved little care, enriched the soil and showed a nice profit. While Clay, Robinson & Co. have bought many cattle at Kansas City, and both cattle and sheep at South Omaha for Mr. Reeder, this was his initial shipment to them. He remarked that hereafter they would handle all of his shipments. Associated with Mr. Reeder in extensive farming and feeding operations are his father and brother. They feed and market over $50,000 worth of cattle, hogs and sheep annually.

Looks for Meats to Sell Lower.

Ogden Armour of Armour & Co., Chicago, is out with a statement that meats are going to sell lower. Secretary of Agriculture Wilson joins him in the prediction. "We have had bumper crops and meat prices should come down." says Secretary Wilson. "I look for a falling in the price of all kinds of meats. The crops have been such that a falling in the prices should be the inevitable result."

Let us see how their predictions line up. Price declines have already taken place in a marked degree. Cattle are selling the lowest of the year and top beeves this week at $7.75 compared with $9.25 one year ago. Hogs are also on the lowest basis in twelve months and 50c under a year ago. Sheep and lambs are selling 75c@$1.00 below this time last year. December wheat is 16c lower than a year ago, December corn 14c lower and December oats 8c lower.

Corn has been so high and the price of feeding stock so dear that farmers could not see their way clear to market corn by the meat route until prices for fat cattle, hogs and sheep soared and made it profitable for them to fill their feed lots. This they have done, which, along with teeming cribs of corn, makes it most difficult to turn back the strong natural pressure toward lower prices for food-stuffs. However, with the feedstuffs costing so much less and a natural expansion in the consumptive demand for beef, pork and mutton, the live stock feeder should after all fare well.

Texas Cattlemen Decide Wisely.

The employment of ten additional inspectors and the offering of a reward for the arrest of violators of the state and federal regulations were the chief results of the big meeting of live stock men held at Amarillo, Tex., to take action on the government's threat to put the entire state of Texas back into the quarantine district.

The meeting was about the largest gathering of cattlemen ever held in that part of Texas. Three representatives of the United States Bureau of Animal Industry, including Dr. R. P. Steddom of Washington, were in attendance, as well as over 200 Texas stockmen and representatives from other states. The extra expense involved by the employment of additional inspectors is to be borne by Texas live stock associations. Offers of help were received from live stock commission men outside of Texas.

At the close of the meeting the general opinion prevailed that, with the action taken, the quarantine lines will remain where they are at present

Nelson Bennett, Knox county, Ind., writes: "I am enclosing $1.50 to extend my subscription to the Report and the Breeders' Gazette, which seem to be the only two papers published in the interests of the farmers and stockmen and not to exploit them. Allow me to commend your article on 'Equity for Agriculture' in last week's issue. I hope to see more like it during the coming tariff revision."

Probable Course of Corn Prices.

For the last two or three years we have become accustomed to a comparatively high range of corn prices. This year we return to a crop of 3,121,381,000 bushels, a record by nearly 200,000,000 bushels, and it is not probable that the crop can be moved into consumption at a range of values as high as those experienced recently. In fact, prices are the lowest for this time since 1906. There is nothing in the situation, however, to warrant expectation of a return of unprofitable corn prices. This country has never depended upon a foreign outlet for any considerable amount of its surplus corn. The amount exported in the years of largest foreign demand ranges less than 150,000,000 bushels annually, and is an insignificant amount in comparison with the total volume produced. It will not be necessary, therefore, for our corn crop to fall to a price where our surplus can be disposed of in foreign markets in competition with corn from Argentina or in competition with the cheap feeding stuffs which Europe purchases. We have more cattle, hogs and sheep ready to be fed this year than last. When corn drops in price under 50c, it always results in an enlarged use in domestic requirements. We have an unusually big crop, but it will enter into the channels of distribution in a manner which will be both surprising and disconcerting to those who anticipate unprofitable prices for corn.

Demand for Pork Products Broaden.

"Packers and provision dealers all over this country and Europe have been very much disappointed in the number of hogs marketed so far this season," says W. L. Gregson, formerly a prominent packer. "Although they are naturally anxious to get hogs down to a lower level, and probably will do so, they have left the discounting of the January and May futures to the country grain dealers, eastern traders and that part of the local trade influenced by them. There is evidence both at home and abroad that the reduced prices of ham and fresh pork cuts are helping the consumptive demand and our Liverpool cable of this date says: 'Better demand for provisions, as the market for American product is affected by the decrease in receipts of Danish bacon.' We have recently interviewed representative men among both buyers and sellers of hogs in different parts of Illinois, Indiana, Iowa, Nebraska, Kansas, Wisconsin and Minnesota, and can learn of nothing to encourage us in the belief that we are going to have heavy runs of heavy hogs in the near future; in fact, we find counties in Illinois and Kansas that are practically bare of live hogs. This country was over two years in getting out of the hog business, and we calculate it takes more than a few months to get back into it."

Increase Sheep Yardage Capacity.

The Kansas City Stock Yards Co. has increased the sheep yardage capacity there to 45,000 head Banner runs and a record movement back to the country during the past four months made urgent the need of more room, and the stock yard company provided it in the fitting up of a new sheep house. The house has pens that can hold from 10,000 to 15,000 sheep, and will make the yardage capacity of the sheep market fully 45,000. A new scale is now in course of construction and will be ready for use in a short time. Many of the pens in the new sheep quarters are in use now.

Heavy Snows in Rocky Mountains.

A. D. Mathias of Monte Vista, Colo., a pioneer stockman of the San Luis valley who was interested with Mr. Burnham of Alamosa, Colo., in a shipment to Kansas City last week of 24 steers, which were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co., states that the weather has been favorable so far this fall for stock of all kinds. Besides handling a good many cattle, Mr. Mathias also feeds many sheep near Monte Vista.

"We have had heavy snows in the mountains," said Mr. Mathias. "The higher the altitude, the deeper the snow. But down in the valleys there has been very little snow. In the valley is where a large amount of sheep feeding is being done. We have been a big factor in sheep feeding for several years, and will continue to be so. The pea crop this year was about up to the average The custom is to feed the sheep in the early part of the fall and winter. We cannot hold back and feed our sheep in the late winter, as they can down in the corn belt, where corn is fed. October is the month in which the sheep are put on feed. Then along in December the first movement of fed sheep to market begins, and after the holidays the runs increase until the last shipments are made. We turn the sheep into the pea fields and let them eat the peas. Pea raising has grown to be a great industry. In addition to the feeding of several hundred thousand sheep each year, we are now raising many hogs. This in recent years has become an important industry. Peas make a very fine feed for hogs as well as for sheep, and they fatten fast on them."

Way to Secure Cheap Flesh Gains.

In view of the heavy supply which may be expected on the early markets, when the bulk of this winter fattening stock will be marketed, some feeders are led to think of carrying cattle or sheep well along into the winter on cheap maintenance rations. These will not be ready for market before summer. Late pasture and rough feed in the shape of corn fodder and stalks may be utilized with a minimum amount of grain in keeping the cattle or sheep growing, thrifty and in good flesh without actually beginning the fattening process, advises Orange Judd Farmer. A good many pounds of cheap grain can be secured without the use of expensive feeds.

Where the corn is husked from the field the stalks furnish the richest kind of grazing for several weeks, and cattle will make excellent gains in these fields. The best huskers will leave considerable amounts of corn, and the animals will find and make good use of this, together with the rough forage obtained from the leaves and husks. A straw pile, to which the stock have access at will, will furnish some valuable feed, as well as welcome shelter on frosty nights. The change from blue grass or other green pasture to the dry stock fields will not be a very abrupt one, since by November the blue grass will have lost most of its succulent character, and will have partially cured by the natural process.

In a good many western communities where cattle feeding is practiced, but where also considerable areas of wild grass are still available for pasture, this holding-over process will be a very simple matter, providing the grass has not been too closely pastured during the summer. There is no more nutritious feed than the buffalo, grama and other rich wild grasses which have cured naturally, and cattle will make cheap and rapid gains during November and December on this kind of feed. If this is supplemented with a little shock of corn, so much the better. As the time approaches for placing the stock in the dry feed lot the amount of grain should be gradually increased for a period of several weeks. By this method of handling there will be no abrupt change. The stock will grow right along, gain from the very moment they are placed on feed, will consume the maximum amount of corn and roughage and make cheap and rapid gains.

Probably you have noticed that for some time past you have received only occasional copies of the Live Stock Report, instead of every issue as formerly?

This is because our list has grown so large that we are able to cover only a part of it each week—EXCEPT that paid subscribers always receive every copy promptly and regularly.

The issues you miss are likely to be the very ones that contain matter of most value to you, and that we are most desirous you should have. But the enormous postage expense absolutely forbids our sending the paper each week to every name on our list, much as we would like to do so.

However, there is an easy way out of the difficulty. By filling out and mailing us the coupon below, together with 50 cents, you will be enrolled as a paid subscriber, and will receive every issue promptly and regularly. We hope you will do this, if the paper is worth 50 cents per year to you and you wish to receive every copy.

You will also receive, free of charge, our remarkably beautiful Flower Girl Souvenir Calendar for 1911, when same is distributed in December.

Iowa Yearling Cattle at $7.75.

Above price was top of the Chicago market Wednesday, Nov. 16, BY 50c PER CWT.

Clay, Robinson & Co. obtained the figure for 32 Angus yearlings, including 9 heifers, the lot averaging 916 lbs. They were raised and marketed by C. C. Jackson of Earlhan, Ia., and fed by his son, G. D. Jackson.

Iowa Station Markets Experiment Hogs.

On the Nov. 15 market at Chicago there arrived from the Iowa State College Animal Husbandry Experiment Station 60 hogs which were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. close to the top of the market at $7.75, averaging 336 lbs. These hogs were in charge of John M. Evvard, an experimentalist in animal husbandry, and he tells us that they were forage crop hogs.

In the investigations carried on at the Iowa Station they have come to the conclusion that there is no better means of cheapening the cost of pork production than that of supplying forage crops in abundance for the hogs throughout the growing season. The forage crops which they have found very valuable in the production of economical pork are rape, soy beans, Canadian field peas, clover, alfalfa, oats and rye.

In one lot they made 831 lbs of pork per acre, exclusive of the corn and meat meal fed in conjunction. This pasture consisted of oats, Canadian field peas and rape. The oats were sowed at the rate of 1½ bushels per acre, the peas one bushel and the rape two lbs. The pigs were turned in on this field as soon as the oats were high enough to pasture and kept there until the heavy frost caught the rape this late fall. The advantage of this mixture is that it gives continuous corn forage for the hogs throughout the season. As soon as the oats heads and is hogged off, the peas come up and furnish pasture, after which comes the rape, which stays until the first severe freeze. Counting the pork made from this acre at 7¾c per bushel, the value of the pork produced on this acre was $64.40, not a bad showing at all. It might be added that the hogs were full fed the last two months on a ration comprised of fifteen parts ear corn and one part meat meal. The advantage of the meat meal is that it makes a more rapid gain and a more economical one than when corn is fed alone.

The Iowa Station has worked out that hogs gain from 20 to 60 and more per cent more when fed meat meal and make this gain cheaper than if fed on corn alone. They have also determined, from extensive experimentation, that ear corn up until pigs are about 200 lbs in weight is the most profitable method of feeding this banner crop, and it is gratifying to the busy farmer to know that ear corn up until this weight is reached was much more profitable than either soaked or ground corn when the expense of preparation is considered. From 200 lbs up, or for old sows, soaked corn was found to be the most profitable method of preparation. In the matter of growing crops, alfalfa, clover and rape yielded about as much pork as any of the crops tried.

In the matter of hogging off, the gains secured were consistent with the best farm practices along this line and show that the method of letting the hogs do their own harvesting is one that can be used very successfully in many parts of the corn belt. This system of harvesting the corn offers the following advantages: First, the pigs gain as much if not more than if they were brought up in dry lots; second, the cost of harvesting the corn is done away with, as this means a saving of at least $3.00 an acre on average corn; third, the bother of feeding the pigs and taking care of them is obviated; fourth, the gains made are more economical than when corn is fed in the old way. The chief disadvantage of the system of hogging off is that of the fencing problem, but fencing is in most cases cheaper than human husking.

Slow, But Sure, is Good Motto.

Some knowledge of hogs and their rearing is essential, but an inexperienced man with an open mind may accomplish much. He has many sources of information—his neighbors and other breeders who have had practical experience, the standard and current literature on swine, the work of the state and national agricultural departments and stations, the agricultural press, meetings of breeders, farmers' institutes, and others. No one knows everything about swine husbandry, but anyone with a desire for knowledge can find abundant opportunity to learn. An excellent principle worth recalling in this connection is that wrong practices once acquired are difficult to overcome, just as wrong traits bred into a herd require a long time for eradication. Slow, but sure, is a good motto for the swine breeder.—Coburn's "Swine in America."

People in Utah are Prosperous.

Nestled down between the mountain chains at an elevation of about 5,000 feet above sea level in the northwest corner of Wasatch county, Utah, is a small spot that produces a world of sheep. W. M. Broadhead of Heber, Utah, who is an old patron of Clay, Robinson & Co. at Kansas City, was born and raised in that territory. He informs us that up to the present time this fall there have been shipped from Heber over 300 carloads of sheep, and that at present 150 cars are ordered, and if furnished will be filled with sheep for shipment.

"And we also farm considerably now, too," said Mr. Broadhead. "No farming is done outside of irrigation except wheat raising. Wheat can be raised, and fairly good crops can be produced by the dry farming process. This year I raised over 250 tons of hay on my own farm under irrigation. Part of this was alfalfa, and part of it was mixed tame grasses. I have my own baling outfit and can handle it very conveniently. I can sell every ton of it baled and delivered to the cars at $14 per ton. Wheat, oats and barley are the grains raised. But the sheep industry is the greatest of all our resources. The wool clip amounts to many thousands of dollars, of course, and then the sheep themselves bring in a big revenue. The country around Heber has been settled many years, the first Morman emigrants landing in Utah being the first settlers there. The people are all very prosperous."

SMITH'S PROFITABLE STOCK FEEDING.

For Sale By GEO. B. SMITH & CO.,
UNION STOCK YARDS, CHICAGO.

We have plenty of the books and will mail you one immediately on request to do so. The book has 400 pages and is illustrated. It is now used as a text book in more than 20 agricultural colleges. it is a book which every farmer should possess as it gives the correct analysis and feeding value of the various grains and mill feeds in common use and in the effect on different farm animals.

Gov. A. C. Shallenberger of Nebraska writes as follows:

"I have been reading your new work upon Profitable Feeding, and find it the best and most practical thing upon the subject that I have ever read. It is of great value to the breeder who would feed his herd in an intelligent manner, as well as to the man who feeds for the market and the block. Every breeder and feeder should have a copy and study it in his spare moments. It will bring him big returns."

Joseph E. Wing of the Breeder's Gazette writes:

"It is not only the best thing yet published for the practical every day feeder, but it is really indispensible to the man who keeps animals on the farm. It gives in plain language a multitude of details absolutely essential to success."

Prof. W. J. Kennedy, Iowa, Agricultural College, Ames, Iowa, who has had so much to do with making Iowa attract world-wide attention in feeding circles, writes as follows:

"I have received your book, entitled 'Profitable Stock Feeding,' and must say that it is a most valuable contribution to the agricultural literature of the present day. It is especially valuable to the man on the farm, as it takes up matters in a simple and sound manner. Personally I think that it is in a class by itself so far as books on animal feeding are concerned when it comes to helping the practical man."

The particular methods by which dairy cattle, beef cattle, sheep, horses, swine and poultry can be fed with the greatest profit are described in a most clear and interesting manner.

A Farm Manual of this kind, if sold through canvassers, would command from $4.00 to $5.00. We will mail the book post paid to any address for $1.50. It will pay for itself in feeding one steer or one-half dozen shoats for market.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

C. D. Terwilliger, Carbon county, Wyo., was on the Denver market with two cars of cattle.

Engstrand Bros., Garfield county, Colo., marketed two cars of cattle at Denver at very satisfactory prices.

Our Denver house had the pleasure of handling shipments for F. Comstock and L. Lucero, Gunnison county, Colo.

Our house handled at Denver a four-car consignment of cattle for I. C. Miller, the well-known banker and stockman of Carbon county, Wyo.

W. F. Bresien, Saginaw county, Mich., writes: "Lambs arrived in fine condition, and I am well pleased with them. Thank you for your good work."

Zimmerman & Co., Doniphan county, Kan., had 78 hogs averaging 220 lbs on the South St. Joseph market Nov. 12, for which our house obtained the top price of $8.10.

E. E. Toler, Union county, Ind., writes: "Received load of sheep in good shape. I am well pleased with them, and thank you very much for your special attention."

T. D. Dempsey, Fremont county, Wyo., writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for two years' subscription. I need and appreciate the Report because I find it interesting and reliable."

C. I. Anderson, Scott county, Mo., writes: "Both cars of cattle came in good shape, and we are well pleased with them. Have a good place for them and think they will do well."

H. P. Wilson, Champaign county, Ohio, writes: "Cattle arrived in good shape and are better in quality than most of the cattle that come here from the West. I am very well pleased with them."

F. N. Tritz, Plymouth county, Ia., writes: Enclosed find $2.00 for which please send me the Report two years and the Breeder's Gazette one year The Report is one of the best stock papers I have ever read."

B. D. Hammond, Washtenaw county, Mich., writes: "Load of lambs reached me in good shape. I put them in the barn on arrival and they are eating good and looking fine now. Thank you for the shipment."

George E. Dick, Dekalb county, Ill., writes: "Ewes came O. K. and I can't see any reason why they don't fill the bill to the extent of being capable of raising some extra good lambs; and that is what I went in for."

Aquilla & Nebecker represented Uinta county, Wyo., on the Chicago lamb market Nov. 10, with a string of feeders which were handled by us. Included were 795 head of 70 lbs average, which brought the top price of $6.00 for feeders.

Routt county, Colo., was well represented on the Denver market last week. Our house handled consignments for the following well-known cattlemen: C. W. Bills, Frank Harker, J. B. Wise, J. H. Frahn, Sam Hines, E. P. Wilber and A. J. Lakamp.

A. H. Storms, Stanley county, S. D., had a string of sheep and lambs on the Chicago market Nov. 10, and we handled the same to his entire satisfaction. There were 514 wethers of 90 lbs average included in the shipment, and they brought the top price of $4.25 for sheep.

R. L. Craig, proprietor of the Meadow Brook Herd of Improved Chester White Swine, Champaign county, Ohio, writes: "Cattle arrived O. K. and I am more than pleased with them. Their quality is better than I expected for the price. Thank you very much."

John Tinkey, Kosciusko county, Ind., writes: "Received cattle and sheep in good shape. Am well pleased with both bunches. I could not have done that well. Thank you for your service, which I expect to depend upon in the future, both to buy and sell."

James R. Burr of the Matador Land and Cattle Co., Dewey county, S. D., writes under date of Nov. 10: "We have had no snow and everything is in fine shape to go into the winter. Grass has cured up nicely and the water on our range is the best we have had for years."

Wm. McDonald, Laramie county, and the Mitchell Cattle Co., Uinta county, Wyo., marketed through our Denver house last week their final shipments for the season.

D. Garrett, Henry county, Mo., had a lot of 82-lb lambs at East St. Louis on Nov. 8 which our house sold at the top price of $6.85. The next highest price was $6.75, also obtained by our house for a lot of 80-lb offerings sent in by Douglas & Farmer, Gibson county, Ind.

W. A. Rollins, Sullivan county, Mo., writes our South St. Joseph house: "Sheep arrived O. K., with not a single one dead or even one down. The other parties to the deal are delighted with them. They are all doing fine. Wish we had as many more of the same kind at the same price."

W. H. Butterfield, a progressive and successful farmer and feeder of Cuming county, Neb., was on the Chicago cattle market Nov. 14 with 36 head of 1,359-lb beef steers, which we sold at $7.00. Considering the condition of the market, Mr. Butterfield was well pleased with the transaction.

I. N. Bard, Laramie county, Wyo., writes our Denver house: "You made no mistake when you said your salesman would get all the cattle were worth. They weighed well and sold well. The price and weight all pleased me and I am ready to send two cars more whenever you see fit."

Putnam county, Ind., was represented on the Chicago cattle market Nov. 14 with 28 head of Shorthorn beeves, averaging 1,712 lbs, which made the top price of $7.15 for their weight. They were handled by us and marketed by A. H. Lockridge, a famous feeder and a familiar figure on the Chicago market.

On Nov. 7, our Denver house sold for the Crescent Cattle Co., Teller county, Colo., a nine-car shipment of cattle. Of this shipment were 22 cows, averaging 1,033 lbs., at $4.25, extreme top for the day, and three cars of yearlings and two-year-old feeder heifers, averaging 597 lbs., at $4.00, which was top for the week.

J. Smalley, Noble county, Ind., was the owner and we the sellers of the 89 native lambs which averaged 98 lbs and brought $6.85 at Chicago on Nov. 10. This price was the top of the native lamb market by 10c per cwt and was also that much higher than any other firm obtained for westerns, those at $6.80 being handled by us.

J. Geer, Madison county, Ill., marketed 115 head of 110-lb sheep at East St. Louis on Nov. 9 and our house sold them at the top price of $4.00. On the same day they handled a deck of mixed sheep and lambs for Leach & Lindsey, Lewis county, Mo., included in which were 15 breeding ewes that sold at $4.50, top for that class.

The first shorn lambs to arrive at Chicago for the season were here Nov. 9 and were handled by us. H. M. Woodward, Linn county, Ia., had in 96 head of 95 lbs average which brought $6.25 and C. J. Johnson of Mercer county, Ill., marketed 36 head, averaging 75 lbs, at $6.00. Both sales were very high, considering the condition of the market for lambs in fleece on that day.

W. M. Waddell, Harding county, S. D., had 19 beef steers of 1,121 lbs average on the South Omaha market Oct. 24 and our house sold them at $5.45. Writing to our house in regard to the sale, Mr. Waddell says: "I am delighted with the sales. I did not expect to get over $5.00 for my cattle. I have always been well satisfied with your sales and am sure you still look after the little fellow. Thank you for your good services."

R. C. Rasmussen, Johnson county, Wyo., writes: "Your notice of expiration received and I hasten to enclose herewith $1.00 to cover the next two years, as the Report is an exceedingly good paper and I wish it continued. I shall be glad to receive the document file which you are giving as premium for two-year subscriptions. We have had considerable rain during the past month, giving grass on the range a new start and the cattle that are left are looking much better. No cold weather up to this writing (Nov. 3.)"

COLD PRESSED COTTON SEED CAKE.

By Geo. B. Smith of Geo. B. Smith & Co., Union Stock Yards, Chicago.

We began handling Cold Pressed Cotton Seed Cake at Howard's suggestion. In a series of experiments at the Nebraska station he found that the Cold Pressed Cake gave better results than Cotton Seed Meal or Linseed Meal as a protein supplement for corn.

The Cold Pressed Cake was used in one of these experiments, but this experiment was conducted in such a way (each animal in the different groups being weighed separately) that the results were convincing. He thought that the better gains derived from the Cold Pressed Cake was due to the fact that it was more palatable and the fact that the proteids were not coagulated by cooking.

In the manufacture of Cotton Seed Meal under the old process the meal is first cooked or coagulated so that it will not go through the cloth in the presses when the oil is extracted. After this coagulated pulp is taken from the presses and allowed to cool it becomes as hard as a board and must be ground into meal by machinery.

The Cold Pressed Cake which comes from the screw presses in chips requires no grinding, as it breaks up readily in handling. It is a much simpler process and should be cheaper, but of course the price is based upon the value of the feed as well as the cost of production. One argument with the mill men against the screw press is that not so much oil can be extracted as the seed is fed into the machine without hulling or grinding and some of the oil is absorbed by the hull, so that less oil can be extracted. This, however, makes it a much richer feed. It is not known how much more valuable as a feed a fat is than a carbohydrate or proteid. The only accurate knowledge we have is that the same weight of oil will furnish 2¼ times the heat made in burning the same weight of carbonhydrate or protein, but we know that a small amount of grease will sustain life when it would require a much larger amount of bread. And it is likely that oil has considerable more food energy than its heat energy would indicate.

Since the Nebraska experiment, the superior value of Cold Pressed Cake, as compared with Cotton Seed Meal, and Linseed Meal, has been further established by experiments made at the Kansas and Iowa stations, with the result that Iowa, Nebraska and Kansas feeders are demanding Cold Pressed Cake and lots of it. A considerable portion of the product of the Atlantic coast mills is now being shipped into western territory at high freight rates in competition with cheap corn.

It is needless to say that the product from the Atlantic coast mills should find an outlet east of the Mississippi river and no doubt will do so when the experiment stations East begin to take it up. At present the product is almost unknown, so far as experiment stations East are concerned, although the Michigan Agricultural College is trying it out this year, and other stations, no doubt, will follow. Ohio feeders, especially this year, should buy Cold Pressed Cake.

Cold Pressed Cake is not a patent feed, as many suppose, and there are now something like 40 mills using the screw presses. An effort was made by a Kansas City concern to control the output of these mills, but it was not successful and there are four or five brokers now handling the output of various mills. We are handling our share, no doubt.

GEO. B. CONLEY'S STATEMENT.

Geo. B. Conley, Marshall, Mich., yesterday ordered another shipment of Cold Pressed Cotton Seed Cake and stated that the cattle fed on his last shipment brought $8.40 at Buffalo, which was by far the highest price paid for cattle on the same day.

ORDERED TWO CARS THIS YEAR.

O. F. Cook, Hillsdale, Mich., ordered two cars of Cold Pressed Cotton Seed Cake this year. He ordered a trial car last fall and was so well pleased that he ordered a second car late in the winter at a very high price. This year he has taken our advice and ordered his winter requirements while the crushing season is on full blast, and before the feeding season has fairly opened, which has a strong tendency to bull the market.

ADVANTAGE OF BUYING EARLY.

You will save money if you will buy your requirements before the feeding season begins. Last year meal and cake advanced $6.00 per ton when northern feeders began buying freely.

There is likely to be a greater advantage this year as more cattle are going into feed lots than ever before. The price of Linseed Meal is almost prohibitive. Cotton Seed must therefore be substituted as the protein supplement with corn.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW, AND OUTSIDE MARKETS BY WIRE

Current Comment and Chicago Quotations to Wednesday Noon.

No Market Thanksgiving.

There will be no market for cattle, hogs or sheep at any of the points on Thursday, Nov. 24. This is Thanksgiving and the Holiday will be observed at all markets. The Yards will be open and the stock received and cared for, but no sales made.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.		Bulk.

Receipts last week were 87,711, against 66,053 corresponding week last year. This total proved far in excess of trade requirements. Beef coolers were crowded and outlet through Eastern shipping channels more narrow. A sharp price decline was logical. Loss from the close of the previous week was 25@35c, while the decline from same period of three weeks ago was 50c@$1.00. Top beeves for the week went at $7.60 on Monday for prime heavy and WE TOPPED the week's yearling market with mixed steers and heifers at $7.50. Bulk of trading for the week was at $5.40@7.10.

At the start of this week the run was 27,028. Good to choice offerings of all weights met freer sale and prices were advanced 10@15c. There was a goodly number on hand, but the demand proved equal to the occasion. Common and medium lots continued in liberal supply and sellers considered themselves fortunate in obtaining steady prices for these grades. The market lacked snap, due in no small measure to the laxity in railroad delivery service. WE TOPPED the market 10c per cwt by selling 26 of the Leisy 1,003-lb yearling steers from Nebraska at $7.60, and the big weight cattle market with 28 head of the 1,712-lb Lockridge offerings from Indiana at $7.15.

Marketing Tuesday, 12,000. A very dull market ensued and prices showed a further drop of 10c It was a case of conceding declines or holding the cattle. Many sellers chose the latter course, and a good share of the fresh offerings were consigned to shed pens to await sale Wednesday. The best load of offerings that went over the scales averaged 1,312 lbs and brought $6.30.

Supply Wednesday was 25,000. Good to choice yearlings were not plentiful and the demand good at steady prices. Marketing of fat heavy beeves, as well as plain and medium steers, was excessive and there was a drop of 15@25c for these grades. The market was a dull and a long-drawn out affair and late in the session many loads were still unsold, due to indifference of buyers. Top of the market was $7.75, OBTAINED BY US for 32 Angus yearling steers and heifers, including 9 heifers, of 916 lbs average, being from the C. C. Jackson feed lot in Iowa. Prime heavy beeves had to go at $7.25.

A bad trade in beef steers and the largest run of the season enabled buyers to have complete control of the cow and heifer market last week. Thus, there was no surprise that prices at the close showed 50@75c decline from the finish of the previous week, or to a level relatively as low as beef steers. Prices for bulls showed only 10@15c loss. Calves were down 25@50c from the previous week's close.

This week opened with cows and heifers in plentiful supply. However, demand was equal to the occasion and prices held steady. There was a big number of plain and medium quality offerings from the pastures in Iowa, Illinois, Minnesota and Wisconsin. WE TOPPED the market by a big margin with 47 yearling Shorthorn heifers and steers—including 11 steers—of 998 lbs average at $7.05. Bulls generally steady sale. Calves 50@75c lower than best time last week.

The Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was a dull affair and prices showed a decline of 10@15c. Bulls were ready sale at steady prices. Calf market was dull at the previous day's decline. The poorer trade is doubtless due to the proximity of Thanksgiving and an increase of poultry consumption.

There was a good demand for cows and heifers Wednesday and prices ruled strong. Buls sold firm to 10c higher. Calves went 50c lower.

There was a bad smash-up in the trade for stockers and feeders last week. Those of best quality went 10@15c lower than the previous week's finish, but other kinds sold 25@35c lower. This break brought the light, plain quality steers to largely 50@75c under same period of two weeks ago.

At the start of this week the trade was slow at prices steady to 10c lower, good to choice kinds selling to best advantage. Demand was rather limited from all sources and the market lacked life from start to finish.

There was a further decline of 10@15c Tuesday. There was quite a number of buyers from Illinois, Michigan, Indiana, Ohio and other eastern states for the steers of attractive quality, but the common and medium kinds were a drug on the market.

Receipts of hogs last week, 108,516, against 124,819 corresponding week of last year. The supply was excessive, in view of the narrow outlet through eastern shipping channels. Local slaughterers lost no time in using the big stick, evidenced by the week's average price at $8.00, being the lowest since the corresponding week of 1909, when the average stood at $7.99. The average was $2.88 lower than high week of the year, which was $10.80 for the week ending April 3. At the close of the week prices showed a decline of mostly 25@45c from the finish of the previous week. At the close prices ranged from $7.45@8.10, against $7.50@8.50 high day of the week, which was Monday.

This week started out with a run of 26,485. Packers were in complete control of the market. Starting out 5@10c lower than Saturday's general trade, further weakness was soon apparent and the close was 10@15c lower. Top was $7.97½ and bulk trading at $7.60@7.90.

Marketing Tuesday, 23,000. Opening 10@15c lower, the market closed 25c lower. Packers had no trouble in dominating the trade from start to finish. Early top was $7.82½ and the limit late was $7.60. Most trading was at $7.45@7.70.

Receipts Wednesday 33,000. Prices were 5@10c lower than yesterday's average. Top $7.65 and bulk sales at $7.35@7.55.

Marketing of sheep and lambs last week totaled 158,200, compared with 111,098 corresponding week of last year. The outstanding features were the widening of the spread between sheep and lambs and unpopularity of heavy sheep, big weight and bucky lambs. The week closed with fat lambs 10@20c higher than the previous week's finish, but yearlings and sheep showed about that much decline, with instances 25c lower. When it came to light feeding lambs and poor, aged ewes from the western range, it was a case of finding a buyer rather than price. Top lambs for the week made $6.90 for natives, and the fed westerns which reached $6.80 were HANDLED BY US. Choice strong weights had to go around $6.25 and prime ones of 100 lbs average at $6.00, while well-fatted bucky lambs were hard to move at $5.50. Choice handy weight fed-western yearlings went up to $5.50 and fat ones carrying sheep weights sold at $5.00. Prime fed-western wethers reached $4.35, but most went at $3.75@4.00, while ewes sold largely at $3.75 and down to $3.50.

This week started out with a run of 58,094. This big total, along with liberal supplies and lower prices at East Buffalo, work much harm to the local market. Starting out 15@25c lower, the lamb trade soon got worse and closed 25@35c off. Barring a few early steady trades in natives, prices for yearlings and sheep were weak to 10c lower. Feeding stock met with broader outlet. Native lambs were in very liberal numbers and the proportion of fed westerns the largest of the season. Fancy natives reached $6.75 at the outset, but by the close a similar class had to go at $6.50. Best fed westerns made $6.60, with a warmed-up kind at $6.00. Fat fed-western yearlings brought $5.25 and choice heavy $5.00. Choice handy weight Dakota wethers reached $4.25—HANDLED BY US,—fat fed westerns $4.00 and desirable Montana grassers $3.85. Bulk of ewes sold at $3.50@3.75, only prime heavy making $3.85.

An excessive supply of 44,102 on Tuesday. Demand from all sources was narrow and the result was a dull trade from start to finish. As compared with yesterday's bad close, lambs and yearlings were 35@40c lower, while sheep were generally 10c lower. Anything weighty or lacking good flesh condition, either sheep or lambs, proved most difficult sale, and a clearance was not effected. Both native and fed-western lambs of a prime class had to go at $6.40. It would have taken a choice class of handy yearlings to reach $5.10. There was no safe outlet for handy wethers higher than $4.00, although WE LANDED Dakotas up to $4.25 and prime ewes sold at $3.75. Late trade in lambs was demoralized, with choice handy lambs at $6.25 and strictly good at $6.00.

Marketing Wednesday 40,000. The lamb market was in the worst condition of the season. Trade was dull at prices 15@25c lower, most late sales 25c lower. WE TOPPED the market at $6.15, but fancy lambs had to go at $6.00 late. Yearlings were 10c lower, $5.00 being the limit. Sheep were sticky sale, top for wethers being $3.90 and no safe outlet for ewes above $3.50.

From Chute to Scales

Are you a feeder or shipper of cattle, hogs or sheep? If so, you should have the best selling service at the market. It's a matter of dollars and cents to you. To insure best results, you should know that your stock is met at the chutes by trained men; that it is promptly yarded, fed and watered; that it is handled intelligently, so as to secure best fills; that it is sold by expert salesmen, who know how to get the last nickel. Especially do you need high-class selling service from the unloading chutes to the scales at this time. Shrink runs into money so fast that a little inattention means serious loss to you. Clay, Robinson & Co. offer you high-class service in every department; service that never varies; service of men expert in their several departments, who take a personal interest in the stock they are handling. Clay, Robinson & Co.'s success is due to strict attention to every detail from chute to scales. They invite you to try results with them.

South Omaha Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Nov. 15.—There was a moderate supply of cattle here last week, bulk being westerns. While there was little activity in the beef trade, prices showed little if any change. Best westerns at $6.25, paid Wednesday for very good Wyomings. There was active demand for stockers and feeders, especially lighter weights, and values advanced 25c. Best heavy weights went around $5.50; medium weights $5.25 and light cattle up to $5.25.

Receipts first two market days this week liberal. Best westerns about steady and others 10@15c lower. Natives lower sale. Feeders about steady.

Hogs 20c lower Tuesday, with top $7.90 and bulk $7.40@7.75.

There was a material falling off in sheep receipts last week. Offerings were largely feeders, and in the absence of many outside buyers the trade was in bad shape. The few killers offered sold steady. Good killing lambs were quotable at $6.00@6.25; wethers $3.75@4.00; ewes $3.00@3.50. Good feeding lambs were quotable at $5.00@5.25; good yearlings $4.00@4.25; wethers $3.75@3.85 and ewes $2.25@2.75.

Sheep and lambs 15@25c lower than last week's close. Best lambs $6.25 and bulk $5.50@6.00. Best wethers $3.50@3.75 and ewes $2.75@3.25. Feeders dull and unevenly lower. Best lambs around $5.00

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Steers Range.		Steers Bulk.		Cows and Heifers Bulk.
This week	$4.35	@5.75	$4.75	@5.35	$3.75	@4.50
Last week	4.60	6.00	5.00	5.30	3.75	4.50
Year ago	4.35	7.50	4.80	5.50	3.75	4.65

Another week or so is expected to wind up the western range shipments. Last week beef steer prices dropped 15@25c. The top was $6.00, but sales were largely at $5.00@5.30. She stock went 15@25c lower, most sales being at $3.75@4.25.

At the start of this week receipts were 5,500, unusually large for this season of the year. The market lacked life, yet steady prices were the rule. Good beef steers were the exception, and $4.90@5.25 gathered in most. Stock sold steady, with numerous lots of light weight going under $4.00.

The Tuesday supply was 6,000. Buyers were very bearish and broke beef steer prices 15@25c. As compared with corresponding day two weeks ago, the loss was 35@40c for good to choice grades and 20@30c for common and medium. Few sales were above $5.40 and bulk at $4.75@5.25. She stock went 10@15c lower, sales largely at $3.75@4.35.

Wednesday supply 4,000. Beef steers dull sale at prices 10@15c lower. She stock steady. WE SOLD 80 head of the Catlin Montana cows at top price of $5.25.

Wheat Fields Green in Texas.

B. F. Jackson of Miami Tex., was among the many stock farmers to reach Kansas City, last week with cattle to Clay, Robinson & Co. Going to the Panhandle country 23 years ago, Mr. Jackson found there was little demand for land. The cattle business was all they had there at that time. He engaged in it, and is still handling cattle.

"But let me tell you," he said, "we are farming down that way now. Over 200,000 bushels of as fine wheat as was ever raised was shipped from our town this fall. And it is not all shipped out, either. Then there was marketed there around $100,000 worth of broom corn. Considering the cheapness of the land, and the fact that farming is in its infancy, I wonder what some of the old farmers up in this country have to say about such things as that. Just now the wheat fields are green everywhere, and look very promising."

Have Two Pocketbooks Now.

A storekeeper in a town of 14,000 souls was talking about the farmers.

"I have been in business here for twenty-five years," said he. "Back in the eighties, when a farmer came in to buy, he usually asked for the account to be put on the books, and when he did pay cash he pulled out a little thin pocketbook that easily held all his money. Now, those farmers all carry two pocketbooks, one for change and one for bills, and the billbook looks pretty substantial. They realize the difference, too, and often allude to the times when they would have starved to death if they had been compelled to pay cash for everything they bought."

The Best He Could Do.

Up in Minnesota Mr. Olsen had a cow killed by a railroad train. In due season the claim agent for the railroad called.

"We understand, of course, that the deceased was a very docile and valuable animal," said the claim agent in his most persuasive claim-(agentlemanly) manner, "and we sympathize with you and your family in your loss. But, Mr. Olsen, your cow had no business upon our tracks. Those tracks are our private property and when she invaded them she became a trespasser. Technically speaking, you, as her owner, became a trespasser, also. But we have no desire to carry the issue into court, and possibly give you trouble. Now, then, what would you regard as a fair settlement between you and the railroad company?"

"Vall," said Mr. Olsen slowly, "Ay bane poor Swede farmer, but Ay skall give you two dollars."

Frosted and Soft Corn.

Untimely severe frosts sometimes damage the corn crop so that its marketable value is considerably lowered, but in this event, as in other cases, the hog comes to the rescue. Soft corn is considered excellent for swine, and especially for the young; in fact, many breeders believe they can obtain better gains from soft corn than from the sound, hard grain. In soft corn the maturing of the grain has been checked, thereby arresting the development of the starch content or fat-producing element. When used it is advisable to add, for finishing, some corn that is well matured. Immature corn that is frozen and even somewhat soured may be fed to hogs, but if there is on hand a greater quantity in that condition than can be used on the farm before warm weather sets in, it should be disposed of while the weather is cold. Ordinarily it may be used in cold weather without danger, but it should not be carried over into the warm season, as it will ferment and become unfit for use.—Coburn's "Swine in America."

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

G. W. Penn, Albany county, Wyo., was at South Omaha with four cars of cattle.

Our South Omaha house handled a shipment of cattle for J. Woolsey and D. F. Rapply, Bighorn county, Wyo.

A. D. Clark, Ogle county, Ill., writes: "Cattle arrived O. K. and are a very nice bunch. Am well pleased with them and the price."

Jeff Shirk, Faribault county, Minn., writes: "I was well pleased with the sale of sheep and lambs. Thank you for your good work."

H. S. Boice, president of the Chiricahua Cattle Co., with headquarters at Los Angeles, Cal., writes: "I am well pleased with your sales for the season."

C. B. Ingersol, Lorain county, Ohio, writes our East Buffalo house: "Was very much pleased with the sale and think you did well, considering the market."

Finch & Dew, Jackson county, Mich., write: "Cattle arrived in good shape and we are pleased with your selection. The price was much better than expected."

Bernard McDonald, Otoe county, Neb., writes: "Enclosed find 50c to renew my subscription to the Report. I consider the paper worth more than the money."

J. Ramsey & Sons represented Posey county, Ind., on the Chicago hog market Nov. 8 with 54 head of 247 lbs average. We sold them at the top price of $8.35.

S. T. Wallace, Ringgold county, Ia., writes our South St. Joseph house: "Am well pleased and I thank you for your efforts to get all you could for load of cattle."

Chas. Myers, Bureau county, Ill., writes: "Ewes arrived and are satisfactory."

G. H. Blair & Son had a car of 183-lb hogs at South Omaha on Nov. 10 from Mead county, S. D. They were sold by our house at $8.40, the only load to bring the price.

T. C. Commins, King William county, Va., writes: "Enclosed find $1.50 for the Report and the Breeder's Gazette. I could not farm without either of these papers."

L. D. McMillen, Hardin county, Ohio, writes: "Double deck of lambs received and will make good feeders. I will expect you to handle them when ready for market."

W. H. Clark, prominent produce merchant of Steuben county, N. Y., writes: "Car of heifers arrived and are satisfactory. Thank you for your endeavors in my behalf."

Alfred Vincent, Shiawassee county, Mich., writes: "I look for the Report as regularly as my meals. Enclosed find $1.50 for your paper and the Breeder's Gazette one year."

Percy O. Golden, Huron county, Mich., writes: "The outlook for hogs in this section is for a short crop. Most of the cattle have been shipped out and there are very few sheep left."

Our South Omaha house handled a train of cattle from Meagher county, Mont., for Chas. Roberts, Chas. Meyers, W. T. Neill and P. F. Duffy. The prices proved very satisfactory.

R. A. Kerr dealer in all kinds of brood ewes and feeding sheep of Allen county, Ohio, writes. "Double deck of wethers came through O. K. They are a good bunch and I am well pleased with them."

John P. Jones, Boone county, Ind., writes: "The Report gives the most comprehensive market reports of any paper I receive. Enclosed find $1.50 for the Report and the Breeder's Gazette one year."

H. E. Smith, Logan county, Ohio, writes: "We have hog cholera in this county and swine are dying off pretty fast in some parts. Enclosed find $1.50 to renew my subscription to the Report and the Breeders' Gazette."

Gates Bros., Morrow county, Ohio, write: "Lambs arrived, every one in good condition. We have seen several bunches of western lambs this fall and this is the evenest and best we have seen. We are well pleased with them."

Cedar Point Stock Co., LaSalle county, Ill., write: "Enclosed find $1.50 for the Report and Breeder's Gazette as per your clubbing offer. We receive both papers regularly and they are the best in the world for the money."

Wakenda, Kan., was represented on the East St. Louis sheep market Nov. 10 with 223 choice yearlings of 109 lbs average which brought the top price of $4.75. They were marketed by S. C. Diggle and handled by our house.

The top of the yearling cattle market at Chicago last week was $7.30 for a full load. A. Bada, Mills county, Ia., marketed them on Nov. 9. The shipment included 21 mixed steers and heifers of 1,011 lbs average and we sold them.

Sidney McFadden, Pike county, Ill., had a shipment of sheep on the East St. Louis market Nov. 11 and our house handled the same. Included were native ewes at $3.85 and western ewes at $3.50, the top for the respective classes.

D. J. Walker, Fall River county, S. D., writes our South Omaha house: "Allow me to thank you for your effort in securing claim for me against railroad, I appreciate it very much. Will always have a good word to say for C. R. & Co."

D. W. Cronkheit Genesee county, Mich., writes: "I am well pleased with the load of lambs and am sure I could not have done better had I spent the time and expense in going to Chicago. Thank you for filling my order so perfectly and promptly."

Range an of the Old School.

C. H. Young of Bowler, Mont., was at Chicago last week with a shipment of cattle to Clay, Robinson & Co. He is a pioneer in western range cattle affairs, and was a member of the Texas border rangers back in '73. He was head roper and rider in Buffalo Bill's Wild West Show when the European trip was made. He knew Al. Bowie, one of Mr. John Clay's characters in "Squaw Mountain," having rode the range with him in Wyoming. Mr. Young took occasion to register a complaint against the federal government's policy in handling the forest reserve question. He says that under the present ruling western stockmen are not getting a square deal in that ranging operations are needlessly restricted and much good range going to complete waste. He contends that the reserves should be opened and both the summer and winter range would then be afforded the small as well as big ranchman at a time when there is urgent need of more range in the West.

A Useful Device.

We will call your special attention to the "ad" of the Witten Automatic Dump Cart on back cover of this issue. We believe it to be one of the most useful of devices for the farm or around the house.

I H C Manure Spreaders Have Proved Their Efficiency

WHEN it comes to choosing a manure spreader there is no need to run any risk. Satisfaction is a certainty if you choose an I H C. These machines have been proved under all conditions. Their efficiency is a matter of record.

The superiority of I H C spreaders is not due to any one feature of construction but to the care—the material—the brains—that are used in making every part.

I H C spreaders have many advantages—all of which tend to make the machine, as a whole, more perfect than any other. It is folly to suppose that one or two good parts make a satisfactory spreader.

A close comparison between I H C Manure Spreaders and others, will result in your choice of one of the I H C line—the Kemp 20th Century, the Cloverleaf, or the Corn King. You will see the many features which place I H C spreaders so far in the lead in simplicity, strength, efficiency, and durability. You will notice the absence of troublesome gear wheels, the few levers, the perfect-working apron, the wide range of feed, the light draft, and the other advantages which have made I H C spreaders the choice of careful farmers everywhere.

You also have a wide range of styles and sizes to select from in the I H C line. Kemp 20th Century and Corn King Spreaders are of the return apron type. Cloverleaf spreaders have endless aprons. All are made in several sizes ranging in capacity from 30 to 70 bushels.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

Spoiling the Horse.

I have noticed that if a gentle horse be hitched to a tree or other immovable object and commanded to pull, he will at first pull all he can; the second time he will not pull with quite so much confidence as at first; while on the third or fourth attempt he will pull but little or perhaps not at all. To whip and urge him to pull would only start in him the habit of balking. If a horse is overloaded, or so exhausted that he cannot pull the load and in this condition is whipped and urged to go, he will balk; or if he starts too quickly and is pulled back violently or whipped till confused and exited, the habit of balking is begun. Thus we see that this habit is purely acquired the same as kicking and other habits for which there can hardly be a reasonable excuse.

There are few men sufficiently gifted with the wisdom and patience to judiciously use the whip. The average driver appears to believe that it is the accompaniment of a loud voice and much bluster, while others use it most freely when angry, the result of which is to produce a like irritation in the horse.—Farm Journal.

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef.

The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

THE only device ever offered that does so much to eliminate drudgery and quicken the handling of all kinds of material. It carries four times the load with only half the energy and dumps it automatically. The dumping device, being automatic and under perfect control at all angles, enables the user to dump the load when, where and how he may choose.

The load being balanced on the axle and the handles adjustable to fit the height of any user, enables a child or woman to do a man's work.

Adjusted for carrying material longer than the cart—Fence Posts, Lumber, etc., etc.

Gate Always Attached To The Box.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, November 25, 1910 | No. 47

Ogden Armour Analyzes Meat Situation.

"The packers' prices to the retailers are based entirely on what we have to pay for the live animals," says J. Ogden Armour, the famous packer, with headquarters at Chicago. "Generally speaking, present prices are lower, and I believe they are working toward a still lower level. The present situation is the result of an enormous corn crop and of previous high prices that stimulated everybody to raise live stock.

"The public is getting the benefit of present conditions and should get further benefit as the increased supply of live stock comes to the market.

"The recent high price of meats and packing house products cannot be attributed in any way to the packers or to any combination of persons or firms engaged in the packing-house industry. It has been due to conditions that developed from a scarcity and a high price for corn, which is the basis of the supply of live stock.

"Conditions in live stock raising are bigger than any packer or set of packers. Our prices are based on what we have to pay for live stock, and the sooner the people and the world at large realize that fact the better it will be for everybody.

"I believe when that fundamental fact is understood generally the people will be glad that they have the packing industry. No number of small concerns could begin to do business on so small a margin of profit as the packers."

"Do you believe there will be an unusual drop in prices from the so-called high level?" Mr. Armour was asked.

"You cannot expect to jump from abnormally high prices to much lower prices in a minute," he replied. "Such a movement requires time. It is my opinion, however, that this transition will be in favor of the consumer."

Two Commission Men Die Suddenly.

Thomas Kelly and W. W. Shearer, two of the old-time and highly respected Chicago live stock commission merchants, died the night of Nov. 16, within an hour, both victims of heart trouble, and both deaths were entirely unexpected and caused a deep shock to the men of the Chicago live stock trade, with whom they had been associated for many years.

Mr. Kelly was at his office in the Exchange building only that day, feeling in normal health, while Mr. Shearer was at the Yards only Saturday of the previous week, but complained of a cold at the time.

Mr. Kelly and Mr. Shearer were long identified with live stock affairs and heavily interested in live stock, as well as packing and banking industries connected with the Stock Yards.

Record Number of Fat Cattle Entries.

Secretary Heide has announced the entries of carlots at the coming International. This list finds 138 loads—the longest list ever made for an International show, which means the finest list in the world. Not only have the old-time feeders who have carried off prizes in the past entered a carload or more, but there are many younger feeders coming and the judges will have a very hard task in selecting the royal purple ribbon winners.

In the fat carlots are 108 entries, while but thirty cars of feeders are entered. The eastern district has the greatest number in the fat classes, seventy-five cars coming from that section, mostly Illinois and Iowa, where a bumper corn crop is being harvested this fall.

Indiana Cattle Feeders' Meeting.

The fourth annual meeting of the Indiana Cattle Feeders' Association held at Lafayette was the most successful as well as the most largely attended of any of the meetings of this association yet held. More than 50 feeders and stockmen of the state and surrounding states gathered to hear the addresses and to see the experimental cattle placed on feed.

Best Stock None Too Good.

J. G. Imboden of Decatur, Ill., gave his experience and practices that have made him successful as a feeder. Mr. Imboden said that in his opinion the feeders of the corn belt would have to breed more of their own cattle and not depend so largely on the West for their supply, and that while it often pays to buy plain cattle if they can be secured at a plain price, if a man is breeding his own stock the best that he can secure is none too good. That while the feeder often makes a profit on plain stock, he must buy them at a price that will usually lose the breeder money. But that if plain cattle are bought for feeding they must be short fed and marketed early. He said that, while he had never used a silo, he believed that it meant cheaper gains and more profit and that it was one of the best methods of caring for the corn crop. Regarding the marketing of cattle, he remarked: "We generally market our cattle a week too early or ten days too late. The date of marketing the cattle should be decided upon before the cattle are bought. The feeder should consider his peculiar conditions, determine the age and quality of the cattle best fitted for them and buy accordingly, and then feed them according to a definite plan. When the date for shipping them arrives, let them go. If you wait for the market, then ten to one you miss it."

NO "CATTLE AND SHEEP WAR" HERE.

Grow More Corn and Cattle.

President H. J. Waters of Manhattan, Kan., addressed the meeting on the subject of "Our Future Meat Supply." "We have caught up in consumption with our production of meat. It is up to us to devise some way to increase production, or else we shall have to quit being an exporting country. We need to grow more corn, more cattle and more wheat and to buy less than we are now buying in foreign countries.

"As the price of corn belt land increases we see the number of grain elevators increasing, and more and more corn stalks left to waste in the field. The fertilized value of the crop raised on the farms of the state is great. If the corn crop of Indiana were to be sold today and leave the farms of the state, there would go with it fertilizing ingredients of value enough to pay for all the land in Benton county.

"We must farm intensively. We must take a lesson from Denmark, which supports a population of 155 people per square mile, and besides exports to the value of $9.00 per acre.

"The fat, which comprises about 40 per cent of the gains of fattening cattle, cost for food and labor anywhere from 18@25c per pound. The fat is the cheapest part of the steer and costs the most to put on the animal. We must breed our cattle so that they will cover evenly and quickly with lots of mottled meat. We must breed cattle that will fatten rapidly on grass and short feed. We must put as little fat as necessary on them, and have the animals of the right kind so that they will put it on in the places where it will be useful for human food."

President Waters then showed the increased cost of gain as animals get older and the effect of good breeding upon the early fattening of the animal in their relation to the more economical production of meat.

About That Enormous Corn Crop.

"Terrific cribbing will be the feature of the 1910 crop," says a Chicago corn trader. "The farmer, redolent with the memory of 60@80c corn, regards corn as an excellent investment. Eighty-five per cent of the corn crop is consumed in the raising and feeding states. Corn is converted into pork, beef and mutton. Over 200 commercial articles are manufactured from corn. Glucose companies grind 80,000,000 to 100,000,000 bushels annually; liquor manufacturers use 50,000,000 bushels; brewers and stimulant manufacturers use 20,000,000 bushels. About 7 per cent of the corn filters to terminal points under the head of primary receipts. Carefully cured corn can be held indefinitely. The lesson of 1908, when anything styled corn sold at 70@80c per bushel, is fresh in the farm brain. Two liberal corn crops in succession always brings a huge increase in farm animal production. The effects of the 1905 and 1906 crops of 2,707,000,000 and 2,900,000,000 bushels, respectively, caused the biggest jump in animal population on record, from 153,000,000 Jan 1, 1905, to 180,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1907. On this basis about Jan. 1, 1911, animal population is liable to be 180,000,000 to 184,000,000, versus 174,000,000 on Jan. 1, 1910, and 181,000,000 Jan. 1, 1909—just about the same total that ate up the record yield of 1906."

The Guiser Cattle Do Well.

Guiser Bros., the well-known and successful farmers, feeders and shippers of Spring Valley, Minn., had a load of fat cattle at the Northwestern Show, held at St. Paul last week, which took the second prize in the three-year-old and under four class. They were mixed Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus, numbered 15 head, averaged 1,548 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction at $6.25 to Swift & Co. They made the excellent gain of 125 lbs per head in forty-five days. From June until Oct. 1 they had nothing but grass, after which they were given corn, middlings and 4 lbs of oil meal on a meadow, the grain ration being a relatively light one throughout the feeding period.

Putting Up Corn for Roughage.

William Lamprecht, a well known farmer and feeder of Bloomfield, Neb., who was on the Sioux City market Nov. 18 with a load of yearling steers and heifers of his own feeding, and which were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co., says that he has seen few seasons when there has been less sickness among the hogs than this fall.

"The presence of so much old corn in the country is one cause," he remarked, "but I think the weather is another cause requiring equal consideration. This has been an exceptionally dry fall and the hogs have always had dry places to sleep in and they have not been subjected to cold, wet days which bring sickness. This and the fact that farmers have had a good deal of old corn on hand to feed has made it an exceptionally good year from the standpoint of health. The country about Bloomfield is pretty well stocked with hogs and they are all thrifty, which gives the farmer the maximum output both as to number and weights. Cattle on feed, I should say, are in about the same numbers as last year. Lots of corn has been put up for roughage. We did not get a third the usual hay crop and farmers have been forced to utilize all the roughage the farm produces."

Mr. Lamprecht had in a couple of loads of long yearlings of his own raising and feeding. They had been fed for six months, running on tame and blue grass while the pastures were good, with a liberal ration of corn. The consignment was mixed steers and heifers. Six of the heavier cattle were sold at $6.00 and the remainder, averaging 865 lbs and comprising the bulk of the stuff, sold at $5.50.

A Booster From New Mexico.

Charles DeBremond of Roswell, N. M., landed in the Pecos Valley from Switzerland, his native country, less than 20 years ago. The valley was new then, so far as farming and the irrigation of the land was concerned. Irrigation had been started, and a movement was on to spread it. Mr. DeBremond invested in some land, and since that time he has been making additions until his land under irrigation amounts to 500 acres. It is said that his farm is one of the best improved in the valley. Several artesian wells gush out large streams over the fields, and he raises fine crops each year. He has on the farm about 250 acres in alfalfa which this year made a yield of five tons to the acre. This can be sold readily for $14 per ton. Then he has on his place an apple orchard which is valuable.

"The great transformation that has taken place in the Pecos Valley since I went there is simply wonderful," remarked Mr. DeBremond. "It was in its raw state then; now we see the finished product. It is like a garden spot out there in a desert. Blooming orchards, green alfalfa fields and fine crops where a few years ago cattle were herded. And such a climate! Sunshine forever, in an altitude that is bracing and pure. Roswell was a wild and sporty village when I went there Gambling and other vices were common, but now we have a pretty little city of over 6,000 inhabitants that is a paradise to live in." Mr. DeBremond is a valued patron of Clay, Robinson & Co and handles a large number of sheep in addition to managing his valuable farm. He has marketed in Kansas City during the past few weeks fifteen loads of sheep.

Short-Fed Cattle Win Honors.

One of the most progressive and successful farmers and feeders in the Northwest is E. B. Griffith, who is also prominent in banking circles, being cashier of the State Bank at Wheaton, Minn. He had two loads of cattle in the carload at the Northwestern Show, held at South St. Paul last week, and they captured third prize in the three and under four-year-old class in spite of the fact that they had been on full feed only about three weeks. When put in the feed lot they were of good weights. The cattle were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. to Swift & Co. at $5.50 and $6.00. O. L. Myaer, graduate of the Minnesota Agricultural College, is foreman of Mr. Griffith's farm and was the feeder of the cattle, and the good condition they were in in so short a time shows that he knows his business well.

Words of Praise From Mr. Rhea.

J. E. Rhea, one of the most prominent cattle and sheep men in the Southwest with headquarters at Roswell, N. Mex., writes James Reid, chief of the cattle selling force of Clay, Robinson & Co. at Kansas City, in part as follows:

"My business is not very rushing this morning, so I shall take pleasure in telling you some of the things doing in this great Sahara. We are still short of moisture, but it has not rained for so long we are trying to get along without it. I believe we have sufficient grass for the winter. Not much is required in this climate for wintering sheep and there are not many cattle here now We have figured up our Kansas City business for this season and discovered an exceptional balance.

"Considering our long and very satisfactory connections with Clay, Robinson & Co., we take pleasure to again express our sincere appreciation of the splendid service this company has given us. In expressing our satisfaction to the management, we desire to extend the same appreciation to the office and yard force as well for good judgment, untiring energy and loyalty to our interests."

John Foster, Meadow, S. D., was at Chicago this week with a shipment of cattle to us. He shipped to J. M. Robinson & Co. thirty years ago, and remarked that he was rendered most excellent service. He was out of the shipping business for twenty-seven years. He is now getting back into the raising and feeding of cattle and hogs, and sent his first shipment to Clay, Robinson & Co. He remembers our Mr. C. O. Robinson as a hard, tireless worker, and he was overjoyed to see him after all these years.

Iowa-Fed Yearling Cattle Which Topped Chicago Market 50c Per Cwt.

It was Wednesday, Nov. 16, that Clay, Robinson & Co. performed the above feat. There were 32 head, including 9 heifers, in the lot, averaging 916 lbs, and they brought $7.75. On the same day prime big weight beeves had to go at $7.25. They were Angus and were raised by C. C. Jackson and fed by his son, G. D. Jackson, both doing their work well. The cattle were from twelve to fifteen months old. Eddie Hess, buyer for Morris & Co., bought them, and reported to us that they dressed out 63 hot and 61 cold, a very creditable showing indeed.

All of the cattle were raised and fed out on land worth $150, and Mr. Jackson said they made them good money, only another instance where actual experience demonstrates that it is profitable to raise good calves and feed them out for baby beef even on high-costing land.

"These cattle were suckling calves up to last February," said the senior Mr. Jackson. "They were put up by themselves at night and fed oats and corn, half and half, night and morning. After February they were weaned and kept on the same ration until May. They were then turned out on grass and given enough cut ear corn at night so that they would clean it up well until the latter part of August. The ration was then increased until they were getting all they wanted."

The Jacksons are famous breeders and feeders of Angus cattle. During the past twelve years they have topped the Chicago market with yearling Angus cattle every year, Clay, Robinson & Co. making all of the sales. The senior Mr. Jackson commenced shipping to Clay, Robinson & Co. when a young man, and has been a steady and liberal patron of theirs ever since.

Mr. Jackson is seen standing back of the horse at the left in the picture, and Eddie Hess, the buyer of the cattle, is on the horse at the right.

Dry Farming in the West.

This is a new branch of agricultural science that has been developed in the western states, especially Wyoming. Dry farming is largely a local problem as yet, for no satisfactory system of dry farming has been developed that is suited to all of our arid sections. The growing season and the crops grown vary in different localities. So we can easily see that this condition develops a number of local problems, which must be worked out to the best advantage by those concerned. However, these people that are confronted by these local problems have a few general considerations that apply to all sections of the country upon which to work.

These considerations might be called basic principles. One of them is water. Water is an important factor in plant growth and must be carefully husbanded when the supply is limited. The water is collected and stored above the ground for future use—this is a common practice. Likewise, it can be caught and stored in the ground by complying with a few simple requirements. Therefore, if the rainfall over an area is sufficient to produce a crop every year, every alternate year, or three years out of five, fairly profitable yields are reasonably sure, providing the soil is fertile. But as far as our arid sections of the West are concerned, this proviso can be eliminated, because their soils are well supplied with plant food. It is clear then that if moisture is to be stored in a soil, that soil must be made a reservoir of ample capacity. Compact, uncultivated soils do not hold much moisture, but act as a roof to turn it off. It is therefore necessary to break up the soil into small particles before it will hold water. This is accomplished by plowing and discing.

The next important principle of dry farming is to hold the moisture available when it has once been collected. This is provided for by surface cultivation, which produces a dust blanket, or soil mulch, that is more loose than the underlying soil. This prevents, to a large extent, loss of water by evaporation. So little moisture is lost by percolation in the arid regions that this factor can be ignored.

Therefore we see that the two most important factors in dry farming are: a soil reservoir of sufficient water holding capacity and a method of conserving the moisture till such a time as it can be used by the growing crops. But remember, the amount of precipitation determines the yield only within certain limits. It is the amount which can be saved that counts.

There are three other important considerations. First, the moisture needed is supplied in the form of rain or snow, which must fall at a time and in a manner that permits of its soaking into the ground. Moisture may fall in small amounts throughout the year, but usually most of it falls during a comparatively few months. These months may be spoken of as the "wet season." Second, a deep friable soil. The soil for dry farming should be four or six feet deep and of a texture that permits of the absorption of water. Therefore land with the hardpan too near the surface would not be the kind of land desirable for dry farming. Third, hardy, drought-resisting, rapid-growing, early maturing crops. In many of the sections of the arid West the first two conditions are supplied by nature. Man must supply the third.

Now we will take up the subject of collecting the moisture. As stated above, in many if not most of the dry farming sections, the greater part of the precipitation comes during one season of the year—the "wet season." To catch this moisture, whether rain or snow, the fields must not be allowed to go into the "wet season" in a smooth, unpulverized condition. They should be ridged and well pulverized to a good depth, say eight to twelve inches. This condition prevents loss of water by running off if the rains are torrential, and holds the snow much better than a smooth surface. Also a loose soil will not freeze as hard as a compact one and will thaw out quicker in the spring, all of which favors absorption of moisture. To be more specific, the land should be plowed or disced before the "wet season" sets in.

This opens the question as to whether the dry farmer should plow in the fall or the spring. It seems best to plow in the fall, but many practice spring plowing successfully. The latter, however, often use the disc harrow in the fall preceding. However, fall or spring plowing is a propositition which must be worked out by the individual for himself. The general proposition that some sort of tillage should be administered before the "wet season" sets in, holds for practically all dry farming sections.

We now come to the question of conserving the moisture. We know that water which soaks into the soil will come to the surface again, being drawn up by the capillary attraction. The spaces between the soil particles form themselves into capillary tubes of various sizes and shapes, and serve to conduct the water to the surface of the ground, where it is lost by evaporation. Breaking these tubes by surface tillage interrupts the capillary action, preventing a large part of the soil moisture from reaching the top of the ground. As a result it remains stored in the soil. Frequent tillage is required to maintain this condition because there is always a tendency for the capillary tubes to re-establish themselves and go to wasting moisture again. Briefly, then, the conservation of the soil moisture depends upon the proper surface tillage. A dust mulch, or from two to four inches of the finest pulverized soil must be kept on the surface all the time. If rain destroys or packs this mulch, it must be restored at once by thorough surface cultivation.

There are many details involved in the practice of dry farming that must be worked out to suit local conditions. Among these are the kind of tools to use, when to use them, the kind of crops to grow, the best time to plant, the depth to plant, etc. The man who works them out most correctly will be the most successful.

Now a peculiar thing about many dry farm soils, is that they do not seem to lose their fertility as rapidly as might be expected. Some such soils, which have produced a crop of wheat every other year for thirty years, with a year of summer fallow after each crop do not show any signs of depleted fertility. Of course in these cases the wheat has been cut with a header and the straw plowed under. This practice has kept up the supply of organic matter which favors the growth of those forms of bacteria that convert the plant food into available forms.

This is not assigned as the sole reason for the continued productivity of dry farms, but it probably has an influence. It is worthy of note, however, that dry farmed soils do not seem to lose their productivity as rapidly as those in the more favored sections of the country, and this fact may have a wider significance than is generally supposed at the present time.

To Eastern Shippers.

Very likely East Buffalo is your market. If so, don't overlook the fact that Clay, Robinson & Co., while "Best in the West" are also strong in the East. Our East Buffalo branch is in position to give you splendid service in the handling of your cattle, hogs or sheep, having exceptionally able salesmen in all branches. Correspond with them, call upon them when at East Buffalo, and, most important of all, consign to them if you want the best service that market affords.

Probably you have noticed that for some time past you have received only occasional copies of the Live Stock Report, instead of every issue as formerly?

This is because our list has grown so large that we are able to cover only a part of it each week—EXCEPT that paid subscribers always receive every copy promptly and regularly.

The issues you miss are likely to be the very ones that contain matter of most value to you, and that we are most desirous you should have. But the enormous postage expense absolutely forbids our sending the paper each week to every name on our list, much as we would like to do so.

However, there is an easy way out of the difficulty. By filling out and mailing us the coupon below, together with 50 cents, you will be enrolled as a paid subscriber, and will receive every issue promptly and regularly. We hope you will do this, if the paper is worth 50 cents per year to you and you wish to receive every copy.

You will also receive, free of charge, our remarkably beautiful Flower Girl Souvenir Calendar for 1911, when same is distributed in December.

Cattle Feeders,

Attention!

The splendid assortment of high-grade feeding cattle consigned to us for exhibition during the

International Live Stock Show will be sold by us at public auction on Friday, December 2

Plan to be on hand and secure some of these very desirable offerings, which will include well bred calves, yearlings and two-year-olds from the famous North Park country of Colorado, as well as from Wyoming, the Panhandle of Texas, and other sections, some of the best herds in the United States being represented.

Clay, Robinson & Co.

Union Stock Yards,
Chicago.

C. F. SHAFFER OF WELLMAN, IA.

He is recognized as one of the leading breeders of Shorthorn cattle and Poland-China hogs of this country. During the past few years he has shipped his fine stock into thirty-five states, as well as into Canada and Old Mexico. Mr. Shaffer tells us that he does practically all of his business through mail orders, and that he has the first complaint to hear from any one of his customers. This is a record that he feels mighty proud of. He has 200 acres of hog tight, fine farming land, and is credited with one of the best managed and most up-to-date stock and feeding farms in the Middle West. Mr. Shaffer is one of Clay, Robinson & Co.'s valued clients, and never fails to recommend their superior service to all who feed and ship cattle, hogs or sheep.

Alfalfa is a Paying Crop.

Charles Auckland of the Auckland Agricultural Co. of Olney, Colo., landed at Kansas City with five loads of cattle which Clay, Robinson & Co. handled. This company owns 1,200 acres of land, most of which is under irrigation. They got in there 20 years ago when land was cheap, and now their farm is very valuable. Several years ago when beet raising was begun they raised beets a few years, and it is said they broke the sugar beet record three years ago when they produced on 40 acres 38 tons of beets, which was sold for $5 per ton, or $190 per acre. But they abandoned beet raising after that and went to raising alfalfa, and now there is on this farm about 500 acres of alfalfa. This season they raised over 4,000 tons of the hay. There is on the place a modern alfalfa grinding mill with a capacity of eight tons an hour. High-grade cattle are kept, and hog raising is also one of the paying industries on the farm. At present there is a herd of 350 hogs on the farm.

"Alfalfa is the great commercial crop of the irrigated district of that state," said Mr. Auckland. "The quality of the alfalfa is first class. The demand for it is ahead of the supply, and so the man who can raise it is sure of a big profit on his crop. The country where we are located is level and very productive. The only thing that is needed to insure regular and big paying crops is water. Under irrigation the crop is assured, as we have the sunshine and the best of weather. All our alfalfa land is under irrigation. Besides being a good paying crop, alfalfa does not impoverish the soil. Sugar beets or any other crop will in time reduce the fertility of the soil, and then the crop must be changed. But in raising alfalfa we can go right along indefinitely. Just now everything is looking well out that way, and the people are prosperous. The country does not seem to be over stocked, and stock will be well cared for."

C. R. Welday, Jefferson county, Ohio, writes: "Enclosed find $1.00 for which continue my subscription to the Report two years. I could not do without your paper. Winter appears to have set in early here, as we have already had some little snow. Corn only partly husked. Wheat is in grand shape. Farmers in this vicinity are principally engaged in dairying."

Record Number of Exhibits at 1910 Northwestern Stock Show.

The management of the Northwestern Live Stock, Corn and Grain Show may well be proud of the display of cattle, hogs, sheep and cereal products at South St. Paul last week. Never before was there gathered such an array of farm wealth of the Northwestern states as at the fourth annual exhibit in that city. Through the untiring efforts of Mr. William Magivny, general manager of the show, and premiums and special prizes aggregating $10,000, farmers and stockmen in that territory responded in a way that was amazing and very elating. The attendance of visitors was above the fondest expectations. The show was so far greater in every respect than the previous ones that it is useless to make comparisons. Within the walls of the great castle of corn were 1,613 of the pick of cattle, hogs, sheep and horses, against 817 last year, and corn and grain exhibits to the number of upwards 200. In addition were several specially prepared cars of grain exhibits from Northwestern states by various railroads on the tracks near the show grounds. Everything was under cover and the show pavilion steam heated, something most pleasing to both man and animal.

Judges Had Hard Work.

Exhibits of breeding and fat stock were surprisingly good, and it was no easy task for the judges to pick the winners in many classes. The showing of cattle, hogs and sheep were far greater in number and superior in quality than last year, especially in the fat classes. This went to indicate the increased attention the Northwestern farmer is paying to the welfare of his farm through the education of stock shows and state agricultural schools.

CORN PALACE AT SOUTH ST. PAUL.

Within the walls of this fine corn palace were housed the excellent array of cattle, hogs, sheep and cereal exhibits at the Northwestern Show, held at South St. Paul last week. The front is built with ears of corn alone, there being around 30,000 ears used. Three of the Dent varieties were used —White, Yellow and Northwestern.

Deserving of Unstinted Support.

The farmers, feeders and breeders of the Northwest should give strong support to the coming Northwestern Shows. They are conducted on broad educational lines, and the seeds of better farming, better cattle and better feeding are being sown on good soil. Here's to a bigger and better show in 1911. And Manager Magivny assures us it will be so.

Depression Hurts Auction Sales.

There was a lack of sharp competition for the fat classes of stock, due in a large measure to the depressed and slumpy condition of the markets. Yet Swift & Co. and the butchers of the Twin Cities did well, considering the bad state of the meat trade. Clay, Robinson & Co. topped the sale of carload beeves by a big margin with the Watson yearlings at $8.00 and landed his single steer at $8.10.

Says Cattle Will Average High.

H. F. Brown of Minneapolis, Minn., and president of the Northwestern Live Stock Association, made the following remarks: "I do not take any credit to myself for the arrangements that have been made for this show. William Magivny is the power than 'stands behind the throne' and I congratulate him upon the arrangements that he has made for the show this year. The Northwestern Show is the most complete and unique show that I ever saw and you can find stock down in that show that is the equal of any in the world. There you can see steers in the pink of finish and condition, raised in Minnesota, steers two years old that will tip the scales at 2,000 lbs. There are more than twice as many head of stock at the show this year as last year, and the show is still in its infancy. People are beginning to wake up and exhibitors should begin to fit stock now for the show next year. No state can equal Minnesota for feeding and raising steers." Here Mr. Brown called up the memories of the early days of cattle exhibiting and raising and said it was the cattle from Minnesota that took the sweep stakes and the grand sweep stakes at fairs. "I predict that $10 per cwt will be the average price paid for good steers in the markets of the world in a few years. The price of meat has been going up and will generally hold up. The prophecy was made several years ago that there would be a rise of $2.00 per cwt in the price of beef and it came true." In conclusion Mr. Brown said: "I see in the future the Great American Royal Show right here in South St. Paul."

Corn and Cattle Good Combination.

Talking on corn and cattle in Minnesota, Professor Andrew Boss of the Minnesota Agricultural College, remarked: "We get 62 bushels of corn to the acre at the university farm. This is not the result of a single big yield, but is the average result obtained at the farm with good seed in a five year rotation. In our fields, taking a ten year average we have harvested a 56 bushel yield to the acre. The actual cost of growing this corn per acre is found to be $10.26. We have found from our experience in the matter of growing corn in this state that great care should be exercised in the matter of planting, as even drilling is of importance. We have also found that the best result to be gained in the feeding of this corn is to feed it to the stock as a finishing feed. In this climate cattle can be kept in the feed lot practically all winter without much hardship. It is best to feed the corn in the bundle, but the old way of throwing it into the feed lot and allowing the cattle to eat it off the ground is costly and wasteful. It is better to feed the bundles in the rack. The old idea of feeding hogs and cattle in the same lot and expecting the hogs to clean up what the cattle fail to get is not as economical as it might at first seem. The hogs dirty up the corn so much that the cattle get very little satisfaction out of eating it and much is wasted. Con-

YEARLING STEERS WHICH WERE GRAND CHAMPIONS OF NORTHWESTERN SHOW.

G. M. Watson, the famous feeder of Caledonia, Minn., was the feeder and Fowler & Tod, the famous breeders of Maple Hill, Kan., were the breeders of these Hereford yearling steers which easily took first and grand championship honors at the Northwestern Show, held at South St. Paul last week. They were pronounced by all who saw them as exceptionally fine as regards both quality and finish. They were bought at the last International by Clay, Robinson & Co. and were also sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction last week. There were 15 head in the lot, which averaged 1,111 lbs and were bought by Swift & Co. at $8.00 per cwt. The price was considered a very good one, in view of the low and depressed condition of the markets. Mr. C. O. Robinson, who attended the show, stated that they would have brought around $9.50 at the International Show last year. This shows how much lower the market is than a year ago.

When placed in the feed lot on Dec. 6, 1909, Mr. Watson said the cattle averaged 445 lbs and just before being shipped to South St. Paul on Nov. 7 last, they tipped the beam at 1,125 lbs. Thus, they made the most excellent gain of 680 lbs in about twelve months, in spite of the fact that the feeding season through the summer was one of the worst experienced in Minnesota for many years, the drought burning up the pastures and other green feed, and cutting the gain down at least 100 lbs. Yet, according to Mr. Watson, the cattle made him good money.

"I let the cattle run to clover hay in a barn at the outset," remarked Mr. Watson, in speaking of the way he handled them. "On Jan. 1 they were given a sack of oats a day, and fed this way until March 1. Then one more sack was added, one in the morning and one in the evening, which ration was given them until May. 1. I then added ground corn and cob and fed one basket in the morning and one in the evening through the month of May. After this two baskets were added, they getting two baskets in the morning and two in the evening until July 1. The oats were then taken away and another basket of ground corn and cob added to both the morning and evening feed, making three baskets a day. During the last three months of the feeding period 3 to 4 lbs of oil meal per day per steer was added. I did not crowd the cattle at any time, giving only such quantities of feed as they would clean up. There was no pasture at any time, due to dry weather, and this reduced the amount of flesh gain by at least 100 lbs.

"My recipe for preparing cattle for the shambles is: Get cattle of good quality at the outset, feed at regular hours every day and study the feeding problem and your cattle constantly. Mediocre quality and careless feeding methods never will make good beef cattle or make the business profitable."

results of this kind of feeding, allow me to cite the case of a man who had a field of 38 acres of corn, which cost him $10.26 an acre to raise. This was fed to cattle and marketed in beef form and from the sale of that 38 acres of corn he realized $1,205, a handsome profit on his corn, amounting to about $20 an acre. This year the price of cattle was high and he would have received enough to have yielded him $50 an acre profit. The system of cattle raising and fattening that we are advocating is one in which the cattle are fed on cheap pasturage until they are in shape for fattening for the market, then we put them on bundle corn. This seems like a strange way in which to fit feeder steers for the beef market, but we have found it good as well as profitable."

Increase From Sweat of Brow.

A. E. Chamberlain, superintendent of Farmers' Institutes in South Dakota, speaking of fattening sheep on farm grains, in part said: "We have not commenced to realize the immense value there is in the soil, and this is partly due to the ignorance of the fertility of the soil and its tremendous possibilities. We will not realize the possibilities that lie in the soil until the farms are cut up into smaller tracts than are now common. The future of this country depends upon the men in the country and the kind of young men and the character of the men that are in the country. At the present time American agriculture from a field standpoint is and has been developed by a comparatively small number of men and it is only by using brain power that the country can be made to produce the increased foodstuff that the world will need. This increase will have to come from the middle western states. A little more head work will bring 25 to 30 per cent increase in the production of the farm. Let the increase come from the sweat of the brow rather than from the sweat of the back. Putting the head into the work is the way to eliminate drudgery, and it is the formula for success on the farm."

FIRST PRIZE GRADE YEARLING STEER.

G. M. Watson, the well-known and successful farmer and feeder at Caledonia, Minn., was the owner of this Hereford yearling steer which was exhibited at the Northwestern Show, held at South St. Paul last week. The animal took first honors in the cross-bred class, first in special amateur grade and cross breds and was reserve champion. Clay, Robinson & Co. sold the steer to Swift & Co. at $8.10, weighing 1,120 lbs. Mr. Watson is at the right in the picture and his son at the left.

FIRST PRIZE PURE-BRED YEARLING STEER.

This fine Hereford steer belonged to L. E. Potter & Son, the famous Hereford breeders of Springfield, Minn., and carried away first honors in the fat pure-bred single yearling cattle class at the Northwestern Show, held at South St. Paul last week. Clay, Robinson & Co. sold the steer to Swift & Co. at $7.60, weighing 1,220 lbs. Mr. Potter is seen at the right in the picture and his son at the left. Many are the honors the Potters have gathered in with their most excellent Hereford cattle, which they have been breeding for twelve years. At the last Minnesota State Fair, their Herefords took first in the Hereford State (Minnesota) special, first in herd of steers in open class, Herefords, Angus and Galloways competing, and first in the two-year-old open class.

A two-year-old Hereford steer was also exhibited by the Potters, and he was fourth in the two-year-old class. He was entered in the carcass contest and gathered in the first prize and reserve champion. He tipped the beam at 1,595 lbs, and after being shrunk 1,068 lbs showed the remarkable high per cent of 67 in the beef. They also took fifth in the show with a Hereford calf and their herd of three were third in honors.

GRAND CHAMPION LOAD OF FAT LAMBS OF NORTHWESTERN SHOW.

These were the lambs that carried away the first and grand championship honors in the fat carload sheep class at the Northwestern Show, held at South St. Paul last week. They were fed by that famous breeder and feeder of Shropshire sheep, A. L. Sayers of Lakeville, Minn., and were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. This makes three years in succession that Mr. Sayers has captured first and grand championship honors at the Northwestern Show, and also has taken prizes at the International for several years. The above lambs were not sold and were brought on to Chicago and entered in the coming International Show.

The Fence Posts of Iowa.

The United States Department of Agriculture estimates that the farmers of the single state of Iowa use every year $1,400,000 worth of new fence posts, which cost the equivalent of $600,000 for setting them in the ground. Further, the department officials believe that a part of this expenditure might be saved.

The opportunity for economy is found, first, in using the kinds of posts which, taking into account both cost and durability, are cheapest in the long run, and, secondly, by treating the posts to prevent decay, particularly those which decay most quickly. When a farmer sets a post which will have a comparatively short life, he loses not only through having to buy a new post, but also because of the additional labor involved in setting it. It is true that in both cases no money outlay may be involved, for he may set the posts himself, after getting them from his own woodlot. Of the posts used last year in Iowa, seventy per cent, it is estimated, were grown on the farms where they were used, or were obtained from other farmers or woodlot owners, and only thirty per cent were bought from lumber dealers. Nevertheless, the farmer is out his labor and the part of the product of his woodlot which is used up, even though he does not pay out any cash.

The facts concerning the use of fence posts in Iowa were brought out by an investigation which the Department of Agriculture has been making through inquiries sent to farmers. Several thousand replies have been used in compiling the figures, which, combined with statistics issued by the Iowa State Board of Agriculture as to the number of farmers and the acreage, furnished the totals. According to these totals about 10,000,000 posts are called for yearly to build and repair fences on 209,163 farms, of an average size of 158½ acres each.

The average life of a fence post is stated to be fourteen years and the average cost 13.7 cents. There is, however, great difference in the lasting properties of different woods. Osage orange lasts more than five times as long as willow does, and for length of service it heads the list of post timbers in the state. The comparative life of other posts is shown in the following list, ranging from the longest period to the shortest: Red cedar, locust, white oak, northern white cedar (or arborvitae), catalpa, black walnut, butternut, red oak, and willow.

The average cost of posts varies for different woods, and for the same woods in different localities. Red cedar is most expensive, at an average of 26¾ cents each, and willow the cheapest, at 6 cents.

Taking into consideration the time a post will last, and the cost of buying it and setting it in the ground, the conclusion must be drawn that the osage orange post is the most economical in Iowa, followed by white oak, locust, catalpa, red cedar, black walnut, butternut, willow, white cedar, and red oak in the order named.

Comparatively few posts of some of these woods are used. Catalpa and butternut together do not constitute 1 per cent, while white oak exceeds 40 per cent. From white oak, the highest, the numbers used range down in the following order: White cedar, osage orange, red cedar, willow, black walnut, locust, butternut, and catalpa. A few posts are cut from other woods. Nearly or quite one-half of all the posts were round, indicating that most of the trees cut were too small to split.

The low place attained by black walnut and butternut, generally rated high in lasting properties, is probably due to the fact that the posts were round and small, and therefore largely sapwood which decays quickly. The life of such posts would be much extended by giving them preservative treatment. Preservative treatment increases the life of all wooden posts and more than doubles the period of usefulness of those which are mostly sapwood. The two million dollars spent yearly by Iowa farmers in buying and setting fence posts might be materially lessened by putting into practice the well-known methods of wood preservation. It costs much less to treat a post than to buy a new one and set it in the ground, and in addition much wood could be saved for other purposes. The Department of Agriculture has made a special study of practical methods of preserving farm timbers, so that it is able to inform interested inquirers how to do this for themselves.

Meat Industry in Argentina

BY JAMES DAVENPORT WHELPLEY

Meat scarcity all over the world, with corresponding rise in prices, has been a subject of discussion for several years and makes the Argentine supply and its control of foremost importance, since that country is now the largest exporter of beef and, next to New Zealand, the largest exporter of mutton.

Rise in the price of meat in the United States has become particularly acute, and last winter, in particular, was the cause of much concern. According to the Secretary of Agriculture, meat was 22.6 per cent higher on Jan. 1, 1909, than the average for the years 1896 to 1900. An article in Collier's Weekly on Feb. 1 of this year stated that beef which cost at wholesale in 1896 5½c a pound cost 10c a pound in 1910 and mutton which in 1896 cost 5½c a pound cost 11½c in 1910. On Dec. 30, 1909, the New York Journal of Commerce published figures from which it concluded that since 1908 the retail price of meat had risen from 10 to 20 per cent.

High Prices Universal.

But scarcity of meat and rise in prices are not confined to the United States alone. The same is true all over the civilized world. In the summer of 1910 numerous demonstrations took place in various parts of Europe, calling to mind the so-called "meat strike" in the United States last winter. In May, 1910, it was reported that the price of Argentine beef in London had been raised to retailers 2c a pound, and it was stated that meat was higher there last summer than any time within thirty-one years.

For the first time in its history London received supplies of kosher beef from the Argentine this year. The first shipment arrived on Aug. 15. Its introduction was greeted with considerable hostility by a portion of the Hebrew population of London, which numbers about 150,000. In view of the fact that this beef from the Argentine was sold for 2c a pound less than fresh-killed beef, it was predicted that the feeling against it would soon subside and it would be accepted by the Hebrew public of London just as similar meat had been accepted by the Hebrews of the United States. The objection in London to cold storage meat was due to a feeling that it would be hard to assure its preparation according to the Mosaic law.

Serious Question in Continental Europe.

In Germany and Austria, likewise, large increases in the price of meat took place, occasioning popular demonstrations and much concern on the part of government authorities. In both Germany and Austria, where chilled or frozen beef is yet practically unused, supplies of live cattle have become so difficult to obtain and are so high in price that the question of introducing frozen or chilled beef from the Argentine is under consideration.

Italy has already begun the introduction of frozen beef in small quantities, and last summer the Spanish government removed restrictions formerly existing in that country against the importation of this product. Following this action it was expected that the importation of Argentine beef would be begun in greater or lesser quantities.

Portugal has not yet come to the point of importing chilled or frozen beef, but the town council of Lisbon voted $400,000 on Aug. 12, 1909, to secure supplies of live cattle from the Argentine. This action was taken after experiments with cattle from the tropical colonies of Portugal, which proved too tough and stringy.

At present Great Britain takes practically all of Argentina's frozen meat. It is the only country in Europe where frozen meat has yet obtained a general foothold. But the facts cited in regard to other countries indicate that Europe will find it difficult henceforth to depend upon live cattle, and the probability is that the trade in the frozen product is on the point of great expansion.

Chilled and Frozen Beef.

The rise of the frozen and chilled beef industry was directly due to the outbreak ten years ago of foot-and-mouth disease in Argentina. This brought about the closing of the English ports to live cattle from that country. To save a valuable industry, freezing works sprang up, and the change in the product followed.

English ports have been closed to Argentine live cattle almost continuously since. There is at the present time considerable demand in England for reopening them, but owing to the recent reappearance of foot-and-mouth disease in one of the Provinces it is unlikely that the English regulations will be relaxed. Indeed, it is predicted in some quarters that British ports will remain indefinitely closed to the shipment of live stock from Argentina.

Agitation for reopening the ports is principally confined to England, where it is felt that the possibility of importing live cattle would break the control of the meat industry held by the freezing works and tend to lower prices. In Argentina there is also some demand for the shipment of live cattle, but it is doubtful if many ranch owners are vitally interested in the matter or would be greatly benefited by it. So long as present prices are paid by the freezing works, cattle raisers are losing nothing. From the economic point of view, the frozen-meat industry is of far more benefit to the country. It is estimated that meat can be shipped in that form for about one-quarter of what it costs to export it on the hoof. Moreover, Argentina has the benefit of the labor utilized in the freezing works and the value of the by-products. This latter is a matter of considerable consequence. According to the last pastoral census, the by-products of the freezing works for the year 1907 were valued at $7,174,646 Argentine gold.

Growth of Economy.

Development of the chilled and frozen beef industry in Argentina has been evolution from a comparatively cheap product to a high-grade one. In the early days the wild cattle of the pampas were sacrificed for their tallow and hides, the most valuable part of the animal going to waste. Subsequently the jerked-beef industry began. This consisted in salting and drying meat for export to other countries of South America and the West Indies.

In time the export of live cattle grew up, and about ten years ago the frozen-beef industry was commenced on a scale of commercial importance. Within the last year or two chilled beef, in distinction from frozen beef, has been coming to the front, and represents the most recent stage in the cattle industry of the country. Chilled beef, which is the kind used in the United States, is preserved at a temperature of from 28 degrees to 32 degrees F., whereas frozen beef is usually kept at a temperature of about 14 degrees, and becomes solid in the course of preservation.

Improvements in Shipping Meat.

It was originally thought that the chilled-beef process would not permit of the long journey necessary from Argentina to Europe, but experiments proved the contrary. It has been found that it can be kept thirty days without difficulty, and it is said that experiments indicate that this time might be prolonged to ninety days without detriment. This, indeed, seems to be the theory they are adopting in Australia, and recent advices tell of the loading of another steamship there with beef destined for Great Britain, preserved by the chilling process. Previous attempts in that direction have been only partially successful, but failure heretofore is attributed to errors in detail rather than principle. Chilled beef is still so new a thing in Argentina in a commercial way that the evolution that it represents is only partially realized. Census statistics make no distinction between the chilled and frozen product, but private records indicate its remarkable progress. Five years ago the amount of chilled beef exported was less than half that of the frozen article. For the first six months of this year the output of chilled beef surpassed that of frozen. The following figures for the first six months of the respective years, from the Review of the River Plate, a weekly commercial journal, tell the story:

Year.	Chilled beef. Quarters.	Frozen beef. Quarters.
1906	269,271	783,446
1907	203,294	600,648
1908	345,647	771,565
1909	406,354	726,334
1910	723,154	668,638

Evolution of the Beef Industry.

In 1887 salt meat was the most important industry, frozen beef coming ninth, but by 1907 cold-storage beef had risen to first place, and salt meat fallen to sixth.

This change in the meat trade followed the laws of industrial progress. It was assisted by the improvement of maritime and land transport, the invention of the freezing system, and, finally, by the demands of universal consumption for a higher standard of product.

The salt-meat industry, a primitive one, necessarily gave way to more advanced methods, and the frigorifico, or freezing works, took the place of the saladero, or salting establishment.

The most prosperous year for jerked beef was 1895, when 55,089 tons were exported with an official value of $4,225,419 Argentine gold ($1 equals $0.96½ United States currency). But the highest figures recorded in the history of jerked beef cannot compare with the modern trade in the chilled and frozen product.

The exportation of live stock also had its effect in the diminished trade of jerked beef. Development of the former, however, was limited to satisfying the necessities of neighboring republics until 1890, when shipments made to England began to mount.

Necessary Improvement of Cattle.

In addition to the facts mentioned, there was another factor working against the enlargement or continuance of the jerked-beef industry. Agriculture was taking possession of the areas formerly occupied by cattle, and increasing the value of the land. This made necessary a refinement of stock, if cattle were to be raised profitably at all, and this improvement meant turning it to better and more profitable uses than the salt-beef industry of those days.

The effect of the refinement of stock and increasing value of land in diminishing the jerked-beef industry is well illustrated by comparing the progress of that industry in districts of high fertility and value and those of lesser utility. The following table supplies data for the last eighteen years of the number of cattle slaughtered by salting establishments in the Province of Buenos Aires, an old and valuable region, and in the Province of Entre Rios, a new one, possessing inferior cattle:

Year.	Buenos Aires.	Entre Rios.
1890	370,600	392,400
1891	438,000	396,600
1892	443,200	321,200
1893	380,900	364,500
1894	352,000	285,500
1895	328,400	403,600
1896	209,500	264,000
1897	249,900	235,100
1898	105,700	234,400
1899	100,600	214,800
1900	91,500	237,200
1901	140,800	258,200
1902	180,600	274,300
1903	8,100	261,000
1904		243,100
1905	63,000	348,100
1906		288,700
1907		399,900

The deductions which may be drawn from this table are suggestive. The Province of Buenos Aires, rich in live stock of a superior class, produced less and less salted beef, and at last gave up the industry entirely, as shown by its closed salting establishments.

Uruguay still participates in the salt-beef trade, because it does not possess cattle of a sufficiently high grade for the freezing establishments, which have to satisfy the European markets with select meat.

Argentina, which formerly sold jerked beef for unexacting tastes in the sugar regions of Brazil and the West Indies, now supplies high-grade meat to the most discriminating consumers of the world.

The first important step in the change in methods of raising cattle was fencing. When the herds of the Argentine roved wild over the pampas, little care and no improvement in quality were possible. The building of fences was, therefore, the first move toward improving conditions in the cattle country. The days of wild cattle and unfenced pasturage have long since passed away, and estancias or ranches in Argentina are now well fenced with plain and barbed wire, and divided up more or less into small tracts on the English paddock system.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

J. W. Early, Hardin county, Ohio, writes: "Cattle came through in good shape. They suit us."

J. B. Wilson, Wood county, Ohio, writes: "Car of sheep came in good shape and they look very good."

Taintor & St. John, prominent cattle raisers of Rosebud county, Mont., had eleven cars at South Omaha.

Robert E. Cecil, Shelby county, Ill., writes: "Cattle arrived in good shape and I think they are a good bunch."

Alvin Goddard, Warren county, Ill., writes: "Ewes arrived in good condition and are as good as I expected."

J. H. Hume, Genesee county, N. Y., writes: "Load of lambs and yearlings arrived on time and they are a very nice kind for the money."

J. H. Yeager, prominent dealer in live stock of Lagrange county, Ind., writes: "Car of sheep arrived O. K. I think they are an extra good load."

It was Nov. 18 that our South Omaha house handled a car of hogs for E. Schultz, Polk county, Neb., averaging 169 lbs, at $7.55, extreme top of the day's trade.

The limit for heavy hogs at Chicago on Nov. 16 was $7.60, which price we obtained for 63 head of 268 lbs average, belonging to H. E. Chichester, Peoria county, Ill.

Hollenbeck & McChesney, Greene county, Ill., marketed 101 head of 73-lb lambs at East St. Louis on Nov. 15 and our house landed them at top price of $6.50.

G. T. Hayslett, Cedar county, Ia., writes: "Received returns for hogs and was well pleased. Will remember you with my next shipment. Thank you for past favors."

H. L. Garrigus, superintendent of the Connecticut Agricultural College, writes: "We unloaded the heifers and they are a nice lot. Thank you for your courteous treatment."

J. F. Martin of Warren county, Ill., had 236 western yearling wethers on the Chicago market Nov. 17 that averaged 83 lbs and were sold by our house at the top price of $4.50.

W. W. Gilmore, Mercer county, Ill., writes: "I have been pleased with your sales. During the past summer and fall I have shipped four loads of cattle and two of hogs to your firm."

W. J. Finley, Adams county, Ill., marketed 126 native lambs of 77 lbs average at Chicago on Nov. 16 and we sold them at $6.15. The packers positively refused to go above this figure that day.

The Graham, Ind., Farms marketed 120 head of 101-lb western wethers at Chicago on Nov. 17 and our house sold them at $3.90, no other western wethers going within 15c per cwt of this price.

L. & P. Hensen, Chouteau county, Mont., were the owners and we the sellers of the 1,533 head of 108-lb wethers which went on feeding account at the top price of $3.50 at Chicago on Nov. 17.

Page county, Ia., was represented on the East St. Louis lamb market Nov. 17 with 107 head of 70 lbs average, which brought the top price of $6.25. They were marketed for Bert Murphy and handled by our house.

Cattle shipments on the South Omaha market included consignments from L. F. Doyle, C. E. Shaw and Dan Winslow, all from Bighorn county, Wyo., and W. H. Pierce and J. H. Baldwin, both from Bighorn county, Wyo.

It was Nov. 15 that our Sioux City house sold two loads of hogs at the top price of $7.65. The sales follow: For John Rock 78 head of 178 lbs average and for Charles Klein 70 head, averaging 234 lbs. Both parties reside in Lyon county, Ia.

Stanley county, S. D., was represented on the Chicago market Nov. 15 with a string of sheep and lambs which were marketed by A. H. Storms and handled by us. Included were 514 wethers of 90 lbs average which sold at $4.25, top for sheep that week.

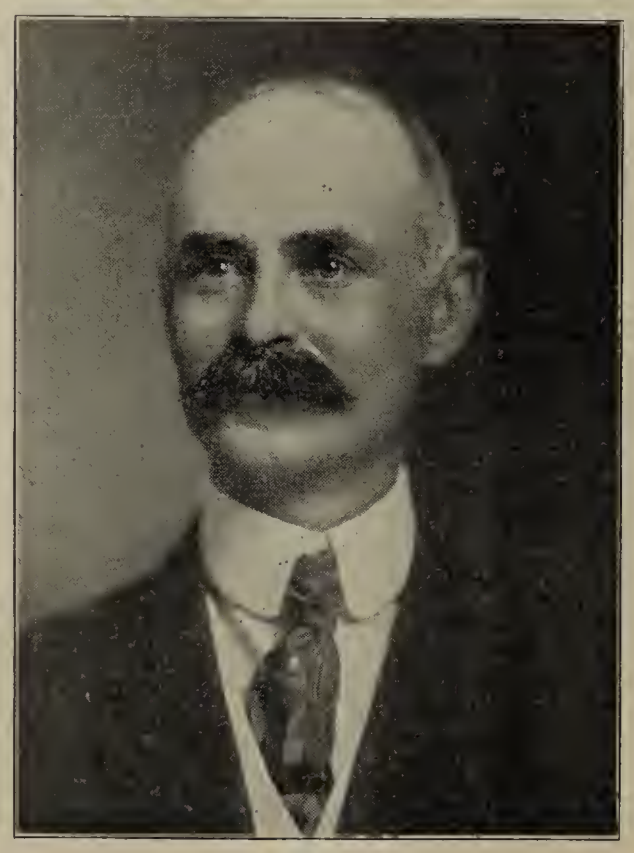
O. Weber, Putnam county, Ill., writes: "Sheep arrived in good shape and fill the bill to perfection. Many thanks to your buyer."

Although heavy lambs were very much in disfavor on Friday of last week at Chicago, we landed 212 head of 85 lbs average at $5.95 on that day, which was the practical top for handy weights. They belonged to M. L. Jussey, Noble county, Ind.

On Nov. 16th our South Omaha house handled a shipment of sheep for Walsh & Muir, Sheridan county, Wyo., included were some very good breeding ewes that sold at $4.50, as high as anything of this sort has made there during the latter part of the season.

The limit for fed-western lambs at Chicago on Nov. 17 was $6.00. Our house landed two strings at the price. The sales follow: For J. J. Fittoni, Knox county, Ill., 496 head, averaging 81 lbs, and for Thomas Martin, Peoria county, Ill., 204 head averaging 89 lbs.

R. W. Williamson, Bear Lake county, Idaho, had a string of feeding lambs at Chicago on Nov 15 and we sold them at satisfactory prices, considering the condition of the market. Included were 617 head, averaging 70 lbs, which went back to the country at the top price of $6.00, top for feeders that week.



WM. HOLTON DYE.

We take pleasure in presenting this excellent likeness of the president of the newly organized Indiana branch of the National Conservation Association. Mr. Dye and his associates are doing splendid work in arousing public interest in better highways, reforestation, developing the state's latent water power, etc. Mr. Dye is a well-known business man and capitalist of Indianapolis, and is extensively interested in live stock and farming operations.

F. W. Burns, Plymouth county, Iowa, writes our South Omaha house: "Steers arrived in good shape. They are just what I wanted. The purchase was a good one. I cannot see the advantage of spending time and money in buying and selling stuff when you can get a square deal from a commission firm."

The Catlin Land and Live Stock Co., Meagher county, Mont., had 197 head of their Hereford cows on the Chicago market Nov. 16 and we sold them at a range of $4.65@5.25. The latter price was the top of the market by a big margin and our sales at the figure consisted of 81 head, averaging 1,005 lbs. It will be recalled that early in the season we handled 20 loads of their cows and obtained the average price of $5.42. Included in the shipment were 222 head that made the record price of $5.75 for straight cows, or within 10c per cwt of the record price obtained for western range heifers.

D. M. Walker, Tremont county, Colo., favored our Denver house with a four-car shipment of cattle.

Writing our Kansas City house, Mat McKinney, Ripley county, Mo., says: "But few cattle being fed in this locality; hogs are very scarce; there are not as many sheep or lambs as in other years; the pig crop is light; corn is little better than average; horses and mules are scarce and high, and flies working harm to wheat."

Among the prominent dealers in sheep who had shipments to our East St. Louis house were: R. H. Tucker, Garfield county, Colo.; J. F. Hunn, Garfield county, Colo.; Gist & Co., Howell county, Mo.; James Geer, Madison county, Ill.; Leach & Lindsey, Lewis county, Mo.; W. J. Kays, Benton county, Mo.; Sidney McFadden, Pike county, Ill.

Dan Adamson, Cherry county, Neb., writes: "Enclosed find 50c for renewal of the Report and please be sure to send the 'Sheep Shearers' picture as advertised in the Breeder's Gazette. I am especially interested in this picture because I worked four years for the Clay & Forrest cow outfit in Wyoming in the early '90s, most of the time working under Jim Craig, son of the Matt Craig shown in the 'Sheep Shearers' picture."

We are pleased to make mention of the following Colorado customers who marketed cattle through our Denver house: R. L. Survant, Las Animas county; E. Beck, Conejo county, La Jara; D. M. Walker, Fremont county; Smith, Robinson & Co., Las Animas county; Henry Swan, Lincoln county; C. B. Rhodes, Morgan county; Johnson & Anderson, Park county; Mrs. May A. O'Connor, Arapahoe county; B. Shirkey, Elbert county; Henry Bueten, Gunnison county; Wm. Dyke, Archuleta county, and A. McGlochlin & Son, Eagle county.

Our East St. Louis house had the pleasure of handling shipments of cattle for the prominent dealers in cattle: W. Y. Pickard, Obion county, Tenn.; John Ishrig, Adams county, Ill.; H. Black, Andrew county, Mo.; J. A. Abbot, Panola county, Miss.; J. B. Collins, Montgomery county, Miss.; E. A. Felker, McCurtain county, Okla.; Hillhouse Bros., Lawrence county, Ark.; W. E. Gladney, Lincoln county, Mo.; F. Kommer, Massac county, Ill.; J. W. Orr, Morgan county, Ala.; Smith & Fleming, Linn county, Mo.; Hanson Bros., Pickens county, Ala.; J. R. Rainey, McFall, Mo.; Smith & Pettit, Knox county, Mo.; Carter & Abbot, Panola county, Miss.

We are pleased to make mention of the following prominent dealers who favored our East St. Louis house with shipments recently: Mahaffry & Archer, Cass county, Mo.; George Taylor, Morgan county, Ill.; E. Ragsdale & Tuggle, Randolph county, Mo.; J. B. Spiva & Co., Stoddard county, Mo.; Nunn & Waterman, Lewis county, Mo.; Ditch & Woodward, Warren county, Ill.; Sims & Smith, Cooper county, Mo.; T. L. Pile, Benton county, Mo.; W. H. Johnson, Pettis county, Mo.; F. Wercham, Randolph county, Ill.; Franken & Belt, Carroll county, Mo.; Garkie & Johnson, Lewis county, Mo.; F. Marmion, Van Buren county, Ia.; J. M. Mhoon, Washington county, Ark.

The following prominent feeders or shippers had hogs to our East St. Louis house: Schmidt & Kotter, Massac county, Ill.; C. A. Chittenden, Adams county, Ill.; H. Black, Andrew county, Mo.; Frank D. Draffen, Cooper county, Mo.; Roodhouse & McMahon, Greene county, Ill.; G. A. Jobes, Adair county, Ia.; R. H. Garrett, Henry county, Mo.; Hy Nichols, Clark county, Ill.; Hy Sands, Warren county, Ill.; J. J. Smith, Linn county, Mo.; A. L. Rogg, Johnson county, Ill.; Douglas & Farmer, Gibson county, Ind.; G. R. Mitchell, Gibson county, Tenn.; Ditch & Son, Warren county, Ill.; Wilcox & Littrell, Randolph county, Mo.; B. L. Thompson, Saline county, Mo.; J. Morrison, Clinton county, Ill.; C. E. Potts, Christian county, Ill.; C. A. Chittenden, Adams county, Ill.; J. E. Lindsey, Lewis county, Mo.; G. B. Greer & Son, Scott county, Mo.; T. D. Blackwood, Shelby county, Mo.; Knox Everett, Obion county, Tenn.; E. T. Cook, Adams county, Ill.; T. D. Blackwood, Shelby county, Mo.; Ditch & Woodward, Warren county, Ill.; P. T. Atterberry, Greene county, Ill.; Irvine & Duncan, Pike county, Mo.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week.....	$4.50@7.30	$5.25@6.90
Previous week.....	4.50 *7.75	5.35 7.00
Year ago.....	4.00 9.20	5.50 7.50

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Down went the price range for beef steers last week. At the close it was a generally 15@25c lower deal than the close of the previous week's finish, with cases 35c down. This made the third consecutive week that buyers dominated the market trade, and many offerings had to sell under cost of preparing them on reasonably-priced corn. Plenty of steers sold $1.00 per cwt under a month ago for grades not quite in as good flesh. Heavy liquidation and a contracted beef outlet explains the badly upset market. The week's arrivals were 70,576. We topped the week's market with yearlings at $7.75, no other cattle coming within 50c per cwt of the price.

Receipts at the start of this week 22,213. It was fortunate that feeders and shippers heeded the advice to reduce supplies. As it was, prices were only steady in most instances, with outside cases 10c higher early in the session. Though the market was a dull, sticky affair, the pens were pretty well cleared. Extra choice long yearlings of 1,134 to 1,158 lbs average reached $7.15 and very choice 1,330 lbs average had to go at $7.00.

Marketing Tuesday 7,474. Of this number many lots were she and stocker stuff, with 2,000 rangers included. The beef steer trade was nominally steady, with all buyers indifferent. Best offerings available were very good 1,338 lbs average at $6.65.

The run on Wednesday was further reduced, which was indeed a wise thing to do. The supply was only 16,000. There was much better undertone to the trade and a clearance was effected in good season at prices steady to 10c higher, the low-grade lots selling to least advantage. Top for the day was $7.30, paid for fancy yearlings, and prime heavy beeves went at $7.20.

Butcher Stock.

Bulk sales of beef cows and heifers, canners and cutters, and bulls this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Bulk cows and heifers.	Bulk canners and cutters.	Bulk bulls
This week..	$3.75@4.85	$2.40@3.25	$3.65@4.25
Last week..	3.40 4.50	2.25 3.00	4.00 4.75
Year ago....	3.35 4.65	2.25 3.00	3.40 4.25

Sellers were enabled to put the breaks on the downward trend of the market for cows and heifers last week. A big reduction in supplies was the factor. At the close prices were not materially changed from the finish of the previous week. Prime yearling heifers topped at $6.75, but there were few sales above $5.25. Bulls advanced 15@20c for the week, and calves showed a decline of 75c@$1.00.

There was an excellent demand for she stock during the first half of this week, which, along with light runs, enabled sellers to do sums in addition to the extent of 25@35c. Bulls made a strong basis, and calves held steady with last week's close.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of cows, heifers, bulls and calves:

Stockers and Feeders.

Top price and bulk sales of stockers and feeders this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Top Feeders.	Bulk Feeders.	Bulk Stockers.
This week.....	$5.65	$4.35@5.25	$3.60@4.25
Previous week..	5.75	4.25 5.25	3.40 4.15
Year ago.....	5.50	4.45 5.15	3.65 4.35

There was a continuation of liberal runs and a slack demand from all sources for stockers and feeders last week, and prices showed a further drop of 15@25c, being the lowest of the year. Of course, the bad condition of the trade in beef cattle had a depressing effect.

During the first half of this week conditions were somewhat reversed, in that receipts were considerably reduced and there was broader outlet. However, prices on Wednesday were merely strong with the close of last week.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for stocker and feeding cattle:

Good to choice feeders.....	$4 85 @	5 50

At the close of last week the average price showed 62c loss from Saturday of the previous week and 82c decline from last year. The week's run at 140,660 was the largest in nine months. At the close prices ranged from $6.75@7.40.

This week started out with another decline of 10@15c. We topped the market 5c per cwt with a load of big weights at $7.35, and bulk sales were $7.00@7.25. The Tuesday trade was generally 10c lower after the start. Prices ranged from $3.65@7.25. Opening steady on Wednesday, the market quickly weakened and closed 5@10c lower. We topped the market with two loads of 330 lbs average at $7.20 and sales were in main at $6.90@7.15.

Not heeding the warnings sent out to check liberal runs and a poor, sickly eastern dressed mutton trade worked havoc to the trade in sheep and lambs last week. Receipts totaled 168,933, against 127,199 corresponding week last year. At the close prices were the lowest in several years. As compared with the previous week's finish, lambs showed 75c@$1.00 loss, with sheep and yearlings 25@50c down. The week finished with handy weight lambs at $5.85 and prime heavy $5.50. It took fancy lamb weight yearlings to make $4.85 and prime heavy $4.00. Fancy wethers were obtained at $3.85 and a similar class of ewes $3.50.

This week started out with receipts of 37,173. Feeders wisely refused to feed a sinking market liberally. This was fortunate, as the eastern markets were heavily supplied. Buyers showed real interest in filling their orders, for the first time in several weeks. Demand centered on fat handy weight lambs and yearlings and these sold 10@15c higher. Other kinds, as well as sheep, were slower and merely steady sale. Top native lambs made $6.05 and fed westerns $5.90. Best fed-western yearlings reached $5.10, wethers $3.90 and prime native ewes $3.75.

The Tuesday run was 30,903. Demand was even better than the previous day, a most gratifying condition at this time. Lambs and yearlings advanced 15@25c, best lots showing mostly 25c gain. Trade in sheep was uneven, being anywhere from strong to 25c higher, with most cases 10@15c up. Market was the most active seen here in some time, and only went to indicate that all was needed to inject new life in the trade was sane and conservative marketing. Both native and fed-western lambs made $6.25, fed-western yearlings $5.35, wethers $4.05, which was obtained by us for two loads, and ewes $3.60.

Sellers were again in control of the trade on Wednesday, and prices showed a further advance of 10@15c for most sheep and lambs, Local slaughterers were the main props under the market, yet the undertone got better as the day's session grew older. Prices were the highest in many days Fancy fed-western lambs reached $6.50, yearlings $5.50, wethers $4.25 and ewes $3.85.

Hogs Render Very Good Profits.

D. E. Curl, a prominent feeder of Wessington Springs, S. D., was on the Sioux City market Nov. 9 with 62 head of hogs which averaged 273 lbs and grossed the excellent sum of $1,261.48. The shipment was handled by Clay, Robinson & Co., of whom Mr. Curl is a valued friend and client. Below is a clipping from the Jerauld County Review in reference to Mr. Curl's handling of hogs:

"D. E. Curl has demonstrated that farming in South Dakota pays. On Tuesday he marketed his year's crop of hogs with surprising results. He has on his farm 10 brood sows and the increase from these sows was the bunch he marketed Tuesday. He sold 57 head, which were seven months old. Their combined weight was 13,830 lbs and the net proceeds $1,057.99. Besides this, he sold two hogs last fall for $25 and kept four for meat for the winter. He now has 70 little pigs that are thrifty and 62 hogs which he will ship to Sioux City. We doubt if anyone can show a better profit for his season's work. Yet, it is the farmer who gets the tears of sympathy shed by the political orator. Thank you, he does not need it. At least, not in South Dakota."

D. E. CURL, Washington Springs, S. D.

Mr. Curl formerly lived in Shelby county, Ia., and five years ago moved to Jerauld county, S D. Land at that time cost $15 to $20 per acre, as against $50 to $75 now. Mr. Curl said that the crops were very satisfactory in his part of the state, corn making 25 to 50 bushels per acre and wheat 15 to 20 bushels.

There was an excellent demand for beef steers from both local and eastern buyers. It was an active deal on each day and on Wednesday sellers landed the bulk of their offerings at prices 15@25c higher than late last week. On this day our sales included 131 head of good 1,203 lbs average at $5.80 and 17 horned, averaging 1,197 lbs, at $5.50, they being shipped by the Catlin Land and Live Stock Co., the famous breeders of Hereford cattle in Montana. She stock showed 25@35c advance. Feeders met an insistant demand and prices were 15@20c higher. Among our sales were 156 good feeders of 1,003 lbs average at $5.50 and 65 head, averaging 908 lbs, at $5.30, the Catlin people being the consignors. Mr. Catlin was on the market and said he was greatly pleased with both the way the cattle were handled and the prices they brought.

Do Not Forget

Your entries for the National Western Stock Show, to be held at Denver, Colo., Jan. 16 to 21, 1911. This is the western stockman's best advertisement, and should be supported by liberal entries by those who have steers of quality. Indications are that the entries, as well as the offerings for sale through the auction ring, will not be as liberal as heretofore, and prices should be very satisfactory. For full information and the best service, write and consign to

SOUTH OMAHA MARKETS.

Range Cattle.

South Omaha, Nov. 22.—There was a very fair run of cattle here last week, and, in sympathy with outside points, the beef trade was dull and prices declined 25c on both steers and cow stuff from the previous week's close. Shipments included a heavier supply of native-fed stock, mostly on the warmed-up and short-fed order. These no doubt will be unsatisfactory sellers for some time at least, and at the same time affect the demand for western rangers, which in the event of good weather will likely come fairly well for the next couple of weeks. The depression in the beef trade curtailed the buying of stockers and feeders, and prices for everything of this sort broke 25c. Some very fair cattle were offered, heavier weights selling around $5.25@5.35. Light cattle, which had met the best inquiry of late, received their full share of the decline.

Range Sheep.

The run of sheep and lambs was liberal again last week, and trade very draggy throughout. With most of the feeder buyers out of the market, it was the worst deal experienced in several years. Native-fed stock, which is starting to come, met very poor reception. Better kinds of lambs were quotable at $5.25@5.50, with $5.00 taking the best feeders weighing 55 lbs and upwards; in fact, few feeding lambs sold above $4.75 late in the week. Yearlings also got hit hard and went close around the $4.00 mark. Lots of old ewes that formerly went to the feeder buyers sold to the packers at $1.50@2.00.

Luxuries vs. Booze.

Our eastern friends are very much concerned of late over the supposed extravagance of western farmers in buying automobiles. It is alleged that they cost a great deal to begin with, that their up-keep is costly, that they are used almost altogether for pleasure, that the capital thus invested becomes unproductive, that these large sums invested—running up into the millions—will make money scarce at crop-moving time, and that the debts incurred will in the near future create financial stringency.

They need give themselves no concern about the purchase of automobiles by the farmer. In the first place, farmers do not buy the more expensive sort, and what they do buy they usually pay for in spot cash. They do not use them as the townsman uses his, mainly for pleasure, but as time-savers and for the purpose of breaking up the monotony of farm life for the women folks. In a truer sense than many of us realize, this last purpose is highly productive in pleasure, in health and in time. The cash paid for these automobiles is not taken out of circulation, but flows where it is most needed to do the work of the world.

What our eastern friends should concern themselves about is the vast sums of money which are annually spent for intoxicating liquors, estimated at $2,500,000,000 a year, and almost wholly unproductive. What if the farmers were to spend even $500,000,000 a year for automobiles? A few men may be killed, a larger number of horses frightened, and a few wagons or carriages broken up. The automobile, at the worst, does not separate families nor wreck homes nor leave children fatherless, nor fill our jails with criminals, nor pile up court expenses in punishing the guilty. Judges sometimes say that nine-tenths of our crime comes from drink. Whether this be exactly true or not, it is certain that it is the source of a very large percent of our penury and want. What if Kansas farmers, for example, have, as has been alleged, some 20,000 automobiles, costing about $24,000,000? The state has already saved that many times over in her drink bills. What if Iowa farmers spend that many millions in automobiles rather than throw their money away in saloons?

If our great eastern financial interests want to check waste and extravagance, here is the place to commence. Let them inaugurate a campaign against the great brewing and distilling interests which are behind the saloons everywhere, and thus become genuine reformers and public benefactors.—Wallace's Farmer.

The Tomkins Cattle Co., Custer county, Colo., had four cars of cattle on the Denver market, shipped from Moffat, the sale of which was satisfactory.

Hulett Bros., the well-known stockmen of Rio Blanco county, Colo., marketed 21 cars of cattle at Denver last week, which our house disposed of at satisfactory prices.

Among our Wyoming customers who marketed cattle at Denver last week were J. A. W. Hudson, Laramie county, Uva; E. A. Barker, C. S. Dyer and John Innes, Albany county.

Delta county, Colo., was represented at Denver by shipments from the following well-known stockmen: J. Fobare, J. Thomason, J. Brown, A. S. Stratton, A. Clough, R. F. Rockwell.

Our house handled at Denver last week consignments of hogs from the well-known shippers: Jackson & Morris, Phillips county, Colo.; J. R. Porter & Sons, Dundy county, Neb.; Conover & Wyatt, Yuma county, Colo., and Robt. D. Monsel, Furnas county, Neb.

Albert Zibell, Jackson county, Kan., had a double deck of western ewes at East St. Louis Nov. 21, which averaged 106 lbs and was sold by our house at $3.25, top of the market by 25c per cwt. In the shipment were a lot of lambs that our house landed at $6.40, being 50c per cwt higher than any other sale of lambs.

W. Gibb, Ross, N. D., was at South St. Paul last week with two loads of cattle and was highly pleased with the prices our firm obtained for them. He said that ranchmen have shipped closer than usual in that part of the state this season, due to dry weather and a heavy influx of settlers.

Attention, Ohio Hog Feeders.

The following prominent Ohio stockmen, Edward B. Chrisman of London, J. H. Davis of London, Wm. C. Luchsinger of Port Clinton, Lucian Miller of Luckey, A. B. Davis of Mt. Sterling, H. J. Schmidt V. S. of New Bremen, and many others all use and recommend Vesey's Star Anti-Cholera for hogs, to stop disease, to destroy worms and to keep hogs in the finest possible condition to take on flesh and growth. See adv. on page 15.

NO PLACE LIKE HOME

Be It Ever So Humble, Joy Rules Where Hearts Are Happy

Is your home attractive to you? Or do you simply live there because it's just plain home? Home is only what you make it. If it's dull it's because you may be weary. If it's sunny it's because you are sunny.

If it's dull there is an offer for you that will bring sunshine into every corner of it. If it's sunny now you can make it a hundred times more attractive. The great Edison phonograph makes a palace out of the humblest home, just as it makes the grandest home the place of strongest attraction.

And the Edison phonograph distributers are making such a surprisingly liberal offer that the best Edison machines are now within the reach of all.

What the Editor Says

The editor of this paper knows well the difference in the home a phonograph makes. He had his dull moments till he got an instrument. Then what a change!

"It's wonderful," was the cry from all.

"The boys never were at home so much," said the mother.

"Why, it's the best dance music I ever heard," said my girl.

You can't tear me away from my phonograph now.

What I did you can do.

You can make your home cheerful in a remarkably simple way, for the Edison phonograph is being sent out on free trial to all honest, responsible people.

Surprise in the Catalog

Our new illustrated Edison catalog, which you can get by clipping the coupon at the bottom of this page, quotes the great Edison fireside outfit at its rock-bottom price on a special Free Offer. With this great Edison catalog you get a list of beautiful pieces and comic recitations, 1,500 selections of the great classics as well as the latest popular airs. This catalog is free, prepaid, and with this catalog you get full explanation of the free trial offer. I, as editor, would certainly advise you to get this catalog.

Phonograph a Necessity

The editor is so confident of your approval that he is inclined to grow enthusiastic. Why, a phonograph is no longer a luxury. It is a real necessity, and almost everybody is getting one. And it isn't a fad, either. You play the things you like over and over, and they always are sweet and refreshing.

The Edison catalog which I received, and which costs nothing, is a marvel. I, as editor, advise you to write to F. K. Babson, Vice President Edison Phonograph Distributers, Edison Block, Suite 3968, Chicago.

About Grinding Feed.

Prof. W. J. Kennedy of the Iowa State College, on the subject of grinding feed for live stock, says: "A careful study of the experiments conducted by the various experiment stations, and under a variety of conditions with different classes of stock, has invariably shown that it requires less ground grain to produce a given amount of milk, meat or work than it does when whole or unground grain is used. In some instances the difference is very wide—as high as 35 per cent being saved by grinding, while in other instances the difference is not very marked. Averaging up the results of all the tests reported, we find that there is a saving of about 12 per cent effected by grinding feed for the various classes of animals."

Winter Care of Brood Sows.

Success in pork production is largely affected by the attention given to the health and comfort of the brood sow. She should always, especially in winter, be housed in a warm, comfortable place. Preferably this will be a cot well supplied with straw, and having a door which swings both ways, always closing when the sow passes in or out. This cot may well be located at some distance from the feeding place, so that she will get the necessary exercise in running to and fro.

Her food should consist largely of bulky foods, such as milk, roots and clover hay, which will keep her in good condition without fattening. As farrowing time approaches the bulk should be cut down, less water should be given, and more protein and oily feeds should be fed, so as to keep the sow in a laxative condition. She should be disturbed as little as possible. If she is allowed to get nervous or excited the effect may be seen upon the litter, in an excitable temperament which lessens the rapidity of their growth. Extension Bulletin No. 7 of the Minnesota Farmers' Library, from which this paragraph is condensed, will be found to contain many other suggestions of value to the pork-raiser.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef. The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

Would Have Speed Limit Law.

Shippers are bitterly complaining of the service rendered them by the railroads. They say they are given a bad deal from the time they leave home with stock until they arrive at market. The burden of their complaint is wretchedly slow runs, entailing heavy shrinkage in weight and non-arrival at market on scheduled time. They claim there is no excuse for this bad train service. There has been no general congestion of freight; shipment of live stock have not been excessive; weather conditions have been very favorable.

A cure for this bad state of affairs is urgently needed. Murdo Mackenzie, manager of the Matador Land and Cattle Co., is at Chicago this week and, speaking on this subject, said:

"I would suggest that the Interstate Commerce Commission have complete supervision over the railroads. That would solve the serious problem shippers of perishable freight are constantly confronted with. Why, we cattlemen alone are in the aggregate losing many million dollars annually through shrinkage of cattle because of poor railroad service. I have found by experience that it amounts to 30 to 50 lbs per head per trip. And no one is benefited; it is a complete loss. There should be a speed limit law enacted by Congress. But there must be one speed limit for the railroads in the mountainous country and one for those in the plains country."

Lower Prices Were Inevitable.

Readjustments in the different branches of the markets for cattle, hogs, sheep and lambs continue. This is simply a reaction from the extremes caused by high-costing grain. The high prices of last winter and spring for fat grades encouraged farmers to liberally stock up with live stock, especially bovine and ovine animals. And at the same time high retail prices brought about a narrowed consumptive demand for meats. Under these conditions, lower prices were inevitable.

Cattle are resting on the lowest basis of the year, with the top beeves $1.80 under one year ago, when Clay, Robinson & Co. landed big weight beeves at the record price of $9.30 on the open market. This week yearlings topped the market at $7.50. Hogs are not far from the lowest spot of the year, and display around $1.15 loss from a year ago. There has been some reaction in the market for sheep and lambs from the low spot of the year, yet prices are around $1.00 lower than a year ago.

Colonel Goodnight Will Retire.

The passing of the cowmen of the old trail days goes on. Many are dying off, while others are retiring. Now comes word to the effect that Colonel Charles Goodnight is about to dispose of his ranch at Goodnight, Tex. Colonel Goodnight is known wherever there is a cattleman in the whole West. He drove cattle over the old Chisholm trail, also the famous Santa Fe trail. Several years ago he purchased 5,000 acres of land in the high altitude of the Panhandle country in Armstrong county, where he laid out an ideal ranch. He conceived the idea of crossing buffaloes with cattle, and this he has successfully carried out. On his ranch at present there are over 100 head of these "cataloes." Besides these he has several hundred head of the choicest high-bred black cattle in the Panhandle country. But advanced years has compelled Colonel Goodnight to sell out and retire. No other cattleman perhaps in all that part of the Southwest country has done more to build up a high standard in cattle than he.

A Notable Anniversary.

The fact that Mr. N. H. Sutherland, manager of the Chicago office of Clay, Robinson & Co., recently completed his twentieth year of continuous service with the firm, was last week fittingly recognized by his office associates, who testified their regard by presenting him with a beautiful solid mahogany writing desk for his home.

Mr. Sutherland entered the firm's employ in 1890. He has worked his way up from the bottom of the ladder, winning his spurs by sheer ability and hard work. Some men work mainly from necessity, others in large measure for the fun of the game and the pleasure of accomplishment. Of the latter sort is "Sanny" Sutherland.

For several years prior to 1898 he edited this paper, as many of our older readers will remember. They will also recall the occasional articles and descriptive sketches signed "N. H. S.," sometimes dealing with prosaic market conditions, but oftener reflecting the writer's love of literature, fertile fancy and keen observation of men and affairs. His next position was that of cashier of the Chicago office, from which he was some years ago promoted to be office manager.

The above characteristic photo of Mr. Sutherland will be recognized by thousands of stockmen with whom he has come in personal contact. Notwithstanding his twenty years' of service, "Sanny" is still a young man, blessed with an interesting family, a promising outlook and the esteem of all who know him.

Suspend Live Stock Rates.

The Interstate Commerce Commission has been unable to conclude its investigation of the proposed increased rates on live stock between the Missouri and Mississippi rivers within the period fixed under its order of Aug. 11 and has suspended the new tariffs from Dec. 10 to Jan. 10.

The schedules making the advances were filed with the commission by the Santa Fe, the Burlington, Milwaukee, Northwestern, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific, Toledo St. Louis & Western and the Wabash railroads.

Last of Pioneer Packers Dead.

Michael Cudahy, president of the Cudahy Packing company, and the last of the four great pioneer meat packers of the country, died last Sunday evening at Chicago after a short illness.

Patrick Cudahy of Milwauwee, John of Chicago, the brothers; J. P. of Kansas City; J. M. of Omaha, and E. R. of Chicago, the three sons and the four daughters, Mrs. W. P. Nelson, Miss Mary and Miss Clara of Chicago, and Mrs. John Kasserly of San Francisco all were present for some time before he died.

With the passing of Mr. Cudahy the last of the old time "beef barons" who included Nelson Morris, Gustavus F. Swift and Philip D. Armour, is dead. Mr. Cudahy probably enjoyed the friendship of each of the others to a greater extent than any other of the four. No matter how hard business competition became, the packers were always friendly to "Mike" Cudahy.

Mr. Cudahy was born in Callan, County Kilkenny, Ireland, Dec. 7, 1841, and was brought to America by his parents in 1849. He entered the packing house of John Plankington in Milwaukee at the age of 14 at $6.00 a week, and later worked for P. D. Armour as his Chicago superintendent from 1872 to 1891, when he started into business for himself.

Other packers say that no man ever had a more thorough practical knowledge of the packing business than he had. When he left the Armour company Mr. Armour offered him a bonus of $2,000,000 if he would remain with the concern two years longer. Mr. Cudahy at that time owned just a $2,000,000 interest in the Armour company. He refused the offer and went into the packing business with his brothers, who in 1881 had bought out the Plankington packing business in Milwaukee.

Shrewdness of G. F. Swift.

A. B. Stickney, of Great Western Railroad fame, was one of the speakers at the recent Northwestern Show banquet, held at St. Paul. In his reminiscences of the development of the South St. Paul market, of which he was the promoter, he told the following story of his effort to interest the late G. F. Swift, the great packer, in that market:

"Mr. Swift came into my office one day and I asked him what he wanted to start slaughtering at South St. Paul.

"'I want your packing plant,' he replied

"What else?

"'Half interest in the stock yards.'

"What else?

"'A rebate over the Great Western on all cattle that I buy at and ship from South St. Paul.'

"What else?

"We closed up the deal and I have always considered it one of the best I ever made."

1910 International Live Stock Exposition

This is International Show week. All fall the state fairs throughout the United States and the dominion shows have been carrying on a distillation process for the purpose of weeding out the animals not up to the top class that is required for the Chicago show. This process of distillation and double distillation has brought to the greatest show ever staged in two hemispheres the class of the farm animal world. Practically every animal shown here will have worn at least a blue ribbon, and many a purple, before being nominated for the supreme ruling.

4,365 Animals, Exclusive of Carlots.

Superintendent B. H. Helde gives the entry list of fat and breeding animals, exclusive of the great carlot show, as 4,355 head. Of these 1,194 are cattle, 1,191 horses, 1,163 sheep and 807 hogs. This is an increase over the great show of last year of 26 per cent.

Practically every breed of live stock of practical value to the farmer is represented in the twenty buildings which house the International exhibit. Besides all of these on the grounds there are nearly 7,000 cattle, hogs and sheep in the carlot classes that are quartered in the pens of the stock yards.

International Fills Long-felt Want.

Why the International Live Stock Exposition has been a pronounced success from its initial session is because it fills a long-felt want in animal industry. Our milch cows are valued at $780,380,000; our other cattle at $917,453,000; our hogs at $436,603,000; our sheep at $233,664,000; our horses at $2,276,363,000, and our mules at $494,095,000. With a national industry aggregating $5,138,558,000, an international live stock exposition is necessary to protect and improve these stupendous investments. It is international in character, because the American breeder is ambitious to improve his live stock to the highest quality.

The International is founded on the widest principles of liberality and invites breeders of all nations to compete for its splendid prizes. The ambition of its managers is to assemble not only the finest animals of the different domestic breeds of America, but all nations of the world for the universal upbuilding of the live stock industry.

The value of the International Exposition is already in evidence in the improved quality of cattle, hogs, sheep and horses that are now being marketed at the great live stock distributing centers. The impressive object lesson of the show ring of the exposition is everywhere in evidence in the national improvement of all classes of live stock since the inauguration of the International Live Stock Exposition in 1900.

Larger Proportion of Big Cattle.

Perhaps the outstanding feature of the carload show this year is the large proportion of big weight cattle, three-year-olds. There is a profusion of them. Their presence is easily explained. Big cattle sold high last year, affording incentive to make a crop for this year's show, and, as might have been expected, the market has undergone radical reversal of form meanwhile.

Feeders Have Improved Their Methods.

The American feeder has improved his methods since the International Live Stock Exposition was inaugurated.

Contrast the superb aggregation of bovine merit assembled for the 1910 contest with that of five years ago! It would be like matching a bunch of badly wintered stockers against a load of hand-fed calves.

In former years the sifting committee found weeds galore; this year the percentage of culls was insignificant. Deductions are easy. Those who have stald with the game have become past masters of the art; the others have dropped out.

This carlot show is a galaxy of merit and is an arena in which nothing but merit in the superlative degree counts.

Cattle Show Firmer Handling.

This year there are fewer "soft," overdone cattle than usual in the fat steer show. The tendency seems to be toward an animal that more nearly approaches butchers' demands. A steer reaches a point in his fattening where external tallow only is laid on. In the olden days, when three year olds were shown, the amount of mere tallow was great and appreciated in proportion. Although show yard and butcher's ideals are yet far from identical, it is fortunate indeed if this year's showing of fat cattle of firmer handling than formerly really marks a turning point toward saner standards. Eventually it is bound to come.

Feeding Cattle Have Much Merit.

Western cattlemen are not easily discouraged. Persistency is one of their characteristics. That in no small degree made the West what it is today. They have an excellent exhibit of feeding cattle at the International. It is true the total at 27 loads is not as large as last year. Much credit is due the exhibitors. They faced a terrible winter and a bad drought last summer. Their showing has great merit. It is a Hereford and Shorthorn display. The calves are very attractive. The yearlings are thin, but no wonder.

GRAND CHAMPIONS OF THE 1910 INTERNATIONAL:

SINGLE STEER—Shamrock II, a grade Angus and exhibited by the Iowa Agricultural College.

CARLOAD FAT CATTLE—Angus yearlings, fed and shown by E. P. Hall of Mechanicsburg, Ill.

FEEDER CATTLE—Shorthorn calves, bred, raised and shown by A. A. Neale of Montrose, Colo.

CARLOAD FAT SHEEP—Grade Shropshire lambs, fed and shown by B. Conley of Marshall, Mich.

CARLOAD FAT HOGS—Poland-Chinas, in 200 to 250-lb class, fed and shown by J. D. Waters of Dawson, Ill.

Fine Showing of Breeding Cattle.

A remarkable display of breeding cattle is to be seen at the International. The numbers are larger than last year and in general character and quality noticeably superior. Some of the old favorites are included, and there is a big showing of young cattle, entered for the first time. Shorthorns are exceedingly interesting. Herefords and Angus are exceptionally strong.

Record Number of Sheep Exhibits.

Never before were so many carload lots of sheep and lambs assembled at any previous International Show as this year. The quality and finish of the stock is excellent. Some of the old exhibitors are absent. The ranks have been filled with new ones. Thirty-two loads are on exhibit. Lambs predominate largely, totaling 22 loads. Of these 15 loads are range bred and 7 loads natives. Ten loads of wethers are in the show, 5 of which are yearlings. Barring 2 loads, all are range bred.

Colleges Greatly Help the Show.

As usual, the agricultural colleges greatly help to make the individual steer, hog and sheep show a success. Each year they loom up with exhibits which prove that there is a practical side to the colleges after all. They have not often bred their best cattle, although there are some notable exceptions. At least they are judges and feeders. It is hoped that in the not far distant future the finances of these institutions will make possible the maintenance of breeding herds suitable to produce steers of show quality. When this time comes the colleges may with justice be restricted to showing cattle of their own breeding.

Foreign Visitors Are Delighted.

H. M. Kirkham of London and E. N. Casares, Jr., of Buenos Aires are among the notable foreign visitors at the International Live Stock Exposition. These gentlemen represent the South American live stock importing firm of E. N. Casares & Co., Buenos Aires, Argentine. Mr. Kirkham has for years been the buyer for the firm in Britain and has exported vast numbers of the choicest breeding cattle. When asked what he thought of the show, he enthusiastically said: "It's the greatest show I ever saw."

College of Missouri Handily Wins.

In the student judging contest the Missouri Agricultural College took first honors with a total of 5,379 points, Nebraska coming second with 5,129 points. Barring sheep, which Texas won out with 1,304 points, Missouri got a clean sweep. The latter came second wtih 1,297 points. This was the first time Missouri students ever won out at the International.

"The entire team, with the exception of one, are farmers' sons and were raised on Missouri farms," said Professor Trowbridge, who trained the boys. "They had the regular university work in the animal department of the college of agriculture, which is fitted to turn out these judges who earned their victory."

Great Showing of Fat Cattle.

After the "weeding committee" had finished its work there were left for the carlot exhibit 73 loads of fat cattle. Forty-six loads out of the total of 119 loads entered were passed upon by the "weeding committee" as lacking the quality and finish to class as show stock. The number which passed inspection was 21 greater than a year ago, and the largest since 1907, when a total of 93 carloads was shown.

Exhibits, as classified by breeds this year, with comparisons:

	1910.	1909.	1908.	1907.	1906.
Hereford	20	21	22	26	28
Angus	30	19	18	49	28
Shorthorn	21	12	12	13	15
Grade	1	1	..	..	..
Galloway	1	..	1	5	1
Totals	73	53	53	93	72

"The grandest lot of carload exhibits ever shown." That is the universal opinion of cattle judges respecting this year's entries. The eastern district entries represent a greater proportion of the show steers. There are 41 loads entered in this division, while the south central district is next with 16 loads. The southwest district has 9 loads, the north central 5 and the northwest district 2 loads. There are 28 loads of yearlings in the show, 23 loads of 3 year olds and 22 loads of 2 year olds.

Tariff on Imported Stock.

Animals imported for breeding purposes by citizens of the United States on and after Jan. 1, 1911, must be accompanied by certificates of the bureau of animal industry that the animals are pure bred of a recognized breed and duly registered in the foreign book of record for that established breed. The Secretary of Agriculture has revised regulations on the subject in order to enforce more thoroughly the provisions of the tariff law instructing him to "determine and certify to the Secretary of the Treasury what are recognized breeds and pure bred animals," as a basis on which customs officers may determine what animals may be passed through the customs free of duty for breeding purposes.

Thinks Feeding Lambs are Low.

J. V. Young of Wamego, Kan., thinks the best time to invest in any particular live stock is when all the other fellows are striving to sell out. For many years Mr. Young has been a successful sheep feeder. This winter he has on feed 7,000 lambs, and he is now at Kansas City buying more through Clay, Robinson & Co. The fact that Mr. Young has made feeding a great success shows that his judgment is good.

"These sheep can be bought now worth the money, it seems to me," said Mr. Young. "There are some strange things about this feeding proposition. Whenever the market begins to get mean, people are so apt to get excited and start right straight for market. The lower prices go the faster they will hurry in. Then when the rush is over and the prices begin to stiffen, there is a slacking up of the receipts. But very often the rush cleans up the bulk of marketable stuff, and when the prices get back to a paying basis there is but little to sell. I have noticed right along that when prices are very low and when others are so anxious to unload that it is a good time to stay in. These feeding sheep look worth the money to me. I may be mistaken, but that is the way I regard it, and I am investing in them on that basis. Of course, there was a very heavy run of sheep this fall from the ranges, and a great many feeding sheep went to the country. This may mean that the market on the finished product will be very low. But feed is cheaper now than a year ago and feeding lambs are selling now very much lower than they were two months ago, and that will give the man who buys now a big advantage over the man who took his lambs out in September, or the first of October."

Cattle and Hogs in Corn Field.

J. B. Brown of Cook, Neb., a progressive young farmer and cattle feeder, who marketed a load of cattle through Clay, Robinson & Co. at Kansas City, has been figuring considerably on the cost of feeding cattle and hogs. Mr. Brown realizes what an expensive thing the modern hired man on the farm is, and how hard it is to get one of them. In view of this, he has been for several years fattening his hogs by simply turning them into his corn field and allowing them to help themselves. Last year he went one better on this and turned his feeding steers in the corn field with the hogs and found that it worked so well that he has done the same thing this fall.

"Now I admit that this looks a good deal like a lazy way to feed cattle and hogs," said Mr. Brown. "But I did not do it without doing some calculating on the matter. I found out that it costs about 8c a bushel to husk the corn and put it into the feed lot for the cattle and hogs. Eight cents a bushel is a good deal to pay for that work, and it adds a good deal to the cost of feeding. Then I have made a careful test of how the cattle and hogs got along in eating up the corn in the fields, and found that they really waste but a very little. With such weather as we have had this fall, there was no waste, as hogs picked up every grain scattered on the ground. Of course, in case we had a wet fall, causing the fields to become muddy, this method of feeding would not be so satisfactory. But as a rule we seldom have any very bad weather up there during the fall months. Even should it rain and then freeze up, it would be all the better. Of course, later on, with a heavy snow it would not work. But I depend upon it that each fall we have four months or so that this kind of feeding can be carried on very successfully, and at a saving over the old way of husking the corn and handling it several times."

SAMPLE OF ONE OF IOWA'S GREATEST PRODUCTS.

This corn was grown in 1910 on the farm of O. W. Schiele, Durant, Ia. The seed was Funk Bros. Pure-Bred Yellow Dent. "This is the fourth crop of corn I have raised since I got the seed from The Funk Bros. Seed Co. of Bloomington, Ill.," writes Mr. Schiele. "It was planted in part spring and part fall plowed ground. I find that the latter always gives the best results. I try to plant corn between May 5 and 25. The latter is too late. I have a good seed bed before planting and harrow two times after planting, cultivate four times and let the Lord do the rest. I have 150 acres and average about 75 bushels per acre."

Will Pay Well to Raise Cattle.

With his own success bearing eloquent testimony to the fact that it has been possible in past years for a poor man to amass a fortune of no mean size through intelligent methods of stock farming, and by staying with the game through good years and bad, and with a strong belief that the future has in store still greater blessings in a financial way for the man who starts now with the determination to build up a herd of high-grade cattle or other meat animals, E. C. Hill, Sr., one of Nebraska's pioneer stock farmers and a staunch believer in Clay, Robinson & Co., told of his experiences and his ideas regarding the future of the cattle raising industry.

E. C. HILL. SR., DAWSON, NEB.

Mr. Hill is one of the oldest farmers now actively engaged in the industry. He is a Canadian by birth, but a citizen of the United States for more than half a century and a citizen of that class that has done so much to help make great the land of his adoption.

In the year 1850, as a lad in his teens, he saw the possibilities of the great western section of the United States, and became one of the pioneer citizens of Nebraska. The close of the civil war found him $50 in debt, but with a determination to succeed and with strength of mind and body as a valuable asset. Taking advantage of the homestead laws and fighting the battles and enduring the privations of the early pioneers, he secured a piece of good raw land near the now prosperous city of Dawson. Today he has a clear title to 1,850 acres of fine Nebraska land valued at from $100 to $175 an acre, and to one of Nebraska's best herds of Aberdeen-Angus cattle and Duroc Jersey hogs.

In 1880 he founded what is said to be the first herd of Angus cattle ever within the borders of Nebraska. He soon discovered it to be the best money making piece of machinery on his farm, and during the past 30 years neither in times of plenty, drought or panic has he allowed interest in his live stock lag, but has constantly endeavored to build up his herds to higher standards of excellence. Incidentally, he has never changed his opinion as to their money-making value.

At all times Mr. Hill has kept a herd of 100 or more good cows and a few pure-bred bulls, and has been in a position to market annually several carloads of fat cattle and hogs of his own raising and fattened on the products of his fields, kept in a high state of fertility by his stock.

He expresses the belief that it will well pay any industrious man who has any knowledge of the handling of live stock to secure a bunch of good grade cows and a thoroughbred bull and get into the cattle raising business. He predicts a shortage of cattle and consequently high prices for a number of years at least, because of the breaking up of western ranges, decreased cattle production in those sections, and the rapidly increasing consumptive demand.

Northwest Covered With Snow.

Stockmen from the Northwest range states who are attending the International Show say a blanket of snow covers most of the Northwest. They say there is no need for worry, provided it is not followed by a too severe drop in the temperature. In fact, on the whole the downfall is appreciated because it will go a long way toward insuring good range conditions.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

H. J. Smith, Lake county, Colo., marketed cattle at Denver.

Smith Trooter, Hendricks county, Ind., writes: "The lambs look well worth the money."

F. L. Bowman, Butler county, Ia., writes: "Thank you for the good prices you got for my hogs."

E. F. Evarts, Saginaw county, Mich., writes: "Cattle came and B. H. Eickholdt said they were O. K."

Carl Rehse, Ida county, Ia., writes: "We are very well pleased with the price you obtained for our cattle."

D. E. Crook, Grundy county, Ill., writes: "Sheep came in fine shape and I am very well pleased with them."

C. J. Ransom, Huron county, Ohio, writes: "Deck of sheep are good feeders for the money. Thank you."

Homer I. Stookey, Ross county, Ohio, writes: "I received the car of cattle and am very well pleased with them."

At East Buffalo on Nov. 26 our house sold a load of 164-lb hogs at $7.65, the limit by 5c per cwt. They were shipped by C. H. Johnson, McDonough county, Ill.

The 130 hogs of 307 lbs average which brought the top price of $7.20 at Chicago on Nov. 23 were handled by us and marketed by L. Serven, McDonough county, Ill.

A. H. Johnson, Pike county, Ind., writes: "Three loads of cattle Clay, Robinson & Co. bought for us at Kansas City are the most satisfactory in every way I have ever bought."

W. J. Friese, Iowa county, Ia., writes: "Was well pleased with the sale of hogs, being 40c per cwt higher than I expected. Thank you for good service and prompt returns."

Hunt Bros., Tremont county, Idaho, were the owners and we the sellers of the 339 head of 65-lb lambs which brought the top price of $6.00 for rangers at Chicago on Nov. 22.

Weed & Wilson represented Crawford county, Ia., on the Chicago sheep market Nov. 23 with 279 fed-western wethers of 117 lbs average which we landed at the top price of $4.15.

Clarence Herman, Sandusky county, Ohio, writes: "Cattle came through all right. You sent me a better load than I expected at the price. When I want more will surely remember you."

T. E. Young, Clinton county, Ind., writes: "Heifers are good ones and are doing nicely. They were better than I expected for the price paid. I will want another load or two as soon as I ship these."

R. S. Harriman, Cooper county, Mo., had 129 head of 71-lb lambs at East St. Louis on Nov. 22 and our house sold them at the top price of $6.40. They were fed in connection with the Missouri Experiment Station.

L. A. Raney, Hillsdale county, Mich., writes our South Omaha house: "Lambs came through in excellent condition and I am more than pleased with them. They are certainly as even and smooth a bunch as I ever had."

Joseph N. Darby, Montgomery county, Md., writes: "Car of cattle came in splendid condition, and since I have had time to look them over thoroughly I am satisfied that I have a bunch of cattle that will do well and when finished will sell well, no matter how the market goes. Thank you for good service."

Jeff Shirk, Faribault county, Minn., writes: "Account sales of hogs at hand. They brought 10c per cwt more than our local dealer's hogs, which were handled by another firm the same day. And he thought he had the best hogs. Your advice to put the wheels under all stock intended for the market in the near future proved to be good advice to me. If I had held my four loads of stock until now I would have lost three times what your commission amounted to, and all the feed besides. Accept my thanks for your good work."

Top for feeding lambs at Chicago on Nov. 21 was $5.65, which we obtained for two lots, sales following: For Novinger & Darrah, 644 head, 59 lbs, and for F. W. Gooding, 613 head, 65 lbs, both parties being from Lincoln county, Idaho.

J. W. Grieg, Cedar county, Clarence, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Car of breeding ewes arrived in fine shape. Am well pleased with them I think they are well worth the money, and if I want any more I will give you my order."

T. E. Miller, Page county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Car of yearling wethers came through in good shape. I am well pleased with them. You could not have suited me better if I had been there to show you what I wanted."

W. J. Finley, dealer in all kinds of live stock, Adams county, Ill., writes: "I feel extra good. You sold the lambs 5c per cwt higher than any others made. I raised every one of them and fatted them on weeds and rape in the corn field."

J. O. Stream, Prowers county, Colo., writes our Kansas City house: "Prices for two cars of ewes and lambs were more than I expected. I appreciate the service rendered me in the many sales you have made for me during the past ten years."

Chas. Wolohan, prominent dealer in grain, hay and farm produce, Saginaw county, Mich., writes: "Car of lambs arrived in good condition. I think they will make a dandy bunch of feeders. In another year I will send you orders for several cars."

R. L. Blair, Marion county, Ill., writes our East St. Louis house: "Breeding ewes were very satisfactory, really better than I expected. I appreciate the care you used in making the selection and will be glad to recommend you to anyone desiring to do business in your line."

J. R. Hutchison, writing from Custer county, Mont., under date of Nov. 22, says: "We have had stormy weather, some snow, but not much, and it is very cold. Stock is doing nicely at present, but snow would help out now, as the water holes freeze up and there is need of moisture."

The pinnacle for sheep at Chicago on Nov. 22 was $4.05. We handled both lots at the price, which stood 5c per cwt higher than any other firm secured. The sales follow: For E. C. Putnam of Warren county, Ind., 126 wethers, 107 lbs, and for L. A. Eahle of Douglass county, Ill., 113 wethers, 111 lbs.

L. & P. Hensen, successful flockmasters of Chouteau county, Mont., wound up their 1910 shipments of sheep and lambs last week. They sold all of their stock through Clay, Robinson & Co. at Chicago and South St. Paul, and Paul Hensen, who was at Chicago last week, said that the results were very satisfactory.

Fowell & Lewis of Culpeper county, Va., far whom we have bought eleven loads of cattle during the past stocking-up season, write: "Last load of cattle arrived in good shape. Ship us another load. We want to thank you for the good judgment used in selecting the stock and for having looked after our interests so carefully. You can count on our orders in the future."

Chas. Hendrick, O'Brien county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Load of yearling wethers came through in fine shape. They are exactly what I wanted. I am more than pleased over the deal and you bought them cheaper than I expected. I couldn't have done better if I had come down. Have done business with your firm at four different markets and have always been given the best service."

John Gloden, the well-known breeder of Hereford cattle and Shropshire sheep, Renville county, Minn., was on the South St. Paul market with a load of lambs, and they brought very satisfactory prices. He has been a regular customer of Clay, Robinson & Co. since they established a branch house there, and made the statement that he has always liked the way they conducted the live stock commission business.

Our South St. Joseph hog department was favored with consignments of hogs from the following well-known feeders and shippers Nov. 22, most of whom accompanied their shipments and were well pleased with the service received, two shipments topping that day's market: J. A. Deakins, Buchanan county, Mo.; J. J. Smith, Linn county, Mo.; J. T. Jones, Nodaway county Mo.; F. B. White, DeKalb county, Mo.; Ben Perry, Gentry county, Mo.; Stitt & Co., Page county, Mo.; J. W. Strahn and Grant Funk, Brown county, Kas.; J. W. Ferkins, Nemaha county, Kan.; D. S. Moyer, Brown county, Kas.; E. C. Christy, Webster county, Neb.; J. Quackenbash, Mitchell county, Kas.; W. H. Holland, Buchanan county, Mo.; Mr. West and Elmer McKee, Nodaway county, Mo.

From the Philadelphia Inquirer.

St. Petro, Hendricks county, Ind., writes: "Cattle arrived and I think they are a fine lot. Thanks for the good selection."

Albert C. Sindt, Scott county, Ia., writes: "I have made several shipments to you and generally got more than I could have gotten here."

Our South St. Joseph house topped the hog market Nov. 23 with 86 head, averaging 196 lbs, at $7.10, shipped by Stitt & Co., Page county, Ia.

J. W. Morford, progressive farmer and stock raiser, Tipton county, Ind., writes: "Helfers came and the price and quality are very satisfactory."

On Nov. 25 our South St. Joseph house topped the hog market with 78 head, averaging 213 lbs. at $7.00, being shipped by John Q. Weller, Holt county, Mo.

A. Wolf, Jones county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "Sheep arrived and are very satisfactory. Will call on you again when in the market for more sheep."

Milo A. Feffres, Wyoming county, N. Y., writes: "Double deck of lambs arrived in good shape. Thank you for past service and hope to be at your East Buffalo house between this and spring with three or four cars of lambs."

E. C. Flelvellin, Lasalle county, Ill., writes our South Omaha house: "Cattle came through in fine shape. I was very much pleased with them in every way. Don't think I could have got better had I picked them out myself."

Geo. Dhorman, Franklin county, Ia., writes our South Omaha house: "I received the double deck of sheep in good condition. I am entirely satisfied with the bunch. You did just as well for me as when I was there myself on Oct. 10."

Limit for hogs at Chicago last week was $7.35, no other sale being within 5c per cwt of this price. We handled the lot on Nov. 21, which included 50 head of 346 lbs average. They were marketed by Herman Blunk, Crawford county, Ia.

Cass Miller, Clinton county, Mich., writes: "Lambs arrived in first-class condition and they are a fine bunch. Everybody that has seen them say they are a fine lot and the local stock buyer said they are the finest lot that has been unloaded here this season. You may rest assured that when I am in need of stock you will hear from me."

More Honors for Hereford Breeders.

L. E. Potter & Son, the well-known Hereford breeders of Springfiefild, Minn., came out with flying colors in the recent Northwestern Show carcass contest, held at the Swift packing plant at South St. Paul. Their two-year-old Hereford steer topped the list with a percentage of 67.3 in the beef, the next nearest being 67.1 by an Angus. Their Hereford yearling steer dressed 65.3 against 63.1 for the next highest dressing yearling. Clay, Robinson & Co. always handle the Potter shipments to market.

Convenient Pens for Handling Cattle

THE LIVE STOCK REPORT:—

In a recent issue of the Report I noticed an inquiry from someone, wishing a drawing of convenient sheep and cattle yards, which would include chutes and scales. I have four very large ranches here in Kansas and on each ranch I have a stock yards of my own, which I use for the purpose of sorting my cattle, saving me a great many cutting horses and a large number of men and prevents the running and shrinking of my cattle. The pens are much more satisfactory than cutting horses. The entire yards cost me less in the original outlay than one good horse. They are much more economically maintained than a horse is fed. I am enclosing you a plan of my stock yards on a 10,000 acre ranch I own south of Ashland, Kansas. The same is satisfactory in every respect. I will submit a description.

The pens are built out of 1x6s spiked to oak posts. I build them about 5 feet high. The gates are an imitation of those used in the large stock yards, only these swing both ways, in and out and are hooked with a short piece of chain which has a hook on the end similar to that on a stay chain. I drive the cattle into the receiving pen No. 1. If there is a large drove of them I allow them to occupy pens 1 and 2. Then I commence to sort. I allow them to walk out of pen 2 into the alley, catch one class of cattle in pen 3, another in pen 4 and the balance go into pen 9 and up the chute and out into lot No. 5. But if I still wish to make another sort at the same time, I put the balance east into pen 6 and onto the scales. If one has only a small bunch of cattle to sort at a time, they can be put into the alley and then sorted the same as they are in one of the large stock yards. By having the gates swing either way one can sort from either end of the alley. One panel of the south end of my chute is made movable or could be two heavy gates. These gates are lifted off and a branding or dehorning chute can be substituted.

The cattle can then be run through the dehorning chute, dehorned, branded and then on into the dipping vat or else be liberated into lot 5.

When I wish to dip and do not care to brand I remove the dehorning chute and put on the gates making the chutes straight into the dipping vat. The dripping pen is divided into two parts, with the division between them on a line with the middle of the vat. A little swinging gate at the end of this fence turns the cattle into either of the dripping pens. Some gates at the further end or the south end of the draining pens admit the cattle into lot 5. My draining pens are 10x20 feet, floored with cement, and built of 2x6 stuff, and inclined so that all the drippings will run back into the vat.

At the east end of the alley is set a five ton scale on which is a movable stock frame. On the west of the scale is a scale crowding pen, the south side of which is made of two movable gates which can be lifted off their hinges in order that wagons full of corn and loads of hay may drive off of the scales and turn into lot 5 without going all the way through the long alley.

THINK A MOMENT!

Why Do CLAY, ROBINSON & CO. Annually Handle—

More carloads of Exhibition Cattle, Hogs and Sheep at the important live stock shows, such as the "INTERNATIONAL" at Chicago, the "ROYAL" at Kansas City, the "INTERSTATE" at South St. Joseph, the "NORTH-WESTERN" at South St. Paul, the "WESTERN" at Denver, etc., than any other firm—and probably, in the aggregate, more than all others combined?

More carloads of live stock for State Agricultural Colleges, United States Experiment Stations, State Farms and public institutions of various kinds than all other commission firms combined?

More carloads of stock for the best and most successful feeders and shippers of the United States than any other firm?

HERE IS THE REASON IN A NUTSHELL

The above classes of customers are keen, intelligent and thoroughly posted. They have INVESTIGATED, and they KNOW that it pays them in hard money to do business with the unquestioned leaders in the live stock commission business—CLAY, ROBINSON & CO.

We are waiting to hear from you. Let us know what you have for market and when you expect to ship. We can help you realize top market prices for your stock. Write us at whatever market you intend shipping to.

*Record price on open market by 20c per cwt and obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Reducing receipts to 53,711 last week, or 16,865 under the previous week, brought about a betterment in the market. It did not come through any expansion in the demand. Good to choice yearlings and handy weight steers showed 10@15c advance for the week, the call from all sources centering on them. Heavy beeves, irrespective of finish and quality, were merely strong sale, while plain and medium steers showed no particular strength. Top for the week was $7.40, paid Friday for fancy Iowa Angus yearlings of 1,086 lbs average, while the limit for big weight beeves was $7.20.

At the start of this week the supply was 31,679. It was a dull trade throughout the day's session. Receipts were far in excess of the demand and prices slipped back mostly 10@15c, the only possible exception being choice to prime yearlings, which held about steady. Anything on the heavy order was especially draggy sale. To make matters worse, trains were belated. Of course, it was impossible to effect a clearance. Fancy yearlings, numbering 21 and averaging 1,039 lbs, topped at $7.50 and prime heavy beeves had to go at $7.00.

The Tuesday run was 9,025. It was a dull deal from start to finish. Prices were steady to 10c lower. WE TOPPED the market 25c per cwt with a lot of 1,126-lb yearlings at $7.25, they being from the Missouri feed lot of J. C. Cobb.

Marketing Wednesday 25,000. Market was slow at prices steady to 10c lower, big weight beeves showing the decline. A load of fancy 1,200 lbs average topped the market at $7.20 and WE SOLD the top heavy beeves at $7.15, they being from the Iowa feed lots of Miller Bros. and C. D. McPherson.

Light supplies and broader outlet throught outside channels enabled sellers of cows and heifers to have things more their own way last week. Prices for cows were boosted 15@25c above the close of the previous week and for heifers 25@35c. Bulls showed 15@20c gain. Calf trade finished about steady.

This week started out with fairly good runs and a brisk demand from all sources, resulting in a strong price range. Bulls held firm. Calves lost 25c. Steady to strong prices prevailed for cows and heifers Tuesday. Opening steady, bulls declined 10@15c. Calves held steady. The Wednesday market was strong for she stock, 10@15c lower for bulls and steady for calves.

Prices were boosted 15@25c for stockers and feeders last week. There were good reasons. Supplies were very light and demand very good, considering the lower market for fat cattle. Call was centered on heavy fleshy steers and good quality stockers. Assorted steers went back to the country up to $5.75, but they were of a class that were very desirable for slaughter.

The material increase in arrivals at the start of this week found ready outlet at strong prices. There was a big attendance of outsiders and local dealers seemed eager for supplies. It was a strong deal in stockers and feeders Tuesday. The Wednesday market was steady.

Last week closed with prices 25@30c lower than finish of previous week and $1.10@1.20 under the corresponding day three weeks ago. The week's average price was the lowest since the week ending April 3, 1909, when it was $6.97. The average weight of the week's arrivals at 230 lbs was the lightest since last April, reflecting the increased proportion of light weights and pigs coming now. At the close of last week prices ranged from $6.60@7.20.

A run of 29,783 at the start of this week was below all expectations. A few early transactions showed only strength, but it was not long before prices were 10@15c higher. Demand from all sources was the best in some time. A top of $7.30 was made for both medium and heavy, and sales were in main at $6.95@7.25.

Supply Tuesday 25,756. The early market was like the previous day's close, but closed 10c lower. Top of $7.35 was made early. At the start $7.15@7.25 bought a lot of offerings, but similar grades had to go at $7.05@7.15 late.

Receipts Wednesday 35,000. Opening 10c lower, all of the loss was regained later on. Top $7.30 and bulk $7.00@7.25.

Sellers had their inning last week. It was made possible by receipts being more in keeping with trade requirements. Prices went higher for the first time in several weeks. As compared with the close of the previous week, lambs and yearlings showed 50@75c advance and sheep anywhere from 15@35c higher, mostly 25c. The week's receipts at 111,816 decreased 57,117 from the previous week. Tops for the week were $6.65 for lambs, $5.75 for yearlings, $4.50 for wethers and $3.85 for ewes.

This week started out with the moderate run of 40,948. Starting out sticky, the market gained activity as the day's session progressed and a good clearance was made at generally steady prices. Extreme cases were 10c higher. WE TOPPED the lamb market 10c per cwt by landing Iowa fed westerns at $6.75 and ALSO TOPPED the native trade with Illinois offerings at $6.65. The limit for yearlings was $5.75, OBTAINED BY US for South Dakotas, no others coming within 25c per cwt of them. Prime fed-western wethers reached $4.15, and WE TOPPED the ewe market with South Dakotas at $3.85.

The Tuesday run was 32,000. There was a good demand from all sources and buyers bought the offerings readily at prices strong to 10c higher, lambs showing the most advance. An early clearance was effected, and slaughterers seemed eager for supplies late in the session. The limit for lambs was $6.75, OBTAINED BY US for fed westerns. Fancy handy yearlings were quotable up to $5.75. The fed-western wethers which topped the trade 5c per cwt were HANDLED BY US. Prime light weight fed-western ewes reached $4.00.

Trade in both sheep and lambs lacked life Wednesday. The run of 33,000 proved excessive. Sheep and yearlings were about steady, as were also fat handy-weight lambs, but the close was 15@25c lower, with $6.50 the limit late. Big weight lambs were a drug on the market and showed 35@50c loss, $6.00 being the limit at the close.

South Omaha Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Nov. 29.—Light receipts of cattle last week had the effect of causing prices to brace up materially on all beef grades. While there was a fair percentage of rangers, supplies showed an increasing proportion of native-fed stock, principally on the warmed-up order. The quality all week was rather common. Stockers and feeders also met very good inquiry and prices advanced fully as much as for beef lots.

The Tuesday trade in cattle was 10@15c higher than last week's close for beef steers, 10@20c for she stock and feeders held a firm basis.

Opening 10c higher Tuesday, the hog market closed with all of the advance lost. Top $7.20 and bulk $6.90@7.15.

Light receipts last week, the first moderate supply since quite early in the season, was responsible for the materially higher trend to the trade. Lambs scored an advance in instances amounting to $1.00 over the previous week, while old sheep and yearlings were 50@75c higher and feeders 50c up from the recent low point.

Prices for all grades of sheep and lambs were steady with the close of last week. We topped the lamb market with fed westerns at $6.50. Best yearlings made $5.25, wethers $3 75 and ewes $3.50@$3.75.

Receipts for season of 1910 to date	318,000
Corresponding period of 1909	336,100

Range of prices and bulk of sales for western range steers, and bulk of cows and heifers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Steers Range.		Steers Bulk.		Cows and Heifers Bulk.
This week....	$4.75	*5 75	$5.00@5.35		$3.75@4.50
Last week....	4.50	*5.80	4.85	5.50	3.75	4.60
Year ago.....	4.40	*7.00	5.00	5.75	3.75	4.65

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

Prices were advance 10@20c for both beef steers and she stock last week. The demand continued good on late days of the week. Top beeves for the week at $5.80 were HANDLED BY US, and best heifers reached $5.50. There few sales of steers above $5.25 and few transactions in she stock above $4.50, a reflection of the drop in the condition of the arrivals coming forward.

A very light run of rangers the first half of this week. Buyers gave the trade in both fat and feeder classas good support, in view of the big runs of natives. Next week is expected to wind up the season for this year, and only straggling loads are expected then.

Pioneer Exporter Dead.

J. A. Hathaway, Sr., one of the first of the American exporters of cattle to the English markets, died at his home in Brighton, Mass., Wednesday.

For years he had been a buyer on the Chicago market for the Boston beef trade and also for the export markets. He was a partner of the late G. F. Swift, founder of Swift & Co., in the early days of the beef-packing industry, the firm name being Hathaway, Jackson & Swift.

Work of the U. S. Department of Agriculture

BY FREDERICK J. HASKIN

The Department of Agriculture has made itself one of the most important of the activities of the federal government. The annual production of agricultural interests of the United States amounts to nearly $9,000,000,000. Assuming that the department has been able during all the years of its work to increase the efficiency of farm operations only 1 per cent, its total annual value to the nation would amount to $90,000,000. It is well recognized that the campaign of education waged by the department has resulted in a much larger increase in crop production than that. Between its work of advising the farmer how to grow the food supply of the nation most successfully, and its labor to guarantee the quality of that food to all the people, the department is a busy institution. Its activities cost the government about $16,000,000 a year.

The secretary of agriculture has many assistants An assistant secretary aids him in the general supervision of the work of the department, a chief clerk supervises the working force, and a solicitor acts as the legal adviser of the department. The division of publications issues about 1,200 different publications during a year. These contain more than 40,000 pages and 17,000,000 copies are circulated. During twenty years the department has circulated more than 70,000,000 farmer bulletins.

The weather bureau's main purpose is to forecast the weather and issue warnings as to storms, cold waves, frosts and floods, for the benefit of agriculture, commerce and navigation. The nation spends nearly $2,000,000 a year on this bureau Besides forecasting weather conditions, the bureau is engaged in scientific investigation of the earth's atmosphere. At Mt. Weather, Va., it has an observatory far removed from the disturbing conditions of surrounding civilization. Here most of its atmospheric investigations are made. One of the buildings at this observatory is without windows, and another without the presence of iron Even the horses cannot wear iron shoes while certain delicate magnetic experiments are being carried on.

The live stock interests of the nation are looked after by the bureau of animal industry. It has charge of meat inspection, national quarantine regulations for live stock, and the study of the relations of animal diseases to the human race. Each year in the meat inspection service 56,000,000 live animals are inspected before their slaughter, and 7,000,000,000 pounds of meat after slaughter. This bureau also furnishes the farmers of the country black leg vaccine, free of charge, for the inoculation of young calves. Over 1,000,000 doses were given away last year, and 230,000 doses of tuberculin, which is used in determining the presence of tubercuosis in milk cows.

The country is indebted to the bureau of plant industry for its services in helping the farmer grow his grain, forage, truck and fruit crops. It ransacks the whole world for plants which may be grown with profit in the United States. It has brought dates from Palestine, durum wheat from Russia, millet from Siberia, wild peaches from China, and many other promising plants from every region of the world. The bureau has charge of the investigation of drug plants, seed distribution, cotton standardization, farm management and many other problems which bear an important relation to the operations of the farm.

The forest service has charge of the national forests of the country. It is engaged in scientific investigation of forest problems, tree diseases, and all questions which will aid in the perpetuation of the forest resources of the country, at the same time permitting the present generation to use such timber supplies as it may need. It costs 2 cents an acre to maintain the national forests of the United States, as compared with from $1 to $2 an acre in France. Germany and Switzerland. The forest service is almost self-supporting. Its expenditures amount to about $3,000,000 a year, and its receipts from the sale of lumber, grazing privileges and other resources amount to approximately $1,800,000. The corps of forest rangers, whose duty it is to patrol the national forests, is made up of highly intelligent young men, and thousands of serious forest fires have been averted by their vigilance and timely efforts.

One bureau in the Department of Agriculture is more widely known through the man at its head than through its own reputation—the bureau of chemistry, presided over by the eminent humanitarian chemist, Dr. Harvey W. Wiley. In addition to supervising the enforcement of the pure food law, the bureau has many other duties. Recently it examined 110 samples of American wines, with a view of ascertaining what might be done in the direction of improving the American product. Careful studies are made for the solution of the problem of impure milk. In the enforcement of the pure food law thousands of samples of food products are examined every year, and many of these examinations require the most exacting chemical experiments. Few drugs formerly were brought into the United States in a pure state, but through the activities of the bureau of chemistry drug adulteration has almost ceased. It was Dr. Wiley who established the now famous "poison squad," composed of young volunteers from the various departments. They were given free board, agreeing to eat only such food as was prescribed by Dr. Wiley. His studies in this direction covered a number of years and in a large measure were responsible for the pure food law now on the federal statute books.

It is the province of the bureau of soils to make surveys of soils in given communities, upon the recommendation of members of congress. These surveys reveal what fertilizers are needed on each farm and what crops can be grown most advantageously. More than 270,000 square miles of agricultural land has been surveyed in this way since the inauguration of the work in 1899. Seven hundred kinds of soil have been found on the farms surveyed. There is little danger of the farming lands of the nation becoming exhausted. This is shown by the experience of European countries. In the middle of the sixteenth century European farms were producing about as much grain and hay to the acre as the American farm produces today. Today the European production is more than twice as great to the acre as ours. Minute investigations show that after a thousand years of crop yielding the mineralogical composition of the soils of Europe is not perceptibly different from that of similar soils in virgin parts of the United States.

The bureau of entomology deals with the economic relations of the bug creation to the farm. It has been wrestling with the gypsy moth and other pests which threaten to do vast damage. Last year the bureau cleaned 300 miles of roadway in New England to make it impossible for the moth caterpillars to fall upon passing vehicles and thus travel to new fields. It has developed a spraying formula in which arsenic is used. It imports parasites from other countries for the purpose of preying upon the pests of various kinds. In exchange for the parasites which are imported from other countries, the bureau sends some of ours to those countries. Lately it has sent lady bug beetles to Spain to eat the Spanish mealy bug, dog tick parasites of South Africa, and bumble bees to the Philippines. The bureau works for the subjugation of every harmful insect, and has succeeded largely in its efforts.

The relations of man and the animal kingdom occupy the attention of the bureau of the biological survey. It strives to ascertain what birds and animals are harmful to agriculture and to learn what species assist the farmer. The bureau is waging a crusade against rats, mice, ground squirrels, prairie dogs and other rodents. It has made exhaustive experiments with traps, baits and poisons. It estimates that the ground squirrels of California alone destroy $10,000,000 worth of farm products in the course of a year, besides being carriers of the bubonic plague. The bureau is encouraging the raising of musk rat and pronounces their flesh highly edible. It has issued bulletins on such subjects as deer farming and fox farming. It supervises the importation of birds and mammals, and has oversight over the fifty-one bird sanctuaries of the country, into which no hunter may go. It also has charge of the 20,000 acre national bison range.

The bureau of statistics gathers and publishes the crop statistics of the country. It has a corps of 135,000 crop reporters. Their reports are summarized monthly by a board and carefully guarded so that the information may not get out ahead of time. There is also an office in charge of the experiment station work of the country and another which handles the national phases of good road improvement in the United States.

Finding That Silo is Indispen

More silos have been built this year than in any five years in the history of the business. This proves one important thing, that the average farmer has at last awakened to the fact that the silo is an indispensible factor in live stock feeding. While it is true that thousands have done without the silo in the past, it is none the less true that under present conditions, where in many cases farm land is worth $200 per acre, feeding operations must be carried on in the most economical way to get the best results. The silo does the work. There is no other way that the succulent corn can be so well preserved for winter use. Ensilage is good for all kinds of stock and for feeding purposes has no equal.

The Cowboy's Prayer.

O Lord, I've never lived where churches grow;
I love creation better as it stood
That day You finished it so long ago
And looked upon Your work and called it good.
I know that others find You in the light
That's sifted down through tinted window panes,
And yet, I seem to feel You near tonight
In this dim, quiet starlight on the plains.

I thank You, Lord, that I am placed so well;
That You have made my freedom so complete:
That I'm no slave of whistle, clock or bell,
Or weak-eyed prisoner of wall and street.
Just let me live my life as I've begun
And give me work that's open to the sky:
Make me a pardner of the wind and sun
And I won't ask a life that's soft or high.

Let me be easy on the man that's down
And make me square and generous with all:
I'm careless sometimes, Lord, when I'm in town,
But never let them say I'm mean or small.
Make me as big and open as the plains,
As honest as the horse between my knees.
Clean as the wind that blows behind the rains.
Free as the hawk that circles down the breeze

Forgive me, Lord, when sometimes I forget;
You understand the reasons that are hid,
You know about the things that gall and fret,
You know me better than my mother did.
Just keep an eye on all that's done and said,
Just right me sometimes when I turn aside,
And guide me on the long, dim trail ahead
That stretches upward toward the Great Divide.
—Charles Badger Clark, Jr., in Pacific Monthly.

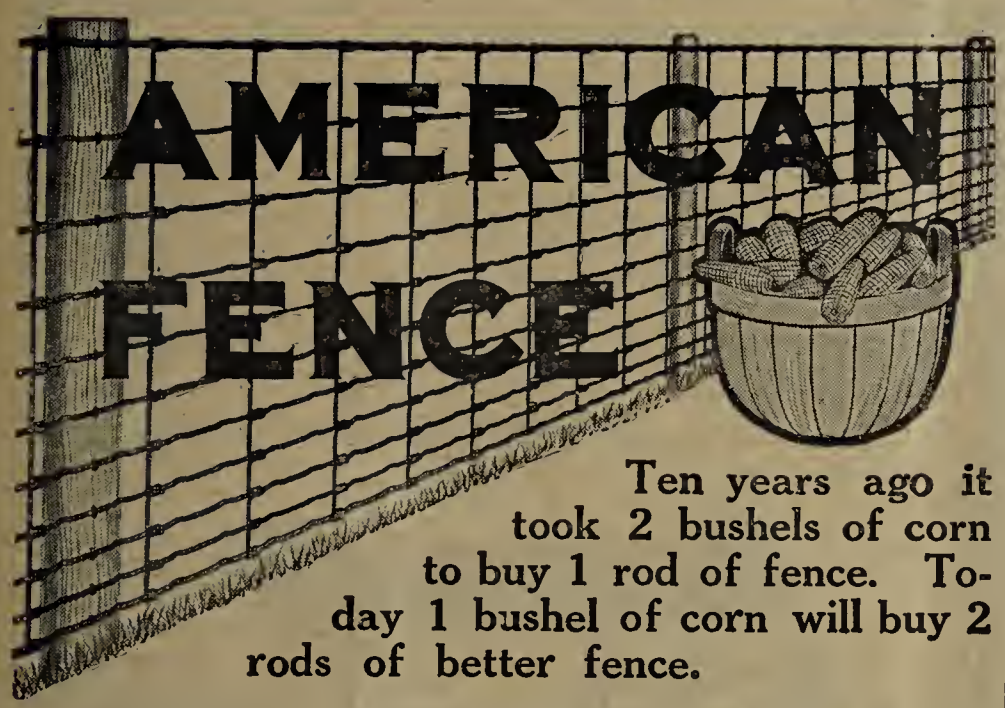
Higher Cost of Living Does not Include Fence



Ten years ago it took 2 bushels of corn to buy 1 rod of fence. To-day 1 bushel of corn will buy 2 rods of better fence.

Price Low—Quality Better Than Ever

Within ten years farm products have greatly advanced in market value while the price of woven wire fence has been reduced. These are the reasons: Newer and improved methods of digging the ore, shipping to the furnaces, melting into steel and making into finished products are in force. Ten years ago operations were on a small scale. Today the plan of operation is vast. The manufacturer is able to deliver the finished goods quickly, of better quality and at a lower price.

American fence is made better than ever. It is a thoroughly galvanized square mesh fence of weight, strength and durability. Large wires are used and the whole fabric is woven together with the American hinged joint (patented)—the most substantial and flexible union possible. Both wires are positively locked and firmly held against side slip and yet are free to act like a hinge in yielding to pressure, returning quickly to place without bending or injuring the metal.

Dealers Everywhere Stocks of American Fence are carried in every place where farm supplies are sold. The Fence is shipped to these points in carload lots, thereby securing the cheapest transportation, and the saving in freight thus made enables it to be sold at the lowest prices. Look for the American Fence dealer and get the substantial advantages he is enabled to offer. He is there to serve the purchaser in person, offer the variety of selection and save the buyer money in many ways.

International Meets.

At Exposition hall on Tuesday evening was held the eleventh annual meeting of the International Live Stock Exposition Association. The following directors were elected for a term of three years: E. F. Swift, W. C. Brown, Richard Gibson E. H. Ingwersen, O. E. Bradfute, Fred Pabst, Overton Harris, J. W. Martin, A. S. Lovejoy. James Brown was elected to fill the vacancy on the board caused by the death of Mortimer Levering and R. Fairbairn to supply vacancy caused by death of Senator W. A. Harris. Both will serve for the unexpired terms of one yea .

Immediately following the annual meeting of the association a board meeting was held and the following officers elected for the ensuing year: President W. E. Skinner; vice president, Richard Gibson and A. J. Lovejoy; treasures, A. G. Leonard; secretary, B. H. Heide.

Make Meat Ou Corn.

A great proportion of the corn crop must be fed on the farm in the next year if the price for the cereal in the market is to be held at a decent basis as compared with high prices in recent years. In the last few years the world has shown a capacity for three consecutive big crops at remarkably high prices, but now value is quite seriously affected by another record crop. The value of any commodity is regulated by the demand. and it is now up to the farmers themselves to increase the outlet for corn by providing for greater disposition of it upon the farms. Here its earning capacity is greatest, even though the price received is represented by the returns on the animal food commodity it fattens. Patronize the lumber companies by buying lumber for extension of the corn cribs. A surplus of corn on the farm is a more valuable asset than if stored in the elevators.—National Stockman and Farmer.

J. H. Miller, proprietor of the Meadow Lawn Stock Farm, Shelby county, Ill., writes: "I am more than pleased with returns from load of lambs. They sold 50@75c per cwt higher than we expected. Thank you for your good service.

C. B. Adams, superintendent of the St. Charles, Illinois, School for Boys, writes: "We are pleased with the results of sale of hogs. Thank you for your promptness in handling them."

also enables you to instantly detect every trick that has been played on the horse you are about to buy to make him appear sound—to hide blemishes and sickness. It reveals the favorite tricks of "Shutting a 'heaver'"—"Plugging a 'roarer'"—producing artificial plumpness—the "Bishoping" trick of altering teeth to hide age—how to detect a "doped" and "gingered" horse—how to know when eyes and ears have been "doctored"—discharging fistulas, etc., concealed, and spavins hidden—tricks of dishonest auctioneers. It exposes the bogus pedigree trick and scores of other smooth dodges practiced every day. Gives many valuable secrets for feeding and conditioning stock; for curing balking, kicking, "cribbing," halter-pulling; formulas that enable you to practically duplicate the best-known "horse remedies" at a big saving. "Horse Secrets" will save and earn many dollars for every man who owns a single horse or a large stock farm.

TO BE SURE OF A GOOD MANURE SPREADER LOOK FOR THE I H C MARK

THERE is one way to be sure of satisfaction in buying a manure spreader—one way to be sure of highest quality and greatest value. See that the I H C trade mark is on the spreader you buy. The proof is the experience of thousands of careful farmers—and the records of I H C spreaders on their farms.

There are many reasons for the efficiency, strength, simplicity, and durability of I H C spreaders. First, they are made on the right principle—second, of the highest quality materials—third, by master workmen,—and fourth, in the best equipped factory for the manufacture of manure spreaders.

I H C Manure Spreaders

are built up to a standard—not down to a price. They are made as all manure spreaders ought to be made. There is no experimental or "freaky" construction in them. They stand up and work perfectly month after month and year after year.

Call on the local I H C dealer and let him show you the many I H C advantages. Note the easy adjustment of the feed, enabling you to spread just the right amount of manure in just the right places. Note that the beater bars are designed to thoroughly pulverize every particle of manure. Note the wide tires, the roller-bearings, and light-draft features. Note all the other I H C features. Then remember that you are assured of satisfaction by the I H C reputation.

You can have a choice of three spreaders. Corn King and Kemp 20th Century are of the return apron type, and Cloverleaf spreaders are of the endless apron style. All are made in several sizes ranging from 30 to 70 bushels capacity.

If not convenient to see the I H C local dealer at once, write direct for catalogues and all other information you desire.

I H C Service Bureau

The purpose of this Bureau is to furnish farmers with information on better farming. If you have any worthy question concerning soils, crops, pests, fertilizer, stock, etc., write to the I H C Service Bureau, and learn what our experts and others have found out concerning those subjects.

FARM AND REAL ESTATE JOURNAL, TRAER, IOWA.

Ames Short Course.

The annual short course in agriculture at the Iowa state college, which has proved to be of such great value to the farmers of Iowa, will be held at Ames on Jan. 2–14.

This short course has in years past attracted large numbers of farmers to its sessions. Last year the attendance reached nearly 1,000.

Instruction will be given in animal husbandry, agronomy, poultry, dairying, horticulture, agricultural engineering and domestic science. Lectures and laboratory demonstrations will continue throughout the day so that a large amount of instruction will be given in the two weeks' time.

In live stock judging, market and breed types of cattle will be used. Representative types o fat cattle, sheep and swine will be judged on foot and then will be slaughtered and studied in the meat demonstrations. For judging work the college flocks and herds will be used as well as prize-winning animals secured for the occasion from outside breeders.

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef.

The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

ADVANCE OF THE GRAND ARMY

NAPOLEON'S name fills more pages in the world's solemn history than that of any other mortal. The advance of his Grand Army into Russia is the turning point in his career, and marks the beginning of his downfall. The picture shown herewith from Ridpath's History, the original of which was displayed at the World's Fair at Chicago, marks but one event out of thousands which are fully described and illustrated in the world-famed publication,

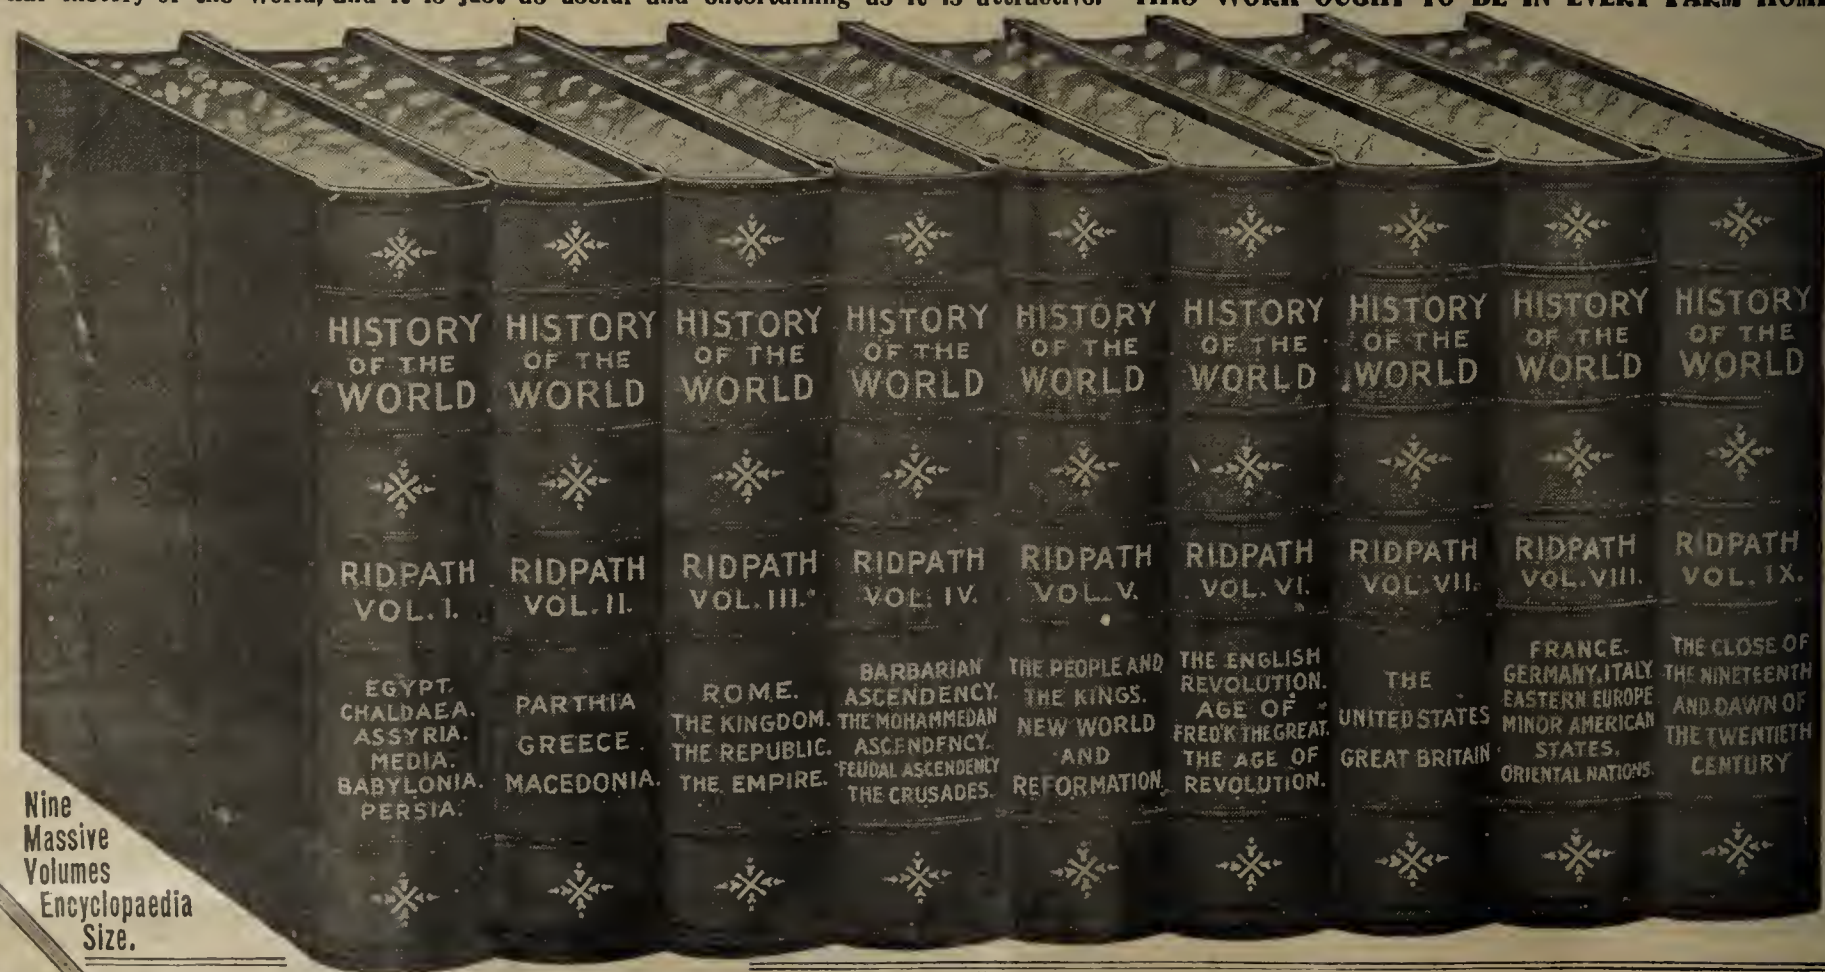
Live Stock Report in reviewing this great publication, said in part: "Ridpath's History of the World is a standard work. There is no history that so fully meets the requirements of the public. It has been a favorite for many years, and is likely to remain the most satisfactory popular history of the world, and it is just as useful and entertaining as it is attractive. THIS WORK OUGHT TO BE IN EVERY FARM HOME."



Nine Massive Volumes Encyclopaedia Size.

RIDPATH'S enviable position as an historian is due to his wonderfully beautiful style, a style no other historian has ever equaled. He picturos the great historical events as though they were happening beforo your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan; to watch that thin line of Greek spearmen work havoc with the Persian hordes on the field of Marathon; to know Napoleon as you know Roosevelt.

RIDPATH in your home means you need never spend a lonely evening. You can associate with the world's heroes; you can cross the Rubicon with Cæsar, after which Rome was free no more. You can sit at the feet of Socrates, the loftiest genius of the ancient world. You can kneel at the shrine of Lincoln, "the greatest human of all time, the gentlest memory of our world." It is ennobling to commune with these children of destiny. To be associated with great men and events is to be great one's self, and you will add to your store of knowledge which is power, and to the richness of your life.

RIDPATH takes you back to the dawn of history, long before the pyramids of Egypt were built down through the romantic, troubled times of Chaldea's grandeur and Assyria's magnificence; of Babylonia's wealth and luxury; of Grecian and Roman splendor; of Mohammedan culture and refinement; of French elegance and British power; of American patriotism and religious freedom, to the dawn of yesterday. He covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence. Nothing more interesting, absorbing and inspiring was ever written by man.

RIDPATH throws the mantle of personality over the old heroes of history. Alexander is there; patriot, warrior, statesman, diplomat, crowning the glory of Grecian history. Xerxes, from his mountain platform, sees Themistocles with three hundred and fifty Greek ships smash his Persian fleet of over a thousand sails, and help to mould the language in which this paragraph is written. Rome perches Nero upon the greatest throne on earth, and so sets up a poor madman's name to stand for countless centuries as the synonym of savage cruelty; Napoleon fights Waterloo again under your very eyes, and reels before the iron fact that at last the end of his gilded dream has come. Bismarck is there, gruff, overbearing, a giant pugilist in the diplomatic ring, laughing with grim disdain at France, which says, "You shall not." Washington is there, "four-square to all the winds"; grave, thoughtful, proof against the wiles of British strategy and the poisoned darts of false friends; clear-seeing over the heads of his fellow-countrymen, and on into another century, the most colossal world-figure of his time.

SHAMROCK II

GRAND CHAMPION STEER OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL LIVE STOCK SHOW

Sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at 60c per pound, the highest since 1900, and 42c per pound higher than last year. The animal weighed 1120 pounds and was bought by Eli Pfaelzer for C. H. Morgan & Co.

This grand Angus animal was selected over a trio of bovine merit by Judge Carden. The other contenders were the Shorthorn yearling steer from Canada that attracted so much attention, Roan James, exhibited by Jeames Leask of Ontario, which was made reserve champion, and Purity, a two-year-old pure-bred Shorthorn, exhibited by Kansas Agricultural College. He was exhibited by the Iowa Agricultural College.

His breeder was E. J. Donohoe of Holbrook, Ia. He was sired by Black Woodlawn 42088, out of a good grade cow. His date of birth is recorded as Jan. 8, 1910. The Iowa College bought him in April and his preparation began the last week of that month. The last week of May he weighed 345 lbs. Just 165 days later he had reached a weight of 1,130 lbs; in other words, a gain of 785 lbs within this period! Coming to the show he shrank to 1,100 lbs. These facts were secured from Professor W. J. Kennedy.

From a side view Shamrock 2d is very deep and compact of body and very close to the ground, with straight top and deep flanks. From either end he is found to be wide and well filled Extreme blockiness is an outstanding character. The fleshing is not excessively deep but is carried very evenly over all parts and his smoothness is pronounced. His few faults are covered in a mention of a little prominence of shoulder, a trifle too much paunch and a little under ripeness in finish. He is a feed-lot model in type and he is the butcher's sort as well. His weight for age proves that he would be a profitable feeders' kind. All in all he is a grand, good one, without serious fault.

During his residence on the college farm at Ames, Iowa, this calf had two nurse cows and a grain ration of five parts corn, three parts oats and one part oil meal. He was never off feed a minute, but came rapidly from the start.

Sweepstakes Show Cattle at $13.50.

International carlot show cattle sold at auction Thursday, Dec. 1, at a grand average of $7.77 for seventy-three loads, of which total Clay, Robinson & Co. handled twenty-three loads. This average stood against the unprecedented average of $11.44 made in 1909, and, considering open market values this season, as against a year ago, the 1910 sale was a good one and no complaint was registered by the exhibitors. Ribbon winners outsold the non-prize getters by a liberal margin, but the buyers were not so keen for the ribbons that they overlooked the better grades of yearlings, 2 and 3 year olds that failed to land inside the money.

The yearlings far outsold 2 and 3-year-old steers. With regard to yearlings, it was merely a repetition of the sort of demand which for weeks has prevailed in the open market, where the yearlings have brought liberal premiums over big weights. A grand average of $8.06 was made for the twenty-seven loads of yearlings which went through the auction ring. Angus yearlings made an average of $8.58, against $8.10 for Shorthorns and $7.86 for Herefords.

Hall's grand championship load of Angus yearlings, which sold to the Pittsburg Provision Co. at $13.50, were the said toppers, and sold $1.50 per cwt under last year, while second best price was $9.15 for Waters' Shorthorns, which won first in the Shorthorn specials. The next highest figure was paid for Price's 2-year-old Angus steers which were the runners-up for grand championship honors, champion 2-year-olds of the show, first in the South Central District and champion 2-year-old Angus steers.

The short-fed specials, a total of six loads, which went through the sale, made good prices. They made an average of $6.77, exactly $1.00 less than the grand average for the seventy-three loads of long-fed steers. E. H. Fedderson's first-prize short-fed steers sold up to $7.30.

Average in Recent Years.

Following are given average prices by breeds of fat cattle on exhibition at the International

GRAND CHAMPION FEEDERS OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL SHOW AT CHICAGO.

These sweepstake Shorthorn calves were bred, raised and exhibited by Al. A. Neale, the famous Shorthorn breeder of Montrose, Colo. They were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $40.50 per head in the auction Friday, Dec. 2, to A. W. Bragg of Tuscola, Ill. This price was the top of the sale. Mr. Neale last year took the sweepstakes with his Shorthorn feeder calves and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at the record price of $50.50 per head. In addition to the above highest honors at the International feeder show this year, Mr. Neale had a load of calves that took third in the South Central district, a load of yearlings that were second and a load of yearlings that were third. Mr. Neale had four loads of Shorthorn cattle returned from the International last year, bought as feeders, which was the largest returns of any one breeder. The first time that Mr. Neale ever exhibited cattle was at the Denver Show in 1907, and his yearling feeders took first prize in the South Central district. The secret of Mr. Neale's success in breeding cattle is that he has the best pure-bred bulls obtainable and high-bred cows. This maternity basis is what counts, as he has abundantly demonstrated. Mr. Neale has sold all of the cattle that he has had in the shows and on the open market during the past thirteen years, through Clay, Robinson & Co.

Al. Neale Makes a New Record.

Great is the honor due Al. A. Neale of Montrose, Colo. We take our hats off to him. Through his wise and successful efforts Mr. Neale has captured the grand championship of the International feeder cattle show twice in succession with Shorthorn calves. This is a feat never before performed by one man. Both lots were bred, raised and exhibited by him. This great achievement was in spite of a hard winter and a bad drought last summer. Competing against the Northwest and Southwest, the Neale reds and roans were returned the winners. Closely pressing the Neale calves for championship honors were the Matador Land and Cattle Co.'s Hereford yearlings, bred and raised in Texas, and McCreary's two-year-old Herefords from Wyoming. But the Neale calves, always a prime kind when brought into the show ring, won out against the strongest of competition. Colorado has reason to be proud of her achievements in the International. Her rangemen have established an enviable reputation as producers of high-grade young cattle for corn-belt feeders.

Great is J. O. Finley.

J. Orton Finley of Oneida, Ill., the largest and one of the most successful exhibitors in the show, was justly proud of the success of his entries. Mr. Finley captured every premium, save one, offered for range-bred sheep and lambs, including first and second on both yearlings and aged wethers, and second on range lambs, while his load of native lambs which were of his own breeding, were third premium winners. He says he has had only 10 lbs shrinkage, all told, from home weights on the 12 loads of sheep and lambs he has shown at the International exhibitions during the last three years. It is his intention to be in the show with both feet again next year. In the meanwhile he will add to his already well-equipped farm a silo, and will try the feeding of ensilage to his 1911 entries. Results will be watched with interest.

Grand Champion Hogs at $7.75.

The carloads of hogs which were exhibited in the International Show were auctioned off Thursday, Dec. 1. The grand champion load made the top price of $7.75, against $9.00 a year ago, while the nine other loads ranged at $7.50@7.70, against fourteen lots last year at $8.40@8.80. The two lots of Poland-Chinas averaged over $7.67, while three cars of Berkshires almost made $7.57. Two bunches of Hampshires went at $7.50, as did two loads of Chester Whites. The only car of Duroc-Jerseys in the show sold at $7.70.

Following are sales of carlot International hogs in the auction Thursday, Dec. 1:

Best Show Lambs Sold at $10.25.

The auction of the International carlot sheep and lambs took place Thursday, Dec. 1. There were a total of thirty-four loads, of which twenty-three loads were lambs, five yearlings and six sheep. Of the grand total Clay, Robinson & Co. handled 16 loads. The Conley grand champion load of lambs sold at $8.25, as against Clay, Robinson & Co.'s sale of the Black grand champions last year at $11. The average of all the lambs was $7.15, against $9.18 last year. The five lots of yearlings averaged $5.39, against $8.48 in 1909. Clay, Robinson & Co. handled the top western yearlings at $5.60, they belonging to J. Orton Finley. The Finley top sheep at $6.00 were also handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. The average for sheep was $5.31, against $6.66 last year.

Kleinheinz Again Scores for Wisconsin.

As usual, the Wisconsin Agricultural College was strongly in evidence in the sheep section of the big show. Shepherd Frank Kleinheinz and his aids brought down a string of wooled wonders against which even the exceptionally strong competition put up by three other colleges was, to a large extent, powerless. Without mentioning in detail the long list of winnings scored by Wisconsin in the regular show classes, suffice to say that in the Clay, Robinson & Co. College Specials Mr. Kleinheinz took home the following purple ribbons: First prize wether, one year old and under two; first prize lamb, one year old and under two; champion wether, and best five head of wethers of any breed, grade or cross. These represented cash winnings of $140, out of a possible $190.

Show Has Set New Standard.

"The International has set a new standard in excellence of stock exhibits and in educational value. The work has become better systematized, so that the people get the benefit of it to a larger degree," said Dean C. F. Curtiss of the Iowa State College of Agriculture.

"There is no question but what the International Shows have exerted a tremendous influence on agricultural and live stock conditions of the entire country in general and the middle west in particular. It is becoming more international in scope and character each year," he continued.

"One of the most promising features of the show is the fact that college students and young men who have attended the International in previous years are now practical feeders.

"The show greatly stimulates the work of colleges and enables all colleges to strengthen their equipment and facilities for doing more efficient work in live stock improvement. The International with the Armour scholarships and Clay, Robinson & Co. specials, which are a feature of the show, have been of incalculable value to the agricultural colleges and young men."

C. D. McPherson's Great Showing.

To C. D. McPherson, the big cattleman of Fairfield, Ia., who is a great farmer and producer of fat beeves, is credited the largest showing of cattle in the International carlot classes. Mr. McPherson brought a total of 235 head of cattle to the carlot show, some of which he entered in the fat-cattle classes, but most of them in the feeding show.

One load of feeding cattle with which Mr. McPherson won the championship at the Kansas City Royal were barred from the International on a technicality, it having been found they had been out of the district a few days too long, having been held on his farm at Fairfield, Ia.

He brought 100 head of native-bred feeding cattle to the show, but upon arriving here found that the International did not provide a class for feeders in the "eastern district" and these were thus ineligible to be shown. A class of feeders bred in the "eastern district," Mr. McPherson says, would open up for competition a big field of entries of high-grade native-bred feeding cattle.

Mr. McPherson sold through Clay, Robinson & Co. a drove of prime 1700-lb steers on the open market Nov. 30 at the top price of $7.15 for heavy beeves, while 205 head of his show cattle which were disposed of last week brought him $13,000. He has been giving most of his attention to the breeding of cattle in recent years, but he is now devoting most of his time to feeding operations and prefers the Angus to the Shorthorns, for the reason that it is difficult to get smooth Shorthorn feeding steers.

Mr. McPherson recently bought a farm of 1,174 acres in Kansas, along the line of the Santa Fe Railroad, where he will conduct feeding ventures in the future and will train his two sons—Hobart McPherson, and his youngest son, Raymond—in the art of producing good beeves for the market, with a view to these young "hopefuls" succeeding him as a beef producer.

PRIZE-WINNING HEREFORD CATTLE AT 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

These three year olds were fed and exhibited by Miller Bros., the extensive and successful feeders and shippers of Olds, Ia., and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction Thursday, Dec. 1, at $7.55 per cwt, averaging 1,574 lbs. They were bred by the Myers Land and Live Stock Co. of Knight, Wyo. These Herefords won first in the North Central district, took first prize as feeders bought at the 1909 International and returned, third in championship by ages, and third in Hereford Specials. When put on feed they averaged 967 lbs. They were on a full feed of ear corn six months.

ANGUS YEARLINGS THAT WON PRIZES IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

They took first prize in the South Central district, third in championship by ages and fifth in the Angus Specials. They were fed and shown by J. G. Tolan of Farmingdale, Ill., and sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction Dec. 1 at $8.10 per cwt, averaging 1,064 lbs. They were bought by Clay, Robinson & Co. at the 1909 Royal Show, of which they were champion Angus feeders, and were bred by Charles E. Sutton, Russell, Kan. They showed a gain of 677 lbs per head. They were given a light grain ration through the winter and clover hay as roughness. During the summer they were run on grass and fed shelled corn and oats.

CHAMPION HEREFORD YEARLING FEEDERS BY AGES IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

McCreary, Carey & Kellogg, the well-known dealers in stocker and feeder cattle at South Omaha, showed these cattle and the Myers Land and Live Stock Co. of Knight, Wyo., were the breeders. In addition to the above honors, these cattle took first prize as yearlings in the North Central district and first in Hereford Specials. They averaged 709 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction Dec. 2, at $7.05, being $1.00 per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for yearling feeders.

ANGUS PRIZE-WINNING YEARLINGS AT 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

J. C. Cobb, the famous feeder and prominent banker of Odessa, Mo., exhibited these cattle and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them in the auction Dec. 1 at $8.00 per cwt, averaging 1,140 lbs. They were from the famous breeding grounds of the X I T ranch, Channing, Tex. The cattle were second in the Southwest district and third in the Angus Specials. They captured the following prizes at the 1910 Royal Show at Kansas City: First in Angus, as in Clay, Robinson & Co.'s Specials and Kansas City Stock Yards Specials. These cattle gained 716 lbs per head in 303 days, the best gain Mr. Cobb ever had calves make. They were bought by Clay, Robinson & Co. at the last Denver Show. They were on full feed about four months, the ration consisting of ground corn, a little Caddo cake, and an oats mixture during the last sixty days. "I was highly pleased with both the buying and selling of the cattle," said Mr. Cobb, "and got all that was coming to me. My success with the cattle was due in no small measure to my foreman, James Leslie, who is a true and faithful fellow, and to Luther Cobb, his assistant."

THIRD PRIZE HEREFORDS AND SHORTHORNS IN NORTH CENTRAL DISTRICT.

Foster Bros., the extensive and successful farmers and feeders of Earlham, Ia., exhibited these three-year-old cattle at the 1910 International and they were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction on Dec. 1 at $7.25, averaging 1,689 lbs. It will be recalled that Foster Bros. had a load of Hereford cattle on the Chicago market about one year ago and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at $9.50, which stands as a record by 20c per cwt for cattle on the open market. The Herefords which Foster Bros. had in the show this year were bred by the Myers Land and Live Stock Co. of Knight, Wyo., as also were the $9.50 cattle of a year ago.

TWO-YEAR-OLD HEREFORD PRIZE-WINNING FEEDER CATTLE IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

Andrew Norell, the well-known breeder of Hereford cattle at Walden, Colo., exhibited these cattle, which took the following prizes as two year olds: First in South Central district, first in Hereford Specials and second by age over the entire feeder show. Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them in the auction Dec. 2 at $5.75, averaging 1,016 lbs. This is by no means the first time that Mr. Norell has captured honors with his fine cattle, as is reflected in the fact that at one International Feeder Show he captured the grand championship and has been first in class in the South Central district every year, as well as taking sweepstakes at the first Denver Show. Mr. Norell started his herd in 1883 with Shorthorn calves and Shorthorn bulls from Kentucky and Illinois. In 1890 he changed to the Hereford breed. He has had at the head of his herd some of the most famous Hereford bulls in the country, and his cattle are now considered among the best bred in the North Park country. After thirty years' experience, Mr. Norell says that the best cattle are the cheapest to buy, as they are easier to handle, easier to keep up, easier to feed and prove the best sellers as both feeders and fat animals. Mr. Norell wishes to express his appreciation through these columns for the excellent service rendered him by the Union Pacific and Northwestern railroads in coming to the International this year.

FIRST-PRIZE YEARLING FEEDERS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL SOUTHWEST DISTRICT.

Murdo Mackenzie, manager of the Matador Land and Cattle Co., with headquarters at Trinidad, Colo., exhibited these fine Hereford feeders. In addition to winning the above prize, they took second in champion by ages and first in Southwest district Hereford Specials. They were sold in the auction Dec. 2 by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $6.30, averaging 860 lbs. The price was 20c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for yearling feeder cattle. The Matador brand of cattle is one of the best known in this country, both as feeders and killers. Mr. Mackenzie is a patient, experienced feeder, and the excellent condition of the Matador cattle is no accident, but the result of carefully made plans. Speaking of the load of yearlings, 'Gene Grubb of Colorado said: "The refinement, finish, quality and skill is admirable." And Captain Ogilby of Colorado said: "I never saw a bunch of Hereford yearlings so free from Hereford deficiencies." Mr. Mackenzie has for the past twenty years had entire management of the Matador ranching interests. Today they have 70,000 high-grade Hereford cattle, one of the largest and finest herds in this country. Mr. Mackenzie stated that upwards of $300,000 have been spent in buying bulls alone to build up the herd. They have two ranches in Texas, one in South Dakota and one in Canada.

WYOMING PRIZE HEREFORD FEEDING CATTLE IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

Henry Gray, the widely-known breeder of grade Hereford cattle, Lusk, Wyo., showed these Hereford calves in the North Central district, where they took second prize, and also second in Hereford Specials. They were sold in the auction Dec. 2 by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $30 per head. Mr. Gray started his herd twelve years ago with all classes of cows, but used registered bulls. He now has one of the finest herds of high-grade cows in the Northwest, breeding for market purposes alone. Mr. Gray has taken many prizes in previous International shows. Two years ago his calves were champion calves of the feeder show. During all the years that Mr. Gray has been shipping cattle to the market he strayed away from the Clay, Robinson & Co. fold only two years, and said that these two years clearly demonstrated to him that Clay, Robinson & Co. was the best firm to tie to.

Early Maturity Is the Keynote.

Not the least important of the many events growing out of the marvelous collection of premier live stock brought together each year under the banner of the International Live Stock Exposition, is the fact that it furnishes an unmistakable index to the trend of the most advanced thought and practice in the breeding, feeding and marketing of live stock. We refer at this time more particularly to the keynote of "early maturity," which has been given no uncertain sound at the Exposition of 1910 and its immediate predecessors. When a calf walks off with the royal purple of the grand champion steer, and a bunch of yearlings sweep the board in the carload fat classes, the most important section of the show so far as feeders are concerned, certainly he who runs may read. The popularity of baby beef and the trend toward early maturity is of course, strictly speaking, a plant of no recent growth, the tendency in recent years having been very strongly in this direction. It is, however, constantly being more accentuated, and the production of baby beef is becoming more popular and profitable each year.

Notwithstanding all this, the process of education is slow, and there is still too much marketing of aged cattle that should have gone to the shambles earlier in their existence. This year there were far too many three-year-old steers in the carload classes. They were out of date, so to speak, and relics of a period in the feeding industry that has passed, to return no more. There is more than a hint in this for the feeder who wants to win in carload competition at future Internationals, as well as for the regular producer of market cattle who wishes to realize the greatest return upon his investment of money and labor.

Experiment Lambs Sell High.

From Missouri United States Demonstration Farm No. 4, owned by R. S. Harriman of Pilot Grove, Mo., there was recently marketed at East St. Louis 139 fat lambs at $6.40 which was the extreme top for that market for some time. The next best lot there the same day was $6.00 and top at Chicago was $6.05. The sale was made by Clay, Robinson & Co. There are a few facts concerning these lambs that are of interest, D H. Doane, in charge of the Farm management in Missouri, sending them to us:

"It might be well to mention the character of the work on this farm before telling the results of the lamb feeding. There are in Missouri a number of farms that are being run by the Department of Farm Management of the University of Missouri and the United States Department of Agriculture. Our part in running the farm is simply that of adviser. We outline a complete system of farming and plan every detail of the work. Neither the state or the government furnish one cent of money for the operating of these farms and all the work is carried on by a practical farmer, with the same kind of labor, horses and machinery that every farmer has at his disposal. In fact, all our operations are under the same conditions that the farmers of the community are working, hence we feel safe in saying that it is reasonable to expect that any farmer can duplicate or exceed our results if he takes an equal amount of time and pains in planning and figuring. Our work is not experimental. Our farming is not theory. It is simply business farming. First, well planned and second, carefully carried out.

"Our plans on Demonstration Farm No. 4 call for the planting of cowpeas in the corn fields, and the utilization of these peas by western lambs during the fall. Accordingly on Sept 26 we purchased 140 western lambs, averaging 53 lbs in Kansas City through Clay, Robinson & Co. They were at first filled on a short pasture and then turned in a field of corn and cowpeas of about seven acres where the corn and peas were well matured and consequently first class for starting, on account of not being so laxative as the real green and succulent forage. They ate very few of the peas or grass in this field and were then turned into a ten acre corn field where there was a very excellent stand of peas with quite a good supply of pods. The estimated yield of corn in this field was 50 bushels per acre. The lambs remained here until sold save for a little cleaning up they were allowed to do after the hogs in another corn field. During the last twenty days of the feed the lambs ate some corn, but only ate a full feed for about ten days. At all times they were given free access to spring water and had a full allowance of salt. One lamb died soon after reaching the farm, due to no fault of the feeder. They at no time had access to any shelter and were kept quite close to the fields they were grazing for it was desired to get as much of the crop back where it was grown as was possible.

> "Clay, Robinson & Co. bought these lambs in Kansas City and sold them in St. Louis in an extremely gratifying and satisfactory way to us. They were bought and sold by correspondence.

"Armour & Co. purchased them and their reports show that the lambs dressed 54.61 per cent on a pluck basis, which is considered very good. The third prize lamb in the carcass contest at Chicago in 1909 only went 55 per cent. They shrunk a little over 4 lbs in shipping 200 miles.

"From the figures that we have, and careful estimates of the feed consumed, we feel safe in makin the following summary:

Sept. 26, bought 140 lambs in Kansas City averaging 53 lbs at $6.00 per cwt	$445.00
Freight, commissions, dipping, driving, etc., in buying	36.00
Total cost on the farm	$481.00
"They ate the cowpeas in about 10 acres of corn which they gathered from the field for themselves.
Freight, commission, driving, etc., in marketing	39.00
Total cost	$520.00
57 days after purchasing, sold, 71 lbs, at $6.40 per cwt	$632.00

"This shows that we had on a fifty-three-day feeding operation $108 to pay for seventy bushels of corn, the cowpeas, interest on investment, labor, etc. These results are not at all wonderful, but simply show what any farmer can do if he tries. Some have obtained better results, but considering the very low sheep market that we had it was a very satisfactory feed, or rather a satisfactory way of utilizing a catch crop, enriching our soil and adding a little money to the profit side of our book account."

Clover and Timothy Hay.

Prof. Ralph Hoagland, of the Division of Agricultural Chemistry, Minnesota University Farm has recently tabulated the results of numerous analyses of red clover and timothy hay, made to determine their comparative feeding value in the fattening of live stock. The figures below show the number of pounds of digestible nutrients in one ton each of clover and timothy respectively:

Nutrients.	Timothy.	Clover.	Difference in favor of Clover.
Ash	89.9	72.9	-|- 17.0
Fat	38.0	24.5	-|- 13.5
Protein	150.2	65.9	-|- 84.3
Crude Fiber	290.7	418.6	—127.9
Carbohydrates	552.6	462.5	-|- 90.1

The results here presented show conclusively the superiority of clover in feeding value. Clover contains over twice as much digestible protein, and considerably more digestible fat and carbohydrates, than timothy hay. Clover is especially suited for young stock and milch cows, while timothy is more used as a feed for horses. Its market value for this last purpose is so high as to forbid its profitable use for general stock feeding, since the same amount of nutrients can be purchased in other feeds for less money.

Has Good Cause for Complaint.

To the Live Stock Report:

The Land show, Apple show and Stock show were widely advertised with "Lowest rates on all railroads." Thousands of farmers had planned to attend, despite the fact that prices of grain and stock showed rapid declines. Later came the announcement that the railroads would not make reduced rates, and the farmers, to show their contempt, stayed at home. Commercially it will be the means of "killing the goose that laid the golden egg," inasmuch as exhibitors have expended thousands of dollars to place their goods before the public, and if they have to depend upon city patronage alone all the exhibitions named will in time be financial failures and eventually be discontinued. Present methods of permitting absolute rule by mismanaged and unlawful corporations in this country places us on a par with Russia.

C. T. Crofton.

Savanna, Ill., Dec. 5, 1910.

What Hill Probably Meant.

"The gloomy forecast made by James J. Hill with respect to the business outlook was published on the day the report was received from the commissioner of internal revenue," comments a prominent financial man. "There does not appear to be in the report of the commissioner, at least in the opinion of some of those in this city who have carefully read the report, much justification for Mr. Hill's despondent note. But those who know Mr. Hill best and are acquainted with his decidedly individual and original manner of thinking are of opinion that he spoke relatively. He does not mean that there is to be demoralization of business or stagnation of manufacture or agriculture. What he undoubtedly had in mind was that our activity will not be as great as it would be were we not paying for what are commonly called 'dead horses.'"

Carden Lauds Baby Beeves.

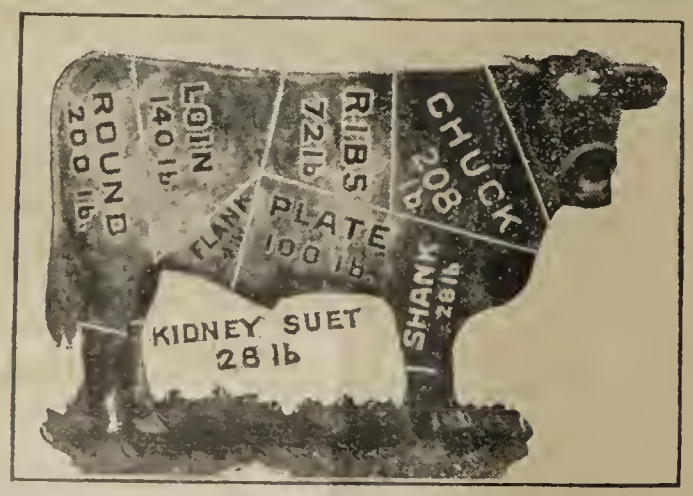
Richard G. Carden, the foreign International judge, remarked: "The carload lot was beyond all belief in quantity and uniform quality to people across the water, who run live stock on grass the year round. The American stockmen have the right idea in finishing their stuff early, making baby beef.

"In Ireland the calves run on grass until they are yearlings and are then sold to Scotch and English for the feed lot in straw yards. It is the custom to pick the best for stall feeding as 3-year-olds for Christmas beef. The American feeders should be honored for their practicability in making baby beef."

Is Only Well Started.

Edward Morris, the great packer, in praising the International Live Stock Exposition, incidentally declares that "The packing industry is merely in its beginning. The field is but partly developed. We are making big strides toward perfection, and while America leads the world, we need just such institutions as the International Live Stock Exposition to bring to the public mind the fact that there is no calling more dignified, more pleasant and more profitable than stock raising.

"The American farmer is awakening to the fact and is adopting the most improved methods and as a result is producing better beef, mutton and pork than ever before. In future years he will make more improvement over present-day methods, because the International Live Stock Exposition is teaching him how."



STEER OF PROPER FORM SHOWING CUTS

This steer weighed 1300 pounds alive and 800 pounds dressed. This makes his dressing percentage 62. He is an example of the most profitable steer to feed. Note the broad head, straight, level back and deep flank.

Market Value of These Steers

The following is a comparison of weights of the different parts of the steers shown here:

	Prime steer Lbs	Common steer Lbs
Loin	140	105
Rib	72	56
Round	200	149
Chuck	208	164
Plate	100	77
Flank	24	19
Shank	28	19
Suet	28	31
Total	800	620

The following table shows the variation in price per pound:

Retail Prices Per Pound

	Prime steer	Common steer
Loin	20@30c	15@25c
Rib	18@22c	16@20c
Round	10@18c	10@16c

UNPROFITABLE STEER, THE KIND NOT TO FEED

This steer weighed 1100 pounds alive, and 620 pounds dressed. His dressing percentage was 56%. His low back, high flank, narrow head and narrow back are all undesirable in a beef steer.

Two Opinions on Hog Situation.

One of the old-time bears of the provision pit and the head of one of the most successful houses in the Chicago trade, but who withholds his name, is not as pessimistic in his views of pork products prices as are some of the other authorities. "I do not believe that we will ever be able to buy hogs low enough to manufacture May delivery product at current price levels," he said. "Receipts of hogs are not as large as they were a year ago, and the latter were in turn the smallest in ten years. Kansas City is paying Chicago prices for hogs, but is not getting them."

Patrick Cudahy, the well-known packer, takes a very pessimistic view of the situation, saying: "Prices of hogs and product are gradually working down to a normal basis. It is foolish to compare with last year, for prices last year were abnormal. Compared with any other year 7c for live hogs and relative prices for product look high, and the abnormally high prices of last year have driven the consumer off of meat and on to other foods. People the world over are on a strike against high prices. Our trade now is 25 per cent less than a year ago. In fact, in my thirty-five years' experience I never remember as dull a trade. Forty-five-cent corn means 4½c hogs, and I think we are heading that way. There will be plenty of hogs."

Stale Cattle Poor Sellers.

Few salesmen carry cattle over voluntarily. Often they arrive too late for the session for which they were intended and go stale from necessity, but not infrequently the owner decides to take a chance, either carrying them from Monday to Wednesday or over the week end in the hope of catching an advance. Success while rare, is possible and having done the trick once the shipper is emboldened to try it again. Holding stale cattle on a falling market is tantamount to inviting loss. Recently it has cost shippers who took the chance anywhere from 25@40c per cwt. The practice pays out once where it loses a dozen times. Stale cattle are notoriously hard to sell, especially if they have received bids on a previous session. Salesmen of experience cling to the opinion that the best time to sell is when you are bid the market price.

Another error many shippers fall into is that by splitting a shipment between two commission houses competition is engendered and better results insured. Split shipments generally fare worse than when the entire consignment is in the hands of one selling concern. The average buyer has a keen scent for these lots of cattle and will seldom bid on one if he can help it, fearing that another buyer may get the balance of the drove at less money later, making his purchase look high. Split shipments seldom go to the scales early, involving shrinkage at the expense of the owner and the danger of being involved in closing slumps. As a method of testing the selling efficiency of different firms it is far from being efficacious and usually defeat the object aimed at.—Breeder's Gazette.

Failure in Sheep Feeding.

"Scenery feeding" is a term market men use. Take a bunch of western sheep or lambs to the country, turn them into a pasture, topping off with a thirty-day run in a cornfield, and you have been "scenery feeding" to perfection.

Those who handle their stock in this manner are usually novices, comments the Breeder's Gazette. To repeat the performance would mean a severe tax on the feeder's bank credit, but the practice is nevertheless a common one. Many a tyro has returned to market a consignment handled in this way, believing that he had made them fat until rudely awakened by the reply of the buyers when invited to bid on such stuff.

This is the season when "scenery-fed" muttons come. Because the army of feeders has received many recruits this year the percentage of sheep and lambs finished that way is unusually large. Some carry enough flesh to win bids from killers, others must go back to the country, but results are invariably the same—loss to the first handler, who is required to pay the expense of two trips between stockyards and feedlot.

Evidently much money in the aggregate will be lost this season by the thousands of novices who are handling sheep and lambs. Some will profit by a disastrous experience, others will quit in disgust, while a few will repeat the attempt before convinced that fitting for the butcher is not to be accomplished that way. Already sheep and lambs that did not even pay first cost are being marketed by the trainload. There is no excuse for throwing a band of feeding sheep into an overstocked, burry pasture and dignifying the process by terming it feeding.

Probably you have noticed that for some time past you have received only occasional copies of the Live Stock Report, instead of every issue as formerly?

This is because our list has grown so large that we are able to cover only a part of it each week—EXCEPT that paid subscribers always receive every copy promptly and regularly.

The issues you miss are likely to be the very ones that contain matter of most value to you, and that we are most desirous you should have. But the enormous postage expense absolutely forbids our sending the paper each week to every name on our list, much as we would like to do so.

However, there is an easy way out of the difficulty. By filling out and mailing us the coupon below, together with 50 cents, you will be enrolled as a paid subscriber, and will receive every issue promptly and regularly. We hope you will do this, if the paper is worth 50 cents per year to you and you wish to receive every copy.

You will also receive, free of charge, our remarkably beautiful Flower Girl Souvenir Calendar for 1911, when same is distributed in December.

Montrose county, Colo., was represented on the East St. Louis market Nov. 30 with 514 yearling wethers of 91 lbs average and our house landed them at the top price of $5.25. They were sent in by Sam Dupuy.

F. E. Walworth, dealer in fat stock and general farm produce, Saginaw county, Mich., writes: "Lambs arrived O. K. They are a very fine lot. The way you have treated me will get all of my future business."

M. W. Wright, Valley county, Mont., marketed two loads of sheep at Chicago through us and stated that the sheep holdings in that country have been reduced fully 50 per cent, owing to adverse range conditions.

J. H. Botts, Linn county, Mo., was on the East St. Louis market Dec. 1 with a deck of 75-lb lambs which our house sold at $6.50, the top. They also obtained the top price for yearlings on the same date by selling for C. C. Jones, Cooper county, Mo., two loads of 95 lbs average at $5.25.

E. Zerman, Rock county, Wis., writes: "I am very well pleased with sale of cattle. Many thanks."

Cunningham Bros., Buchanan county, Ia., write: "We bought our sheep through your house at South Omaha and were very well satisfied with the treatment, and we expect to ship to your house when they are ready to go."

It was Nov. 29 that Herman Ernst, Jr., Johnson county, Neb., had 116 wethers at South St. Joseph which were sold through our house at the top price of $4.00, which was as high as they would have made on the Chicago market that day.

Best prices for heavy cattle at Kansas City on Dec. 5 was obtained by our house for 10 steers of 1,407 lbs average, marketed by W. C. Mueller Hanover, Kan. Mr. Mueller also had some cows and a bull which sold at $5.00, these also topping the market.

M. J. Adams, a progressive ranchman of Valley county, Mont., was on the Chicago market with cattle last week and we sold them to his entire satisfaction. He remarked that both cattle and sheep were shipped closer than in years from that country. There is a big shortage of hay and the price has jumped up to $20 per ton.

W. O. Bishop, manager of the John Morton Sheep Co. of Crook county, Wyo., writes: "Thank you for the sales you made of our lambs and old ewes. I certainly appreciate the fact that it was up-hill work, considering the market and the kind of stuff offered. You made for us several hundred dollars more than we expected."

George D. Gaby & Sons, the well-known breeders of Hereford cattle and Poland-China hogs of Noble county, Ind., write: "We were well pleased with the sales of lambs and ewes. Many thanks for the careful attention and favors. Corn crop was light in this part of the country. Considerable sheep are being fed in this immediate locality."

T. P. Chester, manager of the Chester Farm Co., breeders of pure-bred Leaming and Reid's Yellow Dent seed corn, Champaign county, Ill., writes: "The 900 yearling wethers are doing extra fine. We put them in the corn field for a few hours every day to let them fill up on corn, after being on grass awhile. I never saw sheep come out so well, some of the heaviest being fat enough now."

The following prominent shippers favored our East St. Louis house with consignments of cattle: Gib. Mason, Effingham county, Ill.; John A. Miller, Page county, Ia.; Monsees & Warren, Pettis county, Mo.; Hillhouse Bros., Lawrence county, Ark.; P. W. Patton, Gentry county, Mo.; Hanson Bros., Pickens county, Ala.; J. W. CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by CLAY, ROBINSON & COMPANY'S LIVE STOCK REPORT:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week.....	$4.50@7.35	$5.30@6.65
Previous week.....	4.50 7.50	5.40 7.00
Year ago.....	4.25 9.25	5.40 7.40
2 years ago.....	3.75 8.00	4.85 7.15
3 years ago.....	3.25 6.35	4.50 5.80

It was a give and take market last week. At the close buyers had lowered the heavy weight offerings 10@15c from the finish of the previous week and sellers had boosted rates for the handy weights and lower costing kinds 10@15c. The market for yearlings showed an unchanged price basis. Considering the big increase in arrivals, the selling interests had reason for congratulating themselves in obtaining the prices they did for all classes. The total run was 72,569, against 53,-711 the previous week. The week's top was $7.50 for fancy yearlings and the limit for heavy beeves was $7.15, OBTAINED BY US.

This week started out with receipts at 33,000. The market was a dull sticky affair. Heavy beeves were especially difficult sale and the prices for these were lowered 10c from last Friday. Demand was centered on the handier weight steers and lower costing kinds, and when a trading basis was established prices were steady. Arrivals were very slow in getting in, due to the railroads' lack of efficiency in the operating departments. The top was $7.25, paid for 33 head of fancy 1,264 lbs average, and the limit for big heavy beeves was $6.85.

The Tuesday run was 7,601. The market was a dull affair and all price changes tended toward a weaker basis. Best beeves offered went at $6.25. Marketing Wednesday 28,000. Trading was very uneven. Choice to prime yearling cattle, as well as fat handy weight steers, sold steady, but all other kinds went 10@20c lower. Choice to prime heavy beeves sold to least advantage. Twenty-two head of fancy Hereford yearlings, averaging 998 lbs, topped the trade at $7.35. The next best price was $7.25, paid for 1,269 lbs average, and prime big weight beeves had to go at $6.75.

Sellers had the best of the buyers of cows and heifers last week, closing transactions showing 10 @15c advance over the previous week's finish. A moderate supply and an improved demand put buyers at a disadvantage. Extra choice 1,238-lb heifers sold up to $6.15. Bulls showed mostly 25c loss for the week and calves declined 50@75c from the close of the previous week, with $8.75 the practical limit for fancy assorted vealers.

Steady prices prevailed for cows and heifers at the start of this week. A good demand offset a fairly heavy run. A good many warmed-up cows that had been run in corn fields showed up, owners wanting to market them before the bad weather sets in. The bull market was steady, as also was the trade in calves. On Tuesday cows and heifers were generally steady. Bulls made a firm price basis. Calves held steady.

The Wednesday trade in cows and heifers was 10@15c lower. Market showed no change for either bulls or calves.

During the last two market days of last week the demand for stockers and feeders contracted sharply and all the price gain of the first half of the week was lost, when there was broad, active demand for all classes of offerings. Fancy assorted heavy fleshy feeders went back to the country at a cost of $5.85, they being well worth the money for slaughter.

This week started out with fairly good receipts and a more active demand. Prices were generally steady with the close of last week and 25@35c lower than the corresponding day of that week. The Tuesday trade was active and steady.

The Wednesday trade in stockers and feeders was 10@15c lower.

Both receipts and shipments of hogs last week were the largest since last February, being 148,480 and 41,557 respectively. At the close of the week the average price at $7.32 was the highest since Nov. 18 and stood 32c higher than the corresponding day of the previous week. The boost in prices was due in main to a broadened outlet through eastern shipping channels and packers increased activity because of a better fresh meat demand. Top for the week was $7.50. The week's average price at $7.19 was $1.01 lower than the corresponding week of last year, at which time the market was booming.

Receipts at the start of this week were 29,655. The market was generally 10@15c higher than the Saturday average. Less strength was manifested at the start and the late sales were the highest. Eastern shippers were eager for offerings and packers were hungry for supplies in later hours. Prices ranged from $7.05@7.65, with bulk of business at $7.35@7.55.

Marketing Tuesday 28,293. Considerable business was done at 10c advance over the previous day's average, but by the finish most of the advance was lost. Prices ranged from $7.10@7.70. The Wednesday supply was 35,000. Opening 5c higher than the close on Tuesday, the advance was all lost by the finish. Bulk of trading was at $7.40@7 60 and the best sold at $7.67½.

The market for lambs and yearlings closed up in very bad condition last week. The decline from the finish of the previous week was 25@35c for handy weight lambs and 50@75c for heavy weights, while the loss for yearlings was 15@25. On the other hand, the trade was on a strong basis for sheep with the above period. There was an excessive proportion of lambs and yearlings, while the quota of sheep was light. The week's arrivals were 152,642, against 106,095 the corresponding week of last year. On the closing market day it was virtually a $6.00@6.25 market for good to choice handy weight lambs, with heavy lots thrown out at $5.25@5.75. Best handy weight yearlings went at $5.25 and prime heavy at $5.00. Choice wethers reached $4.30 and a similar class of ewes $4.00.

Receipts at the start of this week were 34,435. It was generally a 10@25c lower market than last Friday, with bulk of lambs going at 25c decline. The run was above all expectations and carried a heavy proportion of fed westerns. Fancy tidy weight lambs made $6.25 at the start, but by the close the limit was practically $6 00. Where outlet was found for big weight lambs, it was a $5.00@5.50 trade. The best yearlings brought $5.15. Prime handy weight wethers landed up to $4.25 early and there were few sales of ewes higher than $3.75.

On Tuesday buyers were just as anxious for offerings as they were indifferent the previous day. A run of 24,000 fell under trade requirements. The trade was active throughout the day's session at prices 10@25c higher, lambs showing most advance. Fancy light weight lambs were quotable up to $6.25. The best fed westerns brought $6.15, HANDLED BY US. Prime lamb weight yearlings went to a city butcher at $5.50, although there was no safe outlet to the regular buyers higher than $5.25. WE TOPPED the wether market with fed westerns at $4.25 and WE ALSO LANDED ewes at the outside price of $4.10.

Wednesday run 30,000. Opening strong to 10c higher for lambs and yearlings, the market closed no more than steady with the previous day. Sheep held steady throughout. Top lambs $6.35, paid early for fed westerns, best yearlings $5.65, wethers $4.25 and ewes $4.00.

South Omaha Markets.

[Special telegram from Clay, Robinson & Co.]

South Omaha, Dec. 6—Supplies of cattle last week were light. Few good westerns were offered. Proportion of native fed stock of only fair quality was considerably larger. Beef values closed 15@25c better than last week's close. Cows and heifers were especially strong sellers during the week. Stockers and feeders were well cleaned up throughout the week at gradually strengthening figures.

Under a liberal run the first two market days of this week, beef steers sold 15@25c lower than last week's close. Best cows held steady and medium grades went 10c lower. Stockers and feeders a shade lower.

Prices for hogs advanced 15@25c over last Saturday. Top $7.60 and bulk $7.40@7.50.

Sheep receipts were moderate last week, with local feeders putting a good share of the offerings on the market. The trade started out in very fair shape, but the close was very draggy, with prices showing an uneven loss. Good killing lambs were quotable at $5.75@6.15, good light yearlings $4.50@4.85, heavy yearlings $4.00@4.50, wethers $3.50@3.85, and ewes $3.00@3.35.

The Monday market for sheep and lambs was 10@15c higher but was unevenly lower on Tuesday under a liberal run. Top lambs $5.75 and most $5.25@5.50. Best yearlings $4.65 and bulk $4.00@4.25. Top wethers $4.00. Limit for ewes was $3.40 and bulk went at $3.10@3.35. All offerings carrying heavy weight were slow sale.

Our Exports Steadily Dwindle.

Export trade in cattle, hogs and sheep during the first ten months of 1910 aggregated but $6,544,700, against $12,823,511 the previous year, $20,946,329 in 1908, $28,969,492 in 1907 and $31,797,937 in 1906. Of this $6,379,039 was in cattle, against $12,562,463 last year and $20,207,303 in 1908. October cattle exports were 7,458 head, valued at $706,041, against 12,607, valued at $1,152,688 last year. Canned beef exports for the ten months were 8,200,720 lbs, valued at $958,465, against 12,010,940 lbs, valued at $1,321,611 in 1909. Exports of fresh beef during the same period were 46,583,722 lbs, valued at $4,958,054, against 76,664,383 lbs, valued at $8,172,179 the previous year, and 130,829,771 lbs, valued at $13,388,541 in 1908.

Western Range Sheep Conditions Bad.

Chris. Panberg, a well-posted flockmaster of Mayfield, Utah, sends us the following blue statements of western range sheep affairs:

"With the price of mutton low, the ranges the poorest in the last fifteen years and prospects for a hard winter, sheepmen of Utah, Idaho, Wyoming and Montana are facing probably the most serious set of questions in history. Unable to get hay in many parts of the state, herds are being taken to other districts for feeding during the winter months and the sheepmen are trying to cut the herds down to the smallest size. It is predicted by sheepmen that the conditions will mean a shortage of wool next spring and much better prices. With the number of western sheep cut down one-third there will be millions of pounds less wool produced and prices should be better. The ranges are poor this year because of the drought last summer and the early fall. The late summer and early fall rains usually bring forth a good growth of grass on the ranges, but this year the rains failed to come and the sheepmen find no grass on the winter ranges. It will be necessary to feed the sheep hay and grain, and the prices of both these commodities are said to be going up."

As to Winter Hog Prices.

Even the most bearish forecasters on hog prices figure that hogs will be worth $6.00@7.00 during the coming year. While these figures will not furnish farmers handsome profits that they have realized during 1910 they are sufficiently attractive to encourage the raising of pork on a liberal scale. Besides, what advantage are $10@11 hogs to the farmer who has no hogs to sell?—South Omaha Journal-Stockman.

DO YOU WANT A COPY OF THE FAMOUS "SHEEP SHEARERS" PICTURE? SEE BACK COVER.

H. V. Hudson & Son, prominent hardware merchants, Page county, Va., write: "I have been well pleased with all your purchases of cattle for me."

Alex Marshall, Tuscola county, Mich., writes: "The lambs I got of you are doing fine. I wish to again thank you for your honest dealings. I will give your firm first chance when I sell."

J. W. Reedy, Iowa county, Ia., writes: "There are not as many cattle on feed in this country as usual. It is true there are more feeders, but they are mostly in one and two-load lots. The big feeders are more cautious. While more cattle have been taken out from the stock yards to the country this fall than usual, it should be remembered there were many cattle shipped out of the corn belt on account of short pastures and water during the summer and fall. The usual number of hogs are available here."

The Epoch-Marking Story of an Epoch-Marking Period

We Want to Place on Approval in Every American Home

A Set of the Definitive Popular Edition of

The Making of America

Edited by U. S. Senator Robert M. La Follette

No one whose blood tingles with the spirit of true Americanism can afford to be without this monumental epic of our country's greatness.

To the business man, the professional man and the student it is at once a priceless storehouse of valuable information and a mine of absorbing interest. And to the man with growing boys it is invaluable, for no other work so deeply inculcates the highest American ideals and points to the highest successes.

For "THE MAKING OF AMERICA" is written by the men who actually have made our country what it is.

370 of them—the greatest industrial organizers, the foremost experts in finance, education, law, agriculture, science, war, statesmanship and diplomacy—tell, in vivid pen-pictures, the absorbing story of herculean effort and colossal achievement which have made the America of today.

One of our great public men has well expressed the appeal which this work makes when he says,

"Reading these ten volumes has made me doubly proud of my Americanism."

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef. The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!

Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

Tricks Exposed and Secrets Told

EVERY farmer or horse owner should have "Horse Secrets"—every secret and trick it tells may be worth the price of a horse to you any day. It is now in over 50,000 homes—now in the 6th edition, illustrated and revised for 1911 with many valuable additions by its author, A. S. Alexander, the eminent veterinarian of Wisconsin.

New matter for this new edition of "Horse Secrets," includes:

Dr. R. C. Obrecht, of Kansas, "Prevention of Colic."

Dr. F. A. Crandall, of New York, at one time assistant to Prof. Oscar Gleason, "How to Break Halter Pulling."

Dr. E. L. Quitman of Chicago, "How to Prevent Mules From Kicking.

Dr. H. Fuistow, discloses a nail trick.

Dr. B. F. Holmes, of Wisconsin, "Trick of Decreasing Value of an Animal."

How They "Plug a Roarer"

OTHER NEW MATTER:
"Stopping Pawing in Stall."
"Preventing Casting in Stall."
"Stopping Tongue Lolling."
"The Break Away Trick."
"The Twitch and Cording Trick."
"The Secret Formula Swindle."
"Fooling the Expert Judge."
"A Magic Cure For Cramps."

also enables you to instantly detect every trick that has been played on the horse you are about to buy to make him appear sound—to hide blemishes and sickness. It reveals the favorite tricks of "Shutting a 'heaver'"—"Plugging a 'roarer'"—producing artificial plumpness—the "Bishoping" trick of altering teeth to hide age—how to detect a "doped" and "gingered" horse—how to know when eyes and ears have been "doctored"—discharging fistulas, etc., concealed, and spavins hidden—tricks of dishonest auctioneers. It exposes the bogus pedigree trick and scores of other smooth dodges practiced every day. Gives many valuable secrets for feeding and conditioning stock; for curing balking, kicking, "cribbing," halter-pulling; formulas that enable you to practically duplicate the best-known "horse remedies" at a big saving. "Horse Secrets" will save and earn many dollars for every man who owns a single horse or a large stock farm.

THIS PICTURE HAS DELIGHTED THOUSANDS

The original painting has been splendidly reproduced, in all its exquisite coloring, requiring fourteen separate printings. Size 15½x22 inches, tinned top and bottom, with ring for hanging. This picture is well worthy of framing for any home. The above small one-color proof gives no idea of the beauty of the original. We print same merely to show the grouping, etc.

MR. JOHN CLAY DESCRIBES THE PICTURE AS FOLLOWS:

"The original of this picture, 'SHEEP SHEARING IN THE LAMMERMOORS,' was painted by Robert McGregor, of Edinburgh, a leading Scotch artist. His best work has been done in portraying interiors, and Mr. John Clay was so much attracted by his style in this direction that he gave him a commission to go to one of his father's farms and paint a picture commemorative of the past and the present.

"The scene is laid at Wedderlie, a farm lying on the southern slopes of the Lammermoors in the county of Berwickshire, Scotland. It is a hill and half-hill farm. The lower part of the place is devoted more or less to arable farming and Leicester-Cheviot sheep are kept there, grazed in Summer and partly hand fed in Winter and Spring. On the swelling uplands, where the heather grows and the peats are cut, blackfaced sheep have their home, and the picture before us depicts the time of shearing. This takes place generally the first week in July, and the flock, or part of it, is driven to the farm buildings, and under a covered shed redolent of boyhood days the semi-wild flock are denuded of their coats. In old days the neighboring shepherds used to come and help. There was a unity of interest and a mutual aid society. But these days are gone and the ordinary farm help does the work.

"This picture tells a story. It represents not only the actual work, but the figures are original, and the grouping is very skillful. The men who act the parts in the simple drama of life on these hillsides are grand specimens of the Scottish peasants, who are wedded to the soil and service of the farm. In their narrow confines they play their part as well, if not better, than their neighbors in the great highways of commercial trade. The central figure, the man with the staff in his hand, caught evidently as he entered the shed, is Matthew Craig, foreman on the farm, who for fifty-four years worked for John Clay Senior, of which fifty-two years were spent at Wedderlie, and he died honored and respected on a farm he had rented some three miles away.

"On the extreme right is William Anderson, handling with skill a ram whose big horns add so much to the beauty of this class of sheep, grown gray during his forty-seven years of service under one employer. He managed the blackfaced hirsel, and knew every sheep on it. He now lives in a little cottage in a village nearby, his brain active though his limbs are stiffened by years of travel on the purple hillside. A shepherd by profession, but a poet and a lover of nature by instinct. The young lad with red hair working behind the fence, catching the sheep and bringing them to the shearing stools, made of turf, is a son of Anderson, and since his father retired has taken his place on the hillside and literally follows his father's footsteps.

"The old man leaning over the fence watching the work is John Whitlaw. When the writer's father took the lease of Wedderlie in 1853, William Whitlaw, 'Auld Willie' as he was called, looked after the half-breed sheep on the lower part of the farm. He retired and his son John came in his stead, and there he stands, hale and hearty, with the frost of four score years and more on his brow. Years ago there came up a difference of opinion between master and servant and he left, going to a neighboring farm. Some years ago his son, young Willie, came back to fill the place of his forefathers, and he is seen in the picture as a red-bearded, rugged man on the left, and his father, long since retired from work, is spending the evening of his days with him.

"The central figure of the actual sheep shearers is Matthew Craig Jr., who is now working a farm of his own, a thrifty son of the soil.

"The female figure portrays a girl who is employed rolling up the wool and storing it away in an enclosed corner of the shed, ready for inspection by a buyer, who may come along at any time.

"An interesting part of the picture is the foreground of turf and heather, fit carpet for such work, and the faithful Collies, watching through the corners of their eyes the whole scene, ready at a moment's notice for action."

Vol. 20 Chicago, Friday, December 16. 1910 No. 50

Buyers Want Yearling Cattle.

"Baby beef" is in the limelight. Ten loads of fat yearling cattle are wanted where one load of big weight beeves is. This week the only cattle to sell above $7.00 tipped the beam under 1,200 lbs. Yearlings topped the market at $7.55. Of course, they were fancy. Prime 1,600 lbs average had to sell at $6.50. And they proved dull sale at that.

At the recent International Show a foreign judge chose a calf over all other fat steers and a yearling was reserve champion. Calves also were grand champions in the feeder show. Yearlings took the sweepstakes in the fat carload lots. First honors in the short-fed classes also went to yearlings. The judging was done by one of Swift & Co.'s leading buyers. In the auction both local and eastern buyers showed the "baby beeves" first favor. The average price for the 27 loads was $8.06. This showed an advance of 61c per cwt over the twos and 68c over the threes. In spite of prices being around $3.75 lower than last year, the grand champion calf was sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at 60c per pound, grossing $672, the highest since 1900. The sweepstakes load of yearlings made $13.50 per cwt, compared with $9.00 for the champion two-year-olds of this age and $6.75 for three-year-old beeves averaging 1,896 lbs.

The lesson is of special interest to the breeder as well as the feeder. Clay, Robinson & Co. saw the handwriting on the wall many years ago, and have all along urged greater production of "baby beef." Their contention has been verified by the greatest show on earth and buyers' eagerness for fat yearlings on our great open markets.

Cattle and Sheep Increase; Hogs Decrease.

The year 1910 will close with combined receipts of cattle at the ten leading markets—where Clay, Robinson & Co. have houses—showing an increase of upwards of 100,000 over last year, a result of forced liquidation from both the ranges and corn belt in the summer because of a terrible drought and heavy unloading of partly-fatted offerings on account of an unpromising market this winter. Combined supplies for the eleven months were 9,800,743, a net increase of 154,747 over the same period of last year. Kansas City, Fort Worth, South St. Joseph and Denver were the only points to display marked decreases. Chicago and South Omaha showed good increases, being 184,611 and 104,073 respectively.

A combined decrease of upwards of 3,000,000 hogs is assured at the ten markets. And last year's receipts were the smallest in many years. There was a short crop at the start of the year, and producers have been holding back all thrifty young breeding stock. Also, they have sent in fewer shotes and pigs, realizing all along they were worth more on the farm than on the market. Combined receipts for the eleven months totaled 15,342,954, a net decrease of 3,367,144 from the like period of last year. South St. Paul showed an increase of 72,150, the only point to occupy a position in the gain column. Chicago and Kansas City have the largest decreases at 995,898 and 935,472 respectively, while East St. Louis, South St. Joseph, Fort Worth and South Omaha come next in order.

No doubt the net increase in sheep arrivals will be upwards of 2,000,000 at the ten points. Unprecedented runs the past season from the western ranges because of burned-up feed assured the increase several months ago. Then there is a rush of the fed westerns to market now. Combined receipts for the eleven months were 13,529,522, a record number and a net gain of 1,897,788 over last year. South Omaha leads with an increase of 830,295, Chicago second with 793,054 and South St. Paul third with 378,965. The latter point had nearly double the arrivals as in 1909. East Buffalo displayed the greatest loss at 183,400 and South St. Joseph was second with 64,788.

IRRIGATORS STATE BANK, NISLAND, S. D.

The above bank opened its doors for business on June 20, 1910, and since that date its business has shown a steady growth. Deposits on Dec. 1 were over $25,000.00, which shows the confidence the people of that community have in its officers and directors. James T. Craig is president, M. J. Smiley vice president and D. J. Hull, cashier. Nisland is located under the Belle Fourche Irrigation Project on the new line of the Belle Fourche Valley Railway Co., and is the first town under the project to be incorporated. Since June, 1910, this town has grown to a population of 200 and has more than twenty business houses.

Receipts of Stock Prove Excessive.

Down went the price range for cattle, hogs and sheep with a crash this week. Excessive receipts and a contraction of the demand from both local and eastern buyers were the prime factors in the sharp lowering of rates. In spite of the warnings sent to feeders and shippers last week there was a big rush of all classes of offerings to market. This was true at both the eastern and western points. It is the time of the year when only light runs are needed. Anticipating lessened demand for beef, pork and mutton in consequence of increased consumption of poultry during the holidays, slaughterers are stocking up with cattle, hogs and sheep conservatively. Nothing good can be expected of the markets until after the first of the year. If heavy liquidation continues, prices are yet to touch the bottom.

Big Crop; Good Business Prospects.

The report of Secretary of Agriculture Wilson invites attention to the stupendous value of the agricultural products of this country, amounting in all to $8,926,000,000 for this year. This amount is larger than 1909 by $305,000,000. The existence of such a crop indicates a good prospect for business throughout the country. A notable change for the better is commented upon by the secretary in the fact that the South, especially in those regions where the boll weevil has interfered with the growth of cotton, has given more attention to the cultivation of corn and other cereals, so that there is a greater diversification of crops in the South than ever before—and all to the great advantage of that section.

An interesting review of the results of an examination made by the department into statistics and prices shows that on the average since 1891 farm products have increased in value 72 per cent, while the things which the farmer buys for use have increased but 12 per cent, an indication that present conditions are favorable to the farming community.

McPherrin Beeves Top Chicago Market.

McPherrin Bros., prominent breeders of grade Aberdeen-Angus cattle and successful feeders and farmers, Oakland, Ia., were represented on the Chicago cattle market Dec. 8 with 25 head of 1,282-lb Angus beeves of their own raising and feeding. Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them at $7.00. This price was the top that day by 35c per cwt for their weight. John McPherrin came in with the shipment and stated that most of the corn in his part was in the crib and the price is generally 35c per bushel. There are not as many cattle on feed as usual and the winter crop of matured hogs will be under last year. A good many sheep were fed there this season, but the great bulk of them have been marketed.

Seems Good Time to Hold.

There is a time to sell immatured stock and there is a time to hold. Now is the time to hold thrifty offerings of good quality that lack desirable flesh condition. This can well be done in view of lower-costing corn. Too many half-fat cattle and lambs are being dumped into the market hoppers. Buyers are exerting every effort to depress the price list for such offerings. And they have been successful. Growers are clinging fast onto their immature hogs. Cattle and lamb feeders should pursue the same course. Following the opposite way is putting red ink on the ledgers, as many feeders are willing to testify.

Gap Between Old and New Hogs.

A party in close touch with the swine situation in Iowa remarks: "Our old hogs in Iowa are practically marketed and the young hogs are not ready and will not be in any volume for another month to come. In other words, there is a gap between the old and the young hogs. The supply of young hogs is not so large, either, as is generally suposed, and had the Chicago packers continued taking off in the price as they did some time ago it would have made considerable difference in the winter breeding. If hogs continue reasonably high we may look for good supplies in another year, but there will not be any more hogs than the trade requires this packing season."

Facts About Shamrock II.

W. J. Kennedy, professor and vice director of the experiment station of the Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., gives us the following facts regarding the winnings, monthly gains and methods of feeding Shamrock II, the Grand Champion Angus steer of the 1910 International Show at Chicago:

Shamrock II. came to Iowa State College about May 1, 1910. He was put on a nurse cow. He was kept in the barn during the day and allowed the run of a grass lot at night. He was fed good clover hay, all he would eat, a grain ration of three parts corn, two parts wheat bran and one part oil meal up to Sept. 1. After Sept. 1 he was given two nurse cows, fed green corn, stalks and ears, clover hay and roots. The grain ration was changed to boiled wheat and oats. During November he was eating from 9 to 11 lbs per day of the cooked feed, about 25 lbs per day of roots and 5 lbs of clover hay in addition to the milk of the nurse cows. He never missed a feed from May 1 until sold in Chicago and never appeared the least bit nervous or restless.

> The animal was sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. on Dec. 1 to C. H. Morgan & Co., Chicago butchers, for 60c per pound, the highest price paid for an International champion in ten years, or since the first exposition of 1900. He weighed 1,120 lbs, thus netted $672.00. He is the second highest priced grand champion steer ever sold in America.

In placing the Grand Champion ribbon on Shamrock II., Richard C. Carden of Fishmoryne, Tipperary, Ireland, who is considered one of the greatest cattle judges in the world, paid Shamrock II. a glowing tribute in the following words: "I have never before seen such a ripe beast for its age. I cannot say too much for him. He is the best animal I have ever seen. I did not conceive such a ripe beast at his age existed. He could win at any show in Great Britain."

Prizes won by Shamrock II. at the International follow: First prize junior grade or cross-bred calf, first prize grade Angus calf, champion grade or cross-bred steer any age, champion grade Angus steer any age, first prize calf any breed in college class, champion steer any breed or age college class, champion calf of any breed of show, champion calf pure bred or grade Angus, grand champion steer any age or breed of show, grand champion pure bred or grade Angus steer of show.

Shamrock II. was calved Jan. 10, 1910, bred by P. J. Donohoe of Holbrook, Iowa, selected by Professor W. J. Kennedy in April, 1910, for the Iowa State College and was fed by John Brown, college herdsman.

Gains of Shamrock II, from May 1 until Nov. 20 were: May 1 he weighed 346 lbs; June 1, 461 lbs; July 1, 589 lbs; Aug. 1, 700 lbs; Sept. 1, 822 lbs; Oct. 1, 941 lbs; Nov. 1, 1060 lbs; Nov. 20, 1130 lbs.

Population Increases; Food Supply Decreases.

This country is facing a great food shortage for its ever-increasing population. Our good land is practically all occupied and the present acreage will not grow. The farmer must produce more per acre in the future. This he cannot do unless he fertilizes his land better than he has done in the past.

Stable manure is the best and most economical fertilizer yet invented, and to get that he must raise more live stock. The farmer will be forced to raise more per acre because of the growing scarcity of labor, the higher price he will have to pay for it, and because of the higher interest value of his high-priced land on which his crops must be grown, suggests the Farmers' Tribune. As the critical point in production and consumption is approached, and as the shortage of range cattle and sheep becomes more evident to all, the farmer will not be slow in recognizing the value of barnyard manure, and this one factor alone will do much toward creating a greater interest in the raising of more and better stock.

From no point of view does it seem possible to figure anything but a profitable period ahead for the farmer and stockman. This applies especially to those who raise their own feed, cattle, hogs and sheep, and market the stock by the grain and forage route.

Live Stock Rate is Suspended.

A freight tariff filed with the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington by the Chicago & Northwestern Railway Co., increasing the rates on the shipment of live stock between the Missouri and Mississippi rivers, was suspended by order of the commission on the ground that the proposed rates appeared unreasonable.

Won Against Strongest Competition Ever Known.

The Champion Feed Co. of Tarkio, Mo., fed and exhibited a load of two-year-old Angus steers in the South Central district of the 1910 International Show. In spite of the strongest competition ever known in Angus classes, they took second in the two-year-old classes and second in Angus Specials, as well as the Denver Show trophy silver cup as best load at the International that were bought at Denver in 1910. They were bred by R. R. Lucore, the famous Aberdeen-Angus breeder of Arriba, Colo. These cattle were the grand champion feeders of the 1910 Denver Show. They averaged 1,365 lbs at Chicago and were sold in the auction at $8.00, which, barring one load, was the top for two-year-old Angus cattle. They made the remarkable average gain of 700 lbs per head in 10½ months. They were on full feed only about seven months. Their ration consisted of corn and the famous champion molasses feed. P. R. Lowe, who is one of the most prominent cattle feeders in the corn belt, is president of the Champion Feed Co. of Tarkio, Mo. He tells us that the champion molasses feed is spread on the corn and can be fed on either ground, ear or shelled corn. He says that with the use of champion molasses feed cattle will put on fat evenly and remarkably fast with a reduced grain ration. He claims it is as cheap as 30c corn, and is being used by some of the most successful cattle feeders in the corn belt.

Proper Handling of "Baby Beeves."

"Producing 'baby beef' is all right for men of experience," remarks Professor W. A. Henry of the Wisconsin College of Agriculture, "but the novice should begin with a few calves, and a relatively small liability, for he will have many surprises. Calves grow rather than fatten when well fed—a fact which works against baby beef production. This form of cattle feeding calls for the best of feeds such as clover, alfalfa hay, corn, cotton-seed meal, linseed meal, etc.,—given with wisdom. Heifer calves mature more quickly and may be marketed earlier than steers. Spring calves may be ready by the following July, but will generally not be in suitable condition until about eighteen months old."

Top of Chicago Cattle Market.

F. J. Kallal of Jerseyville, Ill., who made such a good record at the recent International Show with his cattle, was on the Dec. 14 market at Chicago with 40 head of 1,037-lb yearling Herefords which Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at $7.35, the top of the trade. These cattle were of the S M S breeding.

TEXAS-BRED AND ILLINOIS-FED HEREFORD YEARLINGS MADE EXCELLENT SHOWING.

A scene on the farm of Frank J. Kallal, Jerseyville, Ill. The cattle which made such a good account of themselves at the 1910 International are seen in the feed lot at the background. These, as well as those in the foreground, are from the famous and popular S M S herd in Texas. Mr. Kallal fed and exhibited two loads of the cattle as yearlings in the recent show at Chicago. They took first in the Southwestern district, second in championship by ages and first and second in Hereford Specials. Both loads were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction. They sold one load of 1,094 lbs average at $8.30, being 35c per cwt higher than any other Hereford yearlings made. The other load averaged 1,018 lbs and went at $8.00, or 5c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for Hereford yearlings. The whole herd of calves cost delivered $20 per head. When put in the feed lot on Dec. 4 they averaged 340 lbs. Thus, it will be seen that the $8.30 load made an average gain of 754 lbs per head and the $8.00 lot 678 lbs. This clearly demonstrates what cattle of the right breeding and of the right feeding will do. This was the first time that Mr. Kallal ever exhibited cattle at the International, and he has reason for feeling delighted over the many prizes awarded his cattle. On Dec. 4 Mr. Kallal started feeding his cattle ground corn, cotton-seed meal, alfalfa hay and corn silage. The ration was increased as the cattle would consume it. During the early part of the feeding period a pound of meal was used and increased to two pounds during the latter part. The cattle took to corn silage in fine shape from the outset. Mr. Kallal says that when this feed is used cattle will not consume near as much grain or hay and still make most excellent flesh gains. He says the silo will soon pay for itself in handling cattle. As already seen by the photo, Mr. Kallal has two silos, a fine cattle barn, corn crib, granary, horse barn and hog sheds. His is one of the best improved and most modern farms in that part of the state. Mr. Kallal is a young man, but has made an enviable record in Illinois farming and feeding circles.

Herefords From Nebraska Prize Winners.

[illegible] H Butterfield of Wisner, Neb., fed and exhibited a load of high-grade Shorthorn cattle in the South Central district of the 1910 International. They took fourth prize and also second in Shorthorn Specials. They were bred by Frank Bresee of Gordon, Neb., and were sold in the auction by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.40, averaging 1,332 lbs. They had been on a full feed Since May 1. The ration consisted of snapped and shelled corn and Caddo cake on pasture until July 1. Then the corn was changed to shelled alone, and during the last sixty days a large feed of oats was added.

Nebraska Angus Breeders' Meeting.

A. Christian of York, Neb., president of the Nebraska Aberdeen-Angus Breeders Association, wishes to extend a cordial invitation to all Nebraskans interested in pure-bred Angus cattle to attend the fourth annual meeting to be held in January at Lincoln, Neb., during the week of the organized agriculture and live stock state meetings. He says that Nebraska is rapidly forging ahead in increase in number of Angus cattle. At the above meeting choice cows and steers will be brought in the ring and the many merits of the Angus and other breeds will be exp'ained.

Sheep Help Solve Labor Problem.

R. H. Town of Valencia, Kan., says that farmers nowadays have to figure on the labor problem along with other items of expense on the farm. About the middle of October he bought and put on feed about 600 wethers. Last week he had a part of a carload of them with some other stock at Kansas City just to test the market and see what they had done while on feed. When he bought them they weighed 66 lbs, and the lot he marketed last week averaged 95 lbs, showing a big gain in weight. Clay, Robinson & Co. handled his business. "In order to save expense in feeding these wethers," said Mr. Town, "I turned them into my corn field. While everything was green they did not seem to eat the corn. They preferred the green stuff, and the blades of corn. Then, when vegetation dried up, they started on the corn, and have been eating it ever since. You see we are now compelled to do without farm labor as much as possible. It is not because we want to do this, but it is simply a case of being compelled to do so. We cannot go out and hire a man to work on the farm any time we want a hand. Nor can they be hired by the year or any other way. So I tried turning my sheep right into the corn, and must say that it was a great surprise to me to find them doing so well. All I did was to go out once in a while and salt and count them. The fall was exceptionally favorable, of course, for feeding this way. It was dry all the time, and free from mud, so that none of the corn was wasted. But the western sheep certainly trim things up. If the weather becomes unfavorable for them to run in the corn I will put them into a feed lot and husk the grain."

FIRST PRIZE CATTLE IN SOUTHWEST DISTRICT OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

In the two-year-old class, Pinnell & Bennett, the well-known and successful feeders of Kansas, Ill., took first and second positions with their Herefords. They also got second in the two-year-old Hereford Specials. The first prize load of cattle averaged 1,584 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction at $8.00, which stood 55c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for two-year-old Herefords. The other load of cattle averaged 1,285 lbs and were also sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.75, being 30c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for two-year-old Herefords.

FIRST-PRIZE HEREFORD FEEDER CALVES OF SOUTHWESTERN DISTRICT OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

Fowler & Tod, the famous breeders of Hereford cattle and extensive feeders, with headquarters at Maple Hill, Kan., bred, raised and exhibited these calves. In addition to the above honors, they were first in Southwestern Hereford calf specials and third by ages. These calves had been purchased in Kansas by D. D. Casement of Painesville, Ohio, who will feed them. It will be recalled that at the 1909 International, Clay, Robinson & Co. sold the Fowler & Tod Hereford calves to G. M. Watson of Caledonia, Minn., at the record price of $50.50. They were fed and exhibited by Mr. Watson at the 1910 Northwestern Show at St. Paul, where they were the sweepstakes carload of fat cattle and were sold in the auction by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $8.00. This price was considered a very high one in view of the low and depressed condition of the fat cattle trade at that time.

PRIZE-WINNING HEREFORD FEEDING CATTLE AT 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

These cattle were bred, raised and exhibited by Victor Hanson, the prominent and popular Hereford breeder of Walden, Colo. They took second in the two-year-old class of the South Central district and were also second in the two-year-old Hereford Specials. They averaged 795 lbs and were sold in the auction to N. Allen by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $5.60, the top price for two-year-old Hereford feeders. These honors were not the only ones that have been carried off by Mr. Hanson's fine breed of cattle. At the International Show of two years ago he took first in the South Central district with his yearlings and second with his two year olds. At the Denver Show of two years ago his calves were in third and fourth places. Mr. Hanson has been building his herd up for 15 years and he now is credited with one of the best droves of cattle in the West. He uses the best of Hereford bulls and three-quarters grade Hereford cows.

THIRD PRIZE TWO-YEAR-OLD HEREFORDS IN SOUTHWESTERN DISTRICT OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

H. Williamson & Son, the progressive farmers and feeders of Beatrice, Neb., fed and showed these cattle. They bore the famous S M. S. brand. They averaged 1,300 lbs and Clay, Robinson & Co. sold them in the auction at $7.50, being 5c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for two-year-old Hereford steers.

J. Orton Finley of Oneida, Ill., Took Six Prizes with His Sheep and Lambs at 1910 International at South Omaha for Mr. Finley all of the western stock which he fed and showed at the recent International, and also the western ewes that were the mothers of the prize-winning native lambs The westerns won five out of the possible six prizes in range classes, and there were 22 entries. Mr. Finley's eight exhibits captured one-half of the ribbons in the carlot show, the other half being divided among 24 exhibitors.

CLAY, ROBINSON & CO. SOLD

all of Mr. Finley's show stock in the auction.

Prize Winning Yearlings.

There were 67 head of 134 lbs average in the lot and they were bought by the Hammond Packing Co. at $5.60. These yearlings were on feed 120 days and showed a gain of 50 lbs per head. Their first cost was $5.05 and were from the Kilpatrick Bros. flock near Picabo, Idaho, the ewes being Rambouillets and rams Oxfords. Mr. Finley first turned them out on a blue grass pasture, and then on rape and blue grass pasture together. On Aug. 1 they got their first feed on grain, which was shelled corn. This was gradually increased and on Aug. 15 a little oil meal was added. Aug. 20 they were given a full feed of grain, rape, clover and oil meal. Sept. 10 they were given some hay. Oct. 20 they were shut in the yards and fed a full ration of corn, oil meal, clover and timothy hay. Nov. 11 a little molasses alfalfa feed was added. The 60 head of second prize yearlings were fed in the same manner, costing and averaging the same as the first prize lot. They averaged 121 lbs and went to Sulzberger & Sons Co. at $5.50.

First Prize Wethers.

These wethers numbered 71 head and were fed in the same manner as the yearlings, but were on feed thirty days less and were kept in separate yards. They were two-year-olds and their initial cost was $4.50, averaging 124 lbs. They showed the phenomenal gain of 46 lbs in 90 days. They were from Cotswold bucks and open wool ewes. They were the heaviest sheep in the show. Mr. Finley said he never had sheep take on weight more quickly. They were bought by Armour & Co. at $6.00.

The 70 second prize wethers were fed in the same manner as the yearlings with the exception that they did not have molasses alfalfa feed and were kept in separate yards. They were two-year-olds and their initial cost was $3.50, averaging 104 lbs. They were bought by Swift & Co., averaging 155 lbs. They made the remarkable gain of 51 lbs per head while on feed. They were bred by the Patzold Sheep Co. of Glenrock, Wyo. The ewes were Rambouillets and the bucks Hampshires.

Second Prize Range Lambs.

At the time these 50 head of lambs were bought they averaged 74 lbs. When sold in the auction at $7.25 they averaged 104 lbs. They made a gain of 30 lbs per head in 90 days and had about the same feed as the yearlings and wethers with the exception that the roughness consisted of alfalfa beginning with Nov. 1. They had very strong competition in the show, twelve fine loads being entered. These lambs were bred by Milan Miller of Mountain Home, Idaho. The ewes were Rambouillets, and not a month less than eight years of age, and the bucks Shropshires.

Third Prize Native Lambs.

These lambs were from grade Rambouillet ewes of an old age and were raised by Mr. Finley. In spite of this fact and that there were ten loads competing, they took third place. Mr. Finley said that only by eternal vigilance were they gotten in such excellent condition. They were April lambs and were fed 120 days in the same manner as the other stock. There were 54 head of them and they sold in the auction at $6.50, averaging 105 lbs.

Raising and Maturing Calves.

A question that is looming up bigger each year in the corn belt is, "where are the feeder cattle to come from now that the southwestern and northwestern ranges are being contracted more and more and the raising of cattle correspondingly curtailed?"

This is a serious problem for the big as well as small feeder, since the cost of stocker and feeder cattle continues to rise as the supply decreases. The answer must come from the corn-belt farmer If he is to continue feeding cattle profitably, he will find it necessary to raise his own cattle to a great extent.

"But will it pay me to raise cattle on high-priced land? What age should I mature them for the market?" These are some of the pertinent questions many farmers may be asking themselves.

Anticipating these interrogatories, we have written some of the most successful cattle feeders in the country on the above questions, and their replies follow:

E. C. Hill, Dawson, Neb.—"It certainly pays to raise your own cattle on high-priced land year in and year out. The farmer feeder will have to come to it. The breaking up of the ranges is creating a scarcity of feeder cattle. Get good grade cows and a first-class bull, is my advice."

G. M. Watson, Caledonia, Minn.—"Providing good quality calves cannot be obtained under $25 per head, it will be profitable to raise calves on $150 per acre land and feed them out for yearling beef."

M. O. Sullivan, Waveland, Ind.—"Cattle breeders of the Northwest and Southwest are being forced out of business by the great influx of settlers Thus, the corn-belt feeder will have to raise his own cattle, if he is to stay in the business. In spite of high-costing land, if a good breed of cattle is secured at the beginning, it will be found profitable to raise calves and feed them out for 'baby beef.' Thomas Garland of Waveland, Ind. raised calves last year on $100 per acre land and fattened and sold them in July of this year at $7.10 and $7.40. They were steers and heifers, and made him a very good profit."

Wm. H. Brevoort, Vincennes, Ind.—"If calves should advance to $25 and $30 per head, we can afford to raise them. Land is now worth on an average $100 per acre. It is more profitable to fatten and sell calves at the yearling age. They can be raised profitably only by the use of the silo."

Philip Caddle, Rossville, Ill.—"Land is worth $150 per acre here. We cannot raise our feeding cattle at a profit only as a soil builder. The most profit is in feeding calves out for 'baby beef'."

Charles F. Curtiss, dean and director of the Iowa State College, Ames, Ia.—"The price of farm land in Central Iowa ranges from $100 to $150 per acre. Some of it is even higher. The question of obtaining feeding cattle at reasonable prices is one of vital importance to the farmers of the corn-growing states. It has been brought prominently to their attention during the past season by the prevailing high price of feeding stock. The reduced supply of feeding cattle from the former grazing districts of the range territory will doubtless make it more difficult to secure feeders in the future, and corn-belt farmers are considering the policy of raising their own feeders. It will be found very difficult, however, to keep a herd of cows for the calves on high-priced land under present conditions and make them return a profit. In producing feeding steers the annual value of the calf crop will not, under ordinary conditions, be sufficient to justify the expense of maintaining a herd for this purpose. The only means of making this operation profitable will be some method of securing some additional returns from the cow in the way of milk, either by milking the cow and disposing of the butter fat and raising the calf on separator milk or by securing good milking cows that will suckle two or possibly three calves during a season and thus increases the returns. This system is followed profitably in sections of Scotland where cows are kept under conditions similar to those that we are now approaching in the corn belt. The situation means that more attention must be given to the selection and the breeding of improved stock in order to return a profit under existing conditions. If the feeders are to be raised on the farms of the corn belt, it will undoubtedly be found profitable to market most of them in their yearling form or as short two year olds. Good breeding will also be a factor in determining the age of maturity. Under these conditions, it will be found profitable and even imperative that the milking qualities of our beef breeds be developed to a larger degree than has been the case in the past."

Great Record for Wyoming Herefords.

McCreary, Carey & Kellogg of South Omaha purchased a lot of the Meyers cattle from Knight, Wyo., about 100 head in all, and entered them in the 1910 International Show at Chicago. That the firm firm realized the kind of stock it took to win out at the Intertational against the finest herds in the country is demonstrated by the great record made by these Wyoming steers. They won: First and second carload lots, 2-year-olds, North Central division; first and second, yearlings, North Central division; first on steer calves, North Central division; first on carload lots, 2-year-olds, all districts; second on carload lots, 2-year-olds, all districts; first and second on carload lots, yearlings, all districts; first and second, carload lots, 2-year-olds, Hereford specials, all districts; first and second on yearlings, Hereford specials, all districts; first on calves, Hereford specials, all districts.

All told fifteen prizes were awarded to the exhibitors of these cattle. This is the biggest string of feeder's ribbons ever taken by any one exhibitor. In last week's issue was reproduced a photo of some of these cattle, handled by Clay, Robinson.

The Meyers Land and Cattle Co. cattle have long been famous. It is perhaps the oldest herd of Whitefaces in Wyoming, as well as the best. Mr. Meyers has been extremely careful in the selection of new bulls every year and has made it a practice to secure the best males from the Stanton Breeding Farm of Madison, Neb. Tom Mortimer says when Mr. Meyers finds a bull that he wants, he buys him. The price is a secondary matter.

Wyoming has many fine herds of Hereford cattle and for years has been a consistent buyer of the best bulls. The wisdom of this policy is apparent in the exceptionally high class of feeders produced in that state.

There is no Need for Worry.

Conflicting opinions in the hog trade are more prevalent this season than ever, but that fact need not and should not bother the hog raiser since all are practically agreed upon the proposition that hogs are going to be big money makers for two or three years at least. Recent war prices prevailing for hogs were due to the fact that supplies were decreasing in the face of an increasing demand for pork. From now on supplies of hogs will probably show some increase, but it will take two or three years for the production to catch up with the growing demand from a growing population.—Journal-Stockman.

Few Lambs Around Fort Collins.

Adam Michie, the well-known lamb feeder of Fort Collins, Colo., writes to the following effect: "We had a dry summer and a shortage of water to irrigate with. The only thing that did well out here this summer was grasshoppers. We had a big crop of them. There are very few lambs on feed here. Hay is very high, and there is not much of it.

"I am in receipt of check from you for $100 as payment of claim I had against the Milwaukee & St. Paul for shrinkage on a shipment of lambs. I appreciate what you have done for me. Don't you know, it is just like getting money from home in these hard times."

E. A. Cudahy Heads Packing Concern.

E. A. Cudahy was elected president and treasurer of the Cudahy Packing Co., to succeed his brother, the late Michael Cudahy. J. M. Cudahy, vice president, was also named as a director. A. F. Borcherdt was elected secretary to succeed himself.

It is understood that the general offices of the company and 300 employes will be moved to Chicago from South Omaha.

Shortage of Stock Water in Iowa.

D. Rininger & Sons, well-known breeders of Aberdeen-Angus cattle and proprietors of the Valley View Stock Farm, Schaller, Ia., write under date of Dec. 12: "In Northwest Iowa, on the line of the divide between the two river systems, and many others, there is a shortage of water at the feed lots. Thus, many feeders are forced to liquidate on that account. We have the best corn crop ever raised here, both in quantity and quality. There were ample and timely showers during the summer to make the best corn and second best oat crop on record. We alone had 13,000 bushels of corn, but had to sell our feeding cattle to our more fortunate neighbors who had stock water. There have been no rains to replenish wells since last March. Corn is bringing 30c per bushel and oats 27c."

Takes Gloomy View of Situation.

"The prospects for profit in feeding cattle this winter are the poorest for many years," says Wm. H. Brevoort, the well-known beef maker of Vincennes, Ind. "This is not because of the high price of feeders, but of the low price cattle bring when fat. The high price of feeders is not due to scarcity, but on account of the unprecedented demand. More cattle have been put on feed than at any time for ten years."

Southwest Cattle Lighter Than Usual.

"Cattle in Mexico are very thin," writes W. N. Pence of El Paso county, Tex., to our Kansas City house. "It is a hard year to handle them. Owing to the drought in Mexico and the Southwest, cattle are about 100 lbs per head lighter than usual. We are very well pleased with the way you sold our small bunches of cattle, and hope to be able to do more business through you in the future."

A Trial Convinced Mr. Martin.

Theo. Martin, proprietor of the Lawndale Farm and a prominent breeder of Shorthorn cattle, Poland-China hogs and Shropshire sheep, writes: "Your letter containing remittance for cow received. Thank you for your trouble, and I congratulate you upon the price you received. I did not expect more than $2.25 per cwt, so you can well imagine my surprise to discover your bill of sale reading $3.00 per cwt. Persons hearing and reading about Clay, Robinson & Co. naturally draw the conclusion that you aim to handle only large consignments, consisting mostly of tops; but this sale for me leads me to believe that you obtain tops on canners as well as show steers. I assure you of my business in the future."

Wants College Exhibits Kept Separate.

The Live Stock Report:

Yours of the 8th inst. to hand, and in response thereto, I herewith enclose you my annual "Brother Bill letter," as you are pleased to denominate them. Have already had several inquiries as to whether I was not going to send in one. I do not know just how the sentiments contained in this one may strike you, but they are "my sentiments," when it comes to permitting a whole state with its unlimited resources to enter into competition with the ordinary American agriculturist, the farmer who has taken the pains to raise, select and feed a load of fancy cattle for exhibition, he and his sons, those sturdy lads who think they have the best load of cattle in the whole country, that they have nursed and tended almost with a mother's care, and after they have waded snow and mud and slush, and fed and watered a load of such cattle, and taken them down to the International Show, to find themselves in open competition with five or six great State Colleges, with their prestige and cattle selected from the whole United States and Canada, perhaps, regardless of cost, and kept in the same way, with steam heated buildings, "scientific rations," etc., ad libitum. I say it "aint" fair, and it ought to be abolished. It will "kill" the International as a fat stock show unless the management provide a separate college class in which it may be college vs. college. Let the farmer boy have the assurance that when he sends his stock to the show it will only have to compete with some other farmer boy's stock, or the farmer boy will be "out of the running." They are not such imbeciles as to undertake to compete against whole states, and the show will lose the very purpose for which it was promulgated, towit: to encourage the American feeder and breeder in producing the VERY BEST stock on earth. They are doing it, but take away the stimulus of a fair show and honest count and they will lose all interest in the whole business. I am,

Yours for reform,
W. A. PAXSON.

Jamestown, Ohio, Dec. 9, '10.

Dear Brother Bill:
Again, I didn't get to go
Down to the Great International Show.
I had my grip packed, intended on goin'
But just about then it commenc'd a snowin',
The wind from the north blew colder and colder,
And, as you know, we're getin' older
Than when you and I were lusty boys
A feedin' cattle in Ellinois.

So I just concluded I wouldn't go,
But wait and read The Report, as you know
It's nearly as good as bein' there,
I can just sit here in my easy chair
And look at the pictures, study pedigrees
And not get chilled by that old "lake breeze,"
Besides I had seen the "Cream o' th' show"
Right where it was raised, here in Ohio.

That "Shamrock Calf" is a "cracker jack,"
Of course, he's a "muley" and also black;
But the "doddies" have come, and are goin' to stay
Till something better shall drive them away.
One thing I notice, from what I've read,
That is that our cattle are "college bred."
Of course, they may thus be over-rated
But "there's nothing like bein' educated."

I think it will some day "come to pass,"
That they'll have a regular "college class."
Show the "dudes" by themselves, not make the mistakes
Of "bucking" them 'gainst us "country jakes."
I don't think it's fair, and there's lots think it aint,
And I really hear a lot of complaint.
Education's all right; but I don't think it calls
For "buckin' the velvet 'gainst overalls."
A state's too big, with its big "mush pot"
To show 'gainst a "granger" in his own feed lot.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

I. L. Robinson, Colfax county, N. M., marketed cattle at Denver.

James Kaough, Allen county, Ind., writes: "Wethers arrived and I am well pleased."

J. C. Kunze, Cass county, Ia., writes: "Many thanks for the way you handled my shipment."

A. C. Hnidekoper, Crawford county, Pa., writes: "Cattle arrived in good shape and were most satisfactory."

Jesse L. Cross, Brown county, Ohio, writes: "I am well satisfied with the lambs. May want some more."

Our Denver house had the pleasure of handling a consignment of cattle for J. M. Hoge, Weld county, Colo.

J. H. Edwards, Washington county, Ill., writes: "I could not get along very well without your hog market letter."

Allen Foster, Jr., Fayette county, Ia., writes: "Received returns for load of hogs. All is satisfactory. Accept our thanks."

N. F. Anderson, Scott county, Mo., writes our East St. Louis house: "The cattle look fine and think they are just what I want."

Our Denver house had the pleasure of handling a consignment of cattle for Brown & Ptolemy, Montezuma county, Colo., at satisfactory prices.

Wood & Gardner, Weakley county, Tenn., had 220 fed-western ewes at East St. Louis on Dec. 8 and our house sold them at the top price of $3.65.

M. H. Kindig, Saint Joseph county, Ind., writes: "Yearling sheep you bought for me are a fine lot and I am well pleased. Thank you for your trouble."

Hulett Bros., well-known rangemen of Rio Blanco county, Colo., consigned a train of cattle to our firm at Denver, which we handled satisfactorily all around.

J. F. Mitchell, Holt county, Mo., topped the East St. Louis cattle market last week through our firm, who landed a load of yearlings of 1,039 lbs average for him at $6.35.

Homer Houch, Adams county, Ia., marketed 233 fed-western wethers of 118 lbs average at Chicago on Dec. 12 and we topped the trade by 10c per cwt with them at $4.35.

La Plata county, Colo., was represented on the Denver market with consignments of cattle from the following well-known parties: J. P. Lowell, Henry Wommer and George Sapp.

According to William Medsker and T. E. Medsker of Sullivan county, Ind., there is a big corn crop in that part of the state, but not as many hogs and cattle on feed as usual.

H. Glazbrook, manager of the Prairie Cattle Co., JJ Ranch, Otero county, Colo., after a season's shipping writes our St. Joseph house: "I have been well satisfied with your sales."

C. C. Judy, Menard county, Ill., had 250 fed-western lambs on the Chicago market Dec. 8. They averaged 87 lbs and our house sold them at $6.50, the top for westerns by 10c per cwt.

John Brown, Hendricks county, Ind., was the owner and we the sellers of the 113 fed-western yearling wethers of 90 lbs average which sold at the top price of $5.75 at Chicago on Dec. 12.

The 405 fed-western wethers which averaged 109 lbs and brought the top price of $4.00 at East St. Louis on Dec. 8 were marketed by A. J. Holt of Nodaway county, Mo., and handled by our house.

The limit for native lambs at Chicago on Dec. 12 was $6.50 and our sales at the price follow: For J. Hagen of Newton county, Ind., 111 head, 82 lbs, and for J. J. Edgerton of Keokuk county, Ia., 87 head, 75 lbs.

Carroll county, Mo., was represented on the East St. Louis sheep market Dec. 7 with two cars of 140-lb fed-western wethers which our house sold at the top price of $4.15. They were sent in by C. D. Dickinson.

J. Orton Finley, Knox county, Ill., writes: "Returns for sheep and account of cattle at hand. The cattle came through nicely. Clay, Robinson & Co. will continue to handle our consignments. We were pleased with the returns of the show."

The top for ewes at Chicago on Dec. 12 was $4.00. We obtained this price for 47 head of 158 lbs average, belonging to H. Westphal of Adair county, Ia., and for 97 head of 106 lbs average, marketed by C. B. Kirby of Cass county, Ia.

The following well-known Wyoming shippers marketed cattle through our Denver house: W. L. Conley, Lingle; Wyoming Ranching Co., Laramie county, Wyo.; Paul Pascoe, Albany county, Wyo.; R. S. Van Tassell, Laramie county, Wyo.

The top price for sheep at Chicago on Dec. 7 was $4.25, which we obtained for offerings belonging to the following parties: D. Conrad, Henry county, Ill., 181 wethers, 118 lbs, and Magee & Myers, Franklin county, Ind., 117 wethers, 114 lbs.

Our Denver house was favored recently with hog shipments from E. S. Wildy, Boxbutte county, Neb.; Jackson & Norris, Phillips county, Colo.; Riverside Farming Co., Weld county, Colo.; C. W. Bostrom, Deuel county, Neb., and Bruce G. Eaton, Weld county, Colo.

On Dec. 7 our South Omaha house handled a deck of heavy lambs for the Farmers' Mutual Association, Sioux county, Ia.; a deck for G. A. Lusby, Hamburg, Ia., and a deck for J. J. Lohnes, Cass county, Neb., selling all of them at $5.50, extreme top of the day's trade.

PHILIP CADLE AND WIFE, ROSSVILLE, ILL.

Mr. Cadle is one of Illinois' pioneer and successful farmers and feeders. He is a familiar figure on the Chicago market, where he has a host of friends. It was thirty-eight years ago that Mr. Cadle started shipping stock to market and J. M. Robinson & Co. handled his business. When this firm was succeeded by Clay, Robinson & Co., he has continued his patronage to them ever since. Mr. Cadle says that the corn crop in his part of the state is seven to ten bushels under last year and that the new crop is going at 36c per bushel.

Thomas Johnson of the firm of Johnson & Son, proprietors of the Oakland Stock Farm in Louisa county, Ia., and prominent breeders of Scotch Shorthorn cattle and Duroc Jersey swine, writes: "The two steers and seven hogs were handled in a manner entirely satisfactory to me."

Charles Merkel, Wayne county, Ohio, writes: "Lambs arrived in first-class condition and they are a fine bunch. Everybody who has seen them says they are the finest unloaded here this season. You may rest assured that when I am in need of stock you will hear from me."

Frank Kleinheinz of the University of Wisconsin writes: "I am in receipt of your letter enclosing check for $140 as our share of winnings in the college classes. Please accept our heartiest thanks for same. We will always have a good word to say to farmers and students for the noble firm of Clay, Robinson & Co."

Fred Landis, Carroll county, Ind., topped both the native lamb and ewe market at Chicago on Dec. 9 through our house. The lambs, numbering 126 and averaging 88 lbs, brought $6.65 and the ewes, 48 head of 134 lbs average, sold at $4.15. We also sold for R. O. Sigler, McLean county, Ill., 46 ewes, averaging 124 lbs, at $4.15.

Sayles & Weckel, Mesa county, Colo., marketed cattle at Denver recently, as did also the following well-known Colorado parties: Chalmers, Galloway & Wadley L. S. Co., Park county, Colo.; J. Phelps, Jefferson county, Colo.; N. E. Mosher, Lincoln county, Colo.; A. Norman, Eagle county, Colo., and F. H. Sparks, Archuleta county, Colo.

S. M. Rinkel represented Bureau county, Ill., on the Chicago sheep market Dec. 8 with a shipment of fed-western lambs and yearlings. They were bought by our South Omaha house and sold by us. This was the second year that Mr. Rinkel has bought and sold his sheep and lambs through our firm, and he states that the service rendered him was of the best.

W. J. Kennedy, professor and vice-director of the Iowa State College, Ames, Ia., writes: "Your favor of the 9th, containing check for $420, at hand. I wish to take this opportunity to again thank you for your many kind favors. You have certainly done a great deal toward developing agricultural education. Your special premiums have stimulated the colleges greatly along live stock lines."

J. E. Hall, Pettis county, Mo., marketed 133 lambs at East St. Louis on Dec. 8 that averaged 82 lbs and were sold by our house at $6.35, the top by 20c per cwt. These lambs were fed in connection with the Missouri Experimental Station. The next best price for lambs that day was $6.15, also obtained by our house for 103 head of 70 lbs average, belonging to E. T. Rickard of the above county.

"We have had a fine time for corn husking," writes Edward Grimsley, Wayne county, Ia. "Practically all of the corn is out of the field. However, the yield is not up to expectations. Fields estimated at 50 bushels per acre hardly made 40 bushels, while the estimated 40-bushel fields panned out 30 to 35 bushels. However, quality is extra good. The price is 35c a bushel. A good many cattle and hogs are on feed."

It was Dec. 6 that Chas. Anspach, Buffalo county, Neb., had two decks of yearlings and wethers on the South Omaha market. The yearlings brought $4.65 and the wethers $4.00. The sales were made by our house and were at the top of the trade and the only lots to bring the price. On the following day the yearlings from the same feed lot went at $4.90 and the wethers at $4.00, also top that day.

The Sanilac Stock Farm, Sanilac county, Mich., write: "We have received several sample copies of your paper and, finding much matter of interest therein, wish to take advantage of your offer to send the Report and the Breeder's Gazette for $1.50, and enclose herewith our check for that amount. The reports given in your paper regarding present and prospective conditions in the live stock market we feel are worthy of commendation."

G. W. Leisure, Tipton county, Ind., was on the Chicago market this week buying feeding cattle through our house. He reported fewer cattle on feed in his section than for many years. The Leisures are well known in Indiana farming and feeding circles. The father and four sons are extensive land owners and annually feed around 200 cattle, 1,000 hogs and farm 2,500 acres of land that is worth from $150@175 an acre. At the close of the civil war Mr. Leisure started with only $300 in cash.

W. C. Swarts represented Mills county, Ia., on the cattle market at Chicago on Dec. 13 with 40 head of yearling Shorthorn and Hereford heifers—including 6 heifers—which averaged 1,088 lbs and were sold by us at $7.25. Mr. Swarts said that in spite of the low market, his cattle made him money. Most of them were of his own breeding. Last March they were put on a feed of shelled and ear corn once a day and given the run of a big timothy and blue grass pasture. They gained over 600 lbs per head while on the above feed.

We are pleased to mention the following prominent feeders or shippers who favored our East St. Louis house with shipments of hogs: J. E. Yowell, Macoupin county, Ill.; V. Keith, Shelby county, Mo.; J. B. Spiva & Co., Stoddard county, Mo.; G. W. Young, Adair county, Mo.; R. J. McWard, Christian county, Ill.; Presly Robinson, Linn county, Mo.; H. P. George, Caldwell county, Mo.; W. E. Green, Linn county, Mo.; R. H. Garrett, Henry county, Mo.; J. J. Smith, Linn county, Mo.; Snyder & Sellers, Lewis county, Mo.; R. W. Belt, Carroll county, Mo.; J. W. King, Shelby county, Mo.; Nunn & Waterman, Lewis county, Mo.; S. P. Priestly, Henry county, Mo.; Ditch & Woodward, Warren county, Ill.; J. E. Lindsey, Lewis county, Mo.; Minnis & Goodson, Carroll county, Mo.; Warren Beebe, Greene county, Ill.; Sims & Smith, Cooper county, Mo.; Irvine Bros. & Duncan, Pike county, Mo.; Lon Smith, Adair county, Mo.; G. R. Mitchell, Gibson county, Tenn.; J. C. Hindale, Gallatin county, Ill.; J. M. Mayfield, Cooper county, Mo.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS

Range of prices and bulk of sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

	Range.		Bulk.
This week.....	$4.25@7.55		$5.00@6.35
Previous week.....	4.40	7.35	5.20	6.50
Year ago.....	3.85	8.65	5.10	6.75
2 years ago.....	4.00	7.90	5.00	7.00
3 years ago.....	3.25	6.15	4.60	5.70

At the close of last week choice to prime yearlings sold steady with the previous week's finish and other kinds showed 10@25c loss. The big weight beeves, which met poorest favor, sold to least advantage. The week's run at 79,231 compared with 72,659 the previous week. Under this enormous total, the price depression was not unlooked for. Top for the week was $7.35, paid for fancy yearlings, and prime 1,419 lbs average reached $7.00. Prime heavy beeves that had to go at $6.50@6.85 during the week were of the same grade that made $8.00@8.35 not many weeks ago. In marked contrast to this wide decline for long-fed offerings were sales of warmed-up light steers around $5.00 that were similar to those at $6.00 about six weeks ago. The bulk of the week's business was at $5.20@6.50.

This week started out with a run of 35,893. The supply was far above trade requirements. The market was naturally a dull one and prices showed 10@25c loss from last Friday, the heavier weights continuing to display most loss. The proportion of the plain and medium fleshed offerings was the largest of the season. Trains continued to arrive slowly, 500 cars being back at the noon hour. Thousands of offerings arrived too late to find outlet. Twenty-one fancy 1,126-lb yearlings went up to $7.35 and 19 prime 1,444 lbs average had to go at $6.85.

The Tuesday run was 10,828. Prices were steady to 10c lower, yearlings meeting with best favor. Twenty-six fancy 1,155-lb yearlings, Herefords, Shorthorns and Angus, arrived from Nebraska and sold up to $7.55. They were the finest seen here in months and went for the Christmas trade.

Receipts Wednesday were more in keeping with trade requirements. Supply was 23,000. Buyers displayed more interest than for many days. The result was a more active trade, yet prices were merely steady to strong. The top was $7.35, obtained by us for 40 head of 1,037-lb S M S yearlings from the feed lot of F. J. Kallal of Jerseyville, Ill. Prime heavy cattle had to go at $6.70.

The cow and heifer market last week was given a severe drubbing, prices at the close showing 25@35c decline from the finish of the previous week. The better grades were hit hardest. These came in competition with the warmed-up steers, which for some time have been relatively cheaper than good cows. The liberal supplies and a further break in the beef steer market were other bearing-down tactics. A load of fancy heifers reached $6.75 for the Christmas trade. Prices for bulls were not much changed from the close of the previous week, and the same was true of the calf market.

There was a decline of mostly 10@15c for cows and heifers at the start of this week. The supply was the largest of the season. As compared with the corresponding day of last week, the loss was 30@50c. Medium grades were in heavy proportion and got the hardest price jolt. Bulls declined 10@15c. The supply was liberal. Buyers were indifferent bidders for all except weighty bolognas. There was no quotable change in the market for calves.

On Tuesday it was generally a steady deal for cows and heifers. Exceptions were 10c lower. The supply was heavy for Tuesday. Prices were the lowest in many months. There was a further drop of 10c for bulls. Calves advanced 25@50c over low time last week.

The Wednesday trade in cows and heifers was brisk at 10c higher prices. It was a steady deal in both bulls and calves.

On the closing trade of last week stockers and feeders were generally 10@15c lower than the previous week's finish. The week's run was quite liberal, but all offerings found outlet, the pens at the close being well cleared.

There was a big run of stockers and feeders at the start of this week. The demand was considerably reduced and prices were generally 10@15c lower. There was fair life to the Tuesday trade. While the better grades held steady, the less desirable offerings showed 10@15c loss.

There was a good demand on Wednesday and prices were on a firm basis. The supply was greatly reduced and was bought up in good season.

A wild and excited market was had on the closing day of last week. Starting out 10@15c higher, it was not long before prices were generally 30c higher than the previous day's average. The 8c hog was ushered in, and to make it good $8.05 was realized. This price was top for the week and compared with $7.50 the previous week. The week's average price at $7.32 was 33c higher than the previous week, yet 91c lower than the corresponding week of last year. Receipts for the week totaled 146,862, the second largest week's run since last February. The average weight was 225 lbs, the lightest in over eight months and only nine lbs heavier than the corresponding week of last year

Supplies at the start of this week were 35,934. There was a false start at 5@10c advance. This kind of a trade was very limited. The big packers did not commence operations until after one o'clock. Then prices showed 10@20c loss from the opening. A top of $8.10 was made at the start, the highest in over a month. Bulk of trading was at $7.85@8.05, taking in the late and early business.

The Tuesday market was semi-demoralized. Fresh arrivals were 39,542 and holdovers from the previous night 14,632, the largest lay-over since Dec. 21, 1909, and, barring that day, the largest since July 28 of that year. The market was practically not open until after 10 o'clock, and prices showed a loss of 40@50c from the high spot of Monday. The decline was 30c compared with the average of that day. Packers had everything their own way throughout the day's session.

There were over 52,000 hogs on sale Wednesday. Fresh arrivals were 35,100 and holdovers 16,707. This was the heaviest lay-over of the year. Opening 10c lower, the market gathered strength later on and closed with all of the break repaired. Top $7.65, obtained by us for one lot, and bulk sales $7.40@7.55.

Sheep and Lambs.

Following shows top prices and bulk of sheep and lamb sales this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

	Sheep			Lambs
	Top	Bulk		Top	Bulk
This week	$4.40	$3.50@4.10		$6.60	$5.50@6.35
Previous week	4.50	3.50	4.25	6.80	5.75	6.35
Year ago	5.75	4.50	5.25	8.65	7.25	8.00

3 years ago	4.50	3.25	4.40	6.35	5.00	6.00

For the first time in a long while, receipts of sheep and lambs last week fell under trade requirements. The run was 100,289, compared with 118,293 corresponding week of last year. Up until Friday noon, when the double bursted, buyers showed a hunger for supplies. During best time Friday lambs and yearlings sold 35@50c higher than the close of the previous week and sheep 15@25c. Fancy lambs went up to $6.80, yearlings $6.00 and sheep $4.50. The few offerings that arrived Saturday had to go 25@50c lower than best high time the previous day.

This week started out with receipts at 44,233. Buyers proceeded to pound the price range viciously from the outset. This was reflected in a decline of 25@50c for lambs and yearlings from the high spot on Friday, and sheep sold weak to 10c lower. Prime fed-western lambs reached $6.60 early. WE TOPPED the other departments of the trade by landing native lambs at $6.60, fed-western yearlings at $5.75, fed-western wethers at $4.35, or 10c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained, and ewes at $4.00.

Marketing Tuesday was 30,787. There was another price loss of 15@25c for yearlings and sheep lost 10@15c. It was simply a case of burdensome receipts. Buyers made the best of the situation. All of last week's advance melted away, and then some. Prime fed-western lambs reached $6.50, and on the late market $6.25 was about the limit, while fancy heavy had to go at $5.75. There was no safe outlet for best handy yearlings higher than $5.35. The limit for wethers was $4.25, and they had to be prime and of handy weight, while choice ewes were secured at $3.85.

Supply Wednesday 33,000. Sheep and yearlings were generally 25c lower, or at the low point of the season. Lambs held steady. On the late market it took prime ewes to reach $3.65 and a similar class of wethers to make $3.85. The limit for fancy handy weight yearlings was $5.00 and prime heavy had to go at $4.50. An early top of $6.35 was made for fancy light lambs, but there was no safe outlet above $6.25 later on. Choice to prime heavy lambs sold at $5.00@5.50, according to weight.

Young and Old Sows.

The Wisconsin station has made interesting tests to prove relative sizes and weights in litters from young and old sows with astonishing results. In these tests sows weighing an average of 482 lbs at farrowing time produced an average of 9.2 pigs per litter, with a weight per litter of 27 lbs. From sows weighing 307 lbs the average number in the litter was 6.7 pigs, and the weight of the litter was 16 lbs. Where the average weight per sow was 238 lbs the average number in a litter was 5.5 pigs and the average weight of a litter 14 lbs. Sows between the ages of four and five years averaged nine pigs to a litter and a weight per litter of 26 lbs; sows between two and three years old had an average litter of 7.5 pigs, and a litter averaged 19.7 lbs in weight, and sows a year old produced litters of 7.8 pigs with an average weight of 14.2 lbs per litter.

Our Factory Price and Book Prove This the Biggest 1911 Value in a Harrow

HERE'S the one harrow bargain of the year—the first and only genuine tongueless Disc—at a price that you can't resist. You can't get higher quality or bigger value no matter what you pay. We'll let you have this Detroit-American on the only Real 30 day free trial offer—no money in advance, no deposit and we pay the freight. Then if you decide to keep the harrow, send money or pay on time—and our unlimited time guarantee protects you forever. Don't use an old fashioned tongue disc with its whipping and pounding of horses and neck-weight which injures the team just when you need it most. A tongueless disc solves the problem, saves the horses, saves time and work, lets you work closer to fences because no pole to catch.
Get our book and freight paid price first. Note that the

Detroit-American The Only Genuine Tongueless Disc

is all steel, which means no breakage, no repairs or costly delays in busy season. Light in draft—strong as a harrow can be made. Entire frame and front trucks are steel. Wide tired steel wheels do not cut into soil. Arched axle gives good clearance. Trucks are attached to frame by flexible pivot so wheels pass over uneven places without disturbing the perfect balance of frame. Steel discs cut to uniform depth. Disc sections do not strike together in center. All end thrust taken up by Hard Maple Ring Bearings. Pipe oilers. Steel Separators between blades, Long blade scrapers. These and many other Detroit-American advantages are shown in our big book. Choice of 16 sizes, cutting from 4 feet to 10 feet in width. Regular round disc blades 16, 18 and 20 inches. Cutaway discs furnished if desired. Get your harrow at a price that makes it the biggest bargain ever offered. Send coupon now. Get the guide to the right harrow at the right price. Also see new Detroit-American Manure Spreaders and Cultivators. All in the Big Book. Write now. Address

Feeding Horses for Market.

Feeding horses as a commercial enterprise for market has become a great industry. Nearly all the agricultural experiment stations have conducted feeding operations and issued bulletins on the best compound rations for finishing thin horses for sale. In nearly every horse-breeding community either professional feeders or the general farmer who has a few surplus horses conducts special feeding operations as a financial enterprise. The feeding of horses in Ohio and Pennsylvania for eastern markets is widely practiced. Farmers, by special care and attention, are able to work the horses and perform all the farm operations during the process of finishing for market. They do not put the horses in the field and perform a full day's work with them, but, having an excess of horses on feed more than necessary for farm use, they are able to do their work by changing the horses frequently, so that the animals get but little additional exercise more than is essential to robust health. Semi-work horses, fattened, are free from disease, the flesh is more evenly distributed in muscular development and the animals when finished are in prime condition to perform heavy work.

RANCH STALLIONS

Quarter Horses make ideal stallions for the range and breed the best cow horses, ranch buggy teams, rough country horses or polo ponies. Have made a specialty of these horses for twelve years. Will have a number of stallions for sale in Fort Worth during the meeting of the National Live Stock Association Convention in January, at Fort Worth Horse & Mule Co. directly opposite Exchange Building. All my stallions strictly pasture raised.

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef.

The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

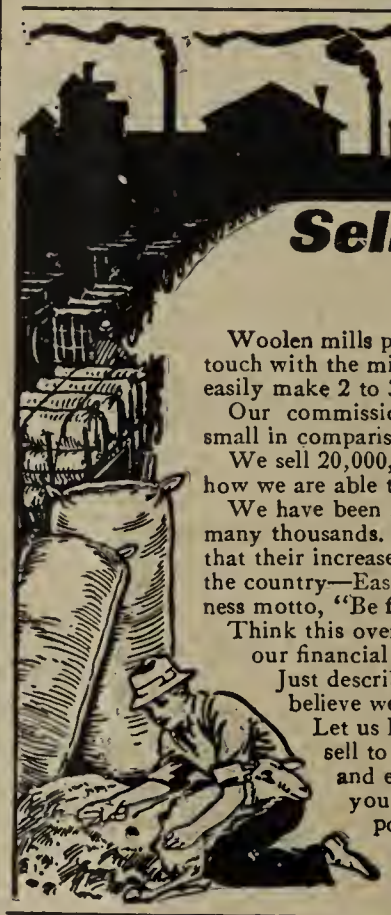
Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!



Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

We furnish sacks free to customers.

I H C Spreaders Are Equally Good All Over

A MANURE SPREADER is like a chain—as strong as its weakest part. Don't let one or two "exclusive features" influence you—don't be influenced by frills or fancies. Be sure that the spreader you buy is substantially built all over—without a weakness anywhere.

If you want to be sure of such a spreader—see that the I H C trade-mark is on the one you buy; then you will know that the material, the principle, and the construction are right. This trade-mark is backed by a company that can not afford to risk its reputation by offering inferior or inefficient machines.

I H C manure spreaders are of proved value—proved money-makers. Thousands of users testify to I H C superiority. Investigation brings to light the noticeable absence of troublesome gear wheels, the few levers, the perfect working apron, the wide range of feed, the light draft and the other advantages which have made I H C spreaders the choice of all who investigate thoroughly.

You will also note that there is an I H C spreader of a style and size to meet your particular requirements. Corn King and Kemp 20th Century Spreaders are of the return apron type — and Cloverleaf Spreaders have endless aprons. Each style is made in sizes, from 30 to 70 bushels capacity. Lime hoods for spreading lime, etc.—and drilling attachments for distributing manure in rows, are furnished on special order.

Let the I H C local dealer tell you all about I H C spreaders. Let him tell you why it is best for you to invest in an I H C for greatest returns. Get catalogues from him, or, write direct.

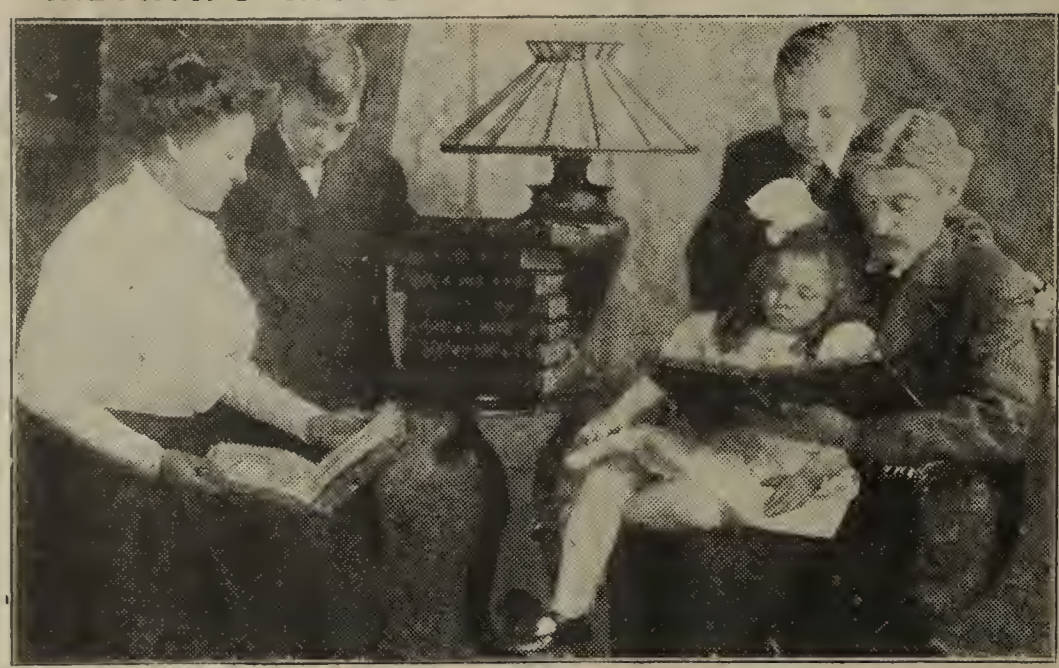
RIDPATH'S HISTORY—A HOUSEHOLD TREASURE

Pres. William McKinley said: "I am familiar with the merits of Ridpath's History of the World, and cordially commend it to the scholar as well as to the plain people generally."

Prof. Long, Supt. Public Schools, St. Louis, said: "I unhesitatingly commend Dr. Ridpath's History of the World as the ablest work on that subject which I have ever examined. The engravings, maps, and charts are alone worth the entire cost of the set."

Pres. Benjamin Harrison said: "The author's labors are deserving of the highest praise. The printing and binding are first class and the illustrations are numerous and of a high order. I most heartily recommend this great work for study and convenient reference."

Dr. Bartlett, Pres. Dartmouth College, said: "It is a popular history of wide range, and brought down from the most ancient to the most modern times. The style is clear, the narrative well balanced, and the statements reliable. The worth of such a work to every young man or woman, or in a family of children, is beyond calculation."



Jefferson Davis said: "I esteem Ridpath's History of the World of a very great value, and hope it will find a place generally in the libraries of our schools, as well as upon the shelves of readers in every walk of life."

The Christian Herald said: "No other work of its kind has ever supplied a history so well suited to the needs of all classes and conditions of men. We cheerfully recommend this most popular and complete of all world historics to our readers."

Gen. Lew Wallace, author of Ben Hur, said: "I have not words to sufficiently recommend Prof. Ridpath's History of the World. The author has done his work in the most thorough and interesting manner. No library is complete without it."

Prof. Warren, Pres. Boston University, said: "I should be glad to see it placed in the library of every young person in the United States, and even in the English-speaking world. In families where there are bright children it will render excellent service to the cause of popular intelligence."

200,000 AMERICANS

Have purchased this great history in the past twenty years at double our special price and every purchaser is a staunch friend. This means that practically as many Americans have bought Ridpath as have bought the great Encyclopedia Britannica and the Century Dictionary combined. Can you imagine any greater testimonial for any book? Dr. Ridpath's Immortal Work commands the admiration of the English-speaking world. It is endorsed by the scholarship of the world, and by the great American people, as the only history of the world worth having. Ridpath was a strong advocate of the rights and liberties of the common people. Dr. Ridpath is dead, but his work lives. He devoted his entire life to writing the History of the World. It is absolutely accurate and impartial, and commands the admiration of the English-speaking world.

9 massive Royal octavo volumes.

4,000 double column pages.
2,000 superb illustrations.

RIDPATH'S enviable position as an historian is due to his wonderfully beautiful style, a style no other historian has ever equalled. He pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman Senate; to march against Saladin and his dark-skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake; to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan; to watch that thin line of Greek spearmen work havoc with the Persian hordes on the field of Marathon; to know Napoleon as you know Roosevelt.

RIDPATH in your home means you need never spend a lonely evening. You can associate with the world's heroes; you can cross the Rubicon with Caesar, after which Rome was free no more. You can sit at the feet of Socrates, the loftiest genius of the ancient world. You can kneel at the shrine of Lincoln, "the greatest character of all time; the gentlest memory of our world." It is ennobling to commune with these children of destiny. To be associated with great men is to be great one's self, and you will add to your store of knowledge which is power, and to the richness of your life.

FATHERS qualify your boys and girls for the great battle of life. It is admitted the best foundation of an education is to acquire the habit of reading good books. Next to the Bible Ridpath's History of the World is the most valuable work you can place in your home. It will acquaint your children with the great facts of history and give them the habit of reading that which is true and ennobling instead of dime novels and trashy literature. Ridpath covers every race, every nation, every time, and holds you spellbound by his wonderful eloquence. Nothing more interesting, absorbing and inspiring was ever written by man. The day must come in the course of events when the chair of your boy or girl will be empty by your fireside and they will be out struggling alone in the world. Equip them now for the struggle by placing Ridpath's History of the World in your home. It will repay you a thousandfold.

MOTHERS, you know, as all the world knows, that the success in life of your boys and girls is heaven to you. There is little else in the world worth living for. "Give your boys and girls a chance." Give them an education which will fit them for the stern realities of life. Teach them to love home by making the home so attractive that it is worth loving. Place in your home good, interesting, truthful books for your children. In this day and age of fierce competition it is little short of a misfortune for any boy or girl to grow up without the equipment of a good education, and especially a knowledge of history. In the words of Lincoln, "Give your boys and girls a chance." Send Coupon Today for Free sample pages of the greatest history of the world ever written.

Clay, Robinson & Company's LIVE STOCK REPORT

Vol. 20 | Chicago, Friday, December 23, 1910 | No. 51

TOM CROSS JOINS CLAY, ROBINSON & CO.

AS CATTLE SALESMAN AT CHICAGO

The recent announcement that Thos. H. Cross, for the past seven years head cattle buyer for the National Packing Co., would sever his connection with that company at the first of the year and go into the commission business with Clay, Robinson & Co., has created a great deal of discussion about the Stock Yards and in live stock centers throughout the country.

It occasioned great surprise at first that Mr. Cross should willingly resign one of the most influential and best paid positions in the Stock Yards. But Clay, Robinson & Co., the largest live stock commission firm in the world, recognizing his ability, offered such inducements that he felt bound to accept.

Tom Cross is known in every cattle market in the country, and all who know him are his friends. Every one learning of the anticipated change seemed surprised, but predicted a brilliant future for him in the commission business, for Tom has never made a failure.

Mr. Cross was born to be a stockman, as his father, Donald Cross, now dead about two years, was one of the pioneer stockmen of Detroit, where Tom was born. His earliest remembrances are of trips in the country with his father buying stock and disposing of it in Detroit.

He was not very old before he was buying and selling live stock on a small scale on his own hook. He made money and soon embarked in the wholesale butcher business. Here he was successful, and after a number of years, along with other Detroit men, organized the Michigan Beef and Provision Co. They prospered. Two years later he, with Michael Caplis, withdrew from the Michigan Beef and Provision Co. and organized the firm of Caplis & Cross. When this firm was dissolved five years later, it had the most prosperous wholesale butcher business in Detroit.

During the five years he made weekly trips to Chicago, St. Louis and Kansas City for the firm's supply of cattle and other live stock, and soon attracted the attention of the packers. When the firm of Caplis & Cross was dissolved about fourteen years ago, Mr. Cross was induced to come to Chicago for the G. H. Hammond Co. He continued with them when that company was taken into the National Packing Co., and seven years ago was promoted to the position of head cattle buyer for the entire company.

A list of the companies comprising the National Packing Co. include: The United Dressed Beef Co., New York; Sturtevant & Haley, Boston; the G. H. Hammond Co., Chicago; the Anglo-American Provision Co., Chicago; the Fowler Packing Co., Kansas City; the Ruddy Packing Co., Kansas City; the Omaha Packing Co., South Omaha; the Hammond Packing Co., South St. Joseph; the St. Louis Dressed Beef Co., East St. Louis; the Colorado Packing Co., Denver; the Western Packing Co., Denver; the Plankinton Packing Co., Milwaukee.

These combined companies have a capacity for handling 5,000 cattle a day, and the orders for all the buyers in every market are sent from Mr. Cross's office daily. In addition to keeping in touch with his buyers in all the different markets, Mr. Cross has always bought a large share of the cattle purchased in Chicago. He has personally bought as high as 125 loads of cattle in a single day in the Chicago Yards.

It is safe to say that there are very few men of Mr. Cross's age in the live stock business who have had the thorough training in all branches of the business that he has had, and none who have more successfully handled the big propositions put up to them.

Perhaps the greatest element in Tom Cross's success is his level, sound judgment of live stock and its market value. He is one of the shrewdest observers of market conditions and indications, and as clever a trader as rides a horse. During his term of head buyer for the National Packing Co. he displayed remarkable ability to pick good men and handle them afterwards.

He has earned the confidence and respect of every man he has ever done business with, and leaves his former associates with the good will of every man connected with the company. Wherever Tom Cross has ever been, and with every one he has done business, "Tom Cross's word goes."

His unfailing courtesy to all, and his sunny, genial good nature, and his willingness at all times to do a good turn, have made him one of the most popular men in the business throughout the live stock markets.

Since the first surprise at the news of Mr. Cross's change has worn away, it is the opinion of all that his ability, experience, wide acquaintance and reputation combine to make him an ideal man for the position he will take, and Clay, Robinson & Co. have been in daily receipt of congratulations by mail and wire over getting such a man as Tom Cross to handle the cattle end of their immense business. Some of the heartiest and most sincere of these congratulations are from competitors in the commission business.

In coming with Clay, Robinson & Co., Mr. Cross will, with Mr. Charles O. Robinson and a strong staff of salesmen, give his entire attention to serving the interests of our cattle consignors.

Diamond Ring Presentation.

Mr. Cross's business associates in the National Packing Company and affiliated concerns this week evidenced their esteem by presenting him with a ring set with three magnificent diamonds, accompanied by the following letter, which speaks for itself:

Chicago, Dec. 20, 1910.

Mr. Thomas H. Cross,
Chicago, Ill.

Dear Sir:

Your friends and associates of the National Packing Company, desiring to express their feelings at this time and, in a measure, to show the high esteem in which you have been held by them, have decided to present you with this ring, which they hope will always serve to remind you of the pleasant relations that have existed between you and them, and that you carry with it their sincere good wishes.

Extracts From Letters Received By Committee From Those Participating in Your Gift.

"It gives me great pleasure to assist in this presentation—more so, in fact, than any similar money I ever contributed in my life."

"I am very sorry to learn that Mr. Cross is going to sever his connection with the company."

"I take great pleasure in doing this, for if there ever was a good fellow it is Tom Cross. Certainly wish him every success in his new position."

"I am mighty glad to be included, and if you need any more will only be too glad to give it."

"It is with pleasure I send this. Wish it was to keep Tom with us in place of having him sever his connections."

"I am pleased that I was one of the number allowed to contribute. We are all very sorry down here to learn that Tom is leaving us, and now that he has decided to go, wish him all kinds of success."

"Want to thank you for including me in the list. I, like others, regret extremely that Mr. Cross will sever his connections with the National on January 1st."

"I am very glad to join your committee in showing a mighty good fellow our appreciation."

"I have never contributed to the purchase of a present for any person as freely and with as much feeling as I do in this case."

"It was certainly with much regret that I learned of Mr. Cross's intention to leave the National on January 1st. My relations with Mr. Cross both in a business and a personal way have been one of the pleasant experiences of the past five years of connection with the National, and I certainly wish him great success in his new field of work and trust that we will have an opportunity to see him often."

"We are more than pleased to be considered and called friends of Mr. Cross and we wish him every success in his new undertaking."

"I have never given money more cheerfully. If more is needed, please advise me."

"I appreciate very much your writing me and calling the matter to my attention and I assure you it is with great pleasure I send this."

"Although I had been informed in advance of your letter that Tom Cross was to sever his connections with the company, I must confess I am deeply affected and I feel that we have lost one great fellow both in a social and business way, and I wish you would extend him my very best wishes in any undertaking he may pursue."

"I am glad to have the opportunity of giving."

"I am very glad to make this contribution."

"I was very pleased to be one of the many friends of Mr. Cross who was asked to contribute."

"We are very sorry to hear that Mr. Cross is leaving, but at the same time we do not wish him ill of his new venture."

"I am very glad to contribute, as I always had a high esteem for Mr. Cross. I am very sorry to note that he is going to sever his connection with the company."

"I am very glad indeed that you figured me in on this. I wish him all the luck in the world in his new venture, as he is entitled to all that is coming."

"Thank your committee for including me on the list."

Plans to End City Tide.

Rudolph Spreckels, leader in the San Francisco antigraft crusade, in addition to brilliant ideas for civic reform, has a plan for stemming the tide of the wave of population flowing toward the American cities with such alarming rapidity. The coast sugar magnate's scheme for the building up of United States farming communities was given during his recent visit to Chicago, while he was at the stock yards for a tour of inspection.

"The trouble with the back-to-the-farm propaganda today," said Mr. Spreckels, "is that while it distributes a lot of free advice to the residents of congested sections in our cities, it offers comparatively little aid of a substantial sort. I think that it is not because city dwellers prefer the cities to the country that they remain in a state of industrial dependence, but because they have not the capital required to buy a farm and the stock and implements necessary to make it a paying venture.

Thinks Fund Should Be Formed.

"I believe the capitalists of the United States should form a fund so that they could buy tillable land and then resell it to prospective emigrants from the cities at actual cost, with provision for easy terms of payment. These payments could be so arranged as to extend over a period of fifty, or even seventy years, so that there would be little question that the purchaser or his family would eventually own the land.

"As it is, many hesitate to leave their urban homes because farming is a great deal of risk. They would be compelled to place heavy mortgages on their land, payable in a few years. Under this plan a series of unfortunate seasons would be fatal to the farmer, who would be unable to meet the demands of the incumbrance on his land and would thereby forfeit his holdings, together with the money he had expended in getting started.

Calls It Mistaken Plea.

"The plea to the man of the city to emigrate to the frontier to hew out a home for himself where land is cheap is mistaken. Pioneer life necessarily entails many hardships, which the city dweller and his wife cannot endure because they are not inured to them. To a man who has been reared on a farm it is difficult enough to transform a stubborn prairie or a heavily wooded land into tillable land, but for the inexperienced farmer, recruited from the congested cities, it is almost impossible. After a few years he will get discouraged and return to his old home and work.

"No, I think some plan should be devised whereby a man who contemplated going to a farm would not have the dreary prospect of sacrificing all of the comforts of city life to which he has been accustomed. He must have neighbors. The telephone and the rural free delivery would do much to remind him that, after all, he was not so far removed from the supposed civilization which he had deserted. Let the breaking of the prairie and the felling of the big forests alone for stronger hands.

Where Difficulty Lies.

"Here is the difficulty, however. To embark on a farming venture in a district which is already cultivated and settled to some extent requires a big outlay of capital, whereas in pioneer regions land can be obtained, either free or for a nominal sum. And this is where the capitalists should extend a helping hand.

"In many parts of Europe the plan of long payments for land is in operation and is proving a great success. When the settlers are assured that in case of crop reverses they are not in danger of losing their homes, and that if they fail to pay for their homes, even in a lifetime, their sons can continue the payments, they do not hesitate to leave the bench of the wage earner for the plow and the reaper. I understand, too, that this plan has been undertaken in various parts of the United States on a small scale and that efforts along this line have been the source of great satisfaction to those who have supported them.

Sees Move as Great Problem.

"It is a great problem, this back-to-the-land movement. It will be the great problem of the future, as it is the problem of the present. Our cities are certain to increase in population immensely for many years to come. As the number of mouths to feed grows, the number of actual producers on the land must increase or development must cease.

"Capital has brought about the present state of our economic growth, which is responsible for great centers of population. Capital owes it to itself and to the working class to see that the ratio of our land population to that of the cities does not sink to a perilous figure."

Good Chance for the South.

A great opportunity awaits the southern tier of states in raising cattle, hogs and sheep and feeding them out for the market. The South produced one-third of the record crop of corn this year. And there is no reason why the acreage and yield could not be increased. Less cotton and more corn and grass, and more live stock, is what the South needs. Industrially, the South is awakening. Agriculturally, it still slumbers.

The boll weevil was largely responsible for the big crop of corn below the Dixie line this year. This pest devastated many cotton fields, and as a last resort corn was planted. Results were amazing. The outturn was a record one. This year's corn crop and last in the southern states follows:

	Yield per Acre.		Production.
States.	1910.	1909.	1910.	1909.
Texas	20.2	15.0	180,093,000	122,250,000
Oklahoma	16.0	17.0	92,352,000	101,150,000
Georgia	14.3	13.9	64,808,000	61.100,000
Tennessee	25.9	22.0	96,296,000	78,650,000
Kentucky	28.6	29.0	104,075,000	103,472,000
Alabama	18.0	13.5	63,432,000	43,646,000
Mississippi	20.5	14.5	66,256,000	40,745,000
N. Carolina	18.8	16.8	57,774,000	48,686,000
Arkansas	24.0	18.0	69,216,000	50,400,000
Louisiana	23.6	23.0	58,835,000	51,198,000
S. Carolina	18.5	16.7	44,733,000	37,041,000
Virginia	25.5	23.2	54,621,000	47,328,000

Now that the raising of corn on a big scale is an assured fact in the South, and there is an abundance of cheap pasturage, the raising of beef cattle should prove very profitable. And at the same time the soil could be kept in a high state of fertility. Formerly the cattle fever tick was a bar against profitable production of beef. Congress has provided for the extermination of the pest. As a result 140,000 square miles have been freed from the ravages of this scourge.

First steps in the reformation of the production of beef cattle is the use of good foundation stock, both bulls and cows. Nothing but pure-bred sires and pure-bred or high-grade cows should be used. The investment will be repaid many times. It costs no more to produce good beef than that of mediocre quality, aside from the original investment. When the herd is established there should be close culling every season. Only animals of approved quality and type should be kept on the farm. Then the question of feed arises. According to the views of our best farmers, a crop rotation is essential to successful beef making. This should include corn, alfalfa, cow peas, red clover, etc.

Baby beef could well be raised in the South. Such stock matures quickly under the right care and meets relatively good demand throughout the year. Of course, a drove of hogs should follow the cattle in the feed lot to utilize the droppings.

While sheep can be handled pretty much the same way as cattle, the raising of hogs must be carried along different lines. It is essential that the swine be of an approved market type. The razorback or knife-blade kind will not do. Hogs cannot be carried through winter on roughness alone. The southern states would be an ideal section to raise hogs. They can be produced there much cheaper than in the North. During the winter time enough corn should be fed to the boars and sows to keep them in thrifty condition. The young pigs could get a big start on alfalfa or pasture in the summer time.

There will always be a market for either feeder or fat cattle, hogs or sheep grown by the South, provided the quality is present. Available markets to the southern producer are Fort Worth in the South and East St. Louis, Kansas City and South St. Joseph in the North. Clay, Robinson & Co. have houses at these points, any one of which would be glad to give advice and information regarding the class of cattle, hogs or sheep to raise for the shambles and when and where to market them.

"Cattle and Hogs Selling High."

W. C. Swarts of Silver City, Ia., is one of the most substantial farmers, breeders and feeders in that state. Starting out poor in purse but rich in health and ambition, Mr. Swarts has amassed a plenty of this world's goods. He is highly respected by all who know him. He has been a farmer and feeder all of his life. He has 600 acres of land that is worth $125@150 per acre, a fine thoroughbred herd of Shorthorn cattle, and Poland-China and Duroc-Jersey hogs. Mr. Swarts was a client of J. M. Robinson & Co. When that firm was succeeded by Clay, Robinson & Co. he continued his patronage to them almost continuously at both Chicago and South Omaha.

On Dec. 13 he was at Chicago with 40 Shorthorn and Hereford steers and heifers—six heifers—which averaged 1,088 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.25. This price was the top for that class of offerings. These cattle were put on feed last March and gained about 600 lbs. Their ration was shelled and ear corn—given once a day, in the morning—and allowed the run of a big timothy and blue grass pasture. Most of the cattle were Shorthorns of his own raising. They gave him good returns. Mr. Swarts is a firm believer in raising and maturing "baby beef."

Mr. Swarts says cattle and hogs are still selling high. "Back in 1876," remarked he, "I sold my first load of cattle. They brought $3.80. And they were good. The same year my first load of hogs went at $2.00. I never raised a better load. At that time corn was 8@10c per bushel and hay cost practically nothing, aside the cost of cutting it."

Production of "Baby Beef."

Maurice Douglass of Indiana gives some good suggestions to corn-belt farmers and feeders on the timely and important subject, the production of "baby beef." Among other things he says:

"In the first place the calf should be well enough bred, along beef lines, to have a good form and an inherited disposition to fatten. I don't care to have anything with less than 50 per cent of pure beef blood and as much more as possible.

"Second, the calf should be pushed as rapidly as possible and given grain as soon as it will take it. In fact, as it grows it should not be allowed to get very hungry and not allowed to lose its calf bloom. Calves kept in this way are always ready to market whenever the prices are right.

"Third, one should not neglect the finishing. Sometimes the extra care and extra feed mean a difference of one cent per pound or more.

"Fourth, have them gentle and not afraid of you. This means more pounds from the same amount of feed and means a small loss or shrink when shipped to market, and a fill after they get there. The calf that is scared to death at home does not get any better when shipped to market.

"On the ordinary sized farm, calves should be marketed about one year old and should weigh from 900 to 1100 lbs and should top the market. The price varies from $5.50@8.10 during the time I have been selling, fifteen years or more, and the weights to from 800 to 1150 lbs, but have always made a profit, sometimes not much but a little. I generally have a calf charged up with something like this: Keep of his mother $25, feed $20, a total of $45, which he pays when he weighs 900 lbs and brings 5c per lb, but you add on the value of the manure and the profit runs beyond one's idea of the profit on the corn when hauled to market. And the next crop it means more corn, then of course, more calves, up to the limit of one's ability to care for them. So why shouldn't the small farmer market his corn crop by the way of the calf instead of the elevator?

"Now, what do we feed the calves. Anything raised on the farm? Shelled corn and oats when they are getting their mother's milk, plenty of good hay, alfalfa or good clover hay, with silage added, when they get older. Before we used silage we fed mangels, turnips and such like. Anything they will eat we give them. As they grow older we give them grain and bran, sometimes all they will clean up, sometimes as often as three times per day. No secret about what they eat. But you say what a lot of trouble. Yes, a crop like the corn and wheat, and the better they are taken care of the larger the crop. The old adage: 'The eye of the master fattens the cattle,' is certainly true when it comes to making 'baby beef.'"

Get Your Entries in at Once.

Great preparations are being made by the National Western Stock Show, as well as the Stock Yards Co., to take care of the exhibitors during the coming show, which is to be held at Denver on Jan. 16 to 21.

A new three story brick, fire-proof barn has recently been completed. This is adjacent to the large amphitheatre and is 180x71 ft. The first floor will be used for horses, and has separate stalls for 100 head. The second and third floors will be used for thoroughbred cattle, and will accommodate 150 head on each floor. This building is strictly modern in every respect, and was erected at a cost of $45,000. Aside from this, they have erected a store-room and club building 56x63 ft. The lower floor to be used as a harness shop, the upper floor to be used as a club room. The Yards Company have made extensive improvements in the Yards, and have largely increased the number of hay wagons and other facilities for prompt handling and furnishing feed for consignments.

So far the thoroughbred cattle entries, as well as fancy horses, exceed last year. The fat cattle and stockers and feeder entries run about the same. The total premiums offered by the Show Association for fat cattle and feeders is practically $2,500. These premiums are practically all duplicated by the various thoroughbred associations. In addition to this, the Shorthorn and Hereford associations offer special prizes of $500 for the Grand Championship of either fat cattle or feeders, if awarded to Shorthorn or Hereford steers.

Owing to the shortage of hay throughout the West, a great many cattle have been marketed that otherwise would have been held for the show. However, indications are that there will be a goodly number of feeders on exhibition and for the auction, which is to be held on Thursday of show week. All entries for the fat cattle and feeder classes must be in the hands of the secretary of the association by noon of Jan. 2.

It would be well for those contemplating exhibiting anything in these classes to correspond with Clay, Robinson & Company, Denver, at once, so that proper entries can be made and suitable pens selected in advance.

J. Q. McPherrin & Sons, one of the largest and most successful cattle-feeding firms in Iowa, were on the Chicago market Wednesday of last week with a big string of cattle. Their headquarters are at Oakland.

UTAH-BRED COTSWOLD LAMBS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

M. L. & N. T. Lemert, the well-known feeders of Severance, Kan., fed and exhibited these 50 head of western lambs. They averaged 105 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. to Hammond & Co. at $6.85, being 50c per cwt higher than any other non-prize westerns of as heavy weight brought.

FOURTH-PRIZE NATIVE LAMBS OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

A. L. Sayers, the well-known breeder of Hampshire sheep and a prominent feeder and farmer, Lakeville, Minn., bred, fed and showed these 53 Hampshire lambs. They were the sweepstakes carload lot of lambs at the recent Northwestern Show at St. Paul. They averaged 110 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the International auction at $6.50 to Armour & Co.

CANADIAN-BRED LAMBS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

There were 56 head of them. They were bred, fed and exhibited by Fred T. Lee of Simcoe, Ont. While they were non-prize winners, Clay, Robinson & Co. landed them at $6.85, the third highest sale of native lambs in the auction and 10c per cwt higher than any other native lambs made that failed to get in the money. They averaged 106 lbs and were bought by Armour & Co.

GRADE DORSET WETHER LAMBS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

C. E. Hamilton, manager of the Hearts Delight Farm, Chazy, N. Y., fed and showed these 49 native lambs. They tipped the beam at 119 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $6.25 to Swift & Co. They were the heaviest lambs in the carlot show by 8 lbs.

SECOND-PRIZE NATIVE LAMBS OF 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

Robert Taylor of Abbott, Neb., bred, fed and exhibited these 50 Hampshire-Leicester lambs. They averaged 110 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. to the Hammond Packing Co. at $7.35, the second highest price for native lambs in the auction.

DORSET-MERINO LAMBS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL SHOW.

These 51 native lambs were fed and exhibited by J. B. Henderson, proprietor of the Valley View Stock Farm, Burgettstown, Pa. They averaged 84 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction at $6.50 to Armour & Co.

Save the Corn Stalks.

There is a shortage of hay through the country this year. The price is therefore likely to be high all winter. The sensible thing to do under these circumstances is to substitute cheaper roughage whenever it can be done. Cattle feeding experiments at the Nebraska Station, during a succession of years, show that corn stalks, field cured, possess a feeding value much above what is ordinarily attributed to them. These results show that the edible portion of the stalk—all the leaves and the upper part of the stalk—are as valuable as prairie or timothy hay, pound for pound. It has also been shown that just as large gains may be secured by feeding cattle some corn stalks with alfalfa, as when alfalfa has been fed alone. In fact, very large gains have been made by using corn stalks alone as roughage when cottonseed cake is made a part of the grain ration.

With the corn harvester, the crop may be put in the shock at no greater expense than the cost of cribbing the grain from the field, and the entire crop is saved by the former method. Once in the shock, there are several ways of handling the corn crop. The bundles may be fed unhusked on the grass or in racks, or they may be put through a machine which husks the corn and shreds the stalks; where but a small acreage is grown, hand husking is often practiced.

If a farmer does not own a corn harvester and is unable to hire one, a considerable acreage may be put into shocks by sending men into the field with corn knives. There is no reason why the harvesting of the entire crop should be delayed until the corn is ready to pick in the field. If cut when the husks about the ears are brown, and the kernels firm and well dented, the nutrients are fully elorate and no loss from shrinkage incurred. Corn stalk disease is unknown when the fodder is harvested in this manner. It seems a pity that so much valuable material should be allowed to waste in the winds on the average Nebraska farm, especially when hay is high in price.—H. R. Smith.

SECOND HEAVIEST LOAD OF CATTLE IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

They were Herefords and Shorthorns, and fed and exhibited by Foster Bros., the extensive and successful farmers and feeders of Earlham, Ia. Their average weight was 1,860 lbs and they were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. to Armour & Co. at $7.00.

YEARLING GALLOWAY FEEDERS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

They averaged 746 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $6.00 to Foster Bros. The price was the top for Galloway show feeders. They were owned and shown by C. D. McPherson of Fairfield, Ia.

YEARLING SHORTHORN FEEDERS IN 1910 INTERNATIONAL.

They were owned and exhibited by C. D. McPherson, the well-known breeder of high class feeding cattle, Fairfield, Ia. They averaged 935 lbs and were sold in the auction by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $5.85 to C. P. Isley. This price was 30c per cwt higher than any other firm obtained for Shorthorn yearling feeders.

Of Interest to Chicago Hog Shippers.

On Monday of this week, with 30,378 hogs on sale at Chicago, we handled more loads than any other firm. This fact may interest shippers who have been told by interested persons that "Clay, Robinson & Co. are strong on cattle and sheep but are not a hog firm." If we are not a "hog firm" we would be glad of a definition of what constitutes one. Selling the largest number of hogs, on the biggest market day of the week, looks as though some people at least think we are in the game.

Seriously, the same policy that has built up the largest cattle and the largest sheep trade enjoyed by any commission firm, is conscientiously followed out in our hog department. For the information of any persons who may have been misled by false reports regarding our hog-selling service at Chicago, we wish to state the following facts:

M. J. Keenan has been with our firm, as hog salesman at Chicago, since its organization twenty-five years ago. He is a "veteran of the old guard," a seasoned trader, whose experience, judgment and knowledge of buyers and market are unsurpassed.

Recently our hog-selling force at Chicago has been greatly strengthened by the addition of Ed. A. Maher, one of the keenest, most successful traders in the business. Mr. Maher has to his credit nine years of continuous service as hog salesman for Clay, Robinson & Co. at South Omaha. Prior to that, he traded in hogs for his own account for ten years, in the Chicago Yards, and also spent two years here as buyer for the Lipton Packing Co. Thus, it will be seen that he has a thorough knowledge of this market.

Frank M. Conley is well known to shippers to this market, having been in our employ nearly twenty years, working up from the bottom of the ladder. Some time ago he was promoted to the hog-selling force, a position for which his former training specially fitted him. In the office and in the yards he will do effective service for our hog shippers.

With ample yard and clerical help, these men devote themselves exclusively to our hog trade. A trial consignment will prove to you that they are the right men in the right places, and that your hog shipments are safe in their hands. Call upon us for market information or any other service which we can render you.

Small Packer a Big Factor.

"As we figure it," says a prominent provision man, "there are some 800 packing houses in the United States. A great many of these have been going very slowly in their operations all this fall and early winter. They are now commencing to buy a few hogs and do a little business. They all have some trade. Some of them, besides buying hogs, have to buy special cuts, like hams, to supply their trade later on. This tremendous buying power is just getting into the market and it always makes a wonderful difference in the hog market."

A Change in Christmas Cattle Trade.

There is not the demand for the old-fashioned "Christmas" beeves that there used to be. This is causing inquiry as to why from men who feed cattle. One of the reasons is found in the fact that there are more good fat cattle now than formerly and feeding operations are such that there is hardly a week in the whole year when there are not more or less cattle on the markets that would be suitable for the Holiday trade. Another factor that has, to some extent, cut out the regular Christmas trade on the open markets is the fact that the International Show at Chicago comes just about the time that packers and butchers are wanting to get their holiday carcasses of meats ready for display. The International always has a big lot of cattle that have been fattened for live stock shows and the Christmas supply, which is limited at best, is filled out of these show cattle.

Al. Neale Given Public Reception.

"That man deserves a public reception," said Mayor Allen, when he heard the news that Al. A. Neale had again swept the platter clean in grand championship for calves at the International feeder show at Chicago, "and I am going to see that he gets it." This was gleaned from the Montrose, Colorado, Enterprise under date of Dec. 1.

The banquet was held at Montrose on Dec. 10, given in honor of Mr. Neale and Howell Bros. An account of the same is given in part and is taken from the above paper:

"Montrose is noted for banquets, but the one held at the K. P. Hall Saturday evening in honor of Al. A. Neale and Howell Bros. far surpasses anything of the kind ever held in the city before, and we dare say on the western slope. Senator John J. Tobin, in facts and figures, showed in an impressive manner what a grand championship meant and what it costs to get it. For instance, to win the grand championship, as Mr. Neale has done two years in succession, it was necessary to win several first premiums and a championship before he reached the grand championship class, and he had the entire world to compete against. T. W. Monell referred to a letter of regret from Murdo Mackenzie, manager of the Matador Land and Cattle Co., Trinidad, Colo., for his inability to be present at the reception. He paid some very fine remarks to Mr. Neale and congratulated Montrose county on having such citizens as the Howell Bros., who have been regular exhibitors at the International Show for nine years, and who have captured prizes to the amount of $2,800 during that time.

"Mr. Neale said that he could raise grand championship cattle easier than he could tell how it was done. He expressed himself as bewildered at the royal manner in which he had been received by his home people and paid an excellent tribute to the Howell Bros., who first induced him to take his cattle to the Chicago show and assisted him in other ways in the matter. Mr. Neale stated that he had been a cow puncher since 1873. From that date to 1878 he worked for anybody who would give him a job. In 1878 he started a little herd of his own, but was still compelled to hire out to keep his pocketbook in the necessary financial condition. He soon began to realize that there was no better place in the world for cattle raising than in Montrose county and his ambition was to prove this by actual results in cattle raising. Several years ago he purchased the E Bar brand of Shorthorns and from that beginning he has produced a class of world beaters."

It will be remembered that the grand champion load of calves in the International feeder show of 1909 were bred, raised and exhibited by Mr. Neale. They were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at the record price of $50.50 per head. Mr. Neale's grand champion load of calves at the 1910 International feeder show were also handled by Clay, Robinson & Co., who sold them at $40.50 per head, the top of the auction by a good margin. The sales of feeder cattle for Mr. Neale in the 1910 International auction follow, the same being made by Clay, Robinson & Co.: One load of Shorthorn calves $40.50 per head, one load of Shorthorn calves $38.00 per head, one load of Shorthorn calves $29.50 per head, one load of Shorthorn calves $24 per head, one load of Shorthorn yearlings, averaging 841 lbs, $5.75; one load of Shorthorn yearlings, averaging 682 lbs, $5.60.

*Tons. †Pounds.

The total value of the leading cereal and other crops of the United States outside of cotton for the year 1910 is $3,735,000,000. This is the estimate of the value of the crops on the farm as compiled by the government crop reporting board. A year ago the total farm value of the principal products of the soil was $3,971,000,000, showing the total value this year to be about 8.5 per cent less than in 1909.

The final figures for the year were raised slightly compared to the preliminary figures of a few weeks ago. The yield of corn was placed at the stupendous total of 3,126,000,000 bushels, compared to 2,772,000,000 bushels in 1909, and oats at 1,127,000,000 bushels, against 1,007,000,000 bushels last year, when the crop broke all records.

The winter wheat yield was raised about 6,000,000 bushels, to 464,000,000 bushels, and spring wheat was placed at 231,000,000 bushels, making a total of 695,000,000 bushels, compared to 737,000,000 bushels in 1909.

Total Yield is Much Larger.

While the total farm value of the principal crops is lower than in 1909, the aggregate yield of the five leading cereals—wheat, corn, oats, rye and barley—for the year 1910 is much larger than the previous year. The total is 5,143,000,000 bushels, compared to 4,719,000,000 bushels last year, the enormous yields of corn and oats bringing the aggregate outturn to the largest on record in this country. The corn crop alone was 354,000,000 bushels larger than the previous year, while the oats harvest was greater by 120,000,000 bushels. The wheat crop failed to come up to the 1909 mark by about 42,000,000 bushels.

Corn and Oats Values Shrink.

The big yields of coarse grains, especially corn and oats, caused a big shrinkage of values of those cereals, and wheat prices have also been affected, although not to so great an extent.

The average price per bushel for corn on the farm, according to the government figures on Dec. 1, was 48.8c, compared to 59.6c the same date a year ago. Oats on the farm Dec. 1 were estimated to be worth 34.1c, while a year ago the value was placed at 40.5c.

Hay is much higher than 1909, the average price on the farm Dec. 1 being $12.26 a ton, last year $10.62. The yield of hay was 60,978,000 tons; in 1909, 64,938,000 tons.

International Sheep Fair.

Directors of the International Sheep Fair, which was organized last week at Chicago by representative sheep breeders from all parts of the world held a banquet in the English room of the Blackstone hotel. The officers elected were:

President—A. G. Butterfield, Weiser, Idaho; vice presidents—J. W. Fulton, Helena, Mont., and William Whitman, Boston, Mass.; secretary and treasurer—L. E. Troeger, Lafayette, Ind.

Executive committee, which will have charge of the arrangements for the International Sheep Fair at Chicago—F. W. Harding, Waukesha, Wis.; C. A. Tyler, Coldwater, Mich.; George S. Walker, Cheyenne, Wyo.; George E. Heiser, Lafayete, Ind.; J. W. Fulton, Helena, Mont.; Dwight Lincoln, Milford Center, Ohio; A. J. Temple, Cameron, Ill.; Sir William Cooper, Bart., England; Sigmund Silberman, Chicago; Dr. H. R. Arbuckle, Decatur, Ga.; Prof. W. W. Coffey, University of Illinois, and W. W. Burch, Chicago.

"Unless there is a decided increase in the number of farmers engaging in the sheep raising industry within the next few years, the price of wool will be doubled within ten years." This was the prediction made by Sigmund Silberman.

Lucore Sells Fine Herd of Cattle.

R. R. Lucore, the well-known breeder of fancy Aberdeen-Angus cattle, Arriba, Colo., reports the sale of a high-class breeding herd to A. Kleber of Bovina, Colo. The herd consists of Invale Lois 47105, Invale Alice 56615, Invale Katurah 85708, Inavall Daisy 85711, Knollwood Cashmere 110457, Knollwood Maud 110470, Knollwood Justine 120440, and Knollwood Bird 120439.

This is the second largest, and perhaps the most promising foundation herd ever established out of the Knollwood herd. Mr. Kleber selected the richer bred Heatherblom bull Inavale Allen to place at the head of his herd. Inavale Allen is descended from one of the best daughters of Clansman Chief, the Omaha exposition winner, and is a son of the great Erica show bull, Scotch Aric.

Shortage of Cattle in Texas.

"There are several reasons for the cattle shortage in Texas," said Colonel Ike T. Pryor of San Antonio, Tex., and president of the Trans-Mississippi Congress. "In the first place cattlemen have in the last few years taken to producing better and fewer cattle. Again during the last three years an extra heavy shipment of calves has been sent to the markets. Also the cow shipments have been equally as heavy.

"The production of fewer cattle in Texas and the increased volume of cow and calf shipments has brought on a shortage there, which is not at a climax yet. Next spring we will feel the full effect of the shortage. More calves have been marketed during the last five years than during the ten years preceding. It has been about the same with cows. Under this condition, nothing but an extreme shortage could be looked forward to.

"A fair exemplification of the fact that a cattle shortage exists in Texas is the way cattle are standing the severe drouth. Instead of cattle starving to death for want of water and grass, they are doing fairly well. Ten years ago—even five—such a drouth as we have now would have caused great devastation in Texas. The reason for this is that the range is understocked. That is, there are not enough cattle in the state to cause a heavy loss from starvation."

Iowa Stockmen Get Fine Train Service.

Plover, Ia., was represented on the Chicago market Monday of this week with thirteen loads of sheep and lambs, two loads of hogs and one mixed load of cattle and hogs. The owners were: Geo. S. Henderson, C. D. Ferguson, W. L. Smith, J. S. Smith, J. C. Stowell, E. C. Hubbell, G. L. Pirie and A. Studer. Clay, Robinson & Co. handled the entire train load of stock to their satisfaction.

A double header was secured over the Minneapolis & St. Louis Railroad from Plover to Rolfe, Ia. From the latter place to Clinton, Ia., the Northwestern Railroad also furnished them a double header. The stock left Plover on Saturday and arrived at Chicago early Monday morning to enjoy the active bidding of local and outside buyers, and participated in the active and higher market.

Fed Lambs From Colorado $6.10 to $6.30.

Colorado-fed lambs are moving marketward. First northern feds of the season showed up at South St. Joseph on Monday. They sold at $6.10 @ 6.30. These prices reflect their excellent quality. It was one year ago this week that the first of that season made their bow to the packers. They also arrived at South St. Joseph and made $8.25. In 1908 the season's first arrivals were at Denver and went at $5.75.

The output of lambs from the Colorado feed lots will start in appreciable numbers about as early as last year. However, the total will be the lightest in years. Northern Colorado will not have more than 50 per cent of last year, due to a short hay crop. Southern Colorado will market a normal number, but not enough more than last season to make up for the lessened operations in the northern part of that state.

More Encouragement for Cattle Feeders.

There is surely good cause for more optimism in the camps of cattle feeders at this time. The market is making a very good account of itself. This is reflected in a price advance of 35@50c over the recent low time of the season, which was at the start of last week, and bulk of fat stock is selling as high as a year ago. Moderate supplies and a good demand from both local and eastern slaughterers were the prime factors in the substantial price boost. Under continued moderate runs there is no good reason why the market cannot be lifted to a still better level.

It is time that sacrificing of good quality, thrifty cattle that need longer feeding be stopped. They are certainly worth more in the feed lot than on the market. However, such as are of plain quality and lack fat, and are intended for the market of the near future, should be sent in as soon as convenient. Also do not hold back any cattle that are in desirable flesh condition for the sole purpose of striking a much higher trade in the near future. It would be far safer to put the wheels under them.

We do not put any stock in the claims that beef coolers are heavily stocked or that the beef channels are badly clogged. The fact of the matter is, there is a tremendous outlet for beef. If industrial affairs continue in a prosperous way, there is no need to anticipate any slump in the consumptive demand, excepting during the Holidays, when there is naturally more poultry consumed. It should be remembered that there are around 92,000,000 people in the United States, and that per capita they are the heaviest consumers of beef, pork, and mutton in the world.

Average Prices for Show Beeves.

Last week we commented on the average price for fat carload lots of yearling cattle as compared with twos and threes at 1910 International. Below is given the number of loads, average weight and average price of the different breeds and different ages. As will be seen, Angus took the lead in number and average price in all ages, with the Shorthorns second in the average price in all but the three-year-old class.

Yearlings.

Breed—	No. loads.	Av. weight, lbs.	Av. price
Angus	13	1109	$8.58
Shorthorn	6	1159	8.10
Hereford	6	1116	7.87
Galloway	2	1069	7.72
Totals	27	1113	$8.06

Two Year Olds.

Breed—	No. loads.	Av. weight, lbs.	Av. price
Angus	11	1415	$7.72
Shorthorn	9	1409	7.30
Hereford	10	1398	7.29
Totals	30	1408	$7.43

Three Year Olds.

Breed—	No. loads.	Av. weight, lbs.	Av price
Angus	9	1648	$7.63
Hereford	7	1777	7.30
Shorthorn	4	1715	7.00
Totals	20	1713	$7.31

Hog Trade Favors Selling Interests.

Receipts of hogs continue disappointing—to the packers. There is a well-grounded suspicion that the old crop has been depicted and the new crop is not ready. The fact that the average weight shows an increase of around 10 lbs over a year ago would indicate that feeders are in no hurry to cut loose. Packers are lying awake nights studying how to get hogs around the $7.00 or lower mark. Judicious marketing, a relatively good outlet through eastern shipping and liberal buying by Cudahy of Milwaukee have shattered their carefully laid plans every time they make bearish raids. How much longer this state of affairs will last is problematical.

There is no doubt but that uneasiness has pervaded the ranks of the big slaughterers. One-half of the winter packing season is near. Yet, supplies are far below normal. The decrease at the eleven leading points for the year to date is around 3,400,000 from 1908. Stocks of provisions in the country are not large. There is a good fresh meat demand. Exports of pork product make a liberal total. These are surely good reasons for converting cheap corn into pork wherever it is possible. However, producers should not take too many chances. A wise plan to follow will be to put the wheels under fat swine tipping the beam around 225 lbs and upward. A bird in the hand is worth two in the bush.

Good Work in Hog Department.

It is not often that a commission firm will sell three loads of hogs at the top of the market in one day. Yet, Clay, Robinson & Co. turned this trick at Chicago on Dec. 19, when they obtained $7.80 for three loads belonging to three different parties. Sales follow: For Ed Gilliland of Pocahontas county, Ia., 63 head, 227 lbs; for F. E. Le Brandt & Son, Clay county, Ia., 66 head, averaging 253 lbs, and for A. C. Meyers of Clay county, Ia., 74 head of 234 lbs average.

On Dec. 21 Clay, Robinson & Co. sold at Chicago three loads of hogs at top price of $8.00, highest since Dec. 12. The sales follow: F. D. Becker of Ogle county, Ill., 66 of 226 lbs average; C. McCollough of Marshall county, Ind., 86 averaging 210 lbs, and C. Clemons of Louisa county, Ia., 64 of 232 lbs average.

Securing top prices at Chicago, as well as at the other nine leading markets, is a fixed habit with Clay, Robinson & Co. It is a daily occurrence with their salesmen. In addition to this, Clay, Robinson & Co.'s hog selling force invariably obtain the full market value for all hogs shipped to them. This applies to the pieces of loads, a load or several loads. Their salesmen are men of long experience in the hog trade. That they are rendering the service that satisfies is attested by the numerous commendatory letters received from both shippers and feeders of hogs. If you have never sold hogs through Clay, Robinson & Co., a trial will convince you of the above facts.

Dakota Range Cattle in Good Shape.

James R. Burr of the Matador Land and Cattle Co., Whitehorse, S. D., writes under date of Dec. 14: "I have just come back from a trip around the range and am pleased to report conditions generally favorable. Cattle have not shrunk in the least as yet and the snow we had on the 4th and 5th has been a great help to those parts of the range where water was rather limited. I think cattle are as fat at this date as they were last year in the middle of October. On the 9th we had a chinook, and every day since has been as fine as we could wish. The hillsides are all bare and there is an abundance of grazing everywhere."

Top Show Cattle by Weights.

Yearly top prices paid in the auction ring at Chicago for 1910 International Show cattle in carload lots of various weights for years mentioned follow:

	900 to 1050 lbs.	1050 to 1200 lbs.	1200 to 1350 lbs.	1350 to 1500 lbs.	1500 to 1900 lbs.

Shamrock II Dresses 67.25 Per Cent.

Morgan & Co. of Chicago report that Shamrock II dressed 67.25 per cent in the beef. This is a new world's record for an animal under one year. The per cent of choice, juicy cuts on the loins and ribs was close to 30. There was no waste in Shamrock II. The experts who dressed the animal state he was as smooth as they had ever seen. Shamrock II was the grand champion steer of the 1910 International. He was fed and exhibited by the Iowa State College and sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. to Morgan & Co. at 60c per lb, the second highest price ever obtained at the International Show.

Two Associations are One.

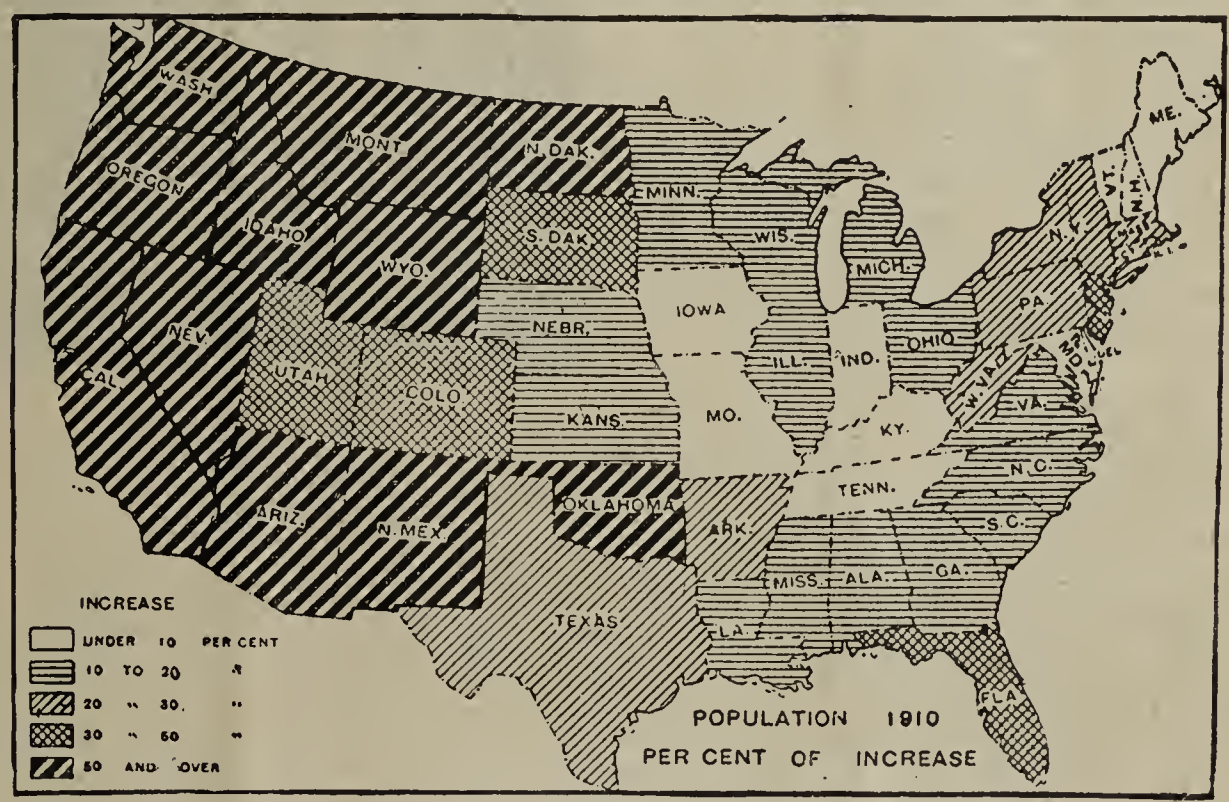
The National and American Polled Hereford Breeders Associations are now one. The former was absorbed by the latter at the recent International Show. The headquarters will be at Des Moines, Ia. The increase in breeders was from 229 to 452. There are 114 members and 29 states are covered. The officers follow: President, J. E. Green, Muncie, Ind.; first vice president, D. C. Maytag, Laurel, Ia.; second vice president, A. L. Duncan, Alexis, Ill.; third vice president, J. H. Bevington, Ree Heights, S. D.; fourth vice president, Martin Williams, Bristol, W. Va.; secretary-treasurer, B. O. Gammon, Des Moines, Ia.; president of board of directors, E. Johnson, Richmond, Ind.

Issuance of Stock Report.

On Wednesday, Jan. 25, the Bureau of Statistics, Department of Agriculture, will issue an estimate of the number and value on Jan. 1, 1911, of horses, cattle, sheep, and swine on farms and ranges of the United States, and same will be published in the Report. Detailed estimates, by states, will be published in February and appear in this paper.

Farm Wages vs. City Wages.

A man on the average farm draws $25 a month, with his board, room, laundry, and the use of a horse once in a while. In the average city he will be lucky if he gets board for $3.50 per week. A room will cost $1.00 at least, 50c per week will about pay for his laundry. Five dollars per week may cover his expenses, but it is altogether unlikely that he will get through as cheaply as that for necessary expense. That does not include the use of a horse or buggy. If he wants to sport up a little in that way it will cost at least $2.50 and, generally speaking, all other amusements will be proportionately high. Thus, the man who is getting $25 a month on a farm is really getting a better wage than the man in the city who is drawing $50 or even better. Besides that he is living under conditions that are both physically and morally more healthy to the ordinary man. The same thing holds true of the man who is drawing an even better wage at some clerical work, for he must spend more money on clothes and must, as a rule, live in a better way than the working man. Thus the fellow who leaves an excellent chance to till his father's farm for the sake of some job that is not likely to pay him better than $100 a month is foolish in more ways than one. Yet every year there are thousands of bright-minded, capable young men who are doing this very thing. The question is, why do they do it? Is it because of a general ignorance of conditions in the city? The same thing may be said of the married man who has no capital. On the farm he usually gets $300 a year, with house rent, the use of a garden, the keep of a cow and a horse, and usually a flock of chickens and perhaps 200 lbs of pork. A man that is now working for us on such terms, says that at present he is making more real money that he can lay away than he did in the city on a job that paid him $70 per month.—Clyde A. Waugh in Michigan Farmer.



DIVISION OF STATES ACCORDING TO CENSUS GAIN.

According to the figures recently issued by the Census Bureau, the total population of the United States, exclusive of its dependencies, is 91,972,266, showing a gain for the past decade of 21 per cent. The above map, issued by the Census Bureau, shows the country divided into five groups, according to increase of population. The states in which the population has increased more than 50 per cent include Oklahoma, New Mexico, Arizona, Nevada, Washington, Oregon, California, North Dakota, Montana, Wyoming and Idaho. Five states, New Jersey, Florida, South Dakota, Colorado and Utah, increased between 30 and 50 per cent. The states that show a rate of increase between 20 and 30 per cent, include Massachusetts, Rhode Island, Connecticut, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Arkansas and Texas. Fifteen states show an increase of between 10 and 20 per cent. These include all the southern states from Virginia along the seaboard and Gulf of Mexico to Louisiana with the exception of Florida. The other states of this group lie in the north central section of the United States, comprising Ohio, Michigan, Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Nebraska and Kansas. The group of states which increased less than 10 per cent (comprising one which actually decreased) include the three New England states of Maine, New Hampshire and Vermont, and two other Atlantic states, Deleware and Maryland, and also five states in the central part of the country, namely, Indiana, Kentucky, Tennessee, Iowa and Missouri.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

Arnold Barnes, Lovilia, Ia., writes: "Am satisfied with prices you got for my two loads of cattle and hogs recently shipped to you."

W. S. Powers, Richardson county, Neb., had a load of 76-lb lambs at East St. Louis on Dec. 20 and our house landed them at the top price of $6.25.

The limit for lambs at East St. Louis on Dec. 16 was $6.25. We obtained this price for one load of 77 lbs average, they belonging to T. E. Welch, Marion county, Ia.

The top for ewes at Chicago on Dec. 20 was $4.00 and our house obtained this figure for 93 head, averaging 119 lbs, belonging to M. R. Beanbien, Rock county, Minn.

H. E. Hershey, prominent feeder of Buffalo county, Neb., had a load of 85-lb lambs on the South Omaha market Dec. 13 and our house landed them at the top price of $6.25.

Warren county, Ill., was represented on the lamb market at Chicago on Dec. 20 with 239 westerns of 85 lbs average. They were sold by our house at the top price of $6.65 and were sent in by C. M. Burford.

S. H. Jeffers, Pocahontas county, Ia., obtained two top prices through our house for his sheep at Chicago on Dec. 19. The sales follow: 119 wethers of 128 lbs average at $4.25, and 123 ewes, averaging 109 lbs, at $3.85.

J. E. Fenton, Lucas county, Ia., had 130 western yearling wethers of 80 lbs average at Chicago on Dec. 20 and our house obtained $5.35 for them, which price was 10c per cwt higher than any other load of yearlings made.

C. M. Holladay, Lenawee county, Mich., writes: "Lambs came through in excellent condition and were just what I wanted. I always get what I order, and a square deal thrown in, when I buy through Clay, Robinson & Co."

Frank M. Gerry, secretary of the Saratoga Co-operative Creamery Association, Winona county, Minn., writes: "Returns for lambs received and they are entirely satisfactory. You certainly made a good sale. Will be down later with a car of steers."

A. B. Faville, animal husbandman, University of Wyoming, writes: "I beg to acknowledge with many thanks receipt of your check for $40 for our proportion of the premiums in the college classes given by your specials at the International Exposition."

Our Chicago house sold two different lots of lambs at the top price of $6.50 at Chicago on Dec. 19. The sales included 127 head of 75 lbs average for J. J. Ernst of Davis county, Ia., and 102 head, averaging 76 lbs, for Ronan Bros. of Nobles county, Minn.

H. R. Smith, animal husbandman, University of Nebraska, writes: "I am in receipt of your letter in which you enclose $115 as our share of the premiums won in the Clay, Robinson & Co. specials at the recent International. We thank you for your promptness."

Pike county, Mo., was represented on the East St. Louis market Dec. 15 with a lot of yearling wethers, averaging 107 lbs. They were sold by our house at $4.70, the highest price for heavy weight yearlings in several weeks. They were marketed by R. W. Hetherlin.

S. B. Struble, Wawota, Sask., Canada, writes: "I take pleasure each week in reading the Report. This part of Canada is a glorious section for mixed farming. Our horses winter out in the open with very little attention. Cattle will do better with some shelter and plenty of hay."

The top for western lambs at Chicago on Dec. 14 was $6.25. We obtained this price for two different lots, the sales following: For J. E. Bell, Van Buren county, Ia., 297 head of 74 lbs and for Thomas Cartney of Hamilton county, Ia., 500 head, averaging 72 lbs. Mr. Cartney also had in 740 western ewes on the same day that averaged 99 lbs and we landed them at the top price of $3.75.

J. G. Cahill, Webster county, Ia., marketed 70 head of 229-lb hogs at Chicago on Dec. 15 and we sold them at the top price of $7.80.

W. C. Barnes, Nemaha county, Neb., had a string of yearling wethers on the East St. Louis market Dec. 19 and our house obtained the top price for their weights. The sales included one double of westerns, averaging 93 lbs, at $4.75, and another double tipping the beam at 127 lbs, at $4.25.

"There are more cattle on feed here than usual," writes Chas. Laymiller of Poweshiek county, Ia., "and a few more hogs than last year. Lots of old sows were kept over to raise pigs next year. There are fewer stock steers and heifers than I ever have seen in this country. Corn is worth 38@40c a bushel."

H. F. Blackburn, Marshall county, Ia., was the owner and we the sellers of the 527 yearling wethers of 88 lbs average, which made the top price of $5.25 at Chicago on Dec. 19. On the same day the top for heavy weight yearlings was $5.05, which was also obtained by us for 128 head, averaging 109 lbs, they belonging to J. S. Smith of Pocahontas county, Ia.

WM. HALES OF OAKLAND, N. D.

Mr. Hales is a pioneer stockman, having been interested in the live stock industry as feeder and buyer the past three decades. His former home was in Southeastern Iowa. Attracted by the wonderful prospects of the Golden West, he migrated to North Dakota. As a breeder, Mr. Hales' hobby is Shorthorn cattle, Duroc-Jersey hogs and Percheron horses, and the results that he has attained well demonstrate his thorough knowledge of the breeding business. He shipped cattle to the Chicago market as many as twenty-eight years ago. During the past five years he has been a liberal patron of the South St. Paul market, where he has dealt almost exclusively with Clay, Robinson & Co. He is, as his name suggests, a hale and hearty fellow, and a man with whom Clay, Robinson & Co.'s business relations have been most pleasant.

C. A. Trowbridge, assistant professor of animal husbandry, University of Missouri, writes: "I am today handing your check covering our winnings at the International to the secretary of the University. Please accept our thanks for your liberality in the matter to offer such premiums to the colleges. I look upon it as a great favor and encouragement to the work which we are doing."

H. S. McConaughy represented Jones county, Ia., on the Chicago lamb market Dec. 14 with two loads of his own feeding. According to him, the corn crop in that country was cut 50 per cent by the drought last summer. It is all cribbed and quality is excellent. Owners are holding for 40c per bushel, with very few sales being made. There are not as many cattle on feed there as usual, and nuumber of thrifty young hogs is large.

N. C. Hartingh, Iosco county, Mich., writes under date of Dec. 12: "I am very much pleased with the result of sale of sheep, as it was a great deal more than I dared hope for. I know the yearlings were poor and not fat, but snow and cold came on so suddenly that we were caught unawares. As we had only enough feed to carry over our ewes, we had to send them out as they were. We have a foot of snow and zero weather. We will be glad to have you handle our business in the future."

Settlers Close Free Range.

About 1,500 cattle that have been rounded up at Sweet Grass, Mont., are being shipped to Canada and because of the rapid settlement of that section and the curtailment of the free range. Dozens of the veteran stockmen of that section have recently been forced to close out their interests because of this rapid settlement.

Binding the Report.

A subscriber at Sargent, Neb., writes us he has saved every copy of the Report for the past two years and asks us cost of having same bound. As he neglected to sign his name, and the letter gives no clew as to whom it is from, we are unable to reply to same, but for his information, as well as any other of our readers who may wish to preserve their files of the Report, would say that we carry in stock a specially made binder for this purpose which we will send, express prepaid, to any one desiring it upon receipt of 75c.

With this you can bind your own papers. It is advisable for any one who wishes to preserve a file of the Report to have one of these, as the papers can be quickly and easily inserted each week as they are received. Many banks use this binder for keeping the Report on file for their officers and customers.

CHICAGO MARKETS.

Native Cattle.

BEEF STEERS.

Range of prices and bulk of sales of native beef steers this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

	Range.	Bulk.
This week.....	$4 50@7 25	$5 50@6 50
Last week.....	4 25 7 55	5 15 6 40
Year ago.....	4 00 8 75	5 40 6 75
2 years ago.....	3 75 7 75	5 00 6 80

By the close of last week prices for beef steers were 15@25c higher than Monday and fully steady with the finish of the previous week. The only exception was choice to prime yearlings, these displaying 10@15c advance. The better condition of the trade was due in main to the drop in supplies, although the demand from both local and eastern buyers was somewhat broader. The week's receipts were 72,558, against 83,840 the corresponding week of last year. The only offerings that really were not appreciated were the big, heavy, long-fed beeves. These met disfavor from all of the buyers. An indication that the beef demand is broadening in the East was reflected in shippers buying upwards of 45 per cent of the week's offerings. Exporters also took a fair quota of the 1,250 to 1,300-lb. steers. Packers seemed eager for the low and medium-priced, warmed-up and short-fed steers, which disproves the claim that the coolers held a big stock of this kind of beef. The top for the week was $7.55, paid for fancy yearlings to go on Christmas trade account. Prime 1,200-lb. offerings had to go at $7.00, and prime 1,600 lbs. average sold at $6.70.

This week started out with a total run of 19,031. This supply was around 10,000 less than generally expected and for the first time in a long while the Monday total fell under trade requirements. Thus, there was no surprise that sellers dominated the situation and that buyers used whip and spur vigorously. Prices were generally 10@15c higher than the close of last week, with instances 25c higher. The advance over the closing day of last week was 25@40c, big weight beeves showing least appreciation. The railroads landed all the run here in very good time, despite the storm of Sunday. The supply was cleared up in good time, with the closing trade quite firm. The demand from all sources was very encouraging. That the country showed wisdom in holding the run down to moderate proportions was evidenced by the above price boost. The quality was the plainest in many months. The absence of strictly prime offerings and the short supply of choice beeves and yearlings would indicate that feed lots have been heavily drawn upon. Best arrivals were 34 choice 935-lb. yearlings, which sold at $7.20. The next best price was $7.00, paid for 36 choice 1,434 lbs. average. However, there were not many sales around $6.50 and higher, while bulk of trading was at $5.35@6.30.

The Tuesday run was 6,255. Early trading was on a steady basis, but later on all price changes tended toward a weaker basis. Best offerings available were 1,179 to 1,575-lb offerings at $7.00.

The Wednesday total was light at 15,000. In spite of this, the buyers had fair control of the situation. As a result, prices were merely steady to strong. Yet, the trade had fairly active tone and a clearance was made in good season. The top price was $7.25, paid for 32 extra choice 931-lb yearlings. Twenty-five prime 1909-lb beeves sold at $7.10. The bulk of offerings sold at $5.50@6.50.

Butcher Stock.

Bulk sales of beef cows and heifers, canners and cutters, and bulls this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

The market for cows and heifers last week closed up in very satisfactory shape. As compared with the previous week's finish, prices were 10@25c higher. On the later days of the week both local and outside buyers were lively bidders and acted as though there was a real shortage of she stock in the country. Bulk of arrivals were heifers that showed a short acquaintance with King Corn, and many of the cows were sent out of the stalk fields. Sales of heifers were rarely above $5.00 and not many cows were desirable enough to go above $4.50. There was a let-up in the urgent demand for bulls and prices at the close

An Important Announcement.

In securing the services of Mr. Thomas H. Cross, who as announced on another page will after Jan. 1, in conjunction with Mr. Chas. O. Robinson and a strong staff of salesmen, handle our cattle business at Chicago, we have taken a step of importance not only to ourselves, but to every one engaged in the feeding or shipping of cattle. We do not purpose here to enlarge upon his qualifications, which subject is quite fully covered elsewhere, but simply to emphasize the fact that it is strictly in line with the policy of Clay, Robinson & Co. to secure as salesmen, at any cost, the strongest men in the business. This policy, which has been consistently followed out for twenty-five years, largely explains the phenomenal growth of our business. It means that every customer of our firm, whether he ships one car or one hundred cars per year, is assured the services of the very strongest salesmen in the trade. This is more than a claim; it is a fact, for verification of which it is only necessary to read the names on our roster of more than sixty salesmen at the ten leading markets. No man in the cattle trade has a wider acquaintance or stands higher than "Tom" Cross, and we congratulate our customers, as well as ourselves, upon this strong accession to our forces.

Chas. Robinson & Co.

CHICAGO MARKET REVIEW, AND OUTSIDE MARKETS BY WIRE

were generally 15c lower than the previous week's finish. Calves advanced 25c for the week, with tops going at $9.50.

It was a case of buyers hunting sellers for cows and heifers at the start of this week. Of course, they had to do sums in addition in order to annex the offerings. The price boost was generally 10@15c over the close of last week, and 25@40c over low time last week. A good clearance was effected at an earlier hour than usual. Bulls gained 10@15c. Supply was light and buyers keen bidders. Demand for calves was indifferent, owing to the Christmas demand being over, and sales were weak to 25c lower.

The Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was fully steady, but later on 10c declines were noted for the plainer classes. Bull market was firm. Calf prices were boosted 25c.

The Wednesday cow and heifer market was generally steady. There was no quotable change in the market for either bulls or calves.

Stockers and Feeders.

Top price and bulk sales of stockers and feeders this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

	Top Feeders.	Bulk Feeders.	Bulk Stockers.
This week	$5 75	$4 60@5 45	$4 00@4 75

2 years ago	5 15	3 85 4 75	3 35 3 75

Prices for stockers and feeders at the close of last week showed mostly 25c advance over the finish of the previous week. A good demand prevailed for all desirable offerings. Even the plainer lots met freer sale. An improved market for fat cattle, lower-costing corn and an abundance of rough feed no doubt were responsible for the excellent demand from both nearby and eastern states. A Kentucky distiller bought heavily of the good, fleshy steers, and packers were sharp contenders for these offerings.

There was an advance of 10@15c at the start of this week. Both local and outside buyers were in the market for liberal supplies. The run was much lighter than that of previous Mondays in many weeks.

On Tuesday an early clearance was effected for stockers and feeders at steady prices. The demand from all sources was very good.

On Wednesday there was a brisk demand and the pens were soon cleared of the offerings at prices strong to 10c higher.

Last week's average price for hogs was $7.62, showing 10c advance over the previous week, and proving the highest average in five weeks. On the closing market day the average price was $7.56, which was 31c lower than Saturday of the previous week. Prices ranged from $7.30@7.70. The week's receipts totaled 160,159, the largest of the year. However, there was a decrease of 40,605 from corresponding week of last year. The total was unusually small for this time of December, being 52,000 below the eleven-year average of the corresponding week from 1899 to 1909 inclusive. The average weight of the hogs was 224 lbs, the lightest in nine months, and yet 6 lbs heavier than the corresponding week of last year.

At the start of this week marketing was 30,378, a decrease of several thousand from most guesses. The market started out 10@15c higher. Independent packers, eastern shippers and speculators were responsible for this. After these orders had been filled, the market shut up like a jack-knife. Big slaughterers did not commence operations until after 11 o'clock, when bids were no better than Saturday. Sellers manfully strove for the early price range, but they finally had to concede the decline. The top was $7.80, OBTAINED BY US FOR THREE LOADS. The bulk of trading was at $7.55@7.75, taking in both early and late sales.

Supply of hogs Tuesday 21,198. The trade had a reversal of form. Opening steady, the close was 5c higher. The packers, who laid back, had to pay the advance. Prices ranged from $7.40@7.77½.

Marketing Wednesday estimated early at 25,000 and later 20,000. Bulk of the early business was done at 15c advance. There was a lull in the market for awhile, but big packers soon waded in and prices became 25c higher. WE SOLD THREE LOADS at the top price of $8.00. Bulk of trading was at $7.75@7.95.

Sheep and Lambs.

Following shows top prices and bulk of sheep and lamb sales this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

	Sheep		Lambs
	Top	Bulk	Top	Bulk
This week	$4 35	$3 75@4 15	$6 80	$6 00@6 65

The decline for sheep and lambs last week was one of the worst of the season. As compared with best time Friday of last week, fat handy weight lambs showed 40@50c decline, and those tipping the beam around 85 lbs and upwards went anywhere from 60c@$1.00 lower. Yearlings showed a loss of $1.00 @1.25, with the proportion of fed westerns quite heavy. Sheep suffered a decline of 40@50c. Heavy weight stock was a drug on the market, and, quality considered, prices were the lowest of the season. The week's run of 127,641 proved far in excess of trade requirements, and compared with 112,088 the previous week. At the close there was no safe outlet for light weights higher than $6.25 and no reliable demand above $5.50 for choice 95 lbs average, while extreme heavy weights had to go as low as $5.00. At the finish $5.00 was the limit for handy weight yearlings and choice heavy weights went down to $4.50. Best handy weight wethers were obtained at $4.00 at the close and $3.75 secured choice big weights, while the practical top for ewes was $3.50.

The supply of 22,092 at the start of this week fell around 18,000 under general expectations. Under the helpful influence of this moderate run, sellers had things more their own way than in a long while. Barring big weight lambs, which sold about steady with the close of last week, it was a 10@25c higher deal. Fat handy weights showed most appreciation. Bulk of offerings were fed westerns and quality was much in evidence. Buyers continued to sidestep the big weight stock where possible, the big heavy lambs having to go around $1.00@1.25 lower than prices paid for the handy weights. WE TOPPED THE TRADE IN ALL DEPARTMENTS, selling lambs up to $6.50, yearlings $5.25, wethers $4.15 and ewes $3.85.

Another brisk and higher market was had Tuesday. The supply was 8,308, falling under trade requirements. Sellers had good control of the situation. There was another price boost of 10@25c, with lambs going to best advantage. Big weight stock met freer sale, due to the fact that handy weights were not numerous enough to go around. WE AGAIN TOPPED THE LAMB MARKET, selling fed westerns at $6.65, or 40c per cwt higher than low time last week. WE ALSO SOLD the top yearlings at $5.35. There was outlet for choice handy wethers up to $4.25 and WE LANDED ewes at top price of $4.00, or 50c higher than low time last week.

Wednesday receipts were estimated early at 15,000, but the late count figured around 18 000. Market opened 10@15c higher, but closed 25c lower than the start. Both native and fed-western lambs reached $6.80, the highest since the week of Nov. 12. WE SOLD fed-western yearlings at the top price of $5.85. Best wethers $4.35 and ewes $4.15.

Good Stock for Sale.

C. F. Shaffer of Wellman, Ia., is offering a choice lot of Poland-China boars and bred gilts. Also 100 fall pigs two to four months old. He has decided to close out his entire herd of Shorthorns, and is offering a fine bunch of heifer calves 6 to 10 months old for $400 for the lot; also 20 cows (most of them have calves by side) for $1,400, as well as some choice yearling heifers at $50 each, and some choice bulls 4 to 15 months old at $40 to $80 each. He will sell single animal or in car lots. Anyone wanting good practical shorthorns should write Mr. Shaffer for full particulars.

Almanac and Encyclopedia.

In almanacs fashions have changed. Directions for planting in favorable phases of the moon no longer have place; and even jokes and homely, pithy saws, such as Poor Richard was wont to deliver, have passed into "the great beyond of printers' ink. Within the last few years the arm of progress has swept tradition aside, and produced an almanac in accord with the times. Containing not only all practical, scientific information regarding the changes of season and the movement of astronomical bodies, the modern almanac goes further and makes itself each year a purveyor of the latest gospel of agriculture by giving strong, striking, signed articles from the great authorities of agriculture. Of such a nature is the handsome 100-page almanac recently issued by the International Harvester Co. of America, with general offices in Chicago, Ill. In usefulness it has not been surpassed by its authoritative utterances. The feature articles in the new almanac are by Frank P. Holland, president Texas Farm and Ranch Publishing Co., who writes on "Trees Worth Growing;" Prof. P. G. Holden of the Iowa College of Agriculture, who writes on "Corn;" W. D. Hoard, editor of Hoard's Dairyman, who tells about "Up-to-date Dairying," and Henry Wallace, editor of Wallace's Farmer, who advises on "Sanitation in the Country." "Building Suggestions" by J. E. Wing, "Farm Power" by Professor E. C. Lucke of Columbia University, "Farm Machines and Progress," together with maps showing the number of machines in use and the production of wheat by decades from 1840 to 1900. The articles are accompanied with photographs of the writers and are powerful and full of pith. Many other subjects are interestingly treated in this book. Ask the I. H. C. for a copy of this very valuable book.

Ensilage for Beef Cattle.

"In regard to the feeding of ensilage to beef cattle, will say we are having our first experience in this line at the present time," says G. W. Burt of the Home and Stock Farm, Eureka, Kan. "But the feeding of good corn ensilage is no longer considered an experiment. If we accept the results obtained at the Pennsylvania and Iowa Experiment Stations, and numerous feeders in Iowa and Missouri, the theory that corn ensilage is good only for milk cows is based largely on the belief that corn should be cut for ensilage while green, or at least before the grain has attained its highest degree of feeding value.

"In the estimation of the feeders of beef cattle, ensilage made from corn that will average from 25 to 35 bushels per acre of grain, and 6 to 8 tons per acre of grain and forage combined, cut when the grain has reached that stage of maturity of its highest digestible feeding value, it would equal in value clover or alfalfa hay ton per ton if fed together in proportion of two pounds ensilage to one of hay. And the value of the ensilage will increase in proportion to the increase yield in grain for beef or mutton production, or in its value for feeding young horses or stock hogs.

"The experiments that will be made by the Agricultural Department of the Southern Kansas Academy and those that will be made here on this farm, are for the purpose of testing the relative value of Kafir corn ensilage and corn ensilage, in connection with alfalfa hay for beef cattle."

Bigger the Firm, the Better

Tower, Wyo., Dec. 5, '10.

Clay, Robinson & Co.,
South Omaha, Neb.

DEAR SIRS:

Your message and returns of 30 head of cattle received and must say that I am very much pleased with the sale, and I believe if I had shipped my three-year-old steers I would have done well, but as I have plenty of pasture and feed I will hold them over.

I have only been in the cattle business on my own hook for five years, but have always handled stock. Now, in regard to shipping, I have always been told never to ship to a big firm if you only have a small bunch. But I can see for myself that the bigger the firm the better they can handle your little bunch. As I will have about three cars for next year I promise you that I will remember the number.

Thanking you very kindly for the sale, I remain,

Very truly yours,
HENRY B. CLARKE.

P. S.—I will, furthermore, tell my neighborn about Clay, Robinson & Co.

J. F. Campbell, Merrick county, Neb., marketed a car of 108-lb yearling wethers at South Omaha on Dec. 13 and our house obtained $4.25 for them, the extreme top for their weights.

Sees Grave Crisis for Country.

"To-day a man can no longer waste one farm and then go to another state and live on another. We must stop living on our capital and with other adult peoples live on our income."

Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler, president of Columbia University, sees a grave crisis for the country in the census figures recently given out in connection with the population of the agricultural states and in discussing the situation said:

"The pressure on our tillable land will force us eventually to look to foreign nations for the things we cannot supply ourselves. Do you realize that Iowa has gone back in the last ten years; that Ohio has stood still, and that Illinois, in spite of Chicago's aid, has gained only 14 per cent?

"The notion that we can live on our capital has got to stop. We have to remember that we have to live on our income. The country must somehow restore the cost of living to a normal plane; it must restore the national happiness and the stability of our government.

"These figures ake us out of the class of Germany, Great Britain and France and put us in the class with Russia, India and China, nations which we have always looked down on, but whose problems now are ours.

"We must face the problems now of a nation with huge population which is overcrowding the land available for tillage. The day has gone by when an American can waste every day what would support a whole family in France. To stop this is called conservation of natural resources, but that is only a part of it. The chief thing is to stop extravagance and waste and begin to live with more intensive application."

John Bell, Will county, Ill., writes: "Lambs arrived in good shape and I am well pleased with them."

Is a Great Country.

J. E. Hanson of Hotchkiss, Colo., who is a patron of Clay, Robinson & Co., Kansas City, thinks that part of the western slope of the Rockies is about the most productive spot on the map when the actual number of acres in cultivation is considered. Mr. Hanson went into that country in the early days, and before irrigation spread very far he secured about 1,000 acres of land, most of which is under irrigation. This land is in what is known as the north fork of the Gunnison river.

"There were shipped from that vicinity the past fall," said Mr. Hanson, "over 1,200 carloads of apples. That, of course, does not include hundreds of carloads of peaches and small fruits that were shipped out earlier in the season. Then we are raising sugar beets by the tons and supplying a big sugar factory at Grand Junction. In addition to the big shipments of fruits and sugar beets, there were shipped out about 800 carloads of potatoes. All this, of course, does not include the cattle that we market from the same place, or the amount of feed raised for our stock. The strange part of the whole situation is that old settlers like myself were hard to wake up on the situation, and for several years after others began to come in and buy up the choicest lands we stood back and looked on. This illustrates the fact that people who have lived a good while in a country very rarely discover its real worth. It takes some outsider to grasp the situation and see the real worth of the land and make a start to develop its resources."

Wolves Overrun Wyoming.

A dispatch from Cheyenne, Wyo., says: Wyoming is overrun with wolves. These animals are the greatest menace now existing in this state to the sheep industry. The subject of wolves occupied the attention of the State Wool Growers' convention more than any other and plans are under way to eliminate the pest. The prairies of Wyoming are so broad and there are so many obscure sections where these animals can exist without hindrance that the problem has become a serious one.

Increase Herd Gradually.

If the beginner will start with not more than two or three sows, in pig when purchased, he can acquire much valuable experience with even so small a number, while his risks will not be great. The next year he may add to the number of sows, secure a suitable boar and by slow but careful increase in the number of sows bred each year, if good management and freedom from disease prevail, should soon find himself with a profitable herd.—Coburn's Swine in America.

I. H. C. Calendar.

For 1911 the International Harvester Co. of America has gotten out a set of very attractive calendars, directing attention to the well-known lines of harvesting machines—Champion, Deering, McCormick, Milwaukee, Osborne and Plano. These calendars are beautifully lithographed in colors and are 20x13¼ inches in size. The scenes depicted on these calendars include "The Hunting Camp," with the successful rifleman who is bringing in a deer; "The Days of '49," when the prairie schooner was a familiar sight west of the Missouri River; "The Prospectors," in search of the elusive gold; "Grandmother Sewing on a Button;" "The Children Playing with Tige on the Beach," and "The Summer Girl with Her Parasol." Any one of these calendars would be a decidedly appropriate ornament for the home, and we suggest that you write or call on your local dealer and ask him for an I. H. C. calendar.

The Golden Stream.

A very commendable little booklet of 63 pages, called "The Golden Stream," has been recently issued by the International Harvester Co. of America. This booklet covers a multitude of vital facts relative to the plain, ordinary, everyday cow in a very interesting manner. Such up-to-date topics as "The Dual Purpose Cow," "Bovine Tuberculosis," "How to Make a Babcock Test," "Rations for Dairy Cows," "The Feeding Value of Silage," "Advantages of Dairy Farming," etc., etc., are discussed. In general, the purpose of the book is to impress the farmer with the proper relation of the cow to our modern civilization as the source of a golden stream of wealth. Numerous illustrations throughout the booklet showing record-making cows and herds of various milking breeds, silos, dairy barns and interiors, etc., greatly enhance the value of the booklet. It will be greatly appreciated, especially by farmers and dairymen. A copy of the booklet may be obtained by writing the company of any one of the various I. H. C. branch houses.

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef. The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

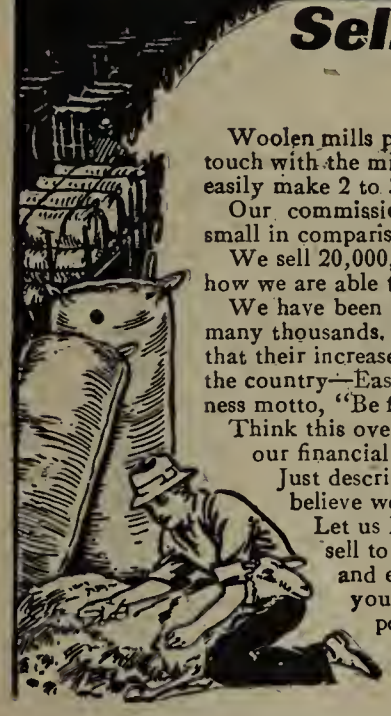
Sell Your WOOL To The MILLS!



Woolen mills pay bigger prices than any wool buyers. We are in close touch with the mills. Through us you can sell them your wool, and easily make 2 to 3c more per pound than if you dealt with home buyers.

Our commission for grading, storing, insuring and selling wool is small in comparison to the better prices we can get for you.

We sell 20,000,000 pounds of wool every year, so you can understand how we are able to sell your product at top millmarket prices.

We have been in the wool business 44 years. Our customers number many thousands. The fact that we have kept them from year to year and that their increased patronage has given us the biggest wool business in the country—East or West—is proof that we have lived up to our business motto, "Be fair to the customer."

Think this over. Investigate the situation. Get our terms. Learn our financial responsibility, if you don't now know it.

Just describe your clip and we will tell you what it is worth. We believe we can put 2c per pound net profit on your wool for you. Let us lay the facts before you. Then you decide whether to sell to home dealers or to sell through us to the mills. Terms and explanations will be sent you. We shall be glad to put your name on our free mailing list and send you market reports from time to time. Write us NOW.

Follow Holden's four rules and increase your corn crop twenty bushels per acre

You can do it. They are the simplest rules you ever tried to carry out. Thousands of corn-growers are doing it and making more money out of their corn than they thought possible before Holden told them how—and not one ounce more work or any harder work. Don't be among the thousands who are sticking to methods out-of-date a generation ago. You corn-growing farmers of Illinois, the biggest corn State of the Union, Holden has a message for you. It was on an Illinois farm that he gained his early corn experience and discovered the principles of corn-growing, which he has summarized in Holden's Four Rules. What he discovered, you can apply. Keep Illinois Corn in the lead, fill your cribs fuller, make your pocket books fatter by grabbing this opportunity to get corn facts.

HOLDEN'S Corn Secrets

PROF. P. G. HOLDEN

is the latest and by far the best book Holden has written—the ONLY COMPLETE corn book—intensely interesting, in every way practical and easy to be understood and followed—the result of years of experience, tests and demonstrations; and Corn Secrets is the summing up of it all. Holden, as a boy on his father's farm in Michigan, began to look for things. He was dissatisfied with farming—too many troubles—too much work—not enough money. In working his way through college he worked his way into things for himself and by himself and soon began to instruct his professors about his rich discoveries in corn. He satisfied himself that money could be made in corn-growing and made easily. He learned the then unknown wealth of corn, how to increase its value by proper breeding and careful selection of seed, making it richer in oil, protein, starch, glucose and sugar, and how to Increase the Feed and Fattening Value of Corn

for live stock purposes. All this was in college days. Prof. Holden has studied corn ever since, and he has become the world's greatest corn expert. He is in demand everywhere, has been instructing farmers and putting them in the way of making money in corn growing, and now he gives to the world at large his greatest and most complete work in Corn Secrets.

For Corn Contests

If you or your boy think of entering your state or county corn contest, you certainly cannot hope to win without Holden's Corn Secrets. If your competitor has it, and you don't, he is sure to beat you and raise the prize-winning crop.

For Corn Profits

Every corn-grower just must have Corn Secrets, it matters not how small the acreage. No corn farmer can afford to be without it. You cannot produce best crops without Holden's Four Rules. Corn-growing without profit is drudgery. Holden's Corn Secrets tells you how to make corn-growing interesting, fascinating and profitable. It is the new and pleasant way. It tells you how to harvest and care for the seed, how to test the seed and keep it in proper condition until planting time. It tells you how to sort, grade and select seed for planting. In addition, it has the most wonderful series of corn illustrations ever made, showing by half tones from photographs exactly how every step is performed. To put Corn Secrets, Holden's latest word on corn improvement, into the hands of every corn-grower in the country, to increase the nation's wealth and the farmer's welfare, we make this great offer:

Copy of "CORN SECRETS," postpaid / FARM JOURNAL Four Full Years — Only $1.00

Book and paper may go to different addresses, if necessary.

Here's the secret. This boy will have a record-breaking crop.

Do not let another season go by without applying Holden's rules in growing your corn. We invite your help. Talk this over with your neighbors. Co-operate with us in this good work. We want every corn-grower in the State of Illinois to subscribe for Farm Journal. We now have 42,287 subscribers in the State of Illinois alone. We want to double these figures. Will you help us? No matter if you have other papers, your farm and family literature will not be complete without the best farm monthly published.

Farm Journal has been Helping Farmers for Thirty-four Years

Farm Journal is the standard farm and home monthly, with 750,000 subscribers. There is no better. It is clean, clever, cheerful, intensely practical. For the corn-grower, dairyman, fruitman, poultryman, truck raiser, the villager, suburbanite, the women folks, the boys and girls. Boiled down, much in little. Full of gumption. Regardless of what you may think now, FARM JOURNAL is for you, too.

THIS PICTURE HAS DELIGHTED THOUSANDS

The original painting has been splendidly reproduced, in all its exquisite coloring, requiring fourteen separate printings. Size 15½x22 inches, tinned top and bottom, with ring for hanging. This picture is well worthy of framing for any home. The above small one-color proof gives no idea of the beauty of the original. We print same merely to show the grouping, etc.

MR. JOHN CLAY DESCRIBES THE PICTURE AS FOLLOWS:

"The original of this picture, 'SHEEP SHEARING IN THE LAMMERMOORS,' was painted by Robert McGregor, of Edinburgh, a leading Scotch artist. His best work has been done in portraying interiors, and Mr. John Clay was so much attracted by his style in this direction that he gave him a commission to go to one of his father's farms and paint a picture commemorative of the past and the present.

"The scene is laid at Wedderlie, a farm lying on the southern slopes of the Lammermoors in the county of Berwickshire, Scotland. It is a hill and half-hill farm. The lower part of the place is devoted more or less to arable farming and Leicester-Cheviot sheep are kept there, grazed in Summer and partly hand fed in Winter and Spring. On the swelling uplands, where the heather grows and the peats are cut, blackfaced sheep have their home, and the picture before us depicts the time of shearing. This takes place generally the first week in July, and the flock, or part of it, is driven to the farm buildings, and under a covered shed redolent of boyhood days the semi-wild flock are denuded of their coats. In old days the neighboring shepherds used to come and help. There was a unity of interest and a mutual aid society. But these days are gone and the ordinary farm help does the work.

"This picture tells a story. It represents not only the actual work, but the figures are original, and the grouping is very skillful. The men who act the parts in the simple drama of life on these hillsides are grand specimens of the Scottish peasants, who are wedded to the soil and service of the farm. In their narrow confines they play their part as well, if not better, than their neighbors in the great highways of commercial trade. The central figure, the man with the staff in his hand, caught evidently as he entered the shed, is Matthew Craig, foreman on the farm, who for fifty-four years worked for John Clay Senior, of which fifty-two years were spent at Wedderlie, and he died honored and respected on a farm he had rented some three miles away."

"On the extreme right is William Anderson, handling with skill a ram whose big horns add so much to the beauty of this class of sheep, grown gray during his forty-seven years of service under one employer. He managed the blackfaced hirsel, and knew every sheep on it. He now lives in a little cottage in a village nearby, his brain active though his limbs are stiffened by years of travel on the purple hillside. A shepherd by profession, but a poet and a lover of nature by instinct. The young lad with red hair working behind the fence, catching the sheep and bringing them to the shearing stools, made of turf, is a son of Anderson, and since his father retired has taken his place on the hillside and literally follows his father's footsteps.

"The old man leaning over the fence watching the work is John Whitlaw. When the writer's father took the lease of Wedderlie in 1853, William Whitlaw, 'Auld Willie' as he was called, looked after the half-breed sheep on the lower part of the farm. He retired and his son John came in his stead, and there he stands, hale and hearty, with the frost of four score years and more on his brow. Years ago there came up a difference of opinion between master and servant and he left, going to a neighboring farm. Some years ago his son, young Willie, came back to fill the place of his forefathers, and he is seen in the picture as a red-bearded, rugged man on the left, and his father, long since retired from work, is spending the evening of his days with him.

"The central figure of the actual sheep shearers is Matthew Craig Jr., who is now working a farm of his own, a thrifty son of the soil.

"The female figure portrays a girl who is employed rolling up the wool and storing it away in an enclosed corner of the shed, ready for inspection by a buyer, who may come along at any time.

"An interesting part of the picture is the foreground of turf and heather, fit carpet for such work, and the faithful Collies, watching through the corners of their eyes the whole scene, ready at a moment's notice for action."

SCENE OF THE TERRIBLE STOCK YARDS HOLOCAUST OF LAST WEEK.

The above photo, taken by the Live Stock Report's staff photographer, shows scene of the fire at Morris & Co.'s plant last week, where Fire Marshal James Horan and twenty-four firemen were killed by a collapsing canopy. It was the worst fire that ever occurred in the Chicago Stock Yards, in loss of life, and one of the most destructive from a property standpoint. At one time it seemed as though nothing could prevent the fire from spreading to other packing plants, but after a desperate struggle the flames were finally subdued. The above photo was taken when the fire was at its worst.

"The old man leaning over the fence watching the work is John Whitlaw. When the writer's father took the lease of Wedderlie in 1853, William Whitlaw, 'Auld Willie' as he was called, looked after the half-breed sheep on the lower part of the farm. He retired and his son John came in his stead, and there he stands, hale and hearty, with the frost of four score years and more on his brow. Years ago there came up a difference of opinion between master and servant and he left, going to a neighboring farm. Some years ago his son, young Willie, came back to fill the place of his forefathers, and he is seen in the picture as a red-bearded, rugged man on the left, and his father, long since retired from work, is spending the evening of his days with him.

"The central figure of the actual sheep shearers is Matthew Craig Jr., who is now working a farm of his own, a thrifty son of the soil.

"The female figure portrays a girl who is employed rolling up the wool and storing it away in an enclosed corner of the shed, ready for inspection by a buyer, who may come along at any time.

"An interesting part of the picture is the foreground of turf and heather, fit carpet for such work, and the faithful Collies, watching through the corners of their eyes the whole scene, ready at a moment's notice for action."

New Year's Greeting.

We wish it were possible to personally extend to every customer of Clay, Robinson & Co., and every reader of the Live Stock Report, whether a customer or not, our very best wishes for a Happy and Prosperous New Year. As it is not, we trust all our friends will "take the will for the deed," and to the hundreds who have during the past few days expressed in their letters their good wishes for Clay, Robinson & Co. during the year now beginning, we express our hearty appreciation. To one and all we say, may the New Year be the best of all years for you and yours!

Record Movement of Feeding Sheep.

Never before were as many feeding sheep and lambs bought at the leading markets as during the season recently closed. Record shipments from the western ranges made this possible. These two remarkable features of the 1910 ovine trade will long be remembered.

A terrible winter last and just as bad a summer last in the shape of drought forced flockmasters to reduce their holdings as they had not done in years. Two seasons of good prices for fat stock, low-costing feeders, fine fall pastures and a record crop of corn caused corn-belt and eastern feeders to be hungry for supplies. Thus it was that the enormous marketings were absorbed without the trade becoming demoralized.

South Omaha lead the list with 1,443,710. In point of percentage of increase over last year, Chicago came first with 119.8 and Kansas City second with 108.5. From the three markets the movement totaled 2,982,250, an increase of 1,510,997 over 1909. The great bulk of the offerings went to Nebraska, Kansas, Missouri, Iowa, Illinois, Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Heaviest contributors to the feeder receipts were Idaho, Montana, Wyoming, Utah, Arizona and Nevada. Conditions were more favorable in Washington, Oregon and New Mexico.

Four Months' Feeder Shipments.

Movement of feeding sheep and lambs, and breeding ewes, from Chicago, South Omaha and Kansas City during the regular stocking-up season, or when the shipments from the ranges are usually in full blast—August, September, October and November—in 1910, as compared with like period of 1909, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Co.'s Live Stock Report from official sources:

	1910	1909	Gain	Pct. Inc.
Chicago	1,145,548	521,238	624,310	119.8
South Omaha	1,443,710	761,534	682,176	89.6
Kansas City	392,992	188,481	204,511	108.5
Totals	2,982,250	1,471,253	1,510,997	102.7

Figures on the outgoing movement of feeder sheep and lambs from the markets for the season closed are deceiving. They do not represent such a big increase in the number on feed over last year. In fact, the total is really not so very much more than then. For the first time in years, western flockmasters were forced to send practically all of their offerings to the central markets, as few feeders east of the range states did any contracting. This was due to a short crop of hay in Northern Colorado and short pastures in most of the states east of there during the summer.

Movement for Eleven Months.

South Omaha also held the lead in the number of feeder sheep and lambs, and breeder ewes, for the first eleven months of 1910, having a total of 1,675,669, an increase of 749,180 over like period of 1909. Chicago was second with 1,353,627. The total of the five leading markets was 3,830,642, being 1,705,044 more than the eleven months of last year.

Movement of feeding sheep and lambs, and breeding ewes to the country from the five leading feeder markets for the first eleven months of 1910, compared with like period of 1909, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Co.'s Live Stock Report from official sources:

	1910	1909	Gain	Pct. Inc.
Chicago	1,353,627	666,010	687,617	103.2
South Omaha	1,675,669	926,489	749,180	80.9
Kansas City	515,931	325,161	190,670	58.6
South St. Paul	180,000	125,000	55,000	44.0
So. St. Joseph	105,515	84,938	20,577	24.2
Totals	3,830,642	2,127,598	1,705,044	80.1

Of course, it is understood that these figures do not indicate a proportionate increase in the number of sheep in this country. It was simply a compulsory shifting of the supply from the western ranges to the feed lots of the corn belt and eastern states.

Big Reduction in Sheep Bands.

R. F. Bicknell, of the extensive breeding and ranching sheep firm of Bicknell & Gemmell, with headquarters at Pocatello, Idaho, has returned from a trip of the western range states, and what he has to say is of great interest to the sheepmen of this country.

"There has been the biggest reduction in the sheep holdings of the West in ten years," remarked Mr. Bicknell. "The terrible winter of 1909-10 and the equally as bad drought of last summer were responsible for the heavy liquidation during the past season. No lambs to speak of are being carried over in any of the western range states. This will also apply to dry sheep. Breeding stock was also cut down heavily. To reflect the compulsory liquidation is the fact that Wyoming has not over one-half as many sheep as one year ago. In Johnson county, Wyoming, alone 160 bands were wintered last winter, while this year there were barely 70 bands.

"Taking the western range states as a whole, I do not believe that there are within 25 per cent of the sheep and lambs on hand there this year as compared with the past ten-year average. There is every assurance of a short supply of yearlings and wethers on the ranges next year and a big reduction in the crop of wool.

"The supply of breeding sheep in the West is the smallest in years. Owners will hold on to what they have and try to buy more next year. The East will get few breeding ewes next season if climatic conditions are at all favorable. Of course, the number of feeders to come to the markets next year depends upon how Dame Nature bestows her favors. At the best, the supply will consist largely of old ewes and lambs."

Cattle Feeders, Here is Your Chance.

G. W. Ballantine, vice president and general manager of the Union Stock Yards Co., Denver, Colo., paid Clay, Robinson & Co. a visit at their Chicago office and remarked that arrangements for the Sixth Annual National Western Stock Show, to be held at Denver, Jan. 16 to 21, are rapidly being completed and there is every indication that the show will be the largest and most successful one ever held in the West.

"The National Western Show has grown to be the big annual event of the West," remarked Mr. Ballantine, "and we are confident that all records in attendance will be broken at the coming show. The classification is much stronger than ever before. The carlot exhibit, of course, is the big feature of the Denver Show. Notwithstanding the scarcity of feed throughout the West, all signs point to a larger exhibition of feeder cattle than last year. And that was a world's record breaker. It is expected that the offerings will be of much better quality than ever before, and they will be in excellent shape to go into the feed lots. I know of a number of eastern feeders who are planning to take in the show for the purpose of securing some choice cattle to fatten and exhibit at the shows next fall.

"The management of the show is proud of the fact that all of the feeders shown at Denver last January, taken out and fattened and exhibited at the Interstate, Royal and International were in the money. And not a few of them captured blue ribbons.

"From the information that I have gathered on my trip East, there should be a stronger and higher cattle market after February next. At present there is quite a liquidation of half-fat cattle from the corn belt feed lots, but after these are well out of the way the pendulum should swing the other way; that is, receipts drop off considerably and prices take some sharp strides upward. As there is no doubt that there will be a shortage of feeding cattle next summer and fall, corn belt feeders should make arrangements to attend the Denver Show in January, or send in their orders for feeding cattle. There will be a grand opportunity to obtain the right kind of cattle."

Close Figuring Upon Tremendous Output.

The business of the great packing houses in the stock yards is highly organized, and because it presents such a notable example of effective organization and is of such vast extent and influence the financial reports concerning it are matters of general public interest, comments the Chicago Record-Herald.

For this reason wide publicity was given to the report of Armour & Co. for the fiscal year ended October 22, 1910, and it is desirable, of course, that the significance of that report should be properly understood. The capital of the company is $20,000,000. There is also a surplus of $73,983,313, which represents the accumulation of many years in buildings, stores, icehouses, etc., which have been erected in all parts of the United States. This surplus, added to the capital, gives a total of $93,983,313, upon which the net earnings were $5,817,721, or a little more than 6 per cent.

That, it will be seen, is not a great return on the investment, but there is another feature of the case that deserves more attention and special comment. The total net sales amounted to $250,000,000, and the profit on this enormous business was only 2.33 per cent. This fact is not presented as a novelty, but it is certainly remarkable. It means close figuring upon a tremendous output, economy, efficiency and exact methods in every part of a complicated system, an organization without which profits would soon be turned to loss.

COLORADO AND WYOMING STOCKMEN ADMIRING RANGE WHITEFACES.

Our staff photographer snapped the above group of prominent ranchmen who were admiring the pen of feeder cattle exhibited by Andrew Norrell, Walden, Colo., at the recent International Show. A plate of these cattle was reproduced in a recent issue of the Report. They took several prizes and were sold in the auction by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $5.75, averaging 1,016 lbs. This price was 10c per cwt higher than any other two-year-old Hereford feeders made.

THIRD PRIZE SHORTHORN FEEDER CALVES IN SOUTH CENTRAL DISTRICT OF RECENT INTERNATIONAL.

They were raised and shown by Al. A. Neale of Montrose, Colo., and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. to A. W. Bragg of Tuscola, Ill. They brought $38 per head, being $8.50 higher than any other firm obtained for Shorthorn calves. Clay, Robinson & Co. also sold two other loads of Shorthorn show calves for Mr. Neale at $29.50 and $24 per head to J. H. Roberts.

TWO-YEAR-OLD ANGUS STEERS IN RECENT INTERNATIONAL SHOW AT $7.75.

These cattle were bred, fed and shown by Robert F. Blakely, the well-known and successful farmer, feeder and breeder at Preemption, Ill. These cattle averaged 1,388 lbs and were handled by Clay, Robinson & Co. D. B. Martin bought them for the eastern trade.

IOWA FED ANGUS YEARLING CATTLE IN RECENT INTERNATIONAL.

Clay, Robinson & Co. handled these 1,168-lb steers, selling them to Swift & Co. at $8.30. They were fed and exhibited by the well-known and extensive farming, feeding and shipping firm of Miller Bros. of Olds, Ia.

TWO YEAR OLD PURE-BRED ANGUS STEERS FROM KANSAS.

Parker, Parrish & Co., the prominent breeders of Angus cattle at Hudson, Kan., bred, fed and showed these cattle at the recent International. They averaged 1,254 lbs and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $7.65 to the United Dressed Beef Co., New York.

ONE OF NUMEROUS LOADS OF CATTLE SHOWN BY C. D. McPHERSON.

C. D. McPherson of Fairfield, Ia., showed these cattle at the recent International. They were two-year-old Angus steers, averaged 1,571 lbs, and were sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. in the auction at $7.50 to Swift & Co. Mr. McPherson was one of the largest single exhibitors of fat and feeding cattle in the carlot classes. He is one of the best known and most successful farmers, feeders and handlers of high-grade feeding cattle in the Middle West.

Iowa-Fed Cattle Top Chicago Market.

Topping the Chicago market with big weight cattle is a feat seldom performed these days. Yet, that was what Clay, Robinson & Co. did Wednesday of this week with 29 head of 1,787-lb branded westerns when they landed them at $7.00. This price was 10c per cwt higher than any other cattle brought.

These cattle were fed and marketed by Foster Bros., the extensive and successful farming and feeding firm of Earlham, Ia. They top the Chicago market as many times annually as any feeding firm in the business. And they always market their stock through Clay, Robinson & Co. The above cattle made a gain of 630 lbs per head while on feed. Foster Bros. also disposed of two loads of lambs of their own raising at Chicago on Tuesday through Clay, Robinson & Co. at $6.50.

Big Loss to Southern States.

The principal stock yards of the United States, where southern cattle are received, are located at Chicago, Kansas City, East St. Louis and South St. Joseph. Last year 1,141,804 cattle from the infected area were received at these stock yards, including stock, beef and feeder cattle. None of these cattle received the market price, for beef, the average difference ranging from ¼ to ½ of a cent per pound below the market. The average difference between the market price of cattle and the price paid for southern cattle at these stock yards last year was $3.62½ per head. This makes a direct loss of over $4,000,000 to the southern cattlemen last year because of the tick. According to the statistics of the Department of Agriculture, there were about 3,502,000 dairy cattle below the dead line on Jan. 1, 1910. The shrinkage in the production of milk caused by the Texas fever and the presence of the tick is very conservatively estimated at one quart of milk a day. Counting 300 milking days in the year for each cow, about 850,000 of that number are milked daily. At 3c per quart for milk this means a loss of $25,500 a day, or $7,650,000 a year.

On Jan. 1 there were in the infected area 13,914,000 cattle of all kinds. At the average shrinkage in value of $3.62½ a head, reported from the stock centers, this means a shrinkage in value of over $50,000,000 for the cattle that were not sent to market.

T. B. Hord Is Dead.

While on a visit in Minneapolis, T. B. Hord, one of the largest cattle feeders in this country, died. His remains were taken to Marion, Ohio, his birthplace, where the funeral was held this week. His death was a great shock to his many friends on the Chicago market, where he was so well and favorably known.

For years Mr. Hord shipped thousands of cattle annually. He was heavily interested in feeding ventures at Central City, Neb., where he made his home and at numerous other points in that state.

Mr. Hord was 60 years old and had been a prominent figure in Nebraska live stock affairs for many years. He is survived by the widow, a daughter and son.

Glad He Left the City.

Albert Konovolske of Belleville, Kan., is a wealthy land owner and farmer, and a good friend of Clay, Robinson & Co., Kansas City, Mo. Coming to America with a wife and one child, poor, in 1872 Mr. Konovolske has managed to make his way along very successfully and now, in what he considers almost the prime of life, is worth $100,000. None of this wealth was made in speculative investments, nor did he inherit a dollar of it from rich relatives. He located in Pittsburg in 1872 on reaching this country, where he remained seven years. In 1879 he came west with $800 he had saved while working in a rolling mill in Pittsburg. With that little start he bought 160 acres of land and launched out as a farmer. Last week Mr. Konovolske had at Kansas City three loads of cattle and a load of hogs that brought around $4,500 through Clay, Robinson & Co.

"I am glad I came west instead of staying in a city in the East," said Mr. Konovolske. "I now have 1,000 acres of good land, all well improved, and have raised on my farm 10 children, six boys and four girls. Two of the girls and one of the boys are married. To each of them I gave 160 acres of land near me. The balance of the children are at home. I consider myself fortunate in landing in such a good place as Republic county. I have worked hard, of course, and what I have came to me in that way. Then by keeping my children at home on the farm they were a great help, and that added to my income, as we were enabled to raise more grain and handle more stock, and not be at the mercy of hired help. If farmers would keep their own sons on the farm, and not allow them to leave and go to town, there would be less complaint about the scarcity of farm help."

Coloradoans Feeding One Million Sheep.

W. A. Drake, the well-known sheep feeder, farmer and banker of Fort Collins, Colo., writes: "From the best information I can gather, we will have about 1,000,000 sheep and lambs on feed in Colorado when they are all placed. They are still straggling in. Feeding operations are very light in Northern Colorado, but the Arkansas Valley has many more than ever before. If the feeders in the East hold on, thinking we have nothing on feed, they will get badly hurt. There are the usual number on feed in the Torrington and Scotts Bluff district. I am feeding mostly light weight lambs this year, and most of them are of excellent quality."

Moving to New Exchange Building.

Members of the Kansas City Live Stock Exchange started to move their office belongings this week to the finest exchange building in the country. The new building is nine stories high, covers a ground area of three-fourths of an acre and is of steel construction and fireproof. The walls are built of pressed brick, with Bedford cut stone and terra cotta trimmings, furnishings and ornamental decorations. It cost $650,000.

The interior of the new exchange is finished in quarter-sawed oak, tile floors and Tennessee marble wainscoating. Six elevators are installed, and the total length of the corridors is said to be four and one-half miles. Over 1,475 tons of steel were used in the framework of the structure.

On the first floor are to be the shipping and receiving offices, postoffice, telegraph office, foyer, cigar stand and barber shop. On the second floor are to be located the general offices of the company's officials and the bank. The ninth floor is to be devoted to an assembly room, directors' room and the home of the Hoof and Horn club. On the seventh floor the railroads, packing companies and government offices are to be located. All other floors are to be occupied by commission companies.

High Price of Hay Big Factor.

"This hay proposition," said J. W. Cox of Arapahoe, Neb., and a client of Clay, Robinson & Co., "is becoming just about as important to the farmer as corn. It has been but a few years since there was really no regular market at all for hay out through the country. But in recent years it has come into prominence along with other high-priced feeds to that extent that we have to reckon it in when we think about feeding cattle or wintering stock. So many tons of hay now represent just so many dollars, and it can be converted into that amount of cash any time. I have sold alfalfa this winter at $10 a ton in the stack. The ordinary prairie hay has become scarce in recent years since we have been farming more and breaking up the sod. All this adds to the expense of fattening cattle. Farmers must make some change and get in a position where the forage feed will be cheaper, or feed fewer cattle. In cutting the corn and saving the fodder, that too is expensive for it has to be handled several times before it reaches the stock. Furnas county has in times past furnished a great many fat cattle, but this winter we will fall away short."

Best All Around Service.

Jacob Weiss & Sons, progressive feeders and farmers of Denison, Ia., had a string of western lambs on the Chicago market Wednesday of this week which were handled by us. Included were 130 head of 75 lbs average that brought $6.50. They arrived late and the price was the absolute limit after a false start. These lambs were bought by Clay, Robinson & Co., South Omaha, at $5.35 and were run in the corn field, making a very good gain. There is no firm in the feeding business that tops the Chicago sheep and cattle markets more often than Jacob Weiss & Sons. Their stock always meets with high favor from the buyers. They have bought their sheep and cattle through Clay, Robinson & Co., South Omaha and sold them when fat through the same firm at Chicago for many years, and, as Mr. Weiss, Sr., puts it: "We have always got better all around service than any other commission firm could render us. And we have tried many of them."

Buying Cattle in Half-Fat Condition.

Of late Clay, Robinson & Co. have had many inquiries in regard to buying cattle in half-fat condition for a quick turn in the feed lot. In their opinion the best time to take hold will will be late in February or the first half of March. Thus will the cattle escape the rough and stormy weather of January and early days of February. The cattle can be fed sixty or seventy-five days, by which time the market should be in good condition, barring unforeseen adverse conditions. If it is not advisable to market the cattle at that time, they could be turned on grass and given a feed of corn once a day and marketed in July, August or the first half of September. If you contemplate stocking up with such cattle, it would be well to immediately file your order with Clay, Robinson & Co. at any one of their houses on the leading markets. The early bird catches the worm. There is promise of a good demand for the above mentioned classes of cattle.

A Good Record at East St. Louis.

It was Dec. 21 that Clay, Robinson & Co. obtained top prices in every department of the sheep trade at East St. Louis. And most of the sales were made at a good margin over those of other commission firms. Their good work follows:

Files & Johnson of Lamonte, Mo., had in a deck of lambs that averaged 80 lbs and brought $6.75. No other lambs sold within 15c per cwt of the price that day, and the sale stood the highest for many weeks. The next best price was $6.60, which H. Black & Son of Meadville, Mo., obtained for a lot averaging 72 lbs. Cooper & Harvey of Clarence, Mo., marketed a deck of 128-lb sheep and yearlings that went at $4.50, being 35c per cwt higher than any other sheep brought. The limit for western ewes was $3.65, which H. Black & Son also obtained for 60 head of 99 lbs average.

Hardly a day passes that Clay, Robinson & Co. at East St. Louis do not land both sheep and lambs at the top of the market. This is also true of Clay, Robinson & Co. at the other nine leading points. This winter it is absolutely necessary that sheep and lambs be sold at the highest market price possible because of the large number on feed and the erratic condition of the trade. Therefore, it behooves feeders of ovine stock to send their consignments to Clay, Robinson & Co., who guarantee the best all around service.

Two Well-Known Iowa Cattle Feeders.

There are no better known or better liked Iowans than Fred Smith of Burlington and W. O. Brown of Brimfield. They rank high in farming and feeding circles. Mr. Smith is also a prominent banker, having a controlling interest in several, and has a fine ranch in Texas, where he breeds cattle. He was on the Chicago cattle market at the start of this week and Clay, Robinson & Co., sold his stock at a good advance over the previous week and fully 25c per cwt above the highest expectations of Mr. Smith, who was accompanied by Mr. Brown.

These gentlemen have been selling their stock through Clay, Robinson & Co. ever since this firm's organization. Their acquaintance with Mr. Chas. Robinson dates back farther than that, as their fathers were admirers and liberal shippers to J. M. Robinson & Co.

J. W. Farrow, Fulton county, Ill., writes our Kansas City house: "Cattle arrived O. K., and the quality is same. They look as if they would be good doers."

J. W. Pollock, McDonough county, Ill., writes our Kansas City house: "Load of cattle arrived in good shape. They are a good load."

Lawrence Fisher of Piatt county, Ill., writes: "I received the returns for the hogs and am highly pleased. I think you did well. Will have another load for you next spring."

A Western Stockman's Views.

I would like to say a good word for the packers, [illegible] us western stockmen, are now government targets. The meat industry is now centralized and marvelously well handled. We grow our millions of sheep and cattle and your great stock yards and commission houses make instant sale of them to the packers and feeders. If the government exterminates either us or the packers they will ruin the stock yard companies and hurt the corn grower and the meat eater.

Range stock growing is a great and vital industry, and I feel that our side of the case needs fuller presentation. The conservationists have been doing all the talking.

John Arnold of Glenwood, Ind., writes: "Thank you for the handsome 'Sheep Shearer' picture. It is so natural I can almost hear the sheep shears' clipping ring. I wish we could get as faithful hired help as those grand old Scotchmen. Just think of a life time of service on one farm! Why, they took such an interest in their employer's work that they were worth their weight in gold. God bless them!"

As announced elsewhere in this issue, we shall be pleased to send a copy of the "Sheep Shearers" free to any person not now a subscriber to the Report who forwards 50c for a year's subscription, or any person who is now a subscriber who sends 50c to have his subscription extended one year from present expiration date.

New Improved Winter Emmer.

Some years ago the United States Department of Agriculture introduced into Wyoming a new grain which became known as the Russian Spelt. It was a spring grain belonging to the emmers rather than to the spelts and proved to be of much value in certain sections. At a later date a small quantity of the black winter emmer was secured and sent out to some of the experiment stations. This grain promised to be superior to the spring spelt, because it gives heavier yields and there is much advantage to the farmer in planting his grain in the fall, but it has not become widely distributed and as yet is little known. Professor Carleton, the cerealist of the Department of Agriculture, estimated that winter emmer would yield twice as large crops as are secured from the so-called spring spelt. On the Station Farm at Laramie we secured seventy-two bushels of the spring spelt per acre and in our feeding trials the grain proved superior to corn for fattening lambs. It has given results better than corn at the Dakota Station, when fed to cattle on grass, and was only a little less fattening than corn when fed to cattle in connection with the native hay, or for the production of baby beef. It has given results equal to or better than oats for work horses in practical feeding trials.

In 1907 Professor Carleton sent me a small amount of the winter emmer, which I planted at Worland and applied breeding methods with the hope that it might be improved and adapted. The first season we secured a hybrid between the winter emmer and a winter wheat, which has given rise to a most remarkable series of both old and new types of grain. It will take a series of years to select and test out new grains of value from these hybrids.

Grain Is Very Prolific.

By throwing the winter emmer under unusual and varied conditions of soil and treatment, its appearance, constitution and habit was so disturbed that we secured several mutations or sports and these have given rise to such change and improvement that those acquainted with the original emmer would hardly recognize the new product. It is larger, darker in color, heavier in straw and head, with larger stooling power, and is much more hardy and prolific under our conditions than the original type. Many of the heads double the spikelets, giving the appearance of a composite wheat. We have grown single heads which weighed a half ounce. So prolific is the grain that in three season we succeeded in increasing it to more than seven hundred and ten bushels, threshing machine measure. This seed has all been planted this fall in order to get as much as possible for distribution next season.

Is Best Drought Resister.

The Improved Winter Emmer seems to be almost as hardy as winter rye and is one of our most drought resistant winter grains. Having been originated in the arid region, it is adapted to our conditions and it promises to be the most valuable feed grain the farmer or stockman can raise, whether he grows crops by irrigation or by dry farming methods.

The first season we grew improved emmer at Worland the winter was very dry, there being no moisture or snow until the middle of March. Last winter was the coldest and most severe ever known in this region, and so far as we could observe not a plant of the emmer winter killed. Our last crop gave a wonderful yield under the condition. It was grown on land which had been salt sage soil and which had produced two previous crops of barley and spring spelt, having had field peas planted with the grain the second year, but the peas made no crop. The emmer was seeded at the rate of thirty to thirty-four pounds seed per acre to make as much increase as possible. There were breaks in our canal and the emmer was irrigated twice on a part of the field and three times on the other part this season. The average yield as the grain came from the thresher was 69.1 bushels per acre. There were parts of the field which undoubtedly yielded twice this average. Many who visited our farm while the grain was ripening pronounced it the most beautiful grain field they had ever seen.

Very Important to Western Farmers.

This grain is an important addition to our western farm products. Definite statements can not be made regarding its yields when planted and cared for properly on good ground, but it is safe to say that the improved emmer will yield more grain and more feeding value per acre than will be secured from any other grain the farmer can grow. It should take the place of corn for stock feeding in the western country where the cool nights interfere with obtaining large yields of corn. It produces well where the summers are so hot that it interferes with the growth of spring grains. Being both drought resistant and a winter grain, it will produce with a small amount of irrigation or rainfall. It has held its improved character for three years in the Big Horn Basin, so there is nothing but confidence in its success. This improved emmer should revolutionize our stock feeding and it will make it unnecessary for our sheepmen or other stockmen to ship corn from the middle states.

Emmer is an early form of wheat. There are two large plump kernels in each spikelet and the grain does not shell out of the hull when it is threshed. The spikelets are large and closely arranged in the head. The head has no central stem or rachis, so the spikelets merely break apart. If it is threshed when very dry and brittle with a high speed cylinder and all the concaves, some of the kernels will shell out of the hulls. When separated from the hulls the grain will weigh a little heavier than wheat, but in the hull it weighs about the same as oats. We call forty pounds a bushel, though no standard weight has been fixed.

No Better Feed for Live Stock.

The cracked emmer makes one of the most delicious breakfast foods for the table. Those who have tried it think it much finer than cracked wheat. It is splendid for poultry or swine and with the hull on there is no better feed for cattle, sheep or horses. The hulls seem to be a great advantage to the grain for feeding. They insure thorough chewing and complete digestion, widen the ration so it is more nearly balanced when feeding with alfalfa, and prevent any trouble from overfeeding, as occurs with corn or wheat. It should not be necessary to grind emmer for horses or sheep feeding.

In most of the mountain regions the winter emmer should be planted in September or early October, using about forty pounds, or one bushel of seed per acre. Where sufficiently irrigated, the grain will be ready to harvest early in July.

Great Call for Feeding Cattle.

From all the central markets comes the same story—urgent demand for feeding cattle. On all sides it is admitted that low prices for this class of offerings will not be seen again this winter. In addition to the "regular" orders are the increased wants from the many sections where rough feed is so abundant. Calls for good fleshy feeders are numerous and urgent, buyers believing that it is cheaper to purchase the additional flesh than to put it on. But relatively few such steers are available, as packers are taking so many of them. Failing to secure these, not a few are stocking up with the lighter grades.

D. V. Groesbeck, Union county, Ia., writes: "Returns received for car of sheep and all parties are satisfied. It was a good sale."

An Important Announcement.

In securing the services of Mr. Thomas H. Cross, who as already announced will after Jan. 1, in conjunction with Mr. Chas. O. Robinson and a strong staff of salesmen, handle our cattle business at Chicago, we have taken a step of importance not only to ourselves, but to every one engaged in the feeding or shipping of cattle. We do not purpose here to enlarge upon his qualifications, but to emphasize the fact that it is in line with the policy of Clay, Robinson & Co. to secure as salesmen, at any cost, the strongest men in the business. This policy, which has been consistently followed out for twenty-five years, largely explains the phenomenal growth of our business. It means that every customer of our firm, whether he ships one car or one hundred cars per year, is assured the services of the very strongest salesmen in the trade. This is more than a claim; it is a fact, for verification of which it is only necessary to read the names on our roster of more than sixty salesmen at the ten leading markets. No man in the cattle trade has a wider acquaintance or stands higher than "Tom" Cross, and we congratulate our customers, as well as ourselves, upon this strong accession to our forces.

Regarding Show Lambs at International.

Clay, Robinson & Co.,
Chicago, Ill.

Gentlemen:

In reply to your letter of Dec. 12th, I enclose the following for publication in the Live Stock Report:

My car of lambs winning fourth place at the recent International Live Stock Show were Minnesota bred and out of stock of my breeding. The judge pronounced them the fattest car of lambs on exhibition and turned them down in preference to Mr. Conley's clipped load for not being a handy weight, yet the scales showed the next day that the weight, if any, was in my favor, with wool on.

While not making any complaint, fully realizing the difficulty of comparing shorn and wooled lambs, it seems that in the future if such a condition should arise a provision for weighing would be advisable.

I wish to show cost of finishing such a load of lambs after placed on grain feed. Sept. 20, Clay, Robinson & Co., in the open market at South St. Paul, sold the best of the cut-back of these lambs for $6.35, netting me $6.10 at home. Sept. 20 the average weight of the 60 lambs placed on feed was 88 lbs, which at $6.10 makes an average cost of $5.36.

With these 60 lambs were fed 25 pure-bred lambs and show stuff, consuming grain as per statement below. As this feed was bought in the open market, I simply state the price paid locally, plus hauling:

90 bu oats @ 33c	$29.70
100 bu cracked corn @ 70c	70.00
1200 lb oil meal, pea size, @ $1.75	21.00
50 bu rye @ 65c	32.50
1500 lb bran @ $1.10	16.50
Salt and tobacco	1.00
Total	$170.70

An average of $2.00 per head. There was additional expense as follows:

18 acres of pasture	$16.00
2500 lb hay	21.00
Labor feeding	25.00
Cabbage	5.00
Total	$67.00

Average was 78c per head and total cost $2.78 per head. The shrinkage, caused by weaning and hot weather, made the first thirty-day gain very small. The most of the twenty-three pound gain was made the last thirty days, as very little, if any, gain was made after loading for the Northwestern Live Stock Show; in fact, undergoing a heavy sweat by too close quarters, nearly put the load out of the championshlp while there.

By deducting the market value on the farm Sept. 20 of $5.36 from Clay, Robinson & Co.'s net return Dec. 1 of 53 lambs, which averaged $6.09, leaves for grain, feed, pasture, hay and labor that cost me $2.78 per head the small amount of 73c, a cash loss of $2.05 per head.

I have worked hard to induce the Northwestern farmer to raise good sheep and put them on the market in prime condition, but if the results of my own efforts show me conclusively that one of the world's great central live stock markets cannot pay within $2 of the bare cost of market production—none of the addltional expenses such as go with fitting and showing in loss are included here—I for one am done with it, and do not feel like advocating it to my fellow sheep men.

Prize winning may depend on the fancy or fad of some judge, but the question will not down in my mind, why should the great International offer a prize for a product that will not pay for cost of production?

I want to know how to produce a profitable market sheep or lamb. The prizes can take care of themselves. Let me hear from some one who has had better success this year.

Sympathy for Firemen's Families.

L. M. Batt of Tekonsha, Mich., writes: "We regret very much the terrible calamity that took place in the Stock Yards last week; not alone the destruction of property, but the loss of lives of those brave men who were doing their duty. My sympathy is for the wives and families."

5,000 or More

Choice Stockers and Feeders

FOR SALE DURING WEEK OF THE National Western Stock Show

UNION STOCK YARDS DENVER JANUARY 16 to 21

Comprising Calves, Yearlings and Two-year-olds of the leading beef breeds, from some of the best herds in the West. A grand chance to secure good stretchy well-bred feeders that will sell high when finished.

Among the cattle to be sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. is a load of Angus yearlings from George F. Lucore of Arriba, Colo., who states that they are well grown and considerably better individuals than those exhibited last year, which, it will be remembered, carried off the Grand Championship. We will also have three loads of choice Shorthorns from the well-known herd of The Greenland Land and Cattle Co., Greenland, Colo., these consisting of calves, yearlings and two-year-old steers. Other offerings consigned to us will include cattle from W. C. Stiles, Loveland, Colo.; P. H. Boothroyd, also of Loveland, as well as a car of yearlings and a car of two-year-old steers from R. S. Van Tassel, Cheyenne, Wyo., one of the best-known breeders of Herefords in that state, who will doubtless send down something choice. We are also expecting a load of Shorthorn calves from Al. Neale, Montrose, Colo., who has captured the Grand Championship in the feeder division at the International Live Stock Exposition at Chicago for two years in succession with cattle of his own breeding. We also expect to have a load of two-year-old Hereford steers from Wolbol & Rhinesmith, Centennial, Wyo., and possibly a string of the Tomkins Cattle Co.'s Herefords, as well as offerings from other well-known herds.

At this writing it is impossible to give a full list of the cattle that will be consigned to our firm, but the foregoing is sufficient to give a fair idea of the character and variety of the offerings.

Come and see them or send us your order. For full particulars address our Denver house.

CLAY, ROBINSON & CO.

UNION STOCK YARDS DENVER, COLO.

AMONG OUR CUSTOMERS

A. T. Davis, a prominent cattleman of Grant county, Neb., was at South Omaha looking after two cars of cattle.

Our South Omaha house handled two cars of cattle for H. W. Moore, the prominent breeder and ranchman of Morgan county, Colo.

Extreme top for hogs at Kansas City on Dec. 20 was $7.67½ and was obtained by our house for a load shipped to them by F. H. Johnson, Richardson county, Neb.

The Empire Sheep Co, one of the foremost sheep raising outfits in Wyoming, had a shipment of eight cars on the South Omaha market from their ranch at Crook county.

Our Chicago house topped both the wool and shorn lamb market on Dec. 26 by landing the offerings at $6.50 and $6.25 respectively. The wooled lambs numbered 200 head, averaged 81 lbs and belonged to R. E. Walworth of Saginaw county, Mich., and the shorn lambs numbered 189 head, averaged 83 lbs and were sent in by James McBride of Shiawassee county, Mich.

A. E. Classen & Sons, Gage county, Neb., write our South St. Joseph house: "We are well pleased with the sale of lambs and think you did well in getting the price."

Early this week the top for cattle at South Omaha was $6.20. This price was obtained by our house for two cars of 1,533 lbs average, marketed by E. Lloyd of Mills county, Ia.

Schuyler county, Mo., was represented on the East St. Louis lamb market Dec. 26 with one deck which averaged 84 lbs and was sold by Clay, Robinson & Co. at $6.25. The owner was D. C. Bernizer.

John Vandegrift, Sherman county, Neb., writes our South Omaha house: "I was well pleased with sale of cattle and will ship you two more cars between now and March 1."

H. O. Tiffany, manager of the Townsend Farms, Huron county, Ohio, writes: "Load of cattle arrived in good condition. Thank you for your good selection. You will get my future orders."

H. W. Wood, Jasper county, Ind., writes: "Price and all for cattle are very satisfactory. Many thanks."

S. P. Delatour of Deuel county, Neb., writes that they have not had any winter yet and stock is still on the range. According to him, there will be plenty of feed for all stock on hand. Grass is plentiful and cattle greatly reduced in numbers.

M. Bishop, the well-known feeder of Shawnee county, Kan., writes that there is quite a shortage of fat cattle and hogs in that part of the country and about the same number of sheep on feed as last winter."

Jacob Affalder of Johnson county, Wyo., writes under date of Dec. 20: "The winter is fine. We haven't had any cold weather or any snow to speak of. Range is very spotted. In some places grass is very good. Stock is looking good."

W. J. Bleakley of Carroll county, Ill., writes: "I am much pleased with the sale of hogs and will continue to ship to Clay, Robinson & Co."

At Chicago on Dec. 23 the limit for sheep was $4.00. This price was obtained by us for two lots and the sales follow: For E. G. Paul of Clarke county, Ia., 212 wethers of 116 lbs average, and for Dickinson & Co. of Tazewell county, Ill., 195 wethers, 123 lbs.

J. J. Ernst of Davis county, Ia., writes: "Was much pleased with the way you handled my car of lambs and the price you obtained. My shipments in the future shall be to your firm."

"There are not as many cattle on feed here as usual," writes A. W. Cheney, proprietor of the Clover Leaf Stock Farm and a prominent breeder of Aberdeen-Angus cattle and Duroc-Jersey hogs, Graham county, Kan. "Hogs are scarce and it is difficult to get enough to run after cattle in the feed lots. Corn was about half a crop and is worth 40c per bushel. We are having fine weather for stock, but it is very dry for wheat. Stock cattle are few in number and high in price."

A. G. Metzinger of Rock county, Wis., had 87 head of 193-lb hogs at Chicago on Dec. 22 and our house landed them at the top price of $8.00. This price was not only the top of the market that day, but 5c per cwt higher than any other light weight offerings made.

The lamb market at Chicago on Dec. 22 was semi-demoralized. In spite of this fact our house sold several loads up to $6.25, the extreme top that day. The sales follow: For Charles Ludlow of Jackson county, Mich., 210 head, 88 lbs average; J. Hennenfent of Howard county, Ind., 141 head, 73 lbs; C. M. Burford of Warren county, Ill., 215 head, 77 lbs; George Dutton of Warren county, Ill., 147 head, 78 lbs; O. W. Shivers & Son of Marion county, Ia., 266 head, 78 lbs.

Scott county, Ia., was represented on the lamb market at Chicago on Dec. 22 with 260 westerns of 68 lbs average, which our house sold on feeding account at $6.00, extreme top for this class. They were marketed by C. E. Dutcher.

W. H. Hazelton of Pike county, Ill., writes: "I wish to thank you for your much appreciated calendar and still more for the splendid service you gave me on my hogs and cattle when at Chicago different times."

Our South St. Joseph house topped the hog market Dec. 24 by selling for S. S. Lingo of Page county, Ia., a load averaging 216 lbs at $7.77½.

N. J. Schaefer of Fall River county, S. D., writes our South Omaha house: "Please accept my hearty thanks for your prompt and wise assistance on the damage claim on the two loads of cattle. It also pleased me very much that you sold my cattle for more money than anybody got here before or after that time. You will get all my stock to sell as long as I have some. I have a good start left for next year and plenty of feed."

Top of the hog market at Chicago last week was $8.00. This price was also the highest since Dec. 12. We sold three different lots at the price on Dec. 21. The sales follow: F. D. Becker of Ogle county, Ill., 66 of 226 lbs average; C. McCollough of Marshall county, Ind., 86 averaging 210 lbs, and C. Clemons of Louisa county, Ia., 64 of 232 lbs average.

G. Mardock of Mercer county, Ill., had 149 western yearling wethers on the Chicago market Dec. 21 that averaged 82 lbs and were sold by us at $5.85. No other firm obtained within 35c per cwt of this price for yearlings that day. The next highest figure for yearlings was $5.75, also obtined by us for 211 head, averaging 84 lbs, sent in by George Cooklin of Louisa county, Ia., and for 277 of 85 lbs average, belonging to C. D. Cooklin of the same place.

S. Yorgenson represented Bingham county, Idaho, on the Chicago market Dec. 21 with a shipment of sheep and lambs which were handled by our house: Included were 383 head of 65-lb feeding lambs which sold at $6.00; the highest price in some time for feeding lambs.

H. A. Gudger, Phillips county, Kan., writes our St. Joseph house: "I thank you for your work on that load of cattle. I was well pleased with the sale. They brought about what I was looking for, in spite of the drop in the market."

C. King of Fremont county, Idaho, writes: "I moved here a year ago from Oklahoma and find this a good stock country. Stock of all kinds does well and is of good quality. I am located in the Little Lost River Valley. Crops are good, especially wheat and alfalfa. This is an irrigated valley. I bought my land here two years ago at $25 per acre and have refused $60 for it. We are thirty miles from a railroad, but good prospects of having a road come through within seven miles of us in a short time. Present railroad point is Arco, fifty-nine miles west of Blackfoot."

Van Acker Bros. of Pipestone county, Minn., write our Sioux City house: "We received returns for load of hogs. Are well pleased in the way you handled and disposed of them. You may look for another shipment in the near future."

C. W. Schliemann of Minnchaha county, S. D., writes: "Received returns from last load of lambs consigned to you and I am well satisfied with the price you got for them. Part of each of these loads I consigned to you were bought by your house at South St. Paul. They made me some money, though I bought then when they were high and sold them when they had dropped in price."

Missouri Farm Experiment Lambs.

The middle of September there was purchased 140 Colorado lambs in Kansas City, averaging 55 lbs, at $6.40. This was a high price to pay for feeders, but it was desired to use the cowpeas before frost, for we knew they, as well as the soft corn, would be practically worthless after the frosts and early freezes. The lambs were filled on a short pasture and then turned into the corn field, just a short time each day for the first week or so, or until they were eating safely the cowpeas and corn. We have not lost a lamb on any of our farms from a cause due to the feeders' neglect or bad judgment. From this bunch three died, one drowned in a small stream, another got on its back in a hollow and the other was lost in shipping. I know of experienced feeders who have lost as high as 10 per cent, due to poor judgment in getting on to feed, and I consider our record pretty good when it is known that this is the first time that any of our demonstrators have fed lambs.

The field of peas and corn that the lambs had access to was about 23 acres, but there were many spots in it from one-quarter to one-half an acre that did not have three bushels of corn on them. A safe estimate of the corn from this field that the lambs ate would be about 100 bushels of a quality of corn not fit for market or storage. About 250 bushels were shocked out for the hogs.

From Sept. 15 to Oct. 25—forty days—the lambs had the run of this field. They were left on it for the next twenty days, during which time they were being put on to feed in the lot, being fed crushed ear corn and clover hay. During this period the time allowed the lambs to pick over the field was shortened each day until they were finally kept in the lot all the time. From Nov. 15 to Dec. 7 they were full fed in the lot, receiving 1 1-5 lbs of hay and 1 2-3 lbs of corn per head per day. The corn and hay fed during the second period was less than half a full feed.

Summarizing buying and feeding expenses, we may state the following:

Sept. 15, purchased 140 lambs, 55 lbs, at $6.40	$492.00
Freight, commission, dipping, driving, etc.	28.00
Estimated bushels of corn gathered from field 100 at 30c (higher price than could have been sold for)	30.00
Corn in dry lot during second period 40 bushels at 45c	18.00
Hay 1,600 lbs at $10 per ton	8.00
Corn during full feed 85 bushels at 45c	38.00
Hay during full feed	19.00
Total cost when ready to leave	$625.00
Marketing expense	36.00
		$661.00
Dec. 7, sold 137, 82-lb lambs at $6.35	$712.00

There were five cut out on this price basis, which makes total receipts a little less than figured.

These lambs were on the road 42 hours and were only shipped about 200 miles. This was due to poor railroad facilities. This makes a very heavy shrink and corresponding loss. The estimated shrink was 8 lbs, which is about double what it should be. This extra 4 lbs of shrink cost about $36, which should be added to the profits.

The market weight, 82 lbs, was too high for real choice lambs, and hence they did not bring as much as they would if weighing 5 to 10 lbs less. However, $6.35, which was obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co. at East St. Louis was 15@25c per cwt higher than the next best lambs on the same market.

We realize that less than $50 on a little over a 90-day feeding operation is not a very big margin, but when it is considered that the price received was 5c per cwt less than the cost, that we marketed a crop that would have been little better than a loss and that 80c per cent of the fertility value of that crop is still on the farm, or better still, right on the field where the crop grew, ready for next year's crop, why then we think that $50 looks pretty good, when it is nearly all profit.—D. H. Doane, in charge of Farm Management in Missouri.

Enoch Lindgren of Ida county, Ia., writes: "Was well pleased with the sale of sheep."

*Obtained by Clay, Robinson & Co.

After the erratically higher market of the forepart of the week, the beef steer trade closed last week with practically all of the advance lost, leaving prices around where they were at the finish of the previous week. The demand from all sources dropped sharply after Wednesday, due in a large measure to the Christmas holidays. The big fire at the Morris plant also had a depressing effect. It was fortunate that the week's total arrivals were held down to 53,706, which compared with 72,558 the previous week. The bulk of the week's trading was at $5.50@6.60, and yearlings topped the trade at $7.25.

This week started out with a run of 12,612. The market was of the booming kind. Prices were advanced 15@25c over the close of the previous week. Under anticipation of light runs on remaining days of the week, buyers went after the early offerings in a hurry, although they were not so keen for the late arrivals. The top was $6.90, paid for 1,398 and 1,562 lbs average. Prices would doubtless have been considerably higher had it not been for the packing plants being closed because of observance of that day as a Christmas holiday.

Run Tuesday was 2,959. There were few steers available and about as few orders. Thus the market held about steady. Best available were 20 head of 1,398 lbs average at $6.35.

Supply Wednesday totaled 14,029. Both eastern shippers and packer buyers started out bidding lower prices. Sellers could not see things in that light. When a trading basis had been established, prices were on a steady to strong basis. Good fat grades showed the strength. We sold 29 head of 1,787-lb branded Western beeves at $7.00, the extreme top by 10c per cwt. They were from the Foster Bros. feed lot in Iowa.

Last week's trade in cows and heifers closed in miserable condition. The price loss from the previous week's finish was anywhere from 25@50c. Dropping off of the shipping demand and packers' firm determination to lay in supplies at lower cost were the depressing factors. The fire at the Morris plant also had a bearish effect. Bulls lost 15@25c from the previous week's close. Owing to a dropping off of the Christmas demand, calf prices were pounded to the tune of 75c@$1.00 from the close of the previous week.

Prices for cows and heifers at the start of this week ruled steady to 10c higher. The supply was meager, as were orders. Bulls advanced 10@15c. Calves held about steady.

The Tuesday trade in cows and heifers was very irregular. However, sales averaged about steady. Bulls were steady. Calves were mostly 25c higher.

Opening 10@15c higher, the Wednesday market for cows and heifers closed with all of the advance lost. Bull market held steady. Calves were unchanged in value.

Last week closed with good to choice heavy fleshy feeders showing 10@15c advance over the close of the previous week, but other kinds were merely steady sale, advance of early in the week for the latter being lost on later days. Assorted heavy fleshy feeders went back to the country at a cost of $5.75 and other selected lots at $5.50@5.65. Packers and feeder buyers continued to compete for these kinds.

During the first half of this week there was no quotable change in prices with the close of last week. The supply was limited and demand not sufficiently broad to enable sellers to raise prices to a higher level.

Last week's average price for hogs at $7.77 was the highest for any week since that ending Nov. 12, and showed 15c advance over the previous week. A big drop in supplies was responsible for sellers' better control of the situation. The total was 136,108, against 160,159 the previous week. The average weight continued relatively heavy, being around 10 lbs heavier than the corresponding week of last year. At the close of the week prices ranged from $7.50@7.95.

This week started out with a run of 23,272. The trade showed a reversal of form. Starting out steady with Saturday's general market, it was not long before prices were 5c higher. Quality continued good and the range of prices very narrow at $7.60@7.95.

Only 13,589 hogs arrived Tuesday. Starting out 5c higher than the previous day's average, the market closed with all of the advance lost. The 8c hog bobbed up again, we obtaining the price for fancy handy weight butchers near the close of the day's session.

Conditions on Wednesday were certainly adverse to the selling interests. Receipts of 22,953 proved greater than trade requirements, eastern shipping demand fell off, provisions had the sharpest break in many days and packers were extremely bearish. Barring a few scattered sales to speculators at steady prices, rates were generally 10@15c lower, with extreme cases showing 20c decline. The average price at $7.77 was the lowest since Tuesday of last week. Speculators paid up to $7.90@8.00 at the outset, but had to re-sell them to packers late in the day's session at $7.75@7.80.

Clay, Robinson & Co.'s revised quotations for all grades of hogs:

Sheep and Lambs.

Following shows top prices and bulk of sheep and lamb sales this week, with comparisons, as compiled by Clay, Robinson & Company's Live Stock Report:

	Sheep		Lambs
	Top	Bulk	Top	Bulk
This week	$4 40	$3 50@4 10	$6 65	$5 75@6 50
Last week	4 35	3 60 4 15	6 80	5 75 6 65

2 years ago	5 50	4 25 4 85	7 85	7 00 7 60

Under light runs late Wednesday and Thursday, the market last week became demoralized. To show the terrific slide downward in prices, at the close of the week choice light lambs had to go at $6.00@6.25, against $6.75@6.80 high time Wednesday, and $6.25@6.35 at the finish of the previous week. The common price for strictly good extreme big weight lambs was $5.00 at the close. Yearlings lost all of the gain they scored the fore part of the week, closing mostly 75c lower than best time Wednesday. At the finish $5.00 was the extreme limit for even fancy light weights. Wethers of a good choice fat class sold at $3.85@4.00, being 25c lower than high time Wednesday, while ewes showed around 50c loss from that time, it being a $3.25@3.50 market for good to choice handy weights, and only fancy handy grades reached $3.75. The week's receipts were 84,580, against 68,635 corresponding week last year.

It was a 15@25c higher market for fresh arrivals of sheep and lambs at the start of this week. Total arrivals 3,872. The several thousand holdovers from last week met a very indifferent demand, buyers bidding merely steady prices for these. Fancy lambs reached $6.50, heavy wethers $4.20 and weighty ewes $3.75.

Marketing Tuesday was 8,608. The trade was very uneven, but prices were generally steady to 10c higher. There were not many sales at the advance. Best lambs sold up to $6.60 and fall-shorn lots at $6.00. The limit for yearlings was $5.50. Wethers were quotable up to $4.25 and ewes to $4.00. There were still many loads of stale offerings over from last week and buyers refused to pay better than last week's closing rates for them.

The Wednesday run was 18,882. Opening on a stronger basis, the market closed 10@15c lower. Sheep and yearlings were in very scant numbers and these kinds went on a higher basis from start to finish. However, eastern shipping demand was very limited, owing to the bad condition of the trade in the East, and packers had very meager orders. Prime 80-lb lambs went up to $6.65, heavy yearlings $5.35, wethers $4.40 and ewes $4.15. However, at the close the limit for lambs was $6.50 and $5.75 bought prime heavy weights.

Makes Stand for College Exhibits.

The Live Stock Report:

In your issue of the 16th, "W. A. P.," Jamestown, Ohio, in his "Brother Bill" letter, very nicely gives his opinion of the present system of competition at the Fat Stock Show. That would be taken as a wild criticism if it were not preceded by an explanation that plainly shows he means what he says about separating the College exhibits from the Granger exhibits.

It is true that the colleges carry away the highest honors. But they do it by judicious selection and scientific feeding and care. And the sooner the country boy learns this, the better it will be for him. He will never attain to the best until he competes with the best.

Divide those two exhibits, and the college exhibit will still be the best, and would be called exhibit No. 1 and the grange exhibit would be No. 2. Then think of Grand Champion No. 1 and Grand Champion No. 2. No. 2 would surely incite mirth, if he attracted attention at all. It would be like the "county trot" at some of the county fairs. It never was a drawing attraction. It never was conducive to raising a better grade of driving horses, and was generally the joke of the fairs.

The management of this great stock show has given the greatest possible stimulus to better breeding and better feeding of all farm animals by the sharp competition it has created. Why? No novice wins a prize, nor no one with a horse shoe nailed over his feed room door, nor do they go to the man who thinks he knows. But they go to the man who knows. The prizes are won "with malice afore thought," as it were.

The college competition is the very best thing that the boy needs to develop him quickly in the right way. When you measure farmer against farmer, improvement is mighty slow. Just look around you in your own township, "W. A. P.," and see how many farmers are using correct (scientific) methods in their work. I dare say there are not half a dozen poultry houses in that territory that are so built as to get the best results, and yet there is an abundance of free literature sent out by the colleges, experiment stations and the Department of Agriculture to teach us how these things should be done. And after all that has been written and said by the same departments about barn building! How many barns are there in Green county, Ohio, that have any system of ventilation other than all ventilation? Any system by which the temperature and humidity can be controlled? Are well lighted? Are convenient and comfortable? Are rat proof? Have any system of taking care of the manure so as to get its full value? Or even have a silo? Yet all of these are pointed out as absolutely necessary in the modern barn. Now, there are other lines of farm equipment and farm work that are about as antique as the two above mentioned, and the truth is we do not realize the condition until we measure up against the fellow who is up to date. As I see it, the whole slow process of improvement is caused by farmer measuring against farmer. The colleges of agriculture are doing everything in their power not to defeat the farmer boys, but to help them, and the boy who goes to the college, the experiment station or the Department of Agriculture for the solution of his farm problems, will not have much trouble keeping up with the procession, and the boy who stands pat will sooner or later find that in effect he has slidden back, for the procession has moved on.

So don't take away the college competition at this greatest show on earth from the boy if you want to develop the best that is in him.

"A Wise Selection."

C. E. Henry of Woodson, Ill., writes: "We note that you have secured the services of Mr. Thomas H. Cross as an additional salesman in your cattle department, and we think that you have made a wise selection. He is an 'artist' as a buyer, and will undoubtedly make good on the other side of the fence."

James Walter of Palmyra, Mo., writes: "Permit me to compliment you upon securing the services of Mr. Thomas Cross as cattle salesman for your firm. It will certainly add to your already extensive business. We hardly think you could get his equal in the country."

Economical Production of Beef.

The Nebraska Experiment Station has just issued Bulletin 116, which deals with problems in cattle feeding that affect materially the profits to be derived in the practice of feeding. Part I deals with foodstuffs as affecting economy of production, while part II concerns the individual gaining capacity of animals representing different types.

For several years the Department of Animal Husbandry has conducted a series of experiments with problems in cattle feeding applicable to Nebraska conditions in particular. These experiments have followed each other in logical order, three trials having been made before definite conclusions were drawn. In a former bulletin it was shown that an average of 36 per cent more grain was required to produce a given gain, and at a correspondingly higher cost, when the ration consisted of corn and prairie hay than when it consisted of corn and alfalfa hay. In the comparison of a ration consisting of corn, prairie hay and linseed meal, the last forming 10 per cent of the grain ration, and a ration consisting of corn and prairie hay without such a protein supplement, the average for three experiments showed that 31 per cent more grain was required for a given gain without this meal than with it, and the cost of producing gains was 12 per cent greater without the linseed meal, for which an average price of $28.33 per ton was paid.

Interesting and Instructive Tests of Feeds.

Having shown the importance of using a protein concentrate when alfalfa is not fed, two later experiments were made to determine if possible the relative value of three commercial protein supplements, namely, linseed meal, cotton seed meal and wheat bran, each of the two former being made 10 per cent of the grain ration, with corn, and the bran 25 per cent, this larger quantity of bran being used because of its lower protein content. A fourth group received a ration consisting of corn and equal parts of alfalfa as stover. In the first experiment (1906), the market price of corn was 35c per bushel, bran $15 per ton, linseed and cotton seed meal each $32, and alfalfa and prairie hay each $6.00 per ton. At these prices the highest profits were made on the group of ten steers which were fed corn, alfalfa and prairie hay, the alfalfa furnishing the protein desired to make up the deficiency of that nutrient in corn. The profits by the use of wheat bran and cotton seed meal were nearly identical —57c per head with the bran and 47c per head with the cotton seed meal—from which it might be inferred that cotton seed meal has a feeding value a little more than twice that of bran per ton. With linseed meal as a supplement to corn, the profits averaged $1.43 per steer, ten animals being fed in each of the groups. In the second experiment, with corn costing 36c per bushel, bran $18 per ton, linseed meal $29.50, cotton seed meal $27.75, alfalfa $6.00 and corn stover (stalks) $2.50, the profits were again highest with the alfalfa—an average of $6.38 per steer on the ration consisting of corn alfalfa and corn stover; a profit of $1.65 per steer on the ration consisting of corn 90 per cent, linseed meal 10 per cent and corn stover; a profit of $1.32 per steer on corn 90 per cent, cotton seed meal 10 per cent and corn stover; and a loss of $3.94 per steer on corn 78 per cent, bran 22 per cent and corn stover. This experiment, therefore, also shows that wheat, bran does not have a feeding value per ton to exceed half that of cotton seed meal for use with corn in fattening cattle. The results of this experiment also indicate that linseed meal is worth approximately $2.00 per ton more than cotton seed meal for this purpose. In both experiments the alfalfa proved to be worth $13 per ton in comparison with linseed meal at $30.

Cattle Relish New Process Cake.

The following year, 1908, the new process cold pressed cotton seed cake was substituted for cotton seed meal. This cost $25 per ton, in comparison with linseed meal at $29.70, bran $22, corn 52c per bushel, alfalfa $7.00 per ton and shredded corn stover $4.00 per ton. The net profits per head that year, including pork produced, averaged $5.15 per steer with bran, $3.44 with linseed meal, $6.87 with cotton seed cake and $8.16 with alfalfa, corn being used as the basis of the grain ration as before, and corn stover the roughage. One explanation of the less favorable showing made by the linseed meal was the fact that the product purchased seemed to be inferior in quality to that used in former experiments, and the chemical analysis made would tend to verify this. The cold pressed cotton seed cake gave large gains, and, at the price, proved to be the most economical of the three protein concentrates. This new process cake is well relished by cattle, and the fact that the oil is taken from the cotton seed by hydraulic pressure rather than by the use of steam and chemical solvents would seem to be in its favor, as cooking coagulates the albumen and renders it less digestible. The steers fed bran made a much better showing than in the two preceding tests.

In these experiments, observations were made on the quality of the meat after the cattle were sold and slaughtered. The groups fed alfalfa were judged by the experts from the packing houses as superior to any of the others. There seemed to be little difference in the quality of the meat from the use of bran, linseed meal and cotton seed meal.

Proportion of Corn to Alfalfa.

In this bulletin are also included the results of three experiments to determine the most profitable proportion of corn to alfalfa. It would seem from the data secured that, when corn is worth 35@40c per bushel and alfalfa not to exceed $7.00 per ton in the stack or mow, considerably less than a full feed of corn—probably 14 to 18 lbs per day for a two-year-old steer—is more profitable than a full feed, which would be about 22 lbs per day. If corn is worth 50@60c per bushel and alfalfa $7.00 per ton, approximately half a feed of corn—10 to 12 lbs—will produce more profitable gains if a good quality of alfalfa is fed in liberal quantity, in fact all that will be consumed. This presupposes a fair quality of steers and a few weeks' extra time to give the desired finish.

Is Thankful for Good Service.

Charles C. Judy, a widely-known dealer in mules and a prominent farmer and feeder, Tallula, Ill., writes our Chicago house: "Returns received for the last of the 2,200 lambs. While they did not make the money this year that they have in former years, they paid a good corn bill and left more on the land than they took away. They were of extra quality and made a large gain. I want to thank and compliment you for your part in the buying and selling of the lambs."

More Flesh and Early Maturity.

If the fat stock shows have shown anything, they have shown, by the premiums awarded and the decisions of butchers, that the thick-fleshed animal that finishes up as quickly as possible is the one that is in greatest demand by the meat world.

Both in sheep and cattle, breeders have striven, first of all, for size, regardless of the thickness of flesh and the ease with which these animals fatten into prime condition for slaughter. Awards seem to indicate that this has been a great mistake. Size, of course, is important; and, where economical growth is made, a certain amount of this quality is essential. But what is equally or more essential is that the animal be covered with thick flesh; that it be "meaty," and that when cut it shall give satisfaction. With this thickness of flesh has been and is usually associated comparatively early maturity. It is possible, of course, to get the animal too small and to have the maturity come too soon in life. On the other hand, it is possible to do just what people have been doing when they have selected for size, without regard to thickness and early maturity. A medium-sized animal, that shows these desirable qualities, is rather to be preferred.

Whether it is a mutton sheep or a beef animal, the entire top part is a general indication of what the animal is. It should be of equal width through the chine, through the ribs, through the loin and through the rump, from side to side. This sort of an animal indicates that the thick muscle runs from one end of the animal to the other. Those that are narrow over the rump, wide over the loin, narrow in the chine, long in the neck, are not heavily-muscled. If they are wide in front and narrow behind, they are not thick-muscled. Those that have protruding rear ribs are not thick-muscled and if they are not thick-muscled they are not early-maturers either. Of course, with thickness through the top part of the body, we like to see an animal that stands near the ground and that has the curved rib extending from the top of the body to the bottom. This formation usually goes with thick muscles and with the early maturity for which we are looking.

That improvement is being made in the direction of thickness of flesh and early maturity is evident, now that feeders are talking of discontinuing the two-year-old class, in which the show rules permit an animal to be from 36 to 39 months of age when shown. This is being talked of by leading showmen because the proper type of an animal will reach the prime stage in life, as regards fleshing and finishing, and economy of production, about 12 months before the regular two-year-old show class is reached. Keeping them to show in this class is simply doing something that has no economic value, and is misleading to the public in so far as this is concerned. The move is a wise one, and we hope to see it carried out, and the thickness of flesh and early maturity, which are now held up as points to be sought in cattle, encouraged by all meat producers.—D. O. Gaumnitz.

Time for Denver Entries Extended.

While it has been previously announced that entries in the carload cattle classes for stockers and feeders at the National Western Show, to be held at Denver, Colo., would close on Jan. 2 (this being in accordance with the rules of the show), we are now advised by Clay, Robinson & Co., that they will be held open until the first day of the show, or Jan. 16.

A High Meat Bill.

America's annual meat bill, from her six big packing companies, is $945,000,000.

That figure represents at once the country's prosperity, in her ability to pay the bill, and the enormous business done each year by the great concerns.

The remuneration of those whose business acumen has built up the stupendous commercial enterprises, as ascertainable from authoritative sources, is $25,000,000 each year, a figure which, representing the combined net profits of the interests which have established and which maintain them, drives home more forcibly the realization of America's prosperity and the magnitude of the business of the big packing concerns.

As representing the gross annual business of each of the packers, the following figures are from authoritative sources:

Armour & Co.	$275,000,000
Swift & Co.	260,000,000
Morris & Co.	125,000,000
National Packing Company	100,000,000
Sulzberger & Sons	100,000,000
Cudahy & Co.	85,000,000
Total	$945,000,000

The net profits are as follows:

Armour & Co.	$ 9,888,305.69
Swift & Co.	8,000,000.00
Morris & Co.	2,171,339.00
Sulzberger & Sons	1,600,000.00
Cudahy & Co.	1,700,000.00
Total	$23,379,644.69

Big Profit in Hogs.

Hogs are now the most profitable and popular animals on the farm. You can sell your corn through the hog for a dollar a bushel and this plan for marketing the crop conserves the farm's fertility.

The hog produces double the pounds of pork from a bushel of corn that a steer does of beef.

The main cost of producing pork is the feed. Prof. Dietrich says: "90% of the farmers have nearly everything to learn about how to feed a hog to get the most out of him at the least cost." It isn't what the hog eats but what he digests that makes the profit. Experience is our best teacher. The most successful feeders have reached their success by years of hard work in solving costly problems and demonstrating truths. You can start right in at their point of success, securing FREE the benefit of the practical experience of the successful ones and also avoid others mistakes. The pathway to success is strewn with failures. There is a new crop of experience grown monthly; it pays to have the benefit of the other fellow's knowledge.

The AMERICAN SWINEHERD is progressive, aggressive and practical, concentrating its efforts in serving its readers with the latest methods, practices and experiences of the successful feeders, developers and pork producers. It shows you how to feed for best results, how to cheapen the feed by combinations to balance the ration, prevent waste and secure 16 lbs of pork out of a bushel of corn instead of the ordinary feeder's 10 lbs. "It is the CHEAPEST EXPERT help you can HIRE." It teaches how to make the greatest profit out of hogs, in all localities.

SPECIAL HALF RATE OFFER: For one dollar we will send you the American Swineherd four years and if sent in ten days will also give you as a premium copy of the "Pig Feeders' Manual," worth a dollar itself to any hog raiser. The paper stops at the time paid to. The Swineherd is endorsed by Agricultural Colleges and recommended by this paper to its readers.

"NAPOLEON A CAPTIVE"

NAPOLEON'S name fills more pages in the world's solemn history than that of any other mortal. This famous painting shows him a captive on board the English ship Bellerophon, gazing out across the solemn sea toward France, where he was once emperor. He realizes that his dream of universal empire is at an end, yet is unconscious that he is soon to be banished like an outcast 1,000 miles from shore to the lonely, barren rocks of St. Helena. This famous picture from Ridpath's History illustrates but one event out of the thousands which make up the history of every empire, kingdom, principality and power, all accurately and entertainingly told in the world-famed publication

THE REASON for Dr. Ridpath's enviable position as an historian is his wonderfully beautiful style, a style no other historian in any generation has ever equalled. He pictures the great historical events as though they were happening before your eyes; he carries you with him to see the battles of old; to meet kings and queens and warriors; to sit in the Roman senate; to march against Saladin and his dark skinned followers; to sail the southern seas with Drake, to circumnavigate the globe with Magellan, to watch that thin line of Greek spearmen work havoc with the Persian hordes on the field of Marathon; to know Napoleon as you know Roosevelt. He combines absorbing interest with supreme reliability and makes the heroes of history real, living men and women, and about them he weaves the rise and fall of empires in such a fascinating style that history becomes as absorbingly interesting as the greatest of novels. RIDPATH throws the mantle of personality over the old heroes of history. Alexander is there; patriot, warrior, statesman, diplomat, crowning the glory of Grecian history. Xerxes, from his mountain platform, sees Themistocles with three hundred and fifty Greek ships smash his Persian fleet of over a thousand sail, and help to mould the language in which this paragraph is written. Rome perches Nero upon the greatest throne on earth, and so sets up a poor madman's name to stand for countless centuries as the synonym of savage cruelty; Napoleon fights Waterloo again under your very eyes, and reels before the iron fact that at last the end of his gilded dream has come. Washington is there, "four-square to all the winds," grave, thoughtful, proof against the wiles of British strategy and the poison darts of false friends; clear-seeing over the heads of his fellow-countrymen, and on into another century, the most colossal world-figure of his time.
